Good Amateur Drinker Probes Drinking Laws

LONDON (CP) — A peer who calls himself "a good amateur drinker" has been named to head an inquiry committee into Britain's drinking laws, which often drive tourists wild.

"I enjoy the British pub and I enjoy a pie and a pint," says Lord Erroll of Hale, 55, a former Conservative cabinet minister, who was appointed by the government Tuesday to run the inquiry.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling, making the announcement in the Commons, described the British pub-drinking laws as "archaic."

Drinking places are closed for much of the afternoon, the hours depending on local authorities' rulings. Organizations such as the British Tourist Association have been clamoring for a change so that visitors can walk in and have a glass when they feel like it.

It's all a hand-down from a long and varied history of the liquor licensing laws.

Henry VII in 1495 first instituted controls by empowering judges to suppress "useless" alehouses, part of a policy of discouraging indoor games such as darts, which diverted people from archery.

The present regulations are mainly rooted in measures to curb excessive drunkenness in the 19th century.

One of the disconcerting features for the visitor is that as he goes from place to place he is never sure when he'll find a pub open.

In England, drinking hours vary from county to county.

In Scotland, you can get a drink at a hotel—but not a pub—on Sundays.

In Wales, everyone takes a chance on Sundays. Whether or not pubs open in a particular community is decided by a local referendum.

"I am not a tuff who knows nothing about Britain's drinking habits. It is very pleasant to relax and enjoy a beer or whisky in friendly company.

"I have had a drink on trains, in working men's clubs and, in my younger days, as an engineering apprentice. I used to look forward to a pint of beer and a pie at lunchtime in a pub."

He estimated it would take about a year to finish the inquiry.

Brazilians Opposing Yielding to Kidnappers

Authoritative sources say a growing hard-line faction feels that if the government gives in every time there is a political kidnapping, there will be a rash of abductions.

Another faction, made up mostly of former army officers, is said to feel that if the government does not do its best to get Bucher released, it will be "setting a bad example and will forcibly lower its moral standing among other nations."

Brazil has gained the release of three kidnapped diplomats in the last two years by bowing to terrorist demands for the freeing of political prisoners.

Police and officials were studying two documents they said were the first word from the terrorists who kidnapped the ambassador.

One of the documents was said to be a manifesto from the kidnappers, and the other was reported to be a letter written by Bucher. Both were said to be hand-written in French.

Someone called the Swiss embassy Tuesday afternoon and said an envelope containing the documents had been left at a Roman Catholic church in suburban Tijuca. Police picked up the envelope and began checking the authenticity of the documents.

Police had received several previous notes purportedly from the kidnappers but had ruled them "unauthentic" because they contained nothing from Bucher to prove that he was being held by the senders. The notes variously demanded freedom for 60 to 70 convicts regarded by terrorist groups as political prisoners.

Bucher was snatched from his limousine at gunpoint while on his way to the Swiss embassy. A Brazilian federal police agent riding with him as a bodyguard was wounded and was in critical condition in hospital.

A terrorist group called the Popular Revolutionary Vanguard, or VPR, has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping.

In Bern, Swiss government sources said they expect the Brazilian government to meet promptly whatever terms the kidnappers might be demanding for Bucher's release.

Officials said they had no confirmation yet of what the demands were, but that Switzerland will insist that any terms including the release of political prisoners be met.

UAW Talks to Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — With contract agreement with two of the Big Three auto-makers in hand, the United Auto Workers Union shifts its bargaining emphasis to Chrysler Corp. today, hoping to reach a new national settlement by the end of next week.

The way was cleared to start intensive bargaining with Chrysler after the UAW's Ford Council voted 186 to 1 Tuesday to recommend ratification by the union membership of a new three-year contract with Ford Motor Co.

The 160,000 Ford workers are to cast their ballots on the new contract by next Tuesday. With the strong endorsement of the UAW's leadership, the contract is expected to be ratified with ease.

With a few exceptions, the Ford contract is similar to the one reached at General Motors

He's Had Enough Sex, Gives Way to Youth

LONDON (AP) — Sir John Treveylan, Britain's movie censor for the last 13 years, is quitting because he's had enough of sex movies and wants to make way for a younger man.

Treveylan said today that he'll be glad to be liberated from the "sex jungle" on the screen.

"When I leave this job next summer," he said, "I will have had enough of 'anything goes.'"

Treveylan commented after The Daily Sketch reported he was quitting and quoted him as saying:

"I'm tired of the stuff we're getting now. I've had enough of American, German, Scandinavian and Italian sex films.

"Sex is a marvellous human activity—but merely to watch other people doing it is not my kind of entertainment.

"I think people are sex mad. Perhaps they have been deprived of it."

He said: "Aldous Huxley once defined an intellectual as somebody sometimes occasionally interested in something other than sex. There don't seem to be many intellectuals in Europe by the films I've seen recently. Some of the stuff around London is terrible."

McNaughton Alone

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said Tuesday that Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton was the only provincial treasurer to express concern at the meeting of finance ministers here this week about the effects of a slow-growth economy on provincial finances.

Selective Controls Backed

Mackasey Agrees with Douglas on Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey and New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas appeared to agree in the Commons Tuesday that selective prices and incomes controls may be necessary to curb inflation in the future.

Mr. Douglas said that the prices and incomes commission guides have been abandoned because the government "lacked the courage to impose selective mandatory controls in the sensitive areas of the economy."

Mr. Mackasey remarked that selective controls "might very well be the answer to the next round of inflation."

They were speaking during the second day of debate on the budget brought down by Finance Minister Edgar Benson last Thursday.

A New Democrat motion asking the House to deplore what the motion calls the government's failure "to alleviate the plight of those in receipt of inadequate incomes" was defeated 112 to 71 with the Conservatives and Creditistes voting with the NDP.

Also before the House are a government motion seeking approval of its budgetary policies and a Conservative motion calling on MPs to deplore the government's "abysmal failure" to stimulate the economy.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield criticized the government for giving up on voluntary price and wage restraint at the time such an approach was most likely to succeed—when the economy was cooled off.

Mr. Mackasey said Mr. Douglas has frequently called for selective controls though the minister did not know in which areas the NDP leader would apply them.

But the proposal could be the answer to inflation. If unemployment was to be fought effectively "we will have to find something other than simply fiscal and monetary policies with which to conquer inflation."

"The point I am getting at is that this country can no longer afford the type of unemployment that faces us this winter."

Outside the House Tuesday, Mr. Benson told reporters he had never ruled out direct controls. But the country had managed to live through inflation this year without compulsory controls.

Mr. Mackasey said in the House that he believes the voluntary approach as used this year "leaves a lot to be desired because there were not too many volunteers."

Labor had been unfairly singled out for criticism for not complying with the wage restraint guides. There were not too many medical doctors who had been willing to reduce their fees.

Mo-Hawk Shortages Continue in Loss to Aces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Last night's 3-2 senior hockey loss to visiting Kingston Aces was a familiar story of shortages for Belleville Mo-Hawks.

The Kingston net-was notably shy of Belleville goals, and Ed Mouncer's Aces seats were lamentably shy of people.

Only one — many of them from Kingston, — were willing to chance the price of admission on the stomping Mo-Hawks, who lost their fifth in six games while the Aces were stretching their winning to six. The few Bellevillians who did show up went home disappointed by Bob Collins pinball winner with less than six minutes showing on the clock.

Those who stayed home to watch "Ice Hew" missed one of the Mo-Hawks' better efforts of the season. They had everything going for them but goals.

Lorne O'Donnell's early powerplay goal gave the locals a 1-0 first-period edge that should have been at least 3-0.

Later in the period, George Godson lost the puck after being sent in alone on Kingston goalie Mike Lovell by linebacker Al Ferguson. And with two minutes left in the period, Ray Johnston fanned on a passout from Wayne McConnell with the Kingston net yawning at him.

Escaping a 17-shot barrage only one goal down was no inspiring to the Aces as it was depressing to the Mo-Hawks. The visitors came out flying in the second period and looked as much at home as they do in the spacious confines of their own Memorial Centre.

Ray Johnston and Garfield Ball were serving major penalties for a sparring match when defenceman Tom Thurlby blasted a screened point shot past Rexe with only six seconds remaining in the second period to give the Aces the lead.

But Bob Collins broke up a ten-minute spell of close - to-the - vest hockey when he ricocheted a shot into the Belleville net off a Mo-Hawk defender's skate at 14.18.

The goal came after Rexe had made a good initial stop on a drive by winger Tom Smallman, but the rebound bounced right out to the slot where Collins was crashing.

Their win solidified Kingston's grip on fourth place in the eight - team OHA Senior A standings, three points ahead of Belleville and Owen Sound.

Owen Sound now enjoy a game in hand over the Mo-Hawks, who try-and improve their 7-11 record Friday night, the last-place Wood stock A's are the guests.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1970

By Eric Emerson
Staff Sportswriter

The city of Belleville is understandably proud of the number of winners who have left the Moira River sporting fraternity to make their mark on the national scene.

The mention of the World and Allan Cup champion Belleville McFarlands still brings a nostalgic film to the eyes of senior A hockey fans as they suffer through the up-and-down fortunes of the Mo-Hawks,

People puff up their chests at the fact that Bobby Hull, perhaps the NHL's greatest all-time scorer, began his minor hockey career in the city.

Football buffs insist that, "I knew all the time that Wellesley had the ability," when the Ottawa Rough Rider halfback sprints across their 24-inch national window.

It's not hard to support a winner — even if you, yourself aren't one and sportswise at least, the city of Belleville is very definitely a loser.

For instance, in what community would you say the outstanding Canadian athlete of 1970 resided? Toronto? No. Montreal? No. Vancouver? No. Belleville? Belleville!

The winner of this year's Viscount Alexander Trophy is 115-pound Canadian wrestling champion Robert Stitt. The 19-year old grappler, who has since moved to Toronto with his family, also listed a win at the University of Guelph Invitational Tournament among last year's accomplishments, when he defeated the United States champion in his weight class.

The Stitt family left Belleville bitter about the treatment, or more accurately lack of treatment accorded Robert before his winning of the Canadian title.

The amateur athlete of the year complained of no facilities in which to practise, no coaching once the high school season ended, and in short, no general interest from his home town.

Stitt ended up winning a Canadian championship under the banner of the Hamilton Wrestling Club which provided him transportation to the event held in Edmonton and Belleville received all the national acclaim that it deserved from the event — practically nothing. The meeting whatsoever was made of our fair city is Stitt's Alexander Trophy accomplishment.

For a small amount of aid, or even a twitch with the name BELLEVILLE stencilled across the back, the city could have put itself in national focus. Pretty cheap advertising.

The case of Harold Brant underlines the lack of city interest. Like Stitt, he is a national junior wrestling champion and also like Stitt, he was forced to depend on help from the Hamilton Wrestling Club, as well as from interested individuals who knew him personally, to attend the championships in Edmonton.

The grade 13 Moira Secondary School student is currently trying to raise funds for a wrestling trip to Moscow and it certainly shouldn't be hard to gain support to represent an area in international competition. (Except, possibly, from the federal government which ironically spent an estimated $150,000 last week transporting kidnappers to Cuba and $6.00 to help send our junior wrestlers to Russia).

While Brant has been working out since the first of November with the Trojan wrestling team, many of the competitors have been able to compete all year around as members of various wrestling clubs.

Pointing to the cellar-like confines of the Moira wrestling room, which is located in a narrow archery range, he noted, "You just couldn't have 20 or 30 boys training here, they'd be slamming their heads into the wall every time they turned around. What's needed is space in a separate building where you'd have room to operate and wouldn't have to keep moving the mats."

Why take the trouble and expense to promote a sport like wrestling when there are programs such as minor hockey available for boys? As Hughes points out, "I think that things like minor hockey are great, but why exclude sports like wrestling that may require even more effort on the part of the individual. Look at some of the 98-pound kids wrestling. What other sport could they compete in? Certainly not football or basketball."

"The coaches have to be interested in the sport or they haven't spent their time and money helping with it, and the talent is obviously there. Maybe if we had some proper facilities people in other areas wouldn't be so amazed when we turn out a top flight wrestler."

Nor is the lack of athletic facilities limited to wrestling. In the 1970 Commonwealth Games virtually all of our medal output came from swimming, wrestling and weightlifting.

Belleville at present has no public program for competitive swimming such as the highly successful Trenton Dolphins Swim Club. There are no facilities for a community program except for the small YMCA pool which is often in use for other purposes.

The Apollo Barbell Club's "home of Canadian Champions", is located in coach Ken Carr-Brant's double garage, hardly an impressive sight for a team that boasts four Canadian titlists.

It is also significant that while athletes such as Bobby Hull and Terry Wellesley received their basic training in Belleville, they were forced to travel to places like St. Catharines and Colorado before they could fully develop their natural ability.

People like the Hulls, Wellesleys, Robert Stitts and Harold Brants have gained national acclaim despite, rather than because of community support.

But then what can you expect from a city of losers?

On the Right Track

Belleville-based CN trainmen are among the city's more generous minor hockey sponsors. Here representatives Gerald Ethier and Bob Bardy look over two of their investments: midget house league performer Steve Cowan and novice Bruce Bateman. Both boys wear the colors of the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund, which sponsored the two house league entries to the tune of $300 each. Part of the sum will finance out-of-town expeditions for the teams.

Kingston Downs Trenton

Kingston Frontenacs downed the Trenton Golden Hawks 12-3 in the only Eastern Ontario Junior B contest played last night to remain on the heels of the second place Oshawa Crusheens.

For the Golden Hawks it was their 11th loss in 11 starts this season, with their only win coming over the first place Peterborough Lions. The league leaders have lost only two of 14 starts and boast a goals - against average of 2.50.

Names of the goal scorers were not available.

Wrestlers on Ropes

Centennial Secondary School wrestlers had both Quinte and Trenton opponents on the ropes when they played host to a triangular meet Tuesday.

Five Centennial team members — Dave Dwoiak, Brian Hayward, Ralph Adams, John Dwornik, and Vic Rabel — won both their bouts as the host team outpointed Quinte 39-13 and then Trenton by a 34-20 margin.

Cosby Gives Survival Course For Sidelines

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian-actor Bill Cosby, the frustrated football player, never misses a Los Angeles Rams' game and never fails to get more boos than the opponents.

"It hurts," says the former Temple University benchwarmer of the razzing he gets each Sunday. But he explains it's all a mistake:

"I really do root for the Rams. I just stand on the other side to see better." And, standing where he does, it might be a little dangerous to root noticeably for his team.

Cosby explained that he likes the sound of hitting and tackling. Standing on the sidelines is the only way of being close to where the action is. But he says he can't see anything from the Rams' side of the field.

"I'd watch from the Rams' side except you can't see anything from our side because the Rams leave so much space, they never sit down. They're always on their feet, yelling and shouting and getting in the way. Then there are the photos. Every time you lean one way or the other, wham, a camera hits you in the head. So I go to the other side of the field. It's peaceful. But it's not easy."

Ali Connects

New York and Houston Battle For Clay-Frazier Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali stood ready Tuesday for a showdown fight with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier whose stock was boosted by Ali's showing against Oscar Bonavena. It is just a matter of where and when.

"We like to think here we have a better than 50-50 chance to make the match," said Harry Markson, Madison Square Garden director of boxing.

Twelve hours earlier Ali had ended an unspectacular fight by stopping Oscar Bonavena on three knockdowns in the 15th round in the Garden. It was a weary and bruised Ali when the end came.

"If we land the Ali-Frazier fight, we would like to have it sometime before the end of March," said Markson.

The Astrodome in Houston also is bidding for the bout.

It was the crowd of 19,417 which paid $615,401 Monday night that was one source of encouragement for Markson in his efforts to stage the encounter between the two unbeaten fighters.

Another reason is Frazier has

JOE FRAZIER

always drawn well in the big Arena.

But the big point in favor of an Ali-Frazier bout in the Garden is the success Monday night's fight had on closed circuit television in the New York area.

Markson pointed out that in the past a criticism of holding the fight here was that it would cut out the lucrative New York closed circuit television market.

However, he said the theatre television of the Ali-Bonavena fight in the New York metropolitan area was sold out. About 50,000 seats were available, Markson said.

"That destroys that argument," he added.

There is one other argument that still has to be settled. That is the one involving Ali's conviction for refusing induction into the military service, a conviction that could lead to a five-year prison term and one that led to Ali's being stripped of his title.

The U.S. Supreme Court still has to act on Ali's appeal of the conviction. This is not expected to interfere with an Ali-Frazier fight in February or March.

Rookie Helps Lace Leafs Canucks Clobber New York

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don't look for the name of Greg Polis in this year's National Hockey League Guide, but coach Red Kelly has high hopes for the Pittsburgh Penguins' No. 1 draft pick.

"He's from the open air country and he has done it all like Gordie," said Kelly recently of his prize rookie while comparing him in some respects to Gordie Howe. O'Reilly Red Wings' 25-year veteran and a one-time Kelly team-mate.

"When Howe came up to the NHL he was the kind of guy who had sharpened skates, and things like that, Greg reminds me of him in that way."

Polis had his biggest night in the big league at home Tuesday night as the Penguins and goaltender Al Smith blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0.

In the only other scheduled game, the surprising Vancouver Canucks tripped New York 4-1 to halt a Ranger takeover of first in the East Division.

Polis, a 20-year-old rookie who sharpened skates and drove a bus last year while playing with Estevan Bruins of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, scored once and assisted on the first two Penguin goals by Ken Schinkel and Brian Hextall.

Hextall was given credit for the goal but the shot was taken by Polis. It caromed off Hextall's leg behind a beleaguered Jacques Plante in the Toronto goal.

Smith handled 29 shots, including 15 in the second period, in registering his first shutout of the season at the expense of his former team-mates.

In Vancouver, Mike Corrigan opened and closed the scoring as the Canucks padded their hold on fourth place with 25 points in the East and moved to within three points of third-place Montreal. The Rangers held second with 36, one behind leading Boston Bruins.

Corrigan, a 24-year-old Ottawa native who never quite fitted into the Toronto system and later failed to catch a regular berth with Los Angeles Kings, now has eight goals and 13 points for the season after 29 games.

In his first solid bid for an NHL berth with the Kings last year, he compiled six goals and four assists in 26 games.

Wayne Maki's 11th goal of the year in the first period proved the winner in front of 15,500 fans after New York's Dave Balon had replied to Corrigan's game opener.

Rutherford will replace Detroit's No. 1 netminder Roy Edwards, who suffered a hairline fracture of the skull when his head struck the ice Sunday after a collision with Craig Cameron of St. Louis Blues. Edwards will be sidelined for three to four weeks.

Hawks Edge Junior Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After leading 3-0 early in the second period, St. Catharines Black Hawks managed a 4-3 win over Montreal Junior Canadiens Tuesday night to move back into a share of second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings.

In other action Tuesday, Toronto Marlboros and Ottawa 67s, fought to a 5-5 tie at Ottawa, and Hamilton Red Wings crushed visiting last-place Niagara Falls Flyers 10-5.

Ottawa now is tied for second place with St. Catharines and Toronto is in fifth place, four points behind Montreal.

In St. Catharines, the Hawks gained a 3-0 lead early in the second period but two goals for Montreal in the final minutes of the second and another early in the final period tied the teams 3-3.

In Ottawa, rookie Ron Bobbette scored three goals in the third period to give the 67s the 5-5 tie with Toronto.

In Hamilton, the Red Wings trailed 2-0 after the opening period but bounced back with six goals in the second and four in the third for their 10-5 win over the Flyers.

Williams May Retire

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tommy Williams, Minnesota North Stars centre, says he is considering retiring for this National Hockey League season.

"If my mental attitude doesn't change," said Williams, "I plan to talk to Walter Bush and Wren Blair about retiring for the season."

Williams' wife died last month.

"I've got five kids to take care of—including one a year and a half that is still in diapers," said Williams. "All I have left in this world is my kids and I'm not going to do anything that will hurt their future."

Williams, 36, has two goals and seven assists in 16 games this year. The Duluth, Minn., native scored 15 goals and 53 assists, a team record, in 1969-70.

Fresh Yankee First Canadian Winner of Top U.S. Award

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fresh Yankee has become the first Canadian-owned performer honored as Harness Horse of the Year by the United States but the seven-year-old mare was beaten in a similar vote in Canada by Albatross, a two-year-old pacer.

Results of the U.S. vote were released Tuesday by the U.S. Harness Association which conducted the ballot in conjunction with the U.S. Harness Writers Association.

The Canadian vote was announced at an awards dinner staged by the Canadian Trotting Association in Toronto Tuesday night.

The aged trotter owned by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., was named best on 118 of 207 ballots submitted in the USTA poll but Albatross, owned by Bert V. James of Windsor, Ont., won an 8-6 decision in the Canadian poll of racing secretaries.

Fresh Yankee also was named Aged Trotter of the Year on both the CTA and USTA polls and won Trotter of the Year mention in the U.S. vote.

Albatross was also named Two-Year-Old Pacer of the Year on both the Canadian and U.S. polls.

Fresh Yankee scored 28 victories this year on tracks in Canada, the U.S. and Europe and in 16 other starts finished second.

One of the highlights of the mare's 1970 campaign was a victory in the $125,000 Roosevelt International with the first-place purse of $62,500 bringing career earnings to $651,803, a record for a Canadian-owned horse.

Her lifetime earnings have since shot up to $838,843 and, with MacDonald planning to keep her running next year, she could become the first "million-aire" trotter in history. Her earnings this year alone total $339,065.

Albatross, with trainer-driver Harry Harvey of Washington, Pa., romped to 14 wins in 17 starts this year for earnings of $183,540 in his first year on the tracks. His earnings beat the former high of $180,864 for a two-year-old pacer set by Lavatre Hanover, 4 years ago.

Other awards announced in Toronto saw MacDonald's Frosted Yankee win two-year-old trotting honors while Lisnec Rodney, owned by Gerard Lapointe of Quebec City, was named best three-year-old trotter.

Herve Filion of Lachute, Que., was named Harness Horseman of the Year in Canada.

Filion's horses this year have earned more than $1,400,000 and he approached the season record of $1,654,172 set in 1968 by Bill Haughton.

Celtic Sprint Fails To Catch New York

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Celtics are running faster than anyone thought they would, but they still can't catch New York Knicks.

The Celtics, picked by many to finish out of the playoffs behind the Knicks and Philadelphia in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division, have run themselves right into second place.

Using a lightning-fast break led by perpetually-moving John Havlicek, the Celtics have reeled off nine straight victories, the last a 122-102 sprint past Buffalo Braves Tuesday night.

However, the surge still has left Boston three games behind New York, which moves along pretty quickly, 599, winning past running, gunning Portland Trail Blazers 139-121.

In other games, Milwaukee Bucks pummeled Atlanta Hawks 132-104, Seattle Super Sonics came back to beat Philadelphia 76ers 107-104, Chicago Bulls held down San Francisco Warriors 98-87 and Los Angeles Lakers defeated Phoenix Suns 121-112.

The Celtics, displaying the type of fast break that helped them to 11 NBA titles in 13 seasons before their decline, rushed to a 59-44 halftime lead, and when the Braves closed to within six in the final quarter, Havlicek turned on the steam again. He finished with 34 points.

Willis Reed did the damage for the Knicks, leading them on a 14-3 run at the end of the first quarter and then to 13 straight-points at the end of the second for a 66-48 halftime lead that never was threatened. Reed finished with 37 points.

Jon McGlocklin scored 19 of his 37 points at the start of the third period, lifting Milwaukee from a 53-53 intermission lead to a 75-63 spread, and Atlanta never caught up. Lew Alcindor had 34 points for the Bucks, who won for the 21st time in 24 games. Lou Hudson had 30 and Pete Maravich 29 for the Hawks.

Winter Olympics Face Problems

LONDON (AP) — Vital meetings to thrash out the future of the Winter Olympics, and the Olympic Games in general, will be held in London next month.

A spokesman for the International Olympic Committee said Tuesday:

"The meetings are essential. We want to work out problems involved. We want to hear all viewpoints."

The future of the Winter Olympics, due to be held in Sapporo, Japan, in 1972, has been under a shadow since the 1968 Games in Grenoble, France.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, demanded that skis should not carry manufacturers' names. At one stage, the International Ski Federation appeared to agree. Then FIS said this was impossible because such a removal of names could upset the balance of the skis.

At the 11th hour, the IOC and FIS agreed on a compromise—manufacturers' names could stay on the skis but they must be wiped off before television and press cameramen had a chance to photograph.

Now the whole problem of professionalism in skiing, especially Alpine skiing, has cropped up again.

Brundage has said that 10 top skiers from five countries are ineligible for the 1972 Olympics because they accepted payments for working in a summer ski camp.

The 10 include Rod Hebron of Vancouver and Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que.

Sport Briefs

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings called up 21-year-old Jim Rutherford from Fort Worth of the Central Hockey League Tuesday to replace injured goalie Roy Edwards. Edwards, the Wings' veteran netminder, will be lost to the team for three to four weeks because of a skull fracture.

* * *

MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Insley, athletics director of Sir George Williams University, said Tuesday a new sports association grouping "11 or 12" universities will go into operation in Quebec next year and the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association will be disbanded. Insley said the new body, to be known as the Quebec University Athletic Association, probably will include one Ontario university, Royal Military College of Kingston, which is a member of the OSLAA.

CASTLE HARBOUR, Bermuda (CP) — Ken Girard of Toronto Summit fired a 71 Tuesday to share the first-round lead in the 18th annual Bermuda Goodwill golf tournament with Bob Renaud of Hartford, Con. Girard's 18-hole score helped a Summit foursome and an entry from the Burlington Golf Club into a share of second place in the standings with two United States teams, each with average handicap scores of 61.

* * *

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Stanford quarterback Jim Plunkett threw two scores that a curse goes with the Heisman Trophy. "It doesn't mean a thing," said college football's No. 1 citizen. "If somebody falls in pro football, there's usually a reason." The names of Roger Staubach, John Huarte, Gary Beban and Terry Baker were run across for Plunkett's benefit. "Most of them were rollout, scrambling quarterbacks" he said. "Excellent quarterbacks, but not what the pros wanted. They want a dropback style and that's me."

Palmer Makes Last Bid For Tournament Win

The inaugural event is being sponsored by the government to help promote the tourist trade on this resort island. It is the last tournament on the pro schedule for the season.

"I would like to win a tournament," Palmer said last week when he survived a shaky start and finished in a tie for sixth in the Coral Ridge Classic last week. He filed a late entry for this tournament after shooting a final round 66.

"Despite some poor putting, winning is the only thing that concerns me," said the aging champion whose only victory this year was a shared triumph with Jack Nicklaus in the National Four Ball Championship.

He has three second-place finishes and has been in the top 10 about 60 per cent of the time. Palmer ranks in the top five on the money winning list with more than $125,000.

ARNOLD PALMER

Lee Trevino, who was third last week behind Bill Garrett and Bob Murphy, moved into the No. 1 spot with over $147,000. Masters champion Billy Casper and Jack Nicklaus, the Nos. 2 and 3, are through for the year.

Hawley String Halted

MIAMI (CP) — Sandy Hawley was held winless in the 10-race program at Tropical Park Tuesday and the 21-year-old Oshawa jockey now has only 30 racing days remaining to surpass Willie Shoemaker's season record.

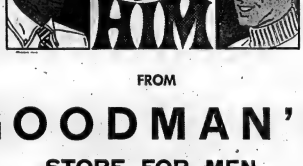
He still is 23 victories behind the record of 685 wins in one year set by Shoemaker in 1953.

Long Suit



SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lance Alworth's $3.6-million lawsuit against San Diego Chargers of the National Football League may be fought "for three to five years," his lawyer said Tuesday.

Alworth, an all-pro flanker, accuses the Chargers of taking advantage of his bankruptcy in business in negotiating his contract and a $50,000 loan. He asks to be made a free agent before his three-year contract ends so he can negotiate with any other team.

"Our purpose is not to set a precedent," said the lawyer, Donald Augustine. "All we want is that Lance gets what he's entitled to."

Eugene F. Klein, the Chargers' major owner, said "Lance doesn't know what he wants" and that the suit has "zero merit."

The suit was filed Monday.

Groups Could Receive Licences to Broadcast

OTTAWA (CP) — A one-day, communications conference ended Tuesday in an informal accountability session for Pierre Juneau head of the federal broadcast regulatory agency.

Mr. Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, was on his feet to answer questions from 300 invited guests during most of a two-hour discussion period which followed a series of speeches by top communications officials.

He was asked whether the CRTC would consider awarding broadcast licences to groups for a specified time period on radio or TV stations owned by other interests.

This is legally possible and has been considered, he said. But there were a number of problems connected with such a procedure.

It would be technically possible to award a broadcast licence to an individual owning a station but issue as well separate licences—presumably with the approval of those concerned —for designated periods in the station's schedule, Mr. Juneau said.

This would have an added advantage of allowing a station owner to make wider use of local talent without accepting full responsibility.

Earlier Tuesday, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier said efforts to create a more distinct Canadian broadcasting system will not be allowed to raise "an electronic curtain" shutting out foreign broadcasts.

Broadcasters and government had a responsibility to develop Canadian broadcasting, but not by shutting out everything non-Canadian.

1967: A New Quinte Landmark

The most dramatic man-made landmark in the Quinte district is the Deseronto Skyway, opened by Premier Robarts in late 1967. His urbane, unruffled appearance — which had become the Robart's image — gives no inkling of the added excitement in the air. The ceremony followed in the wake of his announcing the 1967 provincial election.

1961: The Candidate

Two political career were still in the future in this scene at a 1961 World Plowing Match near Belleville. Education Minister John Robarts was seeking the Ontario Conservative leadership. Dr. Russell Scott was chairman of a local plowing committee.

1969: The Premier

In 1969 John Robarts — then premier for eight years, came to Belleville to personally explain new provincial assessment techniques. By this time, Dr. Scott had become mayor of the city.

PM Expresses 'Sincere Appreciation'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has sent a message to John Robarts expressing his "own sincere appreciation" at the way Mr. Robarts has spoken in the interests of all Canada while premier of Ontario.

Mr. Roberts announced Tuesday he will step down as leader of Ontario Progressive Conservatives when the party elects a new leader, probably in February.

"Canadians will have regard with real regret the announcement of your intention to step down after more than nine years as prime minister of Ontario," Mr. Trudeau said.

"Through that period you have worked in a spirit of honest co-operation to promote and strengthen Canadian unity.

"On this occasion I would express my own sincere appreciation for the way in which you have spoken, at federal-provincial meetings and elsewhere, in support of the interests of all Canada, and for your contribution in furthering communication and understanding among Canadians."

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Tuesday the decision of John Robarts to resign as premier of Ontario represents a loss "even for Quebec."

"Mr. Robarts is a man who has rendered immense services to his province and country," Mr. Bourassa told reporters.

"Of all the politicians from outside Quebec," Mr. Bourassa said, "he is among those who have shown the most sympathy for the problems of Quebec to such an extent that his resignation is a loss not only for his province but also for Quebec."

Statement From Davis Is Coming

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Tuesday he will have no statement for several days on whether he will be a candidate to succeed Premier John Robarts.

"This is his day," Mr. Davis said in an interview about an hour after the premier announced he was stepping down as leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

"Another was his ability to maintain the stability of the government despite its growing complexities and the general pressures of society today."

Decision To Retire His Alone

TORONTO (CP) — "These have been marvelous, exciting years, but now I'm hoping for a little more relaxation," said Norah Robarts after her husband, John, announced Tuesday that he will retire as leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party early next year.

However, Mrs. Robarts said in an interview she played no part in her husband's retirement decision and has no idea what he will do when he steps down as leader.

"John makes all these decisions," she said.

Mr. Robarts and his wife enjoyed a quiet lunch at a downtown restaurant following his retirement announcement.

NDP Election Chances Said Helped by Move

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Premier John Robarts' resignation Tuesday provides the NDP with a "tremendous opportunity" to win the next provincial election.

"Personally, I am sorry to see John Robarts go. He's been more a manager than an innovator . . . an exceptional adversary.

"I really do not know whether I should admit it, but I've felt we could more effectively cope with his successor."

He predicted that the government would call an election as early as April after bringing in a throne speech and a budget speech because the party would not want to submit its new leader to the "crucible of the legislature" and the "summer doldrums."

He expects the leadership candidates to be Education Minister William Davis, Provincial Secretary Robert Welch and Darcy McKeough, minister of municipal affairs.

Robarts' Presence Felt In the Quinte Region

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

John Robarts announced his resignation yesterday — and suddenly Christmas shopping this year includes the most powerful political post in Ontario.

The Quinte district will be one of the shopping centres, in coming weeks, Conservative leadership contenders will bid for the stock of grassroots goodwill which, in a democracy, is still a crucial element in making topflight dreams come true.

Today, Conservative party executives in the Quinte district already are gearing for a bustling, if brief, season of political visits as the contenders come calling down the campaign trail.

It's a familiar route. In fact, the last time it opened out from Queen's Park to the Quinte district Mr. Robarts himself made the trek.

It was October, 1961, and the World Championship Plowing Match in Thurlow township, just north of Belleville.

An annual highlight of the rural Ontario scene, it coincided with the retirement of Premier Leslie Frost. The event was a natural meet-the-people arena, and its potential was not missed by campaigners for the Conservative succession.

The next time the Quinte district set foot, he was premier, presiding over a new era in Ontario's public affairs.

As premier, he visited the Quinte area intermittently thereafter.

His last call on the Belleville area was in 1969 when he went before municipal representatives from Eastern Ontario to personally explain the need to accept a change in the province's assessment techniques. In its own way, it was a symbolic gesture.

Change was the hallmark of the times, and Mr. Robarts responded with purpose and progressive policies, a say Quinte-district MPPs.

All Conservatives, they had the opportunity to observe his stewardship from inside the party's workshops.

Premier Robarts, Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings, yesterday recalled, came to power when change was challenging traditional attitudes in Ontario life.

He faced the challenges and brought about the progressive changes needed, said Mr. Rollins.

Dr. Richard Potter, the Quinte MPP often cast as a critic of government, had a similar tribute.

"Alongside the more evident accomplishments achieved under his leadership, has gone a great deal of steady, purposeful progress," said Dr. Potter.

The signs of change for the Quinte district originating during the Robarts' administration would be difficult to list, said Norman Whitney, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

But perhaps the most significant was the industrial incentives program which rejuvenated a slow growth area in the 1950s, he said.

But the real accomplishment of the Robarts premiership was not marked by such localized provincial factors.

More vital events saw the premier evolve from the role of a sound provincial administrator to a figure of national stature, maintained Mr. Whitney.

His greatest accomplishment, said the MPP, was his contribution to national unity.

"John Robarts was been a pioneer in trying to hold Canada together," said Mr. Whitney. "For this, I think his place in history has been assured."

Mr. Robart's retirement was not unexpected. The only question in recent days was when he would formally announce his decision — and the premier answered that himself yesterday.

Now, the big question mark centres on the identity of his successor. Quinte district Conservatives are publicly volunteering any forecasts.

Most of them admit, however, that Education Minister William Davis is the best-known of the contenders.

However, local party executives are standing by to hear from the leadership campaigners.

At the same time, they must organize meetings of constituency organizations to name voting delegates to the Toronto convention which will choose new leader.

Such meetings must be held "as soon as possible," says Ted Parker, Trenton businessman who is president of Quinte riding.

In the meantime, local organizations can expect requests to organize communication points between candidates and the grassroots memberships, he says.

All this spells a busy Christmas and New Year's season for local party organizations.

But it's a necessary activity, indicates Ken Smith, reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe township, who is president of the Hastings Conservative association.

Some of the leadership contenders "are not too well known" in his riding, he says, and have "got to get acquainted" with the people.

Tribute Ignores Party Lines

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Party lines were generally ignored Tuesday as politicians in Ontario and other provinces praised John Robarts as a man, government leader and great Canadian.

Representatives of all political parties expressed a sense of loss after Mr. Robarts announced he will retire early next year as Ontario Progressive Conservative leader.

Prime Minister Trudeau expressed in a message to Mr. Robarts his "own sincere appreciation" for the Ontario premier's efforts "in a spirit of honest co-operation to promote and strengthen Canadian unity."

He said Canadians would greet the retirement announcement "with real regret."

Robert Stanfield, federal Conservative leader, said he hopes the "great gifts" of Mr. Robarts will continue to be available to Canadians "in some less exacting way."

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, said he had developed "a substantial respect" for Premier Robarts ability as a politician "and more important, for the substantial personal qualities and integrity of the man."

"There is no doubt that Mr. Robarts deserves the compliments and best wishes of us all.

Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said he was "sorry to see John Robarts go."

He described the 53-year-old premier as "an exceptional adversary" in political rivalry.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said the government couldn't find a "better leader" and the entire cabinet regretted Mr. Robarts decision.

Ontario Education Minister William Davis, believed by many to be the man who will replace Mr. Robarts, said:

"Everybody in the cabinet felt a sense of loss when Mr. Robarts told us today he was going to retire. History will be very kind to Mr. Robarts. While he looked after the interests of the people of Ontario, he is first and foremost a Canadian and he gained the respect of people across Canada."

Allan Grossman, Ontario minister of correctional services, said he regretted Mr. Robarts' decision. "They're going to be difficult shoes to fill, but we'll fill them."

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec said the loss of Mr. Robarts is a great one "even for Quebec."

"Of all the politicians from outside Quebec, he is among those who have shown the most sympathy for the problems of Quebec its such an extent that his resignation is a loss not only for his province but also for Quebec."

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said he noted "with some regret" the retirement announcement of Premier Robarts.

He felt Mr. Robarts had made "a very substantial contribution to Canadian unity through his moderate and intelligent approaches to very serious problems of our nation" at federal-provincial conferences.

Leader Search Begun By PCs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Progressive Conservatives are searching for a political messiah able to maintain the electoral success polished by Premier John Robarts during the last decade and burnish it with a sheen of youthful emphasis on the urbanized society of the 1970s.

A measure of Mr. Robarts skill as a politician and political leader is the fact that speculation regarding his successor centres on the youngest and brightest members of a cabinet which the premier himself has assembled.

In his resignation statement, Mr. Robarts said the provincial Conservative party has a "rich reservoir of talented and able members" capable of developing the policies necessary for the mind-moving times."

It is just such a leader the Conservatives must choose if they hope to continue their unbroken rule of Ontario which began in 1943.

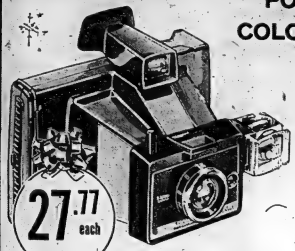
Facing the new Conservative party leader will be two young men who are relative newcomers to Ontario politics.

Robert Nixon, 42, first elected to the legislature in 1963 and leader of the Liberal party since 1967, has finally begun to organize his party into an effective opposition.

Stephen Lewis, a 33-year-old who first came to the house in 1963 and who took over from l o n g - t i m e New Democratic Party leader Donald MacDonald in October, is regarded as a brilliant exponent of the NDP philosophy.

Mr. Roberts, who attained the premiership nine years ago at the age of 44, has been tied throughout his administration to the 22-point program that has dominated Ontario politics since George Drew defeated Mr. Nixon's father in 1943.

That program included municipal tax reform, provincial subsidies of education costs, universal health insurance, increases in family and pension allowances and revision of the educational system.



All of these issues have been at the top of the province's list of priorities even in recent months, but the modern issues of pollution, improved transportation and other problems of the cities have been gaining increasing attention.

The p r e m i e r 's resignation may never the less have had leads back through former premiers Leslie Frost and T. L. Kennedy to Mr. Drew and his original program.

Cartoon Without Disney Due for Yule

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Starting with 'Snow White' and the Seven Dwarfs,' every cartoon feature from the Disney studio during a 30-year period bore the personal stamp of Walt Disney himself. The Aristocats is the first one that doesn't.

The Disney organization is releasing its latest full-length cartoon at Christmas time, helping parents with the increasing problem of how to find movies the kids can see. The Aristocats will be closely examined by critics for evidences of change, now that the master's hand no longer rules the product.

Jungle Book was the last animated feature to be supervised by Disney, who died four years ago this month.

The critics will find no major difference in The Aristocats. It displays the meticulous animation, boggling characters and robust humor that have marked previous Disney features. Plus the cuteness that seems to bug high-brow critics.

The Disney system continues. The man who now oversees the cartoons as producer is a long-time Disney hand, Wolfgang (Woolie) Reitherman. He admitted the loss that he and the other animation makers feel about Walt.

"During the production process, Walt saw what we were doing," said Reitherman. "He let us know if we were on the right track or not.

"He gave us the vote of confidence that we needed to go ahead.

"You need that at stages when you start to get tuned-in and say you can't get an overall view. Now, instead of Walt, we get our own feedback from the screen. We run what we

"... thus far, and the screen tells us if we are on the right track."

"There seems to be no way we can make them in less than three years," said Reitherman. "Actually, the first two years are spent in trying to master the picture, then the final year comprises most of the making of it.

"But we've never found any shortcuts."

Reitherman and his crew of animators are already working on the next feature, an animal version of the Robin Hood legends. Target date: Christmas 1973.

Costumes from Afar

Mary Ellen Nobile, Larry Shannon and Elizabeth Sprinkle, all students of Nicholson Catholic College, pose in outfits actually made by Peruvian and Guatemalan people. The costumes were donated by people who have visited those countries for a sale by the Nicholson students to raise money for the underprivileged in those two countries.

Stirling Personals

STIRLING — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women entertained the Senior Citizens Club members with a program and refreshments at a meeting held at West Huntington.

Mrs. Charles Dudley had the misfortune to fall and fracture her shoulder.

The Trent Valley County Jamboree celebrated their fourth anniversary at the Stirling Theatre and at the close all enjoyed lunch at the Community Hall.

The village streets are now adorned with a large array of Christmas lights and a tall evergreen tree which heralds the Christmas season.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Doran entertained the lawn bowling club for their annual meeting. The officers were all re-elected for another year.

The annual fall Fellowship meeting was held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church with 80 present in attendance. Each of the churches in the village assisted with the program.

Monday's Movie A Disappointment

NEW YORK (AP) — Part of NBC's master plan for jazzing up the second half of its current season is showing only World Premiere features instead of film reruns in its Monday night movie spot.

If all the made-for-TV efforts move at the pace of Tuesday night's World Premiere, it will be a long winter. The first such program was called Break Out, and was one of those prison drama built around one man determined to escape.

After 90 minutes, nothing much had happened except to set the stage for the big windup. The characters included Joe Baker, a bank robber with a heart of gold, played with remarkable incredibility by James Drury; his prison pal, acted by Woody Strode; a comedy relief role, a prisoner called Piper, played by Red Buttons, using a squeaky voice, and an assortment of guards, accomplices and, of course the girl.

The program began in an unidentified state penitentiary, but was actually shot at Folsom Prison in California. The location of our hero's escape attempt was the high Sierras.

A two-hour action show needs more than a few authentic background and great scenery. By the time Break Out moved into the meat of the story, it was perfectly obvious what would happen.

The prisoners, a work gang logging on the mountain, were pressed into a hunt for a boy missing in a blizzard. Naturally Joe found the boy while trying to escape—and naturally took the youngster back to his parents and, himself, presumably, back to jail.

Theatre Feature Times

AT THE BELLE — Charlton Heston is back in "The Hawaiians" with Geraldine Chaplin, John Phillip Law and Alec McCowen playing nightly at 8.00 p.m. Doors open at 7.15. Recommended as adult entertainment.

AT THE PARK — In Color — Today to the day that we start a long weekend of entertainment with all the Carry On Gang in "Carry On Camping" with such laughter makers as Sidney James, Kenneth Williams, and Charles Hawtrey. Today and tomorrow one complete evening show commencing at 7.30. Saturday matinee 1.00. Friday 7.00, Saturday matinee 1.00. Adult Entertainment.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is only 32 and has been complaining of shortness of breath, tiredness, palpitation and swelling of his legs. These symptoms have come on gradually during the past few weeks. He has been a heavy drinker, but gave it up about a month ago.

The doctor found no marked EKG abnormalities. However, X rays of his heart showed some enlargement. He has been on digitalis and medicines to reduce the fluid in his legs, but he doesn't seem to be getting better.

Should we call in a heart specialist? We don't want to hurt our doctor's feelings. — Mrs. O.

Comment: Whenever there is no improvement, it makes good sense to call a specialist in consultation. Your family doctor will know whom to call.

The important thing is to make what we call a "differential diagnosis." In other words, if it is heart disease, what kind is it? Treatment depends upon knowing the reason for the symptoms and signs. When a heart patient doesn't show some improvement after taking the necessary drugs, we have to look further.

For example, we ask ourselves: "Is it an unusual type of heart disease?" I am not saying that your husband has beriberi heart disease. I won't even venture a guess.

But I do recall a young patient with no history of rheumatic fever, no congenital heart disease, no coronary or hypertensive heart disease, who had similar symptoms. His case was obstinate at first. Not until we prescribed large doses of Vitamin B 1 and multivitamin supplements (in addition to other treatment) did his symptoms disappear. He had an unusual case of beriberi heart disease.

* * *

For Mrs. Y.: It is not true that once you begin to take female hormones you will have to take them for the rest of your life. There will be no harm in stopping when your doctor tells you there is no longer any need for them.

* * *

For Mrs. W.: I agree that you should do everything possible to keep roaches out of your kitchen. They contaminate by walking over food and dishes.

According to one study, Salmonella bacteria can remain alive on glass dishes for over a month, on cornflakes for over two months, and on crackers for almost three months. It is also possible that the virus of infectious hepatitis may be carried by the cockroach.

If keeping the kitchen clean doesn't help, then it may be advisable to get a professional exterminator's advice on how to deal with the problem.

* * *

For Mr. B.: Early withdrawal (called coitus interruptus) is not a dependable method for birth control. Unguarded emission of semen may be sufficient to cause pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I look like a female W. C. Fields. My nose is large — which I have to tolerate — but it is also red and shiny. I use makeup which wears off. Is there anything I can do for it? I don't drink or smoke. — Miss H.

Comment: See a skin specialist. There are special coverups which do not rub off easily. Besides, he may give you some other suggestions for this embarrassing condition which makes you so self-conscious. I wish I knew a specific remedy to offer you.

Atkinson Again Farm Union Head

WINNIPEG (CP) — Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon was returned by acclamation Tuesday to his second term as president of the National Farmers' Union.

Walter Miller of Tara, Ontario vice-president, also was nominated for the presidency at the NFU first annual convention, but he turned down the nomination.

In doing so, Mr. Miller attacked the farm press for what he called irresponsible journalism. He said several farm papers have printed stories about a split developing in the NFU between himself and Mr. Atkinson.

Mr. Atkinson joined Mr. Miller in denying the allegations.

Ohio May Sue Canadian Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has urged the United States Supreme Court to let Ohio sue three firms, one of them a Canada, for alleged mercury pollution of tributaries of Lake Erie.

Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold, stating the government's position in a friend-of-the court brief filed Monday, said: "We contend there is no legal reason why this court should not permit the complaint to be filed."

Opposite Views Helpful

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader in Delaware wants to know why I haven't commented on the "underground press" that is springing up in cities all over the U.S. The reason is simple : I haven't been enough of them to form an opinion that would have any value.

But, as a generalization, I welcome the addition of anypress, over or under ground, whether or not it happens to coincide with my views. In fact, I get more out of reading things that jolt my own point of view. They force me to re-examine my pre-conclusions and sharpen or refute my own defence of what I believe.

One of the problems with a democratic society that becomes so highly technocratic as ours is that only those with considerable funds can afford to run a newspaper, a radio station or a TV channel. Minority voices tend to be heard less and less, except through the charity or good will of those who control the mass media.

The emergence of an underground press is a reaction against this situation. It is, on the whole, a healthy reaction, even though some of the underground papers are. While dergraund papers themselves (at least the ones I have seen) are scarcely any more reliable than the organs they protest against. But everyone has a right to be partial — as long as that partiality is openly expressed as such, and not disguised as "fact."

There is an odd irony involved in the use of the un- "Middle America" complains that the mass media are too sympathetic in delineating the activities of leftish and-drop-out, the left itself complains that the mass media suppress or distort such events to the detriment of the protesters.

The conventional press today is caught between the hammer and the anvil; the irony being that, in my opinion, it is performing the best job it has ever done in my 38 years of newspaper experience. I happen to think that papers are far fairer, more balanced, and more concerned with "depth-reporting" than when I started in the business.

Yet the attacks on them have never been greater, from all sides. This is not because they have become worse (they are, in fact,much better), but because public needs and expectations have risen as much in the past 30 years. They have improved absolutely, but are relatively in ratio to our expanded education, awareness, and sophistication.

Every avenue must be kept open for every source of expression and communication — especially the ones we may happen to disagree with. If the underground press does not protect the rights of the underground as zealously as it defends its own, both will eventually perish at the hands of the twin paranoids of extreme right and left.

For December 10

Your birthday today: A period begins of facing the firm reality of your age and circumstances — changing the things you can and learning to live with the things you can't, in order to advance your own growth, you must inspire others to do likewise. Emotional life is now promises rich and rewarding experience. Today's natives are enthusiastic talkers who generally gather many friends, may lead their local community.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Fellow workers are apt to be restless and upset your routines. There's an opening for a bit of fun — speak quickly if you want to go along, but don't spend much money.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Conservative people push you to go along with their opinion, though your own is better. Travel errands require extra time and care. Neighbors tend to get in the way.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Don't let any of today's little discrepancies bother you. Gadgets and gimmicks fail right and left. Friends plunge into action without considering consequences.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Let your inner serenity show. Take quiet but firm control of whatever is your responsibility, declare your intentions simply, square.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Play for time; force no issues. There is enough to do that does not involve fresh decisions or radical action. Get extra rest for tomorrow's fast-breaking opportunities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Find something beyond your routines. Explore byways on the way to appointments. Friends attract excitement — there is more to the story later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your career effort meets temporary hindrance from red tape. Replacement is better than trying to repair. Doing things for friends can get you into more than you expected.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You aren't the only one with an uncertain temper today. Hold your peace. Family squabbles are not suitable occasions to express your power.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Give thought to your immediate future, share your ideas with those near. The discussions are helpful to all; clear the air on longtime misunderstandings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You may learn how your basic values differ from others — something you find silly is deadly serious to them. In other areas, letting well enough alone is essential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You have the knack of putting people off and out today. Aside from being correct, you needn't be quite so abrasive. By evening make amends.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The word you await is late coming. Be patient with busybodies — simply don't respond. There are no real shortcuts now; whatever you do is serious business.

Acid Spills in River In CP Rail Accident

'Heal Thyself' Media Advised

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's newspaper owners and private broadcasters have the power and the profits to improve their operations for the public good.

A lengthy special Senate committee report on the mass media tabled Wednesday reaches this conclusion but says the improvement should come from within the industry and not by force.

Senator Keith Davey, committee chairman who originally suggested the study, told a news conference after presenting the report:

"We are anxious to encourage more diversity and arrest the trend to more concentration of media ownership. We also want to see an escalation in the quality."

The owners could make the improvements, he said, because the committee had found media profits surprisingly high.

There was no recommendation to force such action, "but I hope the people of Canada will insist on better media products," said the Liberal senator from Toronto.

Specifically, the 500,000-word report recommended:

—A government press ownership review board with power to bar further media ownership concentration unless those involved could prove that the public would benefit.

—A $2 million or more government fund to subsidize promising new journals.

For Other Stories See Pages 24, 25, 26 & 27

—Government scholarships for post-graduate journalism training.

—Establishment of national and regional press councils as methods of gathering ideas and advice from the public.

—The same degree of diversity from commercial stations by CBC television as accomplished by CBC radio.

A study done for the committee finds that "by and large, despite a number of reservations," most Canadians are satisfied with the job the media are doing. But not all.

It describes Nova Scotia and New Brunswick as "journalistic disaster areas" and the dailies published by the Thomson group "almost uniformly disappointing." Lord Thomson owns 30 dailies in Canada.

Prisoner Exchange Proposed

PARIS (AP) — The South Vietnamese government offered today to release all its North Vietnamese prisoners-of-war immediately in exchange for all U.S. and other foreign prisoners held by the Communists and all South Vietnamese POWs held in North Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia.

U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce supported the South Vietnamese offer and proposed that daily talks start Friday with the Communist side to arrange procedures for the exchange.

Railway Strike Confused

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — Four unions, defying a congressional ban and a court injunction, shut down United States railways today, but a few hours later two of the unions announced that they were ordering their men back to work because of the law passed by Congress.

The unions withdrawing from the country-wide strike were the United Transportation Union, with headquarters in Cleveland, and the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees, based in Detroit.

The Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees were the other unions that went on strike. All are members of the AFL-CIO.

The UTU withdrawal was announced in Cleveland by W. W. Carson, assistant to Charles Luna, the union's president.

In telegrams to all general chairmen and international officers, Carson advised that because Congress passed—and President Nixon signed—legislation prohibiting a strike and guaranteeing a wage increase that UTU was cancelling its part in the strike.

Harold Crotty, leader of 100,000 maintenance of way workers, sent telegrams from his Detroit headquarters to local union leaders telling them "maintenance of way employees should return to work on their next regular assignment."

Crotty advised local union officers that Congress had passed legislation prohibiting their walkout and that the strike was cancelled.

The strike, which began at 12:01 a.m., was the country's third in the last 50 years.

The emergency law passed by Congress early today ordered the strikers back to work with a partial pay increase.

OWRC Sends Men to Scene

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Tests were begun today to determine the damage caused by the spill Wednesday of an undetermined amount of highly-corrosive sulphuric acid into the Pickerel River following the derailment of a Canadian Pacific Railway freight train.

Ray Stewart, the commission's district engineer for the area north of Parry Sound where the mishap took place, said an OWRC investigator and officials of the Ontario department of lands and forests were sent to the scene after CIL notified the government of the acid spill.

CP Rail and CIL also notified area radio station to advise people in the thinly populated area to exercise extreme caution near the scene and avoid using water from the river.

"Anyone using water from the Pickerel River will have to find a different source," J. J. Johnson a CP rail despatcher at Sudbury said. He added that reporters have been warned to stay clear because "it will burn the soles off your shoes."

The Pickerel joins the French River system a few miles from the derailment then flows into Georgian Bay.

Mr. Johnson said a bulldozer is being floated to the scene because of traffic problems in the area. It will be used to dam the flow of acid.

CP Rail crews were working all night to clear the tracks as CPR traffic was diverted over Canadian National Railways lines.

Investigators from the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the department of lands and forests were testing the water and fish from the river.

Thirteen cars of the 46-car train left the track in the derailment, CP Rail officials said. Each of the cars has a capacity of 100 tons.

An official of the OWRC said at least three of the cars were ripped open, spilling sulphuric acid into the river.

The train, en route to Hamilton from the Canadian Industries Ltd. plant at Copper Cliff, Ont., was derailed about 46 miles southeast of Sudbury.

No reason for the derailment has been given, and no injuries resulted.

Officials of CIL said that the acid, which is used in the manufacture of fertilizers and in uranium refining, is not especially damaging if highly diluted.

But Lee Fitz, a district engineer with the OWRC, said the acid possibly could have serious effects on fishing in the area.

"The fishing is marvellous up here, but it may be pretty useless right now," said a provincial policeman from the Parry Sound detachment.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Some light snow over the north will end this morning and a few flurries can be expected near the lakes. A ridge of high pressure will pass over the region overnight and the clear skies associated with it will allow temperatures to drop below zero over the north and over eastern Ontario tonight. Putting finishing touches to the annual Christmas pageant at the Ontario School for the Deaf means overcome problems big and small — as six-year-olds Lois Buckley and Gwen Montgomery found out yesterday. But they all appeared on cue for rehearsal of show, to be performed publicly Friday and Saturday.

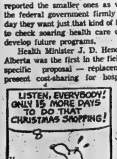
Health Grants Asked Without Conditions

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial health ministers are moving gradually toward a system where each province will get one lump sum from Ottawa to apply as it sees fit to a whole range of health programs.



The four largest provinces, and it is reported the smaller ones as well, told the federal government firmly Wednesday they want just that kind of flexibility to check soaring health care costs and develop future programs.

Health Minister J. D. Henderson of Alberta was the first in the field with a specific proposal — replacement of present cost-sharing for hospital and medical care insurance with per capita grants.

He warned that without some such device it would be almost impossible for the provinces to stop rising health costs which threaten to wreck the economy.

Federal Health Minister John Munro adopted mostly a listening role although reports coming from the closed session indicated the provinces interpreted his attitude as encouraging.

Thomas Wells of Ontario said the separate systems of federal financial contributions to medical care insurance and hospital insurance are inflexible, probably inadequate and not geared to the job that needs to be done.

Canadians Must Share In Rewards

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A plan must be formulated to allow Canadians to share the rewards as well as the costs of development, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Wednesday night.

He told 270 delegates at the closing banquet of the Arctic transportation conference that while government can not expect every single facility to pay for itself from the start, more emphasis must be placed on sharing the costs and the rewards of development.

A policy should be developed to let the taxpayer get a return from successful developments, as well as leaving him always to shoulder the cost.

November Jobless Higher in Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment rose at mid-November to 476,000, compared with 419,000 a month earlier, and amounted to 5.7 per cent of the labor force, it was announced today.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the one used by the government and economists in judging the impact of unemployment on the economy, unemployment edged down slightly in November to 8.5 from 8.6 in October and 6.9 in September.

November's unemployment figure of 476,000 was out of a total labor force of 8,400,000. It compared with 354,000 unemployed a year earlier, out of a labor force that then numbered 8,115,000.

A joint report by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said that the coming of winter caused a seasonal reduction in employment in November, and an increase in unemployment.

The labor force this November was 3.5 per cent larger than a year ago, while employment was 2.1 per cent.

The 57,000 increase in the number of jobless for the month was slightly lower in relative terms than the average increase between October and November in recent years, the report said. But there was an above-average increase in the number of unemployed aged 14 to 24. The increase in the number of unemployed aged 25 and over was less than average for the time of year.

On a regional basis, the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment remained unchanged from October in the Atlantic provinces at 7.8 per cent, dropped to 8.4 per cent from 8.8 in Quebec, rose to 4.9 from 4.6 in Ontario, declined sharply to 4.8 from 5.7 in the Prairies, and eased off to 8.4 from 8.8 in British Columbia.

MPP Opposes Move to South

Rumored centralization by the Hastings County Board of Education of all administrational services as Belleville doesn't sit too well with Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins.

Speaking to members of Hastings county council yesterday, Mr. Rollins said he did not agree with complete centralization and said if education was so important a board should provide administration service in the north end of the county.

He said that the inspector or superintendent formerly stationed in the north was now working out of Belleville.

Mr. Rollins maintained there should be a permanent administrational branch office in the north.

He went on to say that the decision a year or so ago to move the Bancroft court to Madoc had resulted in such chaos that it had to be reinstated in the north.

The county welfare and health departments maintained branch offices in the north of the county and Mr. Rollins said it was only reasonable to expect that the county board of education do the same.

Project Involves Two Schools, Two Classes

Pupils at D. R. Atkins and Bayview Public Schools cooperated this fall in a project involving grades 8 and 1 in an outdoor education experience.

Among the objectives of the teachers involved was developing a sense of pride in the older children for the achievements of the younger group.

D. R. Atkins was chosen because it is a rural school, and Bayview because it is urban. Teachers, augmented by parents who acted as supervisors, undertook to show the children that the outdoors contains many items of educational value and interest, usually overlooked because of familiarity. The grouping of rural and urban pupils of widely separated ages proved to be unique for the purposes of research and discovery.

Woman Hurt

TRENTON (Staff) — Mrs. Mary Bruyea, 64, of RR1, Wooler, is in Trenton Memorial Hospital today following a two-car accident near Stockdale Wednesday afternoon.

She was a passenger in the car driven by her husband Frederick, 73, that struck another vehicle driven by Andrianus Vanderlinde, 55, of Frankford, at the top of a hill on the 7th concession of Murray township at 2:15 p.m.

No charges have been laid. Damage to the Bruyea vehicle is estimated at $750; $700 to the Vanderlinde car.

The pupils and their supervisors visited the Canada Cement property north of the CPR tracks and explored bedrock, washouts, marine life, fossils, swamp area and farmland, with specific attention to runoff and cultivation.

Specimens for further study were carried back to the classrooms.

An outgrowth of the project was an understanding of citizenship and responsibility as older children displayed a mature attitude toward their younger charges.

Commissioners Want a Raise

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Picton's three - man police commission have petitioned council for a $400 annual salary increase. Commissioners Jesse Mason, Harvey McFarland and Judge Wilfred S. Lane receive $100 each year in payment for their duties.

In a letter to council the trio said it is unfair to council the commissioners observed that they feel it is a bit ridiculous" for the committee to do its work and receive "essentially a slap in the face" in return. It was noted that $500 a year was the minimum figure acceptable to members of the police commission in payment for their work. Council agreed to file this request for a salary increase with incoming council members.

Tribute to A Princess

Hastings County yesterday paid tribute to outstanding achievement by a young citizen — Diane Gunning, Hungerford township girl who is this year's Ontario Dairy Princess. Marking the accomplishment county council presented slide projector to Miss Gunning — who later met with Tweed reeve Barbara Allan, and Reeve William McCrea, of Hungerford.

Anti-Pollution Group Sets Policy for Action

The newly-formed Belleville and District Anti - Pollution Committee is no vigilante group and will work only through established, official channels, its general membership was told last night.

The need to observe proper formalities was emphasized when the committee — launched only three weeks ago — last night took first definite steps toward pinpointing a any area pollution problems.

The group will act only after complaint forms — fully identifying the complainant — have been filed with its executive.

Hundreds of such forms were distributed to BDAPC members last night as the committee met at Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school.

"We will take no notice of anonymous complaints," cautioned committee co-chairman Ronald Lee.

"It's not the intention of the committee to act as a vigilante. We want to act legally and sensibly to fight pollution and have the authorities fight pollution where it is found."

Two officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission attended the meeting to answer questions posed by the membership. They were Glen Wren, biologist stationed at Kingston, and John Vogt, OWRC Industrial Waste Division district engineer.

Sunday Service Hospital First

The first half-hour church service in Belleville General Hospital will be held Dec. 13 at 1:30 p.m. by Rev. W. J. Lamb.

The Belleville Ministerial Association has arranged for the weekly services in the TV room on the fourth floor of the old hospital building. The suggestion for the services came from the nurses serving on the floor.

At last Monday's meeting of the Association, Rev. David Murray, the new minister at St. Columbo Presbyterian Church was introduced and welcomed.

Merrill Dales, chairman of the health education committee of the Hastings County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, showed an anti-smoking film.

Research indicates that many begin to smoke when they are in grade 5, and it has been found that if none of the parents and the oldest child in a family do not smoke, it is possible that the others will not. The average smoker spends close to $8,000 on tobacco in a lifetime. The Ministerial Association is trying to make it acsically unacceptable to smoke.

Council Honors Dairy Princess

Winning of this year's Ontario Dairy Princess title by Miss Diane Gunning of Tweed has been well deserved, Hastings county Dairy Princess Bobby Hall achieved his goal awarded by the National Hockey League.

This was suggested yesterday by Hungerford township Reeve Russell Sills as he expressed council appreciation to Miss Gunning for a visit to the council chambers.

"In a brief talk to councillors, the Ontario Dairy Princess, who has just recently returned from a two weeks' visit to the United Kingdom, said she was proud to be from Hastings county, and

"Democracy is very real in Hastings," she said. "It has so many friendly people."

Expressing her appreciation for the support given by county residents when she was competing for the dairy princess title, Miss Gunning said she hoped there always would be county people prepared to accept responsibility with service on municipal boards and council bodies.

The dairy princess was introduced by Hungerford, Reeve William McCrea who cited Miss Gunning's achievements in 4-H club work during the past years.

In recognition of her achievement in winning the dairy princess title for Hastings, Miss Gunning was presented with a new slide projector by the county.

Waste Disposal Major Problem

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reprter

New provincial regulations calling for the elimination of open garbage dumps and banning burning of garbage will result in a lot of "spontaneous combustion."

This is the feeling of many Hastings county councillors, who yesterday discussed how small local municipalities were going to adhere to new without constructing out of hand.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allan asked who was going to police against private incinerators and against persons burning leaves.

Referring to the new ban on burning leaves, the Tweed reeve said there had been a lot of "spontaneous combustion" in her municipality last fall.

The garbage dump discussion was prompted by a resolution from the village of Stirling calling on the county to assume responsibility for county-operated garbage disposal sights as under new regulations it was beyond the capacity of the local municipality to police established units.

Stirling reeve Donald Rodgers said his village now has a garbage dump, but under the new regulations a more sophisticated system was needed.

He agreed that there must be controls but he couldn't see the financial difficulties being able to afford their own garbage disposal units unless there was some relaxation of the regulations.

He felt that some kind of a joint dump operatin between municipalities was the only way to keep costs down.

But it seems that some county municipalities have already embarked on joint garbage disposal operations.

The Tweed reeve said her village and Hungerford were co-operating in a new disposal site, while Madoc Reeve Thomas Hubbard said his municipality and Huntingdon township had a joint operation.

The reeves of the two rural municipalities involved agreed that the operations showed indication of working out successfully.

Sidney Reeve Jack Bush said garbage disposal in recent years had been a big problem for his municipality. He said the present township garbage dump was a "mess" and under new regulations township officials could see costs mounting drastically.

After much consideration, Reeve Bush said council's decision had been to enter into an agreement with a private firm for garbage pickup and disposal.

Under the contract, the private firm (Quinte Sanitation) would do once a week garbage pickup throughout the county and dispose of it at a private sanitary landfill operation in the township.

Cost of the garbage pickup and disposal would be a direct charge against the householder.

The garbage collection charge would not be based on assessment but be at the rate of about $12 per year per household. Exact cost would be payable through taxes.

Reeve Bush said this would work out at around $24,000 per year or the township's roughly 8,000 population.

The garbage pickup, to commence next May 1, would include all normal garbage but would not include such items as old tires, discarded stoves or refrigerators. These would have to be disposed of through other arrangement, Reeve Bush said.

Deputy Reeve Earl Hawley of Bancroft said he was concerned that the provincial department was telling the municipalities what to do. He was not saying what it was going to do itself to help fight pollution.

He said that one big jet aircraft taking off from Toronto airport spoils out more pollution than would all of Bancroft.

The ban against burning garbage would only result in it being dumped along the roadsides and the municipality would have to send out trucks to pick it up, he said.

He said each of the big highway diesel trucks contributed more to air pollution than did Thurlow's garbage dump — yet the majority vice licenses the trucks.

"Let's all help in air pollution," he said.

Council tabled the Stirling resolution with the suggestion that the air pollution branch of the Department of Energy and Resources be contacted with the view of having "reasonable" policy established in regard to municipal garbage disposal units.

Most Councillors Oppose County Government Reorganization

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The majority of Hastings county municipalities would be opposed to complete re-organization of the present county government set up but at the same time there is interest in changing the internal structure of local governments.

This is indicated in the report of the county municipal reform committee which was presented to county council yesterday by its chairman, Reeve Thomas Burnside of Madoc.

The municipal reform committee was appointed a year ago to ascertain the feeling of local municipalities with respect to the possible institution of regional government.

Of 31 replies received to questionnaires sent out by the committee 17 municipalities indicated they would be opposed to complete re-organization of the present county government system.

However, if there was to be a regional government, 22 of the 34 municipalities felt it should be a two-tier government system and 11 felt that Belleville and Trenton should be included.

Six municipalities felt that if there was a regional government other counties or parts of counties should be included.

Individual comments from the municipalities indicated most were satisfied with county government in general but suggested it might need minor changes. Some of the smaller municipalities could maintain that to reduce the number of member municipalities. Increased representation for the more popular urban township for more equitable distribution of voting power was suggested.

A big majority of municipalities felt present services provided by the county — roads, homes for the aged, county welfare and health were adequate.

"It appears, however, that there is a desire on the part of many local municipalities that some co-ordination is needed in the provision of local services, and many of the local municipalities feel this could be best accomplished by, outright 'amalgamation,' the report read.

Such amalgamation would provide more efficiency through elimination of duplication of services; would provide a more even distribution of costs over a wider area; would allow more equitable representation on county council, with a reduction in county council numbers to a more workable size.

There are 24 townships, seven villages and one separated town in the county system, each of which send a reeve to county council.

Three of the most northern townships — McLure, Wicklow and Bangor — send one reeve between them, while the more populous municipalities also send a deputy reeve.

Individual comments as to adequacies indicated that more attention should be given to roads needs in built-up areas and that county roads should be discontinued.

County welfare should be on a voucher system instead of the present cash system which was felt to be abused.

More industrial development promotion was said needed, with more co-operation with the province through advertising, and more promotion in the north and over the entire county.

Warden John Wilkes, in opening this week's council session referred to the greater interest shown in rural municipal elections this year.

He said some years ago he had some doubts as to the future of the present form of local government, but with the new interest being shown, he had changed his mind.

"It was democracy in action," Warden Wilkes said, referring to the election turnout which in some municipalities reached nearly 100 per cent of the eligible voters.

Hastings riding member Clarke T. Rollins said that no form of regional government should be forced on a county.

He said it should be up to local residents whether they wanted county government to continue.

He said he would work toward helping to retain any form of government Hastings residents wished.

Hastings Manor Sale Discussed by Council

The suggestion by Belleville Mayor Scott at city council earlier this week that the city purchase Hastings Manor as a means of helping to solve the accommodation need for senior citizens, drew little comment from county councillors Wednesday.

The Belleville mayor was commenting on crowded conditions at the home outside the city and suggested the county might build another home further north and sell Hastings Manor to the city.

Yesterday county home committee chairman Reeve Jack Rose of Sidney said sale of Hastings Manor to the city had not been discussed at committee level.

"But you can bet your bottom dollar that there will not be anything given away for nothing," he said.

County Warden John Wilkes commented that it was nice to know that the county home property just outside Belleville was so valuable.

Later County Clerk-Treasurer - Administrator Carl Bateman, said Hastings Manor had been offered to the city about four years ago prior to the construction of the last addition at the home.

However, he said, at that time the city wasn't interested.

The county homes for the aged report given by Reeve Bush indicated there were 245 residents now living at Hastings Manor.

At city council Mayor Scott said there were 91 city residents at the home whereas the city's agreement with the county called for accommodation of only 74.

At the Bancroft Centennial Manor there are 80 residents with only 14 beds available in the special care section. The report indicated both homes were operating as close to capacity as possible.

Delegation to Visit Attorney-General

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. J. McFarland will be among several delegates meeting with attorney-general A. A. Wishart this month to seek a satisfactory cost system for transporting county prisoners to Napanee's Regional Jail. The discussion will take place in Toronto Dec. 17.

The delegation, headed by mayors of a number of the municipalities involved, was organized following a resolution passed by Trenton town council. The resolution emphasized the establishment of the regional jail at Napanee serving the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Frontenac will necessitate considerable transportation costs" to the municipalities concerned.

Trenton council agreed this fall to petition attorney general Wishart urging transportation of prisoners by the Ontario Provincial Police as an administration of justice cost to the province rather than among the municipalities asked to support this method of transferring prisoners.

A recent letter to Trenton council from the attorney-general, forwarded to Picton council, stated that it would not be considered "an effective remedy" if the OPP assumed the suggested responsibilities. Mr. Wishart noted in his reply to this plan: "Many municipalities have similar responsibilities with respect to the transportation of prisoners and I am sure that the members of your council will be familiar with those areas in Northern Ontario where such transportation distances have always been very extensive compared to those which are found in southern Ontario." He pointed out that organized northern municipalities have assumed financial responsibility.

The attorney-general added that the transportation of prisoners to and from institutions concerns every municipality, not just those related to particular areas. He reported that the transportation situation is under review but said that he could not state at this time that an effective solution is appeared.

Let's Perk Up!

We wonder at the spirit — or lack of it — abroad in Belleville these days. As if the election turnout were not bad enough, there is word that the Chamber of Commerce's membership drive is far short of its target of 100 new members. Only a handful have been reported.

We would urge city businessmen to reconsider, for only through strong membership can the Chamber hope to continue its excellent work in the community, tasks which have been outlined in this newspaper and in Chamber circulars and which range from business information and tourist promotion to sponsorship of the winter carnival.

As for the public's disastrous performance in Monday's election, it augured badly for the democratic process in Canada. We find it difficult moreover to understand Mayor Russell Scott's explanation of such a small turnout; he said it showed the electorate was confused with the overall education picture in the province — confused rather than disinterested.

But how can we explain the fact that of 174 eligible voters in one north end poll not one turned out. Was there a conspiracy of silence? Or, why in two other polls with a total of 386 eligible voters, only 20 bothered to cast their ballots.

Confusion is one thing, an apathetic attitude to affairs is another. The fundamentals of the education scene today — its economical aspects in particular, the charges of "empire building" and extravagance, its overall quality compared with earlier times — all have been the source of continuing comment and public debate.

But all, it would appear, to little avail, so far as the voting public is concerned.

It seems we need some of the motivation of the past year or so — of Belleville Week perhaps, or the coming together of citizens to persuade the Ontario Municipal Board to hold another hearing on the Plaza, a move which led the OMB to reverse its original decision. Belleville has nowhere to go but up; however we will not go far unless citizens all lend their support.

Mr. Robarts Steps Down

So the rumors were correct and Premier Robarts is resigning. Aside from the fact that after nine years in the position Mr. Robarts feels it is time to step down and make way for a still younger man (he is 53 which is not old nowadays), we note also that he wants to have more time to spend with his family and to return to law practice.

No one deserves such freedom more than Mr. Robarts. He has served the province of Ontario well; as we noted in a recent editorial, with rumors of his impending retirement gathering strength: "The rigors of politics are such that a man cannot be blamed for considering even in comparative youth that his own personal life, as well as the affairs of the province, might be better served by a change in the leadership."

John Roberts will be missed when he drops out of politics altogether at the next election. That day will mark the end of a period of growth and development in Ontario's rivalled by few other such regional entities in the world. And it will mark the end of a period of faithful service and a job well done by Mr. Roberts.

Winter Hazards

Winter snow is here and once again we observe with misgiving the habits of some drivers. We get the impression that a lot of drivers fail to adjust properly. There is too much speed in the conditions.

In the country it can be hazardous; for instance on the Old Picton Road recently a car ran off the road into a bunch of tree trunks which had recently been cut down. Conditions on this and other rural roads vary in winter, according to how often they are sanded. It may be all the worse when speed is involved.

Then there are the snowmobilers. Many are making use of trails in the open country aside, where they can enjoy their sport far from those who do not, but we see there have already been complaints in the city area from citizens disturbed by the noise.

We question also the seemingly free use of rural roads by snowmobilers. Winter walking is not that popular, but what about the few who do enjoy a weekend walk, those living in the country for example, and who wish to tow a child on a toboggan. Snowmobilers roaring along the side of the road could make this a hazardous undertaking. These are all matters which should be considered by the appropriate authorities.

And Guess What--He Wants Japanese Capital

Greene Nails U.S. While Selling It A Bill of Goods

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Energy Minister Joe Greene is the fearless defender of Canadian resources and by golly he is never going to let those dang Yankees steal our birthright.

Not long ago in a speech at Denver, Mr. Greene put on his patriot's hat and made a fiery speech about how Canada would never allow the U.S. to diminish Canadian sovereignty.

He even went so far as to suggest that if necessary Canadians would retaliate against American radio and telecasts coming into this country. Presumably this was to protect Canadian culture, as portrayed by the CBC. Mr. Greene didn't disclose how he was going to block the American broadcasts but the communist nations have a technique which he perhaps might copy.

Some time after this tirade, Mr. Greene presided over the announcement of the sale to U.S. interests of 6.36 trillion cubic feet of gas.

But was this selling out to the U.S.? Nonsi, this was good hard, - headed Canadian business.

Just a few weeks ago U.S. and Canadian ministers met here to discuss bilateral economic and trade matters and stemming from this discussion came the prospect of virtually free access of Canadian oil to the American market.

Canadian oil this year is being sold to the U.S. at the rate of 750,000 barrels a day. Chances are good that in a few years the pipelines to the U.S. could work at full capacity.

But was there any concern here about Canadian resources being taken over by the U.S.? No question of that at all, according to patriot Greene. This was just smart dealing by that fine liberal government at Ottawa.

Some journalists recalled that only a few days before the oil announcement, Mr. Greene had been blasting the Americans again, this time for polluting the Great Lakes. To hear him tell it, the U.S. was responsible for 80 percent of the pollution in these lakes and Canada just wasn't going to stand for it anymore.

How to reconcile this criticism by Joe Greene and his subsequent buddy - buddy approach to the American ministers. Reporters asked him if mounting U.S.' interest in Canadian resources constituted a form of sell-out.

Mr. Greene was peeved by the suggestion. "Some of you commentators see a big, bad Yankee under the bed. That's not a big, bad Yankee — that's your imagination."

But surely if anyone has conjured up a Canadian bogyman it is the colorful Lincolnesque Mr. Greene. He not only has discovered the bad, bad American but by his policies has put the perfidious Yankee under sway bed in Canada.

What was rather ironic about the U.S. — Canada ministerial talks was the attempt of the Canadians to sell uranium to the Americans. They weren't having any and how miffed were our ministers that we could not sell this precious resource south of the border.

But fear not, Mr. Greene is not going to be taken in by the Yankees whether they buy or won't buy our resources. He's got a new salvation in store for us — it's the Japanese.

The resources minister and a group of top businessmen and federal officials headed off for a two-week visit to Japan. And the word is that Mr. Greene is interested in the Japanese boosting their investment in Canada to balance the high level of American ownership.

As one source put it, Japan-ese capital might be used to "dilute" the strength of U.S. resource industry ownership in Canada.

Nonsense from Levesque

London Free Press

Rene Levesque has taken some incredible stands in his effort to wrench Quebec from Canada but none more sickening than the repulsive drivel he poured on a recent CTV interview.

There never was any real crisis in Quebec during the FLQ assault by murder and terror, Mr. Levesque asserted although there was "fabricated" by Ottawa and Quebec City.

There was "cold calculation" of "using Laporte and Cross once they were kidnapped . . . to clamp down on Quebec and without even noticing it, to debase anything called democracy here."

How interesting. Mr. Levesque seems to have forgotten that the greatest measure of support for the emergency action taken by the federal and provincial governments has come from the people of Quebec themselves. He also seems to have forgotten that he once saw the crisis as real enough for him to step forward and offer his services in the "rescuing" of a "chaotic" government.

Surrender to the demands of the FLQ terrorists was the first solution offered by Mr. Levesque. It was also strongly suggested he stood ready to become the major figure in the "provisional government" that would replace the one elected by the people. How's that for debasing democracy?

As for Mr. Trudeau he is "Elliott more than Trudeau from my point of view and he had to be elected in the Mount Royal ghetto in Montreal to stand anywhere in Quebec." What errant, vicious rubbish from a man who once had the respect of the people of Canada.

"It is not a very strong team you have in Quebec," Mr. Levesque said, referring to the Bourassa government as "hand-picked" by Ottawa. Mr. Levesque had been given the chance only months before to instal his own kind of government in Quebec by democratic means. The people, not Ottawa, by a very decisive margin hand-picked Mr. Bourassa instead.

The Agony of Pakistan

Nature's Awesome Powers

Hamilton Spectator

Now that aid is reaching the devastated areas of East Pakistan, the magnitude of the disaster can be assessed. Apart from the many thousands killed — the exact number will never be known — upwards of two million persons are homeless. Disease has still to take its toll.

There are many islands in the Bay of Bengal which are low-lying and given over mostly to paddy fields. A tidal wave, driven by cyclone winds of over 120 mph, would sweep over them. Darkness would add horror.

A cyclone is a memorable and terrifying experience. It sends warnings hours before it arrives; the air becomes heavy and charged with electricity; a thin haze veils the sun's face. Then an intense black band appears above the horizon and begins to creep up the blue sky. The forward edge of this frightening phenomenon is flecked with grey and white and is churning ominously, jagged flashes of lightening dart from it.

The air is still, the heat oppressive and birds flutter about excitedly. The fronds on palm trees flutter in an agitated way as though they are shivering with fear, in spite of the stillness. Then it grows darker as the black and grey clouds crawl up the sky, moving swiftly from side to side. Suddenly there is a breeze: then the wind is whistling in the trees and the palms bend low in bending. The air seems heavier still; the barometer has long plummeted.

And now without warning the wind is rushing in; huge raindrops fall and spread as big as saucers in the dry sand, and swiftly the cyclone arrives with a roar and rain comes down in solid sheets. Everything loose — and some things that are not — is take off into the air like aeroplanes. Rivers rise rapidly, bridges, roads and railway tracks are swept aside. Uprooted trees, houses, roofs, furniture, animals, fowls, foliage and sometimes the bodies of human beings race by in the brown, turbulent water. Every creek, runnel and watercourse overflows, charged by the merciless rain.

Such — and much else — is a cyclone in Southeast Asia. The aftermath is always sad. Water is useless; houses and crops are inundated and ruined. Diseases — particularly typhoid and cholera — move in quickly.

But if, to these misfortunes is added a tidal wave, then the devastation must be unimaginable.

This calamity is a reminder that Nature, when in an ugly mood, has a ferocity that humbles man and makes him puny and powerless.

Fixed Him!

Richard Needham in the Globe and Mail

I heard a beautiful put-down at King's College in Halifax. A woman of about 30 told one of the radical students, "I like you. You remind me so much of myself when I was your age."

Infant Mortality Is High in Quebec

Malcolm Reid in the Globe and Mail

Quebec's birth rate is going down, has been lower than Ontario's since 1967, and has the lowest infant death rate recorded. However, there always has been a counter factor to the high rate among French Canadians and it has yet to be eliminated. It is the relatively high number of babies who die in their first days.

This is one of the grim points in a report recently submitted by Dr. Madeleine Blanchet Patry in a research paper for the provincial department of health and welfare.

Dr. Blanchet-Patry is a young graduate of the Harvard School of Public Health who does research for the Montreal Health District of Montreal. She wrote the study for the royal commission that was headed by the late Monseigneur Dubois before he went into politics and became health minister. The commission is still operating under its new chairman, Gerard Nevert, and Mr. Cazzavillan says he's been noncommittal about how many of its recommendations he will adopt now that he's in power.

Already, however, Dr. Blanchet-Patry said, his look at her statistics on health on the island of Montreal has made him consider the necessity for soon to be created health centres — more complete than the old health units, almost hospitals — should be given to places like Hochelaga, St. Ann, St. Henri and St. Michel.

"English - speaking areas in the west of the island, like Point Claire, have levels of infant mortality similar to those of Sweden, Norway and Holland," she wrote in another world. Those three areas are similar to those of Montreal.

Dr. Blanchet-Patry calls infant mortality "the most classic index of the health standards and the level of a nation's health." But the other areas of medical health she finds the same inferiority to Ontario and to the developed world in general.

"Of the 679 Canadians who died from tuberculosis in 1968, about half were Quebecers," she reports. Lung cancer, "among all the types of cancer, is the type which is most in Quebec's rate is lower than Ontario's."

And within Quebec, the regional disparities are much more marked: again taking infant mortality, the rate in half of Quebec's counties is substantially higher than the province's average. In Ontario, only four counties have a rate higher than the province's average.

Administration of School System Big Business

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

With the dust of elections settled and the first Hastings county board of education returned to office virtually intact, the public can return to one of its favorite occupations — criticizing the educational establishment.

Criticism centres around the cost in general and the high cost of educational administration in particular.

The new county boards are accused to being "top-heavy with expensive administrative personnel — the general staff used to support the people to the field, the teachers and their pupils.

Hastings county board at its inception promised to put the money where the action is — in the schools.

At the top of the pyramid is the director of education, whose salary is no secret. His $30,000 a year is about on par with second the administrators in big metropolitan boards. If not somewhat below.

Seven other academic administrators on the board's office earn salaries over $20,000 a year. They are the two superintendents and five associate superintendents.

All these men hold inspector's certificates and they are responsible for supervising the curriculum, the teachers, special education, and services such as the psychological and audio-visual programs.

They ultimately are responsible for the selection of teaching supplies, the recruiting of teachers, keeping of records, negotiating of contracts and predicting future needs for buildings and staff.

These are the men who go into the schools to inspect the calibre of teaching and to suggest new programs and approaches to learning. They also arrange professional development courses and in - service training for teachers.

Another group of board employees also draw salaries in the over $20,000 range. They are the secondary school principals — seven of them in the county.

The salary for secondary school principals goes from $19,500 to $22,000 annually. Only one of the county's eight secondary school principals is below the $20,000 figure because his period of service in the position is shorter than that of the other seven.

This gives a grand total of 15 people earning over $20,000 a year with the county board. When increments for experience raise the one principal to the $20,000 level, the number of $20,000 - a - year - and-over men will be evenly divided between the administration offices and the schools.

The secondary school vice-principals make the next highest salaries — from $17,300 to $18,700 a year.

Then comes the academic personnel responsible to the superintendents. They include the three co-ordinators . . . of community services, of psychological services and audio-visual services.

There are also 14 consultants — teachers with special experience in academic fields like French or guidance or history. They assist the classroom teachers in putting new ideas and programs into practice in the classroom. They are given an allowance of $2,000 a year more than the amount to which their category placement entitles them.

At roughly the same salary level are the elementary school principals, who start at $14,700 a year.

With experience, further academic training and assignment to larger schools, the elementary school principal's salary can go to more than $18,000 a year, but none in Hastings county at present draw that much.

Also under the academic arm of administration comes the executive assistant to the director of education. He takes all board minutes, and is in charge of publications, public, bylaws and policies, permits and visitors.

Then side of the board's operation employs 18 people and a computer. Excluding the computer ($44,000 a year) the salary spread for business personnel goes from $7,000 to $17,000 a year.

Under the business administrator comes the assistant business administrator and the controller of plant. The position has been vacant for some time as an economy measure, and is only now about to be filled.

Responsible to the controller of plant is the assistant controller, the supervisor of custodians, the supervisor of maintenance, two satellite supervisors of custodians and the supervisor of construction.

Third line employees in business administration are the supervisor of finance, with the heads of accounting and payroll answerable to him, and the manager of purchasing, with a staff buyer on her staff.

In addition, the board has a transportation manager and a personnel manager. The Bancroft office employs a business manager.

Also under the teaching personnel with the county board are the clerical staff and the custodians and maintenance men. There are 42 clerks and secretaries in the elementary schools, 42 in the secondary schools and 23 in the four administrative offices at 208 Bridge St. East, College St., Trenton and Bancroft.

Custodians and maintenance men total 184 throughout the county.

Finally, at the bottom of the pyramid come the teachers — about 1,130 of them this year to teach 24,027 students.

A beginning elementary school teacher earns $6,600 this year. The top teacher's salary in category 7 is $14,700.

Man Injured

TRENTON (Staff) — A 20-year - old Trenton man is being treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital today for back injuries received in an early morning accident on Bay Street.

William Dobbie of 34 Bay Street was a passenger in a car driven by Arthur McCauley, 37, of 71 Heber Street when it swerved to avoid hitting an oncoming automobile at 12:05 a.m. In doing so, it rammed two parked cars along the street.

Charges will not be laid, according to a town police spokesman.

OWRC Official:

Seepage Will Continue After Dumping Halted

Contamination seeping from the city dump near Zwick's Island could continue up to three years after dumping ceases, an Ontario Water Resources Commission official said last night.

A halt in dumping at the landfill site would not mean an automatic halt to the pollution seeping into the surrounding Bay of Quinte, said John Vogt, OWRC Industrial Waste Division district engineer.

Mr. Vogt was answering questions at a meeting of the Belleville and District Anti-Pollution Committee in Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school.

Organic decomposition of waste deposits will continue after dumping ceases and resulting contaminants can leak into the waterway.

He said it could be "in the order of two to three years" before the situation "is back to where it is considered satisfactory."

Alderman Ross David asked if methane gas — produced below ground by decomposition — posed any danger in the area.

"There can be a problem," said Mr. Vogt, "if there are buildings placed on the landfill site — at too early a date — they can trap methane gas."

However, in an open area there is sufficient air circulation to carry off any methane concentration.

Trenton Officers To Be Decorated

OTTAWA — Five Canadian Forces Officers will receive medals from the Peruvian Government on Dec. 11 in Ottawa for the part they played in the Peruvian earthquake disaster relief operation last June.

They are Lieut.-Col. W. I. Butchart, 44, of Lion's Head, Ont., commanding officer of 424 Squadron, CFB Trenton, and four of his squadron officers. They are Maj. J. D. Donald, 39, of Sarnia, Capt. Brian Cunniff, 25, of Halifax, Capt. J. J. B. Cormier, 43, of Lachine, Quebec, and Capt. J. R. Philip, 45, of Trenton.

Invited to attend the ceremonies are General F. R. Sharp Chief of Defence Staff, Major General A. Chester Bull, commander, Air Transport Command, and the wives of the officers concerned.

Lieut.-Col. Buchard and his officers, all pilots, flew five twin-engine Caribou aircraft from Trenton to Lima to start relief operations on June 8, 1970. Despite high altitude, hazardous flying conditions, and makeshift runways in the Andes, they ferried 90 tons of supplies and evacuated more than 800 people during the month-long operations.

Youngest MP Assails Pension Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's youngest MP went after the government's bill to amend the Old Age Security Act Wednesday, claiming it will do little but "appease the consciences of a few middle-class liberals."

Lorne Nystrom, 26-year-old New Democratic member from Yorkton-Melville, said the bill will not do much for old people gripped in poverty.

The Commons will continue to debate the bill today with expectations that it will receive second reading and be sent to committee.

The bill would increase the basic old age pension to $80. The increase represents a jump of 61 cents—the basic rate was set at $75 in 1966 and annual increments of two per cent have brought it to $79.58 this year.

It would increase maximum supplementary benefits to $55 from $50, in effect assuring persons over 65 a guaranteed monthly income of $135.

Mr. Nystrom said the bill would guarantee a single pensioner an annual income of $1,080 a year. But the poverty line had been set at $1,950 two years ago.

He termed "ridiculous" the bill's proposal to tax the $1,080.

The bill reinforced the theme that the country placed top priority on "money, profits and the interests of our corporate society."

Old people, he said, shouldn't have to worry about money.

Andre Fortin, (Creditiste-Lotbiniere) said the qualifying age for the old age pension should be dropped to 69.

Under the present system many found themselves out of work at 55 or 60 and forced to live on their savings or welfare payments until they qualified for the pension at 65.

Mark Smerchanski (L—Provencher) said a married pensioner getting the full $235—today, under plan supplement —would receive $1.30 an hour based on a 40-hour week.

He said middle-aged Canadians took in that hourly wage, he said, taxes could be reduced because there wouldn't be significant need for welfare programs.

Ambrose H. Peddle (PC—Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador) said the government seems preoccupied with measures that do more to attract votes than fight poverty.

Earlier, during the Commons question period, opposition members took advantage of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's return from Europe to query him on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the James Richard Cross kidnapping.

Mr. Sharp said in a statement he had used the trip to lobby against the "very real danger" of a trade confrontation between Europe and North America.

He had requested a renewed dialogue between North America and the European Economic Community to prevent a dangerous deterioration in international trading relations.

He had also pleaded Canada's case with regards to Britain's likely future membership in the EEC, which would be detrimental to Canadian trade because of Canada's current preferred position with Britain, and had been assured that Britain would seek to have any changeover in tariff arrangements effected gradually.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked Mr. Sharp whether kidnappers of Mr. Cross transported to Cuba last week would be allowed to apply for Canadian passports.

"I imagine they would be barred down," said Mr. Sharp.

Mr. Stanfield wondered if the minister could only "imagine" what would happen.

Justice Minister John Turner said the government has an intention of attempting to have the kidnappers extradited from Cuba.

He said he was consulting with Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette about placing formal charges against the kidnappers so they could be prosecuted if they ever returned to Canada.

Strong Quake Hits Peru

11 cars — STRONG etc ..%.. %... %JHS.

LIMA (Reuter) — A strong earthquake rocked northern Peru and southern Ecuador for 40 seconds Wednesday night causing panic and destruction in the northern cities of Tumbes and Sullana, the Peruvian Geophysical Institute announced.

No official information on damage or victims was immediately available because communications with the north of Peru were cut off.

The quake measured 7.5 on the open-ended Richter scale, only slightly less powerful than the earthquake of May 31, which devastated much of north-central Peru and killed an estimated 70,000 people.

The institute said that an earthquake of 7.5 on the Richter scale would cause "certain damage in an area up to 120 miles from the epic centre," which it located in the Bay of Guayaquil, 38 miles north of Tumbes.

Tumbes, the city most affected by the quake, has a population of 38,000.

Church Ties to State Studied

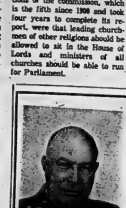
LONDON (Reuter) — Changes in the relationship between the Anglican Church and the state were foreshadowed in a report published today. But the traditional ties between the two will not be broken.

The report of a 16-man Church of England Commission of Inquiry on Church and State was divided on whether the British prime minister should continue to select new bishops.

But the commission voted against disestablishment which has tied the Protestant Church of England to the state since Henry VIII broke with Roman Catholicism in the 16th century.

Eight members of the commission, three of whom declined to sign the report, recommended that an electoral board should choose the bishops and have their decision endorsed by the Queen.

The other eight proposed that the monarch should be advised by a committee, acting through the prime minister. The British premier has advised the sovereign on bishops' appointments since 1721. Supporters of the electoral board note that the prime minister may not even belong to the Anglican religion.



Valerie Pitt, spokesman for those who did not sign the report, said she could not imagine the prime minister, faced with strikes and students, "worrying much over half a paragraph in the prayer book or who was to be appointed bishop of Chelmsford."- Chelmsford is a small see in England town.

Supporters of the nomination system claimed election might produce the wrong sort of men and their committee system would leave the prerogative of the monarch virtually untouched.

On links between the church and state, the report said a total severing of church-state ties would be impracticable and disliked by the public, who "still want to feel that religion has a place in the land to which they can turn on the too rare occasions they think they need it."

Miss Pitt said: "I do not honestly think a great proportion of the public care whether the church is established or not. The great proportion of the public do not darken the church door from one wedding to the next."

Among other recommendations of the commission, which is the fifth since 1906 and took four years to complete its report, were that leading churchmen of other religions should be allowed to sit in the House of Lords and ministers of all churches should be able to run for Parliament.

Randle and Marian Vandekle have set up a new office in their new home at R.R. No. 2, Hastings. This office is located near Campbellford and Randle will continue to serve his policyholders in all rear. The office telephone number is 653-1418.

Hughes Executives in Confrontation

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The arrival of a harvesting expert has brought the first closed-door, face-to-face meeting of factions struggling for control of billionaire Howard Hughes's Nevada empire.

Charles Appel, a handwriting expert from Washington, D.C., arrived Wednesday during a hearing on a court order that prevents executives of the Hughes Tool Co. from ousting Robert Maheu, who for four years ran Hughes's Nevada properties.

Within hours, the two sides in the dispute were talking privately in a suite at the El Mococo Hotel. The talks continued for six hours and were to resume today.

Chief figures in the corporate battle are Maheu, top aide to Hughes since the billionaire's chase moved here in 1966, and Chester Davis, general counsel of Houston-based Hughes Tool. Davis fired Maheu last Saturday, saying he had the authority under a document which he said bears Hughes's signature. The document gave Davis and two other tool company directors power of attorney.

The hearing Wednesday was on a tool company motion to quash that order.

When Appel arrived, the two sides went into an hour-long session in the chambers of Judge Howard Babcock. When they emerged, a tool company lawyer requested a recess so the two sides could meet privately elsewhere. Maheu's counsel joined in the request, and Babcock granted it.

Appel would not disclose what testimony he might offer.

Magazine Problems Considered

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax advantages now provided for Canadian advertisers in Time and Reader's Digest but not in the Canadian editions of other foreign magazines sold in Canada should be discontinued, the Senate committee on mass media recommends.

The committee headed by Senator Keith Davey (L—Ontario) also says in its report that if this move does not improve the competitive position of Canadian magazines, Time and Reader's Digest should be required to sell 75 per cent of their Canadian interests to Canadian owners. The report was tabled in the Senate Wednesday.

The Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest, published in Canada since the 1940s, are the only ones now exempt from a 1964 Income Tax Act provision that Canadian advertising in the Canadian editions of foreign magazines is disallowed as a business operating expense.

The committee said Time and Reader's Digest Canadian editions have a big advantage over other Canadian magazines because they get most of their editorial matter from their parent U.S. magazines at low cost.

Youths Charged - - Again

KITCHENER (CP) — Two persons who were remanded for trial Tuesday on a charge of possessing drugs were back in court a few hours later facing a similar charge.

They were arrested shortly after leaving court in a police raid on the men's washroom on the second floor of Waterloo County courthouse.

Police acted on a tip from a court constable who became suspicious after he saw three youths enter the washroom and remain there for some time.

James A. Brown, 21, and Allan L. Pfeiffer 19, who had been released on $200 bail each earlier, were arrested and charged with possessing drugs.

On their second appearance, they were remanded in custody for one week.

CBC and Union Negotiations Deadlocked

OTTAWA (CP)—Bargaining between the CBC and the 1,300-member Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (ARTEC) have broken down, the union announced in a statement Wednesday.

Listed as main issues in the dispute are salaries, job security, health benefits, vacations, bilingual premiums and sick leave.

ARTEC members have worked without a contract since a previous agreement expired March 31 but the union statement said no action is planned until a federally-appointed conciliation board makes a report on the dispute, probably in mid-January.

Another CBC contract dispute with 1,650 production employees whose contract expired at the end of 1969 is also resting in the hands of a conciliation board.

A spokesman for ARTEC, which is affiliated with the Canadian Union of Public employees, said the union is seeking raises of 25 per cent in a 21-month contract to expire Dec. 31, 1971.

The union demands would mean a lump payment of $900 to the 80 per cent of the production staff which now earns less than $6,500 a year and a further increase of 10 per cent in the new year, the spokesman said.

The union represents announcers, salesmen, clerical workers, publicity writers, and editors, and others—a total of 135 job classifications. The union spokesman stressed that the announcer earning as much as $30,000 a year is not typical.

Meats, Cereals Seen as Source of Mercury

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Robert E. Jervis, a professor of chemical engineering at the University of Toronto, said Wednesday meats and cereals may be more significant sources of mercury in the human diet than fish.

Speaking at a seminar at the university, Dr. Jervis said meats and cereals could be stronger in mercury because of the frequency of their use in the average diet.

"The relatively high consumption of meats and cereals suggests that the total intake from such foods could be higher than from fish," he said.

He said that while average intake of mercury per person is below the suggested limit, it is high enough to warrant quick action against mercury sources in the environment.

He suggested the government do more monitoring of mercury levels in foods.

A hopeful sign is that the average Canadian has no more than three to four parts per million of mercury in his body compared with the 200 parts per million required to suffer harm, Dr. Jervis said.

Student Composers' Competition Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — In a search for new music and new talent, the Junior Women's Committee of the Toronto Symphony is sponsoring a student composers' competition.

They are offering a $200 prize for a four-to-six-minute original composition for symphony orchestra. Entrants must be Canadian residents between the ages of 16 and 21 inclusive.

The winner will be brought to Toronto to hear his work performed by the Toronto Symphony at a children's concert in the 1971-1972 season. The orchestra will perform the work twice during the season, and then it will be available to other orchestras, with the rights going to the composer. He will also receive a tape of the score.

The judges are Karel Ancerl, music director and conductor of the Toronto Symphony; John Beckwith, dean of the faculty of music at the University of Toronto; Victor Feldbrill, conductor of youth concerts for the Toronto Symphony; Harry Freedman, its composer-in-residence, and John Weinzweig, professor of composition at the University of Toronto.

Entries must be in by April 30, 1971, the winner will be announced by Sept. 30. The composition must be a "readable ink manuscript" and be accompanied by a letter with the applicant's name, age and statement of originality.

Entries should be sent to Victor Feldbrill, care of Toronto Symphony, 218 Victoria Street, Toronto 2, Ont.

Mrs. L. L. Samuels of the junior women's committee said the contest is part of the committee's three-pronged effort to provide the orchestra with new work.

"Two of the judges who work with students are convinced there are a number of people who can produce something good for the contest.

"We hope it will be so successful that we will do it again and again. We will scrounge up the money for it."

Although the contest work is intended for use at children's concerts, Mrs. Samuels said the committee does not want to emphasize the fact too much because they do not want contestants to "write down" to children.

"People tend to write 'tickle tinkle' music."

The committee has also commissioned Mr. Freedman to write a composition. As their third effort, they hope to commission someone to do a new music and narrative work along the lines of Peter and the Wolf by Prokofiev.

The Experts Say

Toys Tokens of Love and Should Be Chosen with Care

OTTAWA (CP) — Toys are tokens of love and should be chosen with care, the federal consumer affairs department says in a consumer release.

It outlines points for parents to consider in choosing children's toys, mentioning first that a toy should be safe for ages and ability.

"Toys that are too complicated for the child's stage of growth may be disappointing," the release says.

"Parents should keep toys for older children away from infants. Even some toys for older children, like chemistry sets and wood-etching sets, should have some parental supervision at first."

A toy's durability is important. Some toys are built to be chewed, dropped or banged about and they should be made to take such treatment.

Toys are often a part of a world of make-believe; colorful and simple things will sometimes open up a delightful world of play and fantasy.

Children learn about colors from toys. They also learn how things fit together. So attractive colors and good design will give children some appreciation of artistic harmony.

Toys should function properly or the child will become frustrated.

Careful shopping for toys is sensible, since prices often vary from store to store. Also, children should not be overloaded with toys. It is better to select a few toys of high quality which are not necessarily expensive-than provide a large "hit-or-miss" collection.

A toy that can maim a child is a disaster. Common sense in avoiding this danger is vital, but some hazardous qualities are hard for a parent to detect.

To try to deal with this problem, the government recently issued regulations prohibiting the sale of toys with excessively dangerous features. For example, any toy which might contain a poisonous substance is banned.

More detailed information about toys is contained in a booklet called Toys: A Guide for Consumers. It was written by the Canadian Toy Testing Council whose chairman is Mrs. A. B. R. Lawrence of Ottawa, wife of the Ontario minister of financial and commercial affairs.

The booklet, published by the consumer affairs department, describes several hundred toys tested by the council, a volunteer group of Ottawa women who select potentially good toys each year at the manufacturers' toy fair in Montreal and test them in use in homes and nursery schools before making a recommendation.

The booklet is available from Information Canada, Ottawa, or from government bookshops in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver for $1.

Woman Directs Meat Industry, A Bridge Between Past, Future

SASKATOON (CP) — Johanna Mitchell considers herself a bridge between the past and the future, a link between her father and her three sons.

And an important link she is. As president of Intercontinental Packers Ltd., Canada's fourth largest meatpacking company, she directs an industry which pays $4 million a year in 1,500 employees and last year had sales totalling $160 million.

She became president of the family-owned company last February--until her father, Fred Mendel, 82, stepped down as Intercontinental's chief executive.

"When I feel my sons are mature enough and have learned enough, they can take over," said the blonde, blue-eyed grandmother in her 50s.

The older sons, Bob, a 28-year-old lawyer, and Fred, 23, have joined the firm's marketing and production departments. Charles, 19, and daughter Camille, 16, attend schools in British Columbia.

"Fortunately my family is interested in the business, but I don't want it to get lopsided. Some of our top executives are not in the family."

Mrs. Mitchell, divorced from movie and television actor Cameron Mitchell, has brought a housewife's approach to her new job.

She said she is aware of what housewives want because she is a housewife.

"I'm very fussy about comparative shopping. Every morning I taste our products and our competitors'.

"I feel very strongly toward the housewife, many of whom are working and want more preserved and nutritious foods. It's the woman who does the shopping."

Mrs. Mendel always has been active in the company, serving as a director for 20 years. She feels that being a woman president is not difficult because she has spent much of her life in the business.

"If I would have been hired as a stranger, I think it would have been a difficult assignment."

Mr. Mendel, still chairman of the board, founded the company 36 years ago in Saskatoon. He owned 13 packing plants in Canada, Australia, countries and one in Australia, but was forced to flee to Canada from Nazi Germany.

Intercontinental has changed somewhat since Mrs. Mitchell took possession of the president's chair. The company letterhead has been brightened and a similar format is being considered for packaged foods.

In September, Mrs. Mitchell announced a $2 million expansion program for Intercontinental's Vancouver plant. The company also has plants in Red Deer, Alta., and Regina, but the Saskatoon operation is the largest with 800 employees.

One thing that hasn't changed is the president's office, which some people might think would be first to get the woman's touch.

"I haven't changed it yet," says Mrs. Mitchell. "I guess I'm sentimental."

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN IVAN LAFLEUR

Lafleur - Ryan

Father Worren officiated at the wedding ceremony in Holy Rosary Catholic Church, Belleville on Sat., Nov. 28, 1970, when Donna Margaret Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Ryan, Belleville was united in marriage to Norman Ivan Lafleur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lafleur, Lively, Ontario. Wedding music was rendered by T. Casasar at the organ.

Given in marriage by her brother, Raymond Ryan, the bride wore a floor length gown of white crushed satin featuring a jewel neckline of swirled Alencon lace with matching lace inset at yoke with a wide cummerbund of the same lace accenting the empire waistline. The full bishop sleeves also had cuffs of matching lace. An A-line skirt was outlined at the hem with two rows of Alencon lace. A cathedral train caught at back yoke with self bow and trimmed with lace highlighted the back of gown. A shoulder length veil was caught to a floral headdress and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Gail Monderville as matron of honor attended her sister wearing a full length red velvet gown in empire style with three-quarter sleeves. Her headdress was a red velvet bow trimmed with sequins and she carried a nosegay of red and white mums. Bridesmaids Mrs. Linda Turcotte, sister of the bride and Nancy Jamieson were dressed identically to matron of honor. Miss Shelley Ryan, niece of the bride wore a full length dress styled with white lace bodice and polyester skirt trimmed with red velvet, with red velvet bow trimmed with sequins in her hair. She carried a basket of red and white mums.

The reception was held at the Tops Motor Motel, where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pastel pink dress with three-quarter length sleeves and U neckline trimmed with rhinestones. Navy accessories and a corsage of blue and white 'mums completed her ensemble. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece outfit consisting of gold shade dress worn with matching coat, golden accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Lafleur will reside in Sudbury.

MELROSE UNITED

MELROSE — The following officers were nominated for the coming year at the December meeting of the Melrose UCW held recently in the church basement — Mrs. E. Badgley, president; Mrs. William English, first vice-president; Mrs. H. Osborne, treasurer.

The meeting was preceded by a pot luck supper which was followed by a Christmas carol and the reading of the Christmas story. Correspondence dealt with included information on the new hymn book which should be ready by Easter 1971.

The treasurer's report showed $758 as the proceeds from the annual supper of this balance of $538 was realized which will be handed to the church treasurer. It was decided to give the money to the mission and service fund.

The evening unit was responsible for the entertainment part of the program with Mrs. A. Cook as leader. Carol singing was enjoyed and a skit on cutting down on sending cards at Christmas was enacted by Mrs. D. Lazier and Mrs. D. Stratton. Marion Blackerwick sang a solo with Mrs. L. Weese as accompanist. Three amusing contests were conducted after which Christmas gifts were distributed and coffee was served. A vote of thanks was extended to the group to the enjoyable evening.

Tasty Spice Cake Made in Beater Bowl

By MARY MOORE

My enthusiasm for this cake grew as I watched it rise in the oven and increased when I tasted it.

A good light cake made entirely in the beater bowl is a gem to be treasured. This is one.

BEATER SPICE CAKE

(Two 8" layers; or one 9" square)

2¼ cups sifted cake and pastry flour

1 tsp. baking powder

1 tsp. baking soda

½ tsp. salt

¾ cup white sugar

1 tsp. cinnamon

½ tsp. nutmeg

¾ cup light brown sugar (packed)

⅔ cup shortening (room temperature)

1 cup buttermilk or sour milk (divided — see below)

2 med. eggs

Place sifter over beater bowl and into it measure the sifted flour, baking powder, soda, salt, white sugar and spices and sift into beater bowl. Remove sifter. Add the brown sugar, shortening and ¾ cup of the buttermilk or sour milk. (Note: If you do not have buttermilk add 2 tbsps. vinegar to ¾ cup sweet milk to sour it.) Beat at med. speed for 2 min., scraping down sides once. Add remaining ¼ cup buttermilk or sour milk and the eggs and beat 2 min. on med. speed. Pour into 2 greased 8" layer cake pans lined on bottom with wax paper or one greased 9" square pan lined on bottom with greased wax paper. Bake at centre of oven in 350 deg. F.abr.: 30-35 min. for layers; 45 min. for square.

Let rest in pans 5 min., then turn out on cake racks and peel off paper to cool.

NOTE: See yesterday's December Birthday Cake For Icing.

Ann Landers

Rules Submitted For Mother-in-Law

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My credentials as a daughter-in-law for over 20 years qualify me to submit the following rules for all mothers-to-law. If followed, these rules are guaranteed to produce unlimited misery, isolation and anxiety, plus possible side effects of ulcers, migraines and other assorted ills. When your son marries:

Dwell on the fact that you have lost him. Let everyone know he was your whole life — not your own marriage, your other children, just him.

Talk incessantly about him as a little boy, how he needed you and how he always ran to you with everything. Make him sound dependent for sure — weak, if possible.

ANN LANDERS

Don't hesitate to make his business your business. Give advice, suggestions, opinions. After all, you are older, wiser and more experienced. What does he know?

If your daughter-in-law isn't a good housekeeper, show her how things should be done. If your son isn't aware of her incompetence, alert him. After all, he grew up in your home and he should know the difference.

Remind them both that you will not live forever and they will have plenty of time together after you are gone, invite them everywhere and insist on being included in all their social activities.

Practise making your son feel guilty for neglecting you. Guilt can be a powerful weapon. If you can make his wife feel guilty, too (or better yet, responsible), this can be a neat advantage for weighing future decisions in your favor.

If there are children, remember they are your grandchildren. If the parental discipline isn't what it should be (too strict or not strict enough), straighten them around. They may not appreciate it now but they will thank you later.

If you have a daughter (or more than one daughter-in-law) don't fail to recognize your built-in advantage. Make subtle comparisons. Keep them competing for your approval. If you play it right, your son will be caught in the middle.

Remember — you gave your son life. You raised him. He owes everything he is or ever will be to you. His wife got into the act much later. Don't ever let her forget it. — EDICT FROM NASHVILLE.

DEAR EDIE: Thank you for your rules on successful mother-in-law-hood. In addition to the possible side effects you outlined, I'd like to add another possibility — divorce.

I do hope the next letter will put the subject in its proper perspective.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Before our son married I wrote this letter to my future daughter-in-law: Print it if you believe it could help others.

Dear Jane: Joe's father and I are happy to have you in the family. We feel he made a wonderful choice. Until now I have been the Number One woman in Joe's life. On your wedding day you will occupy that place. And this is as it should be. I am not in the least bit resentful. Love for a mother is different from love for a wife. There is plenty of room in his heart for both of us. If you ever feel I am interfering, please tell me to mind my own business. I have made my share of mistakes and you will undoubtedly make yours. This is how people learn. If you want any advice from me, just ask and I will help you if I can. And one last thing — call me Mother or Mom if you want to. If not, my given name will do. We love you and welcome you to the family. — EVERY DAY IS MOTHER'S DAY FOR ME.

Forego Skirts For Pantsuits

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the state department to the Pentagon, U.S. government girls are forgoing skirts for the comfort, warmth and style of pantsuits.

An exception is the FBI where Director J. Edgar Hoover won't permit them.

In many cases, pantsuits have the approval of male bosses.

At the state department pantsuits began appearing on Saturdays about two months ago. Gradually, women began wearing them during the week.

To the women who wear them, pantsuits are almost as much an article of faith as an article of clothing.

"They're comfortable, they're warm and they're stylish," said Tina Schwitzer, who was posted in a blazer pantsuit with a checkered jacket in the justice department's information office.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYDON

Mother: "Jerry hates vegetables — especially anything green. He won't take even a bite, and I don't want to force him or it may turn him against green beans and spinach. I'm afraid he'll have a vitamin deficiency."

Mother: "I'm mashing up some vegetables and mixing them in with the ground beef. Jerry will eat them in a sandwich or mixed with a stew, and he does eat a lot of fresh fruit. I hope he'll soon outgrow this funny stage."

Discussing a little problem over while he's listening may simply increase the problem, but not the appetite for the foods he needs. Skip the comments and use your ingenuity to entice a 2-year-old to eat the necessary foods.

Successful Living

Public Health Nurse Always Helpful to Others

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

The man stepped to the window and watched the woman until she had turned a corner and was gone.

"That woman!" His eyes were smoldering. "That woman — she tried to tell us what is good for my kid! She tells me that flour and water is not good for him. It is not, nutritious. She says she is a nurse! What does she know? She hasn't even had a kid! She doesn't know anything — but me. I've buried seven kids!"

The broad purpose of the Department of National Health and Welfare is to provide all Canadians with the highest standards of personal and collective health, and to assist them to govern themselves in the business of daily living. — from The First Fifty, Canada's Health and Welfare

Most of us know better, now, than the misinformed pioneer of the North who expressed himself so indignantly. The Department has had 50 years of achievement, and, "as the nation grows, so will our concern with the well-being of all our people continue, and so will standards improve."

* * *

Dear Doris: You had a story from Sadie Bending about three people who ignored the courtesy when a gentleman held doors open for them. The article annoyed me very much.

I agree the youth was thoughtless, but so were the two women. In your reply you neglected to mention the women.

This just goes to show that the thoughtlessness of young people is noticed and not any of their good qualities. I deal with all ages of the public and find that older people are far more inconsiderate. In their attitudes they seem to be putting forth the idea: "Respect your elders!" — Annoyed

* * *

Dear Doris: I cannot let Sadie Bending's letter pass without a comment in defence of our young people.

My son is 21 and a student. He assures me that you will not find a more courteous group than university students. From the time he was in his early teens I have watched the expression on his face more times than I care to recall as he held a door for elderly ladies who passed through without a thank you, a smile, or even a pleasant look.

It is not just our affluent society but this type of treatment on the part of adults, clerks in stores who ignore children who wait patiently for service, lack of rapport on the part of teachers with students who want desperately to be treated as individuals, which has made it impossible for them to relate to our generation. — The Proud Mother of a Long Haired, Bearded Son

Dear Annoyed and Proud Mother: Good for you. I should certainly have referred to the thoughtless young women. All such unkindness at any level fosters a communication gap, and that's for sure.

* * *

Confidential to Willie: If you want to be called White, sign your Christmas cards that way. People will catch on. As for "God's disciplinary action against you", meaning your tendency to schizophrenia, that is Tommyrot. The rain falls upon the just and on the unjust — and so do illnesses.

Pope's Trip Evaluated

MONTREAL (CP) — Pope Paul's recent trip to Asia, Australia and the Pacific Islands had some inevitable political and social undertones, the lone Canadian in the pontiff's entourage said Wednesday.

Jean-Guy Vaillancourt, professor of sociology at the University of Montreal and a part-time described expert on Vatican affairs, said in an interview the Pope was concerned with the importance of emerging third world countries and the need for more contacts with Communist China.

And in Australia, he took the occasion to make a subtle criticism of the country's "materialism and the government's somewhat racist immigration policies."

Mr. Vaillancourt, 33-year-old native of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., was asked by Radio-Canada, the CBC's French-language network, to join about 50 journalists who accompanied Pope Paul on his 10-day trip last month.

The journey came out partly as a triumphant display of Vatican diplomacy," he said.

In the Philippines, where an attempt was made on his life, Pope Paul "attacked the rich and the establishment, but his attack was couched in very symbolic terms."

Mr. Vaillancourt said the Pope—who sees himself as a modern-day St. Paul, the pilgrim apostle"—made it a point to visit countries with varied political setups.

This "balance" was seen, for example in his visits to socialist-leaning Ceylon and military-ruled Indonesia.

Negro's Skin Problems Need Special Attention

CHICAGO (AP) — Many white doctors do not understand that Negro skin problems are different and cannot always be treated in the same way as white skin, a leading Negro skin specialist says.

There are only 58 black dermatologists, or skin specialists, in the United States and there are 23 million Negroes, Dr. John A. Kenney of Washington, D.C., said in an interview.

The cities of Cleveland and Houston have no black dermatologist, he said, and Atlanta has one.

Dr. Kenney conducted a seminar at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Dermatology, which ends today, on which he outlined skin problems peculiar to Negroes.

The differences in treating black patients arise primarily out of differences in skin pigmentation and differences in hair growth, he noted.

"Treatment measures which are effective and innocuous when performed on light-skinned patients can provoke a most unhappy and even catastrophic response and results in the dark-complexioned Negro patient," he told the seminar.

The dermatologist said that if some of the strong drugs used in treating acne in white patients are used in Negroes they create skin inflammation and can leave black spots which persist for years.

Another condition, known as vitiligo, "is a catastrophic thing" in the black patient, Dr. Kenney said, and it cannot be hidden well.

This condition is a loss of skin pigment so that the skin is white splotched and occurs often on the hands and face. It is a particular problem also for Orientals and Indians and others who have dark skin.

Surgery on Negroes can present a problem for the white surgeon who is unaware that the scar can change the pigmentation in the skin, Dr. Kenney said.

Canadian Charges Discrimination

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A charge that Canadians are being discriminated against in the University of Windsor sociology department is to be considered by the Ontario Human Rights Commission at its next meeting.

Milan Meleg, part-time sociology instructor at the university last summer, said Wednesday he was refused a part-time job in the fall term. He said the job was given to an American with less experience and fewer qualifications.

Mr. Meleg, a native of Harrow, Ont., about 20 miles south of Windsor, said he has received a letter informing him the complaint will be brought before the commission.

Dr. Vito Scenicoreia has been the acting head of sociology at the university since June. An American citizen, he has had landed immigrant status in Canada for the last four years.

Dr. Scenicoreia said it was true Mr. Meleg had been refused a job, but the reasons for the refusal were confidential. He denied a charge by Dr. Rudolf Helling, former sociology head, that the department was being Americanized.

Town, Others, Quit Art College Council

TORONTO (CP) — Three council members and the head of the fine arts department at the Ontario College of Arts have resigned in a dispute with faculty members over tenure requirements.

The three said faculty representatives on the governing council pushed through, by a vote of 6 to 6 Tuesday night, a motion calling for automatic tenure for all faculty with six years' experience at the college.

Those who resigned were painter Harold Town and industrial designer Monte Kwinter, both provincial appointees to the council, and second-year OCA student Diane White, one of three elected student representatives on the 15-member body.

Mr. Town said the meeting turned down an alternate motion to grant tenure only after a review of a faculty applicant's qualifications.

A faculty member who has tenure cannot be dismissed except for gross personal misconduct.

Canadian Unemployment Will Stay High

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian unemployment will remain at a high level in 1971 but there is no prospect of a steel strike as there is in the United States, a business conference was told Wednesday.

"We had a strike last year and I hope we won't have to go through that again," said H. M. Griffith, president of the Steel Company of Canada. "The contract runs until August, 1972."

Optimism was expressed by officers of some of Canada's largest corporations at the annual business outlook conference sponsored by the University of Toronto business department.

Over-all, opinion was unanimous that 1971 will be a better year on almost all counts than 1970.

There were some worries. The jobless rate was seen as not likely to average less than six per cent in 1971, declining slightly from the high of almost seven at present. Although significant, price inflation was expected to be less than in 1970.

A sharp acceleration in growth rate was predicted, including a nine-per-cent increase in gross national product.

Other predictions:

—Consumer spending is expected to increase by 8.5 per cent, compared with an anticipated increase of 6.5 per cent for 1970. Items expected to sell well include household goods such as carpets and glassware.

—A decline in the auto market share obtained by foreign-based competitors as Canadian sub-compacts establish themselves in the small economy-car market.

—Steel industry production anticipated at 13.3 million tons, an increase of about 10 per cent over 1970. Buying is expected from the United States, where a strike is anticipated.

—Newsprint producers will do little better than recover 1970 volume losses, said T. J. Bell, president of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. The lumber producers, who export two-thirds of their production, will have a better year.

—A 10-per-cent growth in all mining activity with 28 new mines being brought into production, the largest increase in several years.

—Both Canada should spend between $800 million and $700 million for capital items—buildings and equipment.

—Little growth is expected in the construction industry with about 210,000 housing starts across the country, compared with about 185,000 in 1970.

Robert Scrivener, president of Bell Canada, was asked about the outlook for capital investment in Quebec.

He replied that if in the 1970s the prosperity of Quebec continues to grow at the same rate as in the 1960s, half the graduates of post-secondary institutions there will find no jobs. If the growth rate can attain the same as Ontario, 25 to 33 per-cent will be unable to find employment.

Jerry McAfee, president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., said that if the federal government's white paper taxation proposals are unchanged it would be fatal to plan to develop Alberta's Athabasca oil sands oil and he hoped for a modification.

Karl Scott, chairman and chief executive officer of Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., said there is no likelihood of Japanese auto part makers setting up operations in Canada to get access to U.S. markets under the Canada-U.S. auto pact.

He said he could see no reason why Japanese manufacturers should wish to increase their labor costs by $6 an hour.

Mr. Peters said agriculture is expected to have a good year because of improvements in international grain markets. He expects Canada to have a favorable balance of trade with a net gain close to $1,000 million.

Retailer prospects are noticeably brighter then they were a year ago despite competitive forces that will limit profits, said A. Y. Eaton, vice-president (corporate affairs) of the T. Eaton Co. Ltd. of Toronto.

Second Time Around

Scrap paper is turned back into paper products by this machine at Kimberlet-Clark's plant in Ohio. The "side hill" washer processes up to 250 tons of used paper a day. The waste paper fibres are re-pulped, de-inked, bleached and blended with virgin fibres for use in making business papers.

Anti-freeze Fatal

SIMCOE (CP) — Police said Wednesday consumption of anti-freeze was apparently responsible for the deaths of two Simcoe brothers Monday.

Stephen Skiba, 52, and his brother Walter, 43, were admitted to hospital here Dec. 2. They were both unconscious and in critical condition.

After Long Ordeal

Cross Dreams of Swiss Christmas

LONDON (CP) — James (Jasper) Cross is dreaming of a Swiss Christmas and a long holiday before he returns to government duties, which, by accident, had plunged him into "the most terrible night" of his life.

The British diplomat, seeking to erase some of the nightmare of his 60-day Montreal ordeal, will be leaving with his wife shortly for Bern, Switzerland, for a Christmas celebration with British Ambassador Eric Midgley.

After several months of leave, he will take up a trade ministry appointment in London, possibly one day returning to Canada but never again as senior British trade commissioner in Montreal.

Far the first time he related Wednesday some of the full details of his two-month imprisonment by a Montreal Front de Liberation du Quebec cell which had confined him to a cellar room, his face covered by a slitted hood, his hands handcuffed and never sure whether he would be alive from one day to the next.

Basques Await Sentence

BURGOS, Spain (Reuter) — A heavy para-military civil guard ringed Burgos prison today while inside 16 alleged Basque nationalist guerrillas waited for sentencing after a week-long trial which ended in tumult.

Also waiting anxiously for the decision of the five army officers who formed the panel of judges at the trial which ended here Wednesday was the wife of kidnapped West German honorary consul Eugen Beihl.

The fate of the 58-year-old consul in San Sebastian appeared only is linked with that of the 16 on trial, six of whom face a possible death penalty.

Beihl was snatched by an extremist group of Basques, two days before the trial began. They warned that what happened to him depended on the trial's outcome.

And it could be a long tense vigil for word of Beihl. The five military judges could take five or six days to pass sentence, informed sources said.

Informed sources close to his family said a man phoned his mother in Bilbao and said in a muffled voice: "Your son has only two days to live. He is going to be killed."

The 16 defendants—the prosecutor demanded death for six and prison sentences totalling 794 years—were taken to Burgos prison, five miles outside this city in central Spain.

At divisional military headquarters in the centre of Burgos the five judges went into permanent closed session to deliberate.

Federal Education Control Is Urged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Schemes to turn over full or partial control of education in Canada to the federal government were urged Wednesday night at hearings of the joint Commons-Senate committee on the constitution.

Prof. David W. Menear of Althouse College in London suggested a Canadian office of education to channel federal money to teachers in the classroom, instead of where it currently goes—to "preserve the hierarchy."

Thomas P. Bourque, a Dieppe, N.B., commercial traveller, called for a combined ministry of education of both federal and provincial representatives, and said school boards and trustees should be abolished.

The committee's one-day sitting here were briefly disrupted at the start by members of the Canadian National Socialist Party who burst into the meeting at the Holiday Inn shouting "white power."

The demonstrators, wearing Nazi arm bands, carried a cloth sign reading We Want Freedom, Justice. John had left quietly when asked to desist by Mark MacGuigan, committee chairman. Martin E. Welche, spokesman for the group, said in an interview later they were demonstrating against "the farce" of the committee hearings.

The 11-member committee meets tonight in Windsor to end a four-city tour of southwestern Ontario which began Monday in Toronto.

Prof. Douglas MacKenzie of the University of Western Ontario, said an amended constitution should allow native people such as Indians and Eskimos, to exercise control over the education of their own people. He said they should be allowed to elect their own education boards, and develop a curriculum "as they see fit," particularly up to Grade 9.

Prof. Menear's harshest criticism was for what he described as educational empire building by provincial educationists. The empire, he said, "becomes protective of its hierarchy, fearful of innovation and jealous of power."

Tyke Trials

What they may lack in size they make up for in enthusiasm each Wednesday night, when minor hockey's smallest participants, the tykes, take to the ice. The game presents a few unique hazards and obstacles to an eight-year-old gladiator as shown by the above pictures. Bruin goalie Robert Barrett gets some "official assistance" from the referee after he was trapped beneath his own goal cage (top). Line shifts require some help from adult supporters such as Jim Clancy who lifts one Bruin member to a well deserved rest (centre). Local 1000 netminder Grant Scully shows that it's worth the trouble involved, however, as he makes a professional looking stop (bottom).

Brant Gets Some Financial Aid

Wrestlers to Tour Eastern Europe

While the format of the proposed wrestling trip to Russia has been changed, it is highly unlikely that any of the Canadian junior champions are unhappy about the outcome.

The Canadian team was unable to meet some of the demands of the Soviet government concerning their stay in Moscow, and so the proposed Russian trip has been cancelled.

In it's place, however, has been arranged a junket to several Eastern European countries. The team will now leave on Dec. 18th for Vienna and will return Jan. 25.

After departing from the Austrian capital The Canadians will spend three or four days in Yugoslavia and spend Christmas in Greece before returning to Vienna. Stops in other places are quite likely as the schedule for the final four days of the trip has not yet been finalized.

While the earlier departure time is great for most of the wrestlers concerned, it does put the squeeze on Belleville heavyweight Harold Brant who is attempting to raise funds for the journey.

"I think it's great that it's kind of just visiting one city

HAROLD BRANT

(Moscow) they got to see about four different countries instead but it does leave us a little pressed for time," noted Moira phys-ed teacher Gord Smith who is helping raise finances for Brant's trip.

A number of groups have already donated to the cause, however, The Bay of Quinte COSSA coaches association has donated $100 and Hastings County council has matched that amount.

Collections from the Moira staff and other interested individuals has now reached $150. Former Moira Secondary student Fred Abrams has collected over $60 toward the project.

Still to be heard from are the city of Belleville's recreation department and the Department of Indian Affairs.

Cornwall Junior A's Show Interest in Jury

Although Ron Jury was considered too old by the Toronto Marlboros to break into Junior A hockey, other people appear to feel that the 19-year-old Fairways netminder could be the answer to their problems.

Cornwall, currently in last place in the 10-team Quebec Junior A league contacted the Belleville Junior B management this week about the possibility of signing the standout backstop.

Two well - known names in Quinte hockey are already listed on the Cornwall roster as former Belleville Junior B, Brian Coughlan and Trenton's Gerry Temple are said to be performing well in junior A company.

"We let them know that we feel we need Ron to help make the playoffs and we aren't about to throw bouquets at the thought of him leaving," said Fairway coach Floyd Crawford, "but at the same time it's entirely up to Ron if he feels that he can better himself."

Jury has not yet been contacted by Cornwall and the grade 12 Moira Secondary School student admits that he "can't really too interested in the offer at the present time".

The 1969 Belleville MVP win-

RON JURY

ner has been a time with the red-hot Peterborough Lions in two weekend losses and will be looking to regain his outstanding early season form when the Fairways meet-the Kingston Frontenacs this Sunday.

Trojan Seniors in Finals For Queen's Tournament

In an exhibition high school basketball game last night held at Nicholson Catholic College, the Moira senior Trojans nipped BCI 57-47. The winners will advance to playoff against the Quinte Salmis to decide who will represent the Belleville area in tournament held in Kingston, Dec. 28, 29.

The Trojans controlled the boards the whole game as BCI used eight junior and only two senior players.

Both teams played a tight man - to - man press. Moira led by three at the end of the first quarter, widened their lead to seven at the end of the half.

For the winners it was Jim Wiggins who led the way with 17 points as well as grabbing most of the Moira rebounds. Phil Kirby rang up 11 while teammate Bill Henry hooped 11 points.

The losers played well despite a height disadvantage.

Peter LeBaron scored 15 points in an all round good game. Along with him there were Wayne Giles and Blake Jones each playing a fine defensive game and scoring nine points.

In regular Bay of Quinte COSSA action Quinte Secondary School took a pair of games from Albert College.

The juniors Saints rang up a 61-16 decision over Albert as Terry Collins hooped 18 points and guard Rick Meagher added 11. Dave Mutawarin was good for six points in a losing effort.

The seniors came up with a strong offensive showing as they downed the visitors 71-40. Darvin Easton and Stan Brooks showed the way with 14 points each for Quinte.

Canada's Best

Weightlifting brothers Bob, Gary and Art Walt, along with Moira wrestler Harold Brant show the plaques they received at the Honors and Awards Banquet held at the Quinte Hotel last night. The three Walts all captured Canadian championships ,while Brant took the national junior wrestling crown in the heavyweight division. Also honored were Ontario weightlifting champions Ron and Roger Hayes, Price Morris and Ken Carr-Brainl, coach of the Apollo Barbell Club. The annual banquet honors any city athletes who have won a provincial championship or better.

Penguins on Block

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins may be purchased by Metromedia, Inc., a reliable source close to the hockey team confirmed Wednesday.

Negotiations, however, now are out of the Penguins' owners' hands and are being conducted by the National Hockey League.

Metromedia, owner of the Ice Capades, emerged as the No. 1 prospective buyer after Penguins' owner Donald Parsons failed to find a buyer by Dec. 1, a date set by the NHL for some kind of settlement.

Parsons had wanted $7 million for the Penguins, but there were no takers, and after attendance at games increased sharply this season, the NHL said the franchise must stay in Pittsburgh.

On Dec. 1, the Parsons group relinquished all rights to the club in an agreement with the NHL.

The prospective buyer reportedly would pay $4.5 million for the Penguins which includes payment of a 3.5-million note long overdue to Mellon Bank, $500,000 to the league and $500,000 for the total value of notes held by original stockholders after they sold 80 per cent of the franchise to the Parsons group in 1967.

Keon Ups Point Production As Leafs Down Montreal 4-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs blanked Montreal Canadiens 4-0 in a National Hockey League game in Toronto Wednesday night, but the score was almost incidental as the clubs served 179 minutes in penalties.

The league record of 294 minutes in a game was set 17 years ago in Maple Leaf Gardens by the same teams.

When the ice chips had settled, referee Bill Friday had assessed 105 minutes in penalties to the Canadiens. The NHL officers will likely be enriched to the tune of more than $3,000 because of a first-period donnybrook that emptied both benches.

Ironically, batman John Ferguson of the Canadiens, who probably precipitated the fray when he crashed Leafs Billy MacMillan to the ice earlier then led the rally from the benches, escaped with only a minor for his assault on MacMillan.

In other games, New York Rangers moved into a first place tie with Boston Bruins in the East Division by typing Los Angeles Kings 2-2. Buffalo Sabres fell into the East Division basement by bowing 6-1 to the West Division-leading Chicago Black Hawks. California Golden Seals clobbered Vancouver Canucks 6-1, Philadelphia Flyers overpowered St. Louis Blues 5-2 and Pittsburgh Penguins played a 2-2 tie with Minnesota North Stars.

The Leafs-Canadiens took nearly an hour to complete the first period but the 130 minutes in penalties was still off the record 184 penalty minutes for a period established by the same teams Dec. 8, 1951.

The Dave Keon-MacMillan-Gary Monahan line gave the Leafs a 3-0 lead with Keon and MacMillan connecting in the first period, which was clearly a Toronto period, and Monahan in the second.

"Everything was mixed up. We didn't play well," said Canadiens' coach Al MacNeil after watching his club go winless in their eighth-straight game away from home. They have had three ties. "I guess the transition is rougher than I expected," he added, referring to his recent ascension to the head-coaching job following the resignation of Claude Ruel.

DAVE KEON

Across the hall, Toronto general-manager Jim Gregory was more disturbed by the thought of fines NHL president Clarence Campbell will impose as a result of the first-period brawl.

"I don't know why we should be fined when they (Canadiens) started all the bench fines."

The Leafs, who heard Wednesday that rookie Guy Trottier will be lost for three to five weeks with a severely bruised right shoulder, saw their casualty list swelled in the first period when winger Paul Henderson stopped a shot by team-mate Ron Ellis with his jaw.

Team physician Dr. Leith Douglas diagnosed the injury as a cracked jaw bone but hesitated to say how long the winger could be out of action.

Pit Martin celebrated his 27th birthday at home as the Black Hawks cut the Sabres down for their 5th game without a defeat at Chicago Stadium.

Martin had a goal and two assists while team-mate Chico Maki banged in two goals in the third against Buffalo goalie Dave Dryden who replaced starter Roger Crozier for the last 18 minutes.

Ron Stewart's goal with less than three minutes to play at Los Angeles pulled the Rangers into their 2-2 tie. It was the third straight tie for the Kings, winless in their last six games.

Rookie Ernie Hicke and veteran Earl Ingarfield, with a goal and two assists each, sparked the Golden Seals at Oakland as they broke their game open with five goals in the last two periods.

The Canucks remain fourth in the east, three points behind Montreal and five points up on Detroit Red Wings.

Rookie Serge Bernier's 11th goal of the season and three assists helped sink the Blues in front of 17,782 St. Louis fans.

The victory was Philadelphia's first in St. Louis since the 1968 playoff series and snapped Ernie Wakely's unbeaten string at home at 19 regular season games.

Fredericton, N.B., natives were prominent in the Minnesota scoring as Danny Grant notched what proved to be the tying goal after rookie Buster Harvey had put the North Stars on the scoreboard en route to overcoming a 2-0 Pittsburgh lead.

Baltimore Pivot Holds 'Lew' as Bucks Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It takes a lot of effort to outplay Lew Alcindor, but Baltimore centre Wes Unseld not only did it but found time to be playmaker, too.

Unseld turned in game-high totals of 25 points, 18 rebounds and nine assists as the Bullets walloped Alcindor and Milwaukee Bucks 127-97, Wednesday night. It was only the Bucks fourth loss in 23 National Basketball Association games.

Unseld, who hit his first seven shots for the Bullets, who lead the Eastern Conference's Central Division, had to share his scoring high with team-mate Jack Marin, who also notched 25. Alcindor scored 26 for the Bucks, first in the Western Conference's Midwest Division.

In other NBA action, Boston Celtics won their 10th straight by outlasting Seattle Super Sonics 12-121, Portland Trail Blazers topped Cleveland Cavaliers 105-102, Cincinnati Royals took Atlanta Hawks 118-106 and San Francisco Warriors downed Detroit Pistons 119-98.

Boston broke open its game with Seattle with a 16-2 spree early in the third quarter. John Havlicek paced Boston with 23 points.

Portland became the first expansion team to win 13 games this year with its victory over hapless Cleveland, now 3-23.

Jerry Lucas hit for 15 of his 27 points in the third quarter, starting San Francisco past Detroit.

Warriors 'Blue'

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Varsity Blues won their fourth straight Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey game Wednesday, defeating the University of Waterloo Warriors 5-3.

Scorers for the Blues were Nick Holmes, MacHickor, Bill Bubs, Nels Debenedet and Gord Davies. Helping for Waterloo were Bobby Bauer, Ken Laidlaw and Dave Rodge.

Plunkett Passed Over

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Joe Theismann of Notre Dame was named to The Associated Press All-America football team today over Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett of Stanford.

Joining Theismann on the select all-star squad were three repeaters from 1969 — offensive guard Chip Kell of Tennessee and defensive guard Jim Stillwagon and centre Jim Otis of Tatum, both of Ohio State.

Texas, Ohio State, Nebraska, Louisiana State and Notre Dame—the teams ranked 1-2-3-4-5 in The AP's final regular season poll—each placed two players on the All-America team.

The Texas representatives were fullback Steve Worster and defensive end Bill Atessis, for two years Darrell Royal's most solid ballplayers. Ohio State placed Stillwagon and Tatum while Nebraska had offensive tackle Bob Newton and linebacker Jerry Murtaugh.

From LSU's super-quick defence came linebacker Mike Anderson and back Tommy Casanova while the Notre Damers were Theismann and offensive guard Larry DiNardo.

The rest of the offence consisted of tight end Jim Braxton, West Virginia; wide receivers Ernie Jennings, Air Force, and Elmo Wright, Houston; tackle Dan Dierdorf, Michigan; centre Don Popplewell, Colorado, and running back Don McCauley of North Carolina, who shattered O. J. Simpson's one-season national rushing record.

The others on defence were end Charlie Weaver, Southern California; tackles Dick Bumpas, Arkansas, and Rock Perdoni, Georgia Tech; linebacker Jack Ham, Penn State, and back Dave Elmendorf, Texas A and M.

Million Dollar Baby

HOUSTON (AP) — An Astrodome official, seeking a Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier heavyweight championship fight, said Wednesday such a match holds a conservative $7-million potential.

"It could go as high as $8 to $10 million," said Paul Haney, a vice-president of the Houston Sports Association which operates the domed structure.

"The most conservative estimate of the ancillary income is $6 million and the live gate $1 million. However, there are some who estimate the ancillary income at $8 million and the live gate at $2 million, which would make this a $10-million fight."

Both Haney and John 'D O'Connell, senior vice-president for, Astrodomain Corp., said they were confident the Astrodome will land the fight, which would be held in late January, February or in early March.

O'Connell said $5,000 persons could be accommodated in the Astrodome—nearly three times as many persons as could see the fight in 22,000-seat Madison Square Garden.

"New York would have to get an average of $50 a seat to gross $1.5 million," O'Connell said.

"The Astrodome would have to average only $30 a seat to get $3 million.

Burlington Golfers In First

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Three teams including the Burlington, Ont., Golf and Country Club were tied for first place Wednesday following the second round of the Bermuda Goodwill tournament.

Burlington, with Jack Davis as pro, had back-to-back 81s for 122, a total shared with Bermuda's Mid Ocean Club and Nassau Country Club of New York.

Burlington played the Castle Harbour course Wednesday and Belmont Tuesday. The tournament is being played at all three courses.

Michael Buck of Mid Ocean shot a 69 Tuesday and 59 Wednesday for the top individual score so far.

Two New York clubs, Leewood and Yorktown Heights, shared 124 totals, followed by Scarborough, Ont., Golf and Country Club with 127.

Sport Briefs

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The World Boxing Association announced Wednesday it has withdrawn recognition of Bob Foster of Washington, D.C., as world light heavyweight champion. WBA President Bill Brennan said the action was taken because Lou Viscusi, Foster's manager, failed "to post a forfeit" with the WBA guaranteeing that Foster would defend his light heavyweight title against the No. 1 rated contender with 90 days after the heavyweight title match between Foster and Joe Frazier. Frazier knocked out Foster in the second round at Detroit, Nov. 18. Viscusi and the WBA agreed to an arrangement during the WBA convention in Montreal last August, the WBA official said.

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League Wednesday acquired Brian Perry, 28, from Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League. Perry, who plays both centre and left wing, had 81 goals for Providence Reds of the American Hockey League two years ago. He split his time between Oakland Seals of the NHL and the Reds before being drafted by Buffalo last June.

WELLAND (CP) — Toronto rinks are the favorites in the Ontario Curling Associations' third annual challenge round, which gets under way here today. The two top-scoring rinks at the conclusion of the three-day event will qualify for the Ontario championships, set for Guelph next month. Paul Savage's quartet from Toronto, which won the title last year, was favored in the Welland event. Other Toronto favorites included Bruce Mauro, Joe Gurewka, Alf Phillips Jr., Bob Woods and Stu Daw, whose rink last year gained one of the two berths in the challenge round. Also considered strong contenders were Bob Harris of Unionville, Ted Brown of Kingston and Murray McGregor of Guelph. Ed Elliott and Jim Hollingshead, both of Niagara Falls, Ont. have rinks entered and could provide some upsets along the way. Bob Dolishy's rink from Welland is also entered. All 32 rinks were to play two games during the opening day of the invitational bonspiel. All games in the double-elimination event are 12-enders.

Surgeon Discovers New Cure for Athletes With Weak Knees

TORONTO (CP) — Knee injuries which sidelined seven team members during the 1969-70 National Hockey League season made a mess of the Toronto Maple Leafs roster, but they may at least have helped the advance of sports medicine.

For while the Leafs were finishing last in the East Division, largely due to the many injuries, their case histories were helping Dr. David Hastings form some new theories regarding knee-ligament damage.

Hastings, an orthopedic surgeon who was engaged as a consultant by the harassed Leafs medical staff, has come up with what he believes is an explanation of the chronic weak-kneed athlete phenomenon.

In an address to the Canadian Academy of Sports Medicine symposium during Grey Cup week, Hastings said several cases, including some of the Leafs, have led him to believe that incorrect diagnosis of knee injuries allows many athletes to continue playing with undetected serious damage of the knee ligaments.

"It is only an impression at the moment, but I get the impression that incorrect diagnosis and improper treatment leave the athlete prone to further such injuries," Hastings said.

Hastings showed slides taken from x-rays of athletes who had suffered knee injuries in pro hockey, ski accidents and others.

The routine x-rays showed no apparent damage and in most cases, he said, the injury was diagnosed as a sprain. And in most cases, the patients were told to carry on normal activities and the "sprain" would heal in time.

But most of the sufferers found that their injured knees continued to give trouble and when Dr. Hastings was consulted, stress x-rays showed stretched or torn ligaments.

The stress x-rays are taken when the damaged joint is relaxed with the aid of an anesthetic.

Hastings said his findings indicated much more care is needed in diagnosing knee injuries since ligament damage often can not be detected with a cursory examination.

He said his treatment of such injuries depends on the degree of "laxity" in the knee, but in most serious cases he prescribes a plaster cast to immobilize the leg for up to six weeks.

And any player who tries to forgo the complete treatment is asking for trouble. One such casualty on the Leafs roster, whom Hastings did not name, removed his cast last year before he should have and it was found that when he returned to training camp this season, the injured knee had shown no improvement.

Shutdown Surprises 40 in N.S.

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — About 40 employees of Rhand Electronics Ltd. were told one hour before closing time Wednesday the firm was going out of business "effective immediately," a union spokesman said.

Isabel Cooper of Sydney, N.S., assistant business agent for Local 1818 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said a union meeting was to be held today to discuss the closure.

Rhand, set up here with financial aid from Cape Breton Development Corp. (Devco), started production of high-fidelity amplifiers 10 months ago.

A company spokesman told the employees that the plant was closing because Devco withdrew its financial assistance. Devco officials were unavailable for comment.

Guns Seized

MONTREAL (CP) — Police seized more than 37 firearms and two radio transmitters in a 10 day sweep of the Laurentian area north of Montreal last month during the search for the kidnappers of James Cross and Pierre Laporte.

No Stones, Please

This modern comprehensive school in London — the city's most unconventional and most expensive — has been called, among other things, "an overize greenhouse." Britons Chilled by Power Slowdown

LONDON (CP) — Misery and chaos again faced British homes and factories today with no end in sight to the power blackouts and the government apparently split on how to deal with the slowdown by electrical power workers.

Britons were beginning to lose their cool as the go-slow workers' protest for higher wages entered its fourth day after initial government peace moves failed.

An electricity official appealed to the public: "For God's sake turn off that light. Every time you turn on a light unnecessarily you might be preventing an emergency hospital operation."

One strong faction in Prime Minister Edward Heath's cabinet was said to be demanding an independent court of inquiry to assess the demand of the 125,000 electrical workers for a 24-per-cent pay increase.

Other ministers argued that a court of inquiry would take the initiative away from the government and might undercut future attempts to curb pay rises the government considers inflationary.

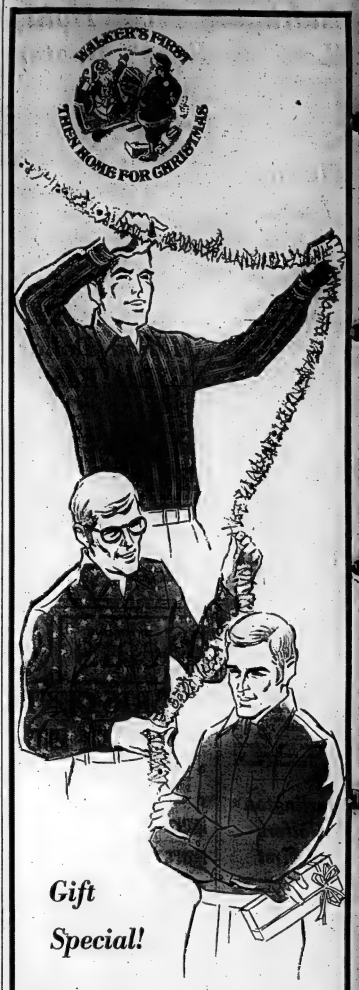
The government was trying to hold the electrical workers to a 10-per-cent increase. Their pay now averages £24 (69) a week.

Union leaders rejected a proposal Wednesday night by Employment Minister Robert Carr to call off the slowdown and submit their demands to an independent arbitrator. Carr told the House of Commons the government would not intervene further, but informed sources said some ministers admitted the government could not maintain its "no surrender" line much longer.

With the electrical men working to rule—refusing to work overtime and observing every rule, regulation and restriction in the book—power shortages blacked out huge areas of the country for periods of up to eight hours between 7 a.m. and midnight. Nearly all of the country was affected at one time or another, although no more than one-third of Britain was without power at any one time.

Only essential food-processing plants, transportation companies and sanitation plants were exempt from the shutdowns.

In Northern Ireland, the government banned the supply of electricity to all but vital industries. As a result, more than 200,000 workers were expected to be off their jobs today.



Schools, stores, factories, newspapers and 80 per cent of the country's homes were affected Wednesday. Two elderly widows died of heart attacks in London hospitals; spokesmen said lack of power delayed treatment for them.

Hospitals turned away non-emergency patients to clear beds for people confined at home with electrically operated artificial lung, kidney and heart machines. Army generators only provided hospitals with more than 100 portable generators.

Power was cut off in Parliament at one point, and both houses debated by candlelight for the first time since the Second World War.

The government urged people to set up good neighbor programs to help the aged and infirm with hot meals, heating and grocery deliveries.

The blackout turmoil Wednesday was heightened by thick, freezing fog which brought death nimultiple highway crashes and traffic pileups throughout the country.

New Federal Ministries Are Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — An omnibus of a bill, providing for creation of new ministries within the federal cabinet, a shuffling of departmental responsibilities and new pension arrangements in the public service was given first reading in the Commons Wednesday.

The main feature of the government reorganization bill is the proposed creation of an environment department with jurisdiction over marine, forest and wildlife resources as well as management of most air, water and soil quality and anti-pollution programs.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis is slated to take over the new department and under the bill he would acquire a wide range of functions from the departments of transport, northern development, health and resources. Northern development would retain its hand in pollution control programs in the North.

The bill also empowers the government to create up to five new ministries of state to be charged with the formulation and development of "new and comprehensive policies" on various matters.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio in charge of housing, has been all but formally designated as minister of state for urban affairs, a new department outlined in the throne speech in October.

A minister of state with a specific responsibility would be paid at the same rate as full-cabinet ministers: a remuneration of $35,000 made up of a $15,000 ministerial salary, a $12,000 salary as an MP, a $6,000 tax-free expense allowance as an MP, and an extra $2,000 car allowance.

The bill also provides, however, for the appointment of unlimited numbers of ministers of state who may be attached to specific departments as are most existing ministers without portfolio.

Government sources suggested that in practice the office of ministers without portfolio will gradually disappear. Pay for the function would remain at $18,000 a year.

In another move, the bill would permit the government to appoint as many parliamentary secretaries as there are full cabinet ministers—a possible increase to 28 from 16. Parliamentary secretaries earn $4,000 more than ordinary MPs and the position is a coveted one among back-benchers.

Another part of the bill opens the way for the government to restore former revenue minister Jean-Pierre Cote to full cabinet rank as postmaster-general.

In a cabinet shuffle in September, Mr. Cote took over responsibility for the post office—a portfolio he had held before—from Communications Minister Eric Kierans but in the process was dropped to the level of a minister without portfolio.

The bill is also expected to give the government greater flexibility in the top ranks of the public service.

The Public Service Superannuation Act would be modified to permit certain top categories of employees to retire at age 55 after 30 years of service and receive an annuity.

Those serving as deputy ministers would be able to retire before age 60 but cautious in make payments into the public service pension fund in order to build up their eventual pension.

The government source said the provisions will permit "greater mobility at the top"—a chance for the government to replace men who have already given their best years to the service without depriving them of full pension rights.

Further details about the bill and the reasoning behind it are to be given by Prime Minister Trudeau when the bill is up for second reading in the House, probably Friday.

The magnitude of the shift involved in creation of the environment department has already been indicated, however, by government sources.

The new department will have 11,000 employees, a budget of close to $200 million and will be among the five biggest government departments. The defence department and the post office are the largest.

Even so, other departments will continue to have responsibilities for pollution control and resource management.

The transport department will continue to deal with pollution from shipping, for example, and conservation and pollution control in the North will involve close cooperation between the new department and the northern development department.

CELEBRATES DISCOVERY

The Portuguese island, Sao Tome, off the west coast of Africa, is celebrating the 500th anniversary of its discovery.

Honda President May Face Murder Indictment Over Car

TOKYO (Reuter) — Transport ministry experts today began road testing a Honda compact car to determine whether the Honda president should be indicted for murder.

The company president, Soichiro Honda, is named in a murder indictment brought by the father of a young driver killed in a N-360 accident.

A consumers organization alleged in September that structural defects in the four-seat vehicle were responsible for at least 35 crash deaths. The Japan Automobile Users' Union claimed that at speeds over 30 miles an hour the car tended to become uncontrollable on a slope if the brakes were suddenly applied.

Protesting Pensioner

Malvina Reynolds is a song-singing 70-year-old from Berkeley, Calif., more concerned with pollution and the Vietnam war than old-age pension. She started with folk music legends such as Pete Seeger and Woody Guthrie and still sings with the Byrds and the Dillards. (CP Photo)

Vermonters Fight Lake Champlain Paper Mill Sludge

TICONDEROGA, N.Y. (AP) — Will the Green Mountain Boys lose the second battle of Ticonderoga

The Vermonters won the first skirmish in 1775. Today, Vermonters threaten a legal battle before the United States Supreme Court over the same issue—Lake Champlain.

Ethan Allen's rag-tag band of 80 woodsmen and farmers surprised the British garrison sleeping behind the ramparts of Fort Ticonderoga nearly 200 years ago.

No longer vital as the wilderness gateway to Canada, 100-mile Lake Champlain, which forms Vermont's acenic western border, is threatened by massive pollution.

Gov. Deane C. Davis and fellow Vermonters have sought for months to force the International Paper Co. and the state of New York to clean up a mess that conservationists say is killing the lake.

A million and a half cubic yards of paper mill sludge, nearly half the bulk of the Great Pyramid of Egypt, extends a putrid delta into the narrow end of the lake.

The sludge covers 300 acres of the shallow lake bottom. Partly organic wood fibre, it boils and stinks like a witch's cauldron in the summer, consuming the oxygen of the lake as it decays.

For nearly half a century the International Paper Co. mill has dumped refuse into Ticonderoga Creek. It flows a half mile further to empty into Lake Champlain.

Last week, Vermont officials were thwarted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers when they tried to prevent the paper company from opening a new $80 million mill four miles north of Ticonderoga before they cleaned up the mess at the old mill.

The new mill will use about 20 million gallons of Lake Champlain water each day, which will be returned to the lake virtually devoid of pollution, company officials said.

The complex issue of the lake was transferred in the new federal environmental conservation agency last week. William Ruckelhaus, administrator-designate of the agency, assured Vermont's senior Senator George D. Aiken that an order issued by Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel before he was fired, setting Dec. 15 as a deadline for New York to file a plan to eliminate the sludge bed, "still stands."

New York is expected to ask for an extension of time for further study.

Vermont Attorney-General James M. Jeffords has said he will file a suit directly to the Supreme Court after Dec. 15 if there is no satisfactory settlement of the issue.

In the background of the dispute, Vermonters say, is the fear on the part of company officials that if they are forced to clean up the Ticonderoga area a legal precedent will be set for possible action against them at other paper mills they operate in the United States and Canada.

Hot Food Delivered, Wives Visit Strikers

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The food comes in hot from a catering company, the Christmas trees are up and there are church services among the linotype machines in the composing room of The Star, Windsor's only daily newspaper.

The presses, however, are cold and silent—the result of a sit-down strike by three craft unions that has prevented The Star from hitting the street since last Wednesday.

The catering truck pulls up to The Star three times a day, delivering breakfast, lunch and dinner to the 75 men occupying the composing room. The deliveries have the approval of the company.

Wives and children visit daily and chat with their husbands and fathers through open ground-floor windows, and clergymen quote the Bible from the floor of the composing room at in-plant services for the union men.

Both sides remained rigid today in the sit-in and suspension of publication of The Star, now in its second week. The unions insist on completion of a new contract agreement before the men leave the plant.

But Star publisher Mark Farrell is equally firm on his company's position—no new talks until the composing room decks are cleared by the union men, along with their sleeping bags, air mattresses, blankets, books and cards.

"All we ask is a fair set of life," said one Star pressman as he chatted with his wife through a window Wednesday.

Too Many Bored People

Many Newsrooms 'Boneyards of Broken Dreams'

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Canadian newsrooms are "boneyards of broken dreams," says the special Senate committee on the mass media.

"We wish we could report that most Canadian newspapers are exciting places to work, that they're charged with the kind of passion and creative joy you'd find in a well-run university classroom. . . .

"It is no accident that many Canadian newspapers look and read as though they were produced by people who are profoundly bored. Too many of them are bored. The economics of the industry, and the placing of profits ahead of product, have made them so.

"That is the tragedy of practising journalism in a commercial culture; unless you are very strong or very lucky or very good, it will murder your dreams."

The committee, which tabled its report in the Senate Wednesday, says it is only by organizing as professionals that the working press is going to achieve "the kind of compensation it deserves and which the industry can readily afford."

Stenotypists and members have taken a more professional approach to their trade than journalists, says the report. At least they insist on minimum standards.

The only breakthrough had occurred in Quebec where journalists have reached agreement with some newspapers on a "codified" agreement involving the relationship between editor and reporter.

"For the first time in Canada the principle has been recognized that journalistic standards are a proper subject of collective bargaining as are salaries and fringe benefits."

A great many Canadian journalists earn less than $9,000 a year, says the report.

"They earn less than teachers, less than most skilled tradesmen, less than their counterparts in the advertising, circulation and promotion departments. . . . Is it any wonder that while they are still young enough so many of them leave for jobs in government or public relations or academia?

"We contend that publishers and broadcasters should be paying more to the people who produce the product they are selling, and that they can well afford to do so.

Journalistic training, the report says, is haphazard or nonexistent.

"We have no statistics on the point, but it is a pretty safe bet that most reporters on Canadian dailies have never seen their paper's style book" — the paper has a style book."

Secrecy One Reason

Press Gallery Unequal to Job

OTTAWA (CP) — The report of the Senate committee on the mass media says the Parliamentary Press Gallery is unequal to its job "by absolute standards," but the reason is partly because of secrecy in the public service.

The conclusion is drawn from research studies performed for the committee as part of its report tabled Wednesday in the Senate.

The report says the gallery was held in high regard by prime ministers until after a lengthy, heated Commons debate on pipeline construction in 1957.

"Later most of them (gallery reporters) conceded—and some of them regretted—that they had lost their cool" and taken sides in the bitter debate.

Since then, the report says, reporters have given up standards of objectivity and chosen "point-of-view writing."

There were capable people working in the gallery. But the major question was whether "the self-appointed critics themselves apply consistent stand-

Media: Church

OTTAWA (CP) — Church papers are invariably understaffed by grossly underpaid people, says the special Senate committee on the mass media.

The committee report, tabled in the Senate Wednesday, says the religious press is losing readers ards of analysis before taking up cudgels."

"If the Ottawa press gallery is unequal to its job—which by absolute standards it is—the reason lies at least partly in the tradition of secrecy in the Canadian public service, the entrenched but dubious notion that departmental policies are the department's business not the public's."

This was especially true in the areas of foreign affairs and fiscal policy.

Group Ownership Of Newspapers Finely Balanced

OTTAWA (CP) — Concluding that the advantages and disadvantages of group ownership are "finely balanced," the Senate committee on the mass media Wednesday recommended the creation of a Press Ownership Review Board "with powers to approve or disapprove mergers between, or acquisitions of, newspapers and periodicals."

"The board should have one basic guideline, spelled out in its enabling legislation; all transactions that increase concentration of ownership in the mass media are undesirable and contrary to the public interest—unless shown to be otherwise."

Referring to the fine balance of advantages and disadvantages in group ownership, the committee report, tabled in the Senate, said media monopolies seem to operate against the public interest only when the owner allows it to happen.

"But if the owner has a genuine commitment to public service, if he places his readers' interests ahead of his own dividends, he can readily offset what the committee has come to regard as the intrinsic dangers of ownership concentration.

"There is no such thing as a 'good' chain or a 'bad' chain—only good and bad owners."

The biggest newspaper chain in Canada, says the report, is FP Publications Ltd., with eight dailies and a combined circulation of 855,170. It is followed by the Southam group which has 11 dailies and a circulation of 849,364.

The Thomson group has 30 dailies with a circulation of 490,615. The Desmarais-Perkins-Francoeur group has four dailies in Quebec with a combined circulation of 318,770, and Industrialists K. C. Irving owns all five English-language dailies in New Brunswick. The total circulation of the five is 104,442.

While group ownership can lead to "the sort of numbing journalistic conformity that characterizes the Thomson newspapers", it can also confer benefits, such as preventing more newspapers from dying, the report stated.

"When two group-owned dailies are competing in the same town, the result is usually a 'Truce' instead of a winner-take-all struggle for circulation. . . .

In recommending the establishment of an ownership review board, the committee said the country should not tolerate a situation "where the public interest in so vital a field as information is dependent on the greed or goodwill of an extremely privileged group of businessmen."

The review board would function in relation to print media as the Canadian Radio-Television Commission does in relation to broadcasting. It would not interfere with ownership changes resulting from gifts and bequests and it would not have the authority to intervene retroactively.

"Beyond the broad guidelines we propose, it would be up to the board to define its own criteria of public interest. But we recommend that any such definitions should include consideration of (a) whether the proposed merger would lengthen the odds on survival of a newspaper that might otherwise die; and (b) what would be likely to happen to the editorial character of the newspaper to be purchased, in view of the purchaser's past performance on the newspapers he already owns, in relation to the profits they generate.

"The onus should be on the purchaser, in other words, to demonstrate that he is in as good or a better position to serve the public interest than is the present owner."

While 77 of Canada's 116 daily newspapers are already owned by groups, the committee rejects the suggestion that the creation of a review board would be akin to locking the stable door after the horses have gone.

". . . The stable door is still wide open. Many more newspaper mergers arestill possible and it is possible to imagine many combinations that would have serious effects on the public's access to diverse and antagonistic sources of information.

"Suppose K. C. Irving wished to buy the last remaining independent newspaper in New Brunswick. Suppose Southam and Thomson decreed it expedient to join forces. Suppose FP Publications Ltd. wanted to buy the Columbian" of New Westminster, B.C.

"It seems almost inarguable that the state should be empowered to watch over the public interest if any such transactions were proposed. . . ."

Even if the proposed board were to reduce chain ownership in Canada, says the report, "we doubt that this would have much effect on the kind of journalism the public receives." Evidence suggested that editorial excellence was "rather more likely" to occur under group ownership but neither type of ownership was a guarantee of this.

In supporting its argument for an ownership review board, the committee said the principle is well established that the state has a right to safeguard the public's right to information by approving, disapproving, or disallowing various property transactions within the broadcasting industry.

"We think the findings of this committee demonstrate that concentration of ownership has proceeded to the point where some form of intervention by the state is desirable and necessary. . . .

"The freedom to publish is crucial to all our freedoms."

The board would not make regulations involving the content or conduct of publications.

"It's sole concern—and the source of its constitutional authority—would be the investigation and regulation of ownership concentration in the printed media."

While the case for group ownership is finely balanced, the committee said, mixed-media holdings and conglomerate holdings are "a bad thing" unless individual circumstances dictate otherwise.

Referring to the conglomerate holdings of K. C. Irving in New Brunswick, "about as flagrant an example of abusing the public interest as you're likely to find in Canada," the committee also noted that New Brunswick has more newspapers per capita than any place else in Canada except Prince Edward Island. " "

"Even in the case of mixed-media ownership, it is easy to find extenuating circumstances.

". . . In London, Ont., good management and reasonable ownership have avoided the abuses that could result from what we certain in regarding as a monopoly situation."

Monopoly Could Stifle Expression

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Senate committee on the mass media says freedom of expression could be threatened by the media's "tendency towards a state of natural monopoly."

"There are places in this country where a few people hold what amounts to an information monopoly," says the committee's report, tabled in the Senate Wednesday.

The report says the press in Canada by and large is free because it is, by and large, responsible.

But there were threats to this freedom: Interference by government, unwarranted government secrecy, the power of the corporation, high-handed actions by police, prosecutors and judges, and the economic tendencies of the media themselves.

The report describes as shocking the intimidation and harassment, both legal and extra-legal, of the underground press, particularly Vancouver's Georgia Straight.

Harassment of the paper had produced a regrettable legal precedent.

The British Columbia Supreme Court had upheld validity of the City of Vancouver's action in revoking the Georgia Straight's business licence.

The city's two dailies, the Sun and Province, "now are under a strong legal obligation, to comport themselves as the mayor sees fit."

The committee says it is saddened that most daily newspapers were lukewarm in their editorial approach to the issue or ignored it altogether.

"We find this reticence strange, especially when the same newspapers are capable of such fire and eloquence on the subject of postal rates."

The harassment of the underground press was the most striking instance the committee had found of press freedom being infringed.

There were also "numerous and alarming instances" of reporters, newspapers and broadcasting stations being forced or pressured into acting as police informants.

The committee presented several Montreal examples of police seizing newspaper and television film of street demonstrations as evidence in prosecuting the demonstrators.

But it concluded that news reporters in Canada should not be protected by any special privileges from being required to disclose their sources of information.

Reporters should not enjoy any privilege inside the courtroom not shared by other citizens.

Press freedom involves more than freedom to publish, the committee says.

Governments sometimes infringed on this right. But a more likely source of infringement was the "economic tendencies of the press itself."

The committee said it could see the day when government might have to consider intervention not to preserve a newspaper's freedom to publish but to establish a citizen's right to have his views expressed in the mass media.

The possibility of the public being silenced by its own press was a far-off threat.

But the committee said it hopes the tendency toward monopoly in the mass media will be arrested.

K.C. Irving Declines To Comment on Report

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — K. C. Irving said Wednesday he was leaving for Ottawa in connection with a bill on revisions to the Shipping Act and could not comment immediately regarding the Senate committee report on mass media.

The industrialist's widespread interests include principal ownership of New Brunswick's five English - language daily newspapers.

The committee report referred to his holdings as "about as flagrant an example of abusing the public interest as you're likely to find in Canada."

However, the report also said it was arguable that the province is better off with a homeowned media monopoly than with one controlled from Toronto or Winnipeg.

Volkswagen Press Hopeful Idea

OTTAWA (CP) — In recommending establishment of a development loan fund to assist Canadian publishing ventures, the Senate committee on mass media said Wednesday the emergence of a "Volkswagen press" in Canada "is the most hopeful development in print journalism for many years."

Drawing an analogy between newspapers and the automobile industry, the committee said Detroit turns out cars that are sometimes fat, clumsy, poorly made and loaded with useless options.

What this country now needs is a journalistic equivalent to the Volkswagen, the report says.

Such a press is beginning to emerge and it is without "such journalistic frills as lavish color, comic strips, roto-gravure travel sections and other assembly-line features that are convenient for advertisers but frequently useless to readers."

"We wish we could point to a single example of a financially successful Volkswagen newspaper or magazine. There are none yet, but a few promising attempts are being made."

The report, tabled in the Senate, lists among them:

—The 4th Estate in Halifax, "providing the kind of journalism that the province's monopoly newspapers fail to deliver."

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Press as a Canadian news clearing house does its job "supremely well" but should have more reporters abroad, says the special Senate committee on mass media.

The committee's report, tabled in the Senate Wednesday, suggests that CP, the 105-paper co-operative news-gathering agency, should add at least six men to its staff of foreign correspondents at an estimated annual cost of $60,000 for each reporter.

CP has nine men in New York, four in London, two in Washington and one in Paris.

The report says CP could and should be doing a better job for the people of Canada in the for-London and Paris)."

"We think it is immensely important that the reporters who give us our picture of the world should reflect the kind of bias that Canadians tend to share, rather than the bias that Americans or Frenchmen or Englishmen tend to share."

Its foreign correspondents should concentrate on review and analysis instead of "watching and rewriting local news-agency files and newspapers."

CP should report the world scene "as Canadians speaking to Canadians."

The committee acknowledged that it is going against some of the evidence in this regard.

"CP itself does not admit the necessity for a view of world events through Canadian eyes. (Why, then, does it put Canadian staff men in Washington, the United Nations, New York, London and Paris)

"Most of the publishers we questioned think the reports we get from three foreign agencies via CP is jim-dandy.

"And when we asked the Canadian people . . . we appeared to get a similar response."

A committee survey showed that 72 per cent of those questioned thought the balance of local and international news good. On the average, daily newspapers devoted 67.1 per cent of their news content to Canadian news, 22.9 to international events.

But the problem was not how to get more international news but how to increase the "Canadian content."

"We hope CP will reconsider its policy on the kind of reporting it wants from abroad and that the newspapers which provide it with funds will take another look at the cost figures."

The report says there are other agencies that serve the press in Canada but CP carries the news load "and the newspapers could not live without it."

CP was "fast, comprehensive, reliable, tough and often more colorful than it is often given credit for."

CP was a strong force for national unity but was weak in its attention to the arts and cultural matters and to the currents of social change.

CP was "somewhat too slavishly attached to the hard-news, who-what-when-why-where ideation of journalism and too little concerned with interpretation, explanation and the alivingness of the spirit."

The nine French-language members of CP could fairly claim to receive a service inferior to that in English.

But this was a typically Canadian problem "and we commend CP for its determined efforts to give adequate service in its French-language members."

It dismisses as "for the most part inaccurate or inapplicable" three criticisms of CP.

One, held by some publishers, was that CP's rate structure is unfair to smaller newspapers.

The committee says CP is governed on the basis of "one paper, one vote and there are more small papers than big ones. If smaller papers felt unfairly treated, the remedy was in their own hands.

Moreover, small papers needed CP most.

A second criticism was that CP is an exclusive club which kept out prospective competitors by black-balling or setting cost of entry into the co-operative prohibitively high.

"We could find no evidence that this is the case, though it may have been close to the truth in former years," the committee says.

A third criticism was that CP's "vacuum-cleaner thoroughness" made each paper a carbon carbon of every other.

"Should CP be expected to write 103 versions of every news story?" the report asks.

Media: Broadcasting

CBC Role Supported

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate committee on the mass media says it is against any move to weaken the publicly-owned CBC and recommends a more effective organization to act as a "lobby" for private broadcasters.

The committee says any weakening of the CBC—"the only truly national broadcasting enterprise"—would have disastrous effects on the whole communications process.

The committee reserves some biting criticism of radio and television for a discussion of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the organization representing most private broadcasters, and most broadcast operations in the private sector.

"For many years, the Canadian Association of Broadcasters has been the voice of private broadcasting in Canada . . .

"With reluctance, we were driven to conclude that the private broadcasters, no matter how sophisticated their individual thought, seem by group interaction to achieve a level perhaps best described as neanderthal."

The association should be revived to act as an efficient lobby for the industry's interest.

Some private broadcasters have produced high-quality Canadian programs, the report says.

ONLY A FEW

"We feel thrusts country should recognize them for what they are: Persons so exceptional in the private broadcasting industry as to be virtually of another species."

Financing of the CBC should be by five-year government grants, rather than the current annual spending grants, to enable more effective "long-range planning."

The committee says both the CBC and the private CTV network should improve their news programs. The emphasis on news was clearly on entertainment programming.

Because news is usually "a sideline for broadcasters," most news-gathering is done by Broadcast News, a subsidiary of The Canadian Press, the report says.

"For the work of Broadcast News, we have mostly respect. It provides a good basic service at modest cost and every news broadcasting operation relies upon it at least to some extent."

Studies showed most Canadians have a great deal of faith in TV for news and international news but they also felt it was more likely to reflect government views than any other form of media.

About half the people interviewed for the committee's study showed concern that TV may break down community standards and provoke disrespect for religion.

In many cases viewers suspected that news events had been deliberately staged for TV, "an indeed they often are."

Postal Subsidy Said Necessary

OTTAWA (CP) — An annual loss to the post office of $24 million on delivery of Canadian publications has the approval of the special Senate committee on the mass media as an important subsidy towards national unity.

In its report released Wednesday, the committee recommends that the post office curtail the 2-cent-a-pound rate—and - class mail rates, eliminate a minimum charge of two cent an item for mail and special-Saturday urban delivery as soon as possible.

Media: Reaction

Praise in General for Report

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Publishers and broadcasters Wednesday had praise in general for the report of the Senate committee on the mass media but balked at some criticisms that touched them individually.

Reaction among publishers to recommendations for a press council was largely lukewarm or outright opposed. The report said a watchdog council, to promote higher standards of journalism, should be formed by publishers, editors and reporters, without government participation.

Spokesmen for the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and the Radio-Television News Directors Association of Canada defended the quality of their members' news reporting.

Reader's Digest Association Canada Ltd., said it is confident that the government will not accept the committee's recommendation that special tax treatment for the Canadian editions of Reader's Digest and Time magazine be stopped.

The Saint John Telegraph-Journal today carried on its front page a statement signed by Publisher Ralph Costello, saying the committee's report contains false statements about The Telegraph-Journal and the evening Times-Globe, which he also publishes.

Mr. Costello says: "It is a disgraceful, unfounded accusation . . . and the saddest thing about it is that the whole report, which can be of great importance to the press and to the nation, could be questioned because of these childish smears and defamatory nonsense about New Brunswick."

The Halifax Chronicle-Herald, which with the Halifax Mail-Star is singled out for "uncaring, lazy journalism," says in an editorial the report contains "a harsh, unfair, unsubstantiated and often vicious attack" on the two newspapers.

Fred Auger, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association and publisher of the Vancouver Province, said it is encouraging "to see the committee telling our readers that newspapers have generally improved in the last five years and remain the least-dispensable medium over the long term."

But he added:

"Talk of (placing profit ahead of product) is, to say the least, imprecise. Without some profit there will be no product and all Canadians will be the worse off for the loss."

Mr. Auger's statement promised a detailed study of the report.

R. S. Malone, president of FP Publications Ltd., described as "quite unnecessary" the recommendations for a press council and a federal board to review future mergers of newspapers.

"They could, in fact, be dangerous to the public interest."

St. Clair Balfour, president of Southam Press Ltd., which owns 10 Canadian newspapers and has interests in three others, said he favors a press council and that his company would join it if one were established.

But Mr. Balfour said he thought an ownership review board would only duplicate the work of amendments to the Combines Act.

James Cooper, chairman of the Commonwealth Press Union and publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said the British experience with a press council has been that the good newspapers are still good "and the bad newspapers are dreadful."

John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, said of the proposed council: "I wouldn't join it and I wouldn't pay any attention to anything it had to say about my newspaper."

Mr. Cooper said an ownership review board might help control the dangers of concentration of ownership, Mr. Bassett said the committee failed totally to deal with the problem of concentration.

The report calls the Canadian Association of Broadcasters "neanderthal" and said most private broadcasters have been content to "look at the end of the pipe and suck." letting networks fill their prime-time slots with imported programs.

W. D. MacGregor, president of the association, said the committee appeared to be basing its judgment on "second-hand information" from a group of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission early this yea.

Davey Report

Senator Keith Davey, chairman of a Senate committee which carried out an extensive inquiry into the media in Canada, tabled the committee's findings in the Senate Wednesday. The three-volume report, containing an estimated 500,000 words, will be available to the public at Information Canada centres in major cities.

Press Council: Yes Or No?

OTTAWA (CP) — A press council should be established in Canada to promote higher journalistic standards and act as an ombudsman for complaining newspaper readers, the Senate committee on mass media recommends.

The committee's report, tabled in the Senate Wednesday, says responsibility for the council should be formed by the newspaper industry itself—publishers, editors and reporters—without government participation.

It might be patterned after the British Press Council, the report says, though some changes might be required to suit Canadian conditions, its cost should be modest, with financing by the newspapers.

The council would act as "a watchdog organization that would monitor the press the way the press monitors society," it should foster a sense of professionalism and help develop a set of standards "in an Canada that badly needs them."

"Public confidence in the press is declining," the report says. "A press council could help arrest this trend."

The committee says there is a broad consensus among working journalists that a press council is desirable but publishers are less unanimous. Some thought it could be a positive, constructive development, and "what the hell, it can't do any harm."

The Davey committee suggested creation of a press council for Canada be considered at the next meetings of the Canadian Managing Editors Conference and the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers, Association. It might also broaden the horizons of the American Newspaper Guild, the journalistic union, "beyond the lunch-pail level."

One Newspaper's Opinion

Toronto Globe and Mail: . . . The principal emphasis is upon the establishment of a press council. . . . The Davey committee has not left it at that. The council's tut-tutting has produced a better press in the United Kingdom. For all of the council's concern British readers can still enjoy the purchased memoirs of prostitutes and the diaries of murderers, and they can still read, even in the quality press, some of the most scurrilous personal and political reporting printed in the English language. . . . The last thing we need is to add to the complacency that setting up a super council would produce.

Media: Economics

Committee Says in General Not Enough Spent on Product

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian newspapers and broadcasting stations are remarkably profitable businesses which should be spending more of their profits to improve their products.

The report of the Senate committee on the mass media draws this conclusion on the basis of 250,000 words of financial data covering everything from capital employed to reporters' salaries and expense accounts.

It concludes that on the average newspapers have a "very highly profitable and broadcasting wondrously so.

The report says TV stations had before-tax profits of 50 per cent of equity in 1966, radio stations almost 20 per cent. The larger TV stations earned close to 61 per cent and hit 93.5 per cent in 1964.

For newspapers, after-tax profit for 10 years from 1956 was between 12.3 and 17.5 per cent of total equity. In 1965, a good year in the industry, it was 17.5 per cent compared with 10.4 per cent for all manufacturing industries and 8.2 per cent for retailing industries.

"Newspaper profits are in general very large," the report says.

"Owning a newspaper . . . can be almost twice as profitable as owning a paper-box factory or a department store."

Some broadcasting operations are "wonderfully profitable," it says. The larger TV stations show profits that could pay off their entire investment in two years.

"In most other industries, that kind of margin would be considered ridiculous."

Describing the profit figures of the media, the report says:

"There are a number of individual newspapers and broadcasting stations that are having trouble meeting their payrolls. But on the average, media corporations are onto a very good thing indeed.

"If the brewing industry made profits half this large, and the people knew it, we suspect there would be sit-ins in the beer stores.

The committee says a few owners are trying to improve their editorial content or programming but the general pattern is one of "exploiting the maximum out of their communities, and giving back the minimum in return."

"The profit margins in broadcasting, for instance, indicate that the industry as a whole can readily afford to supply its audience with the Canadian content that the country has long needed.

"In the same way, many Canadian daily newspapers could readily afford to develop their own editorial page cartoonists, their own cartoonists, their own commentators.

"Too many newspapers and broadcasting stations, in other words, are delivering a product that is not as good as they could afford to make it. They don't try hard enough to improve their product because there is no economic incentive to do so."

The financial study of the industry, the most exhaustive of those commissioned by the committee, was done by Hopkins, Hollin Ltd., a Toronto firm of economics and communications consultants.

Newspapers Regarded as Indispensable

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Canadians regard newspapers as the indispensable medium, television as the exciting and informational one, and radio as important in public emergency but mainly "a source of background noise demanding little attention."

These public are made in a survey done for the Senate committee on the mass media. The survey says that "by and large, despite a number of reservations," most Canadians are satisfied with the job the media are doing.

In a chapter on performance in the committee report, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are described as "journalistic disaster areas."

It says of Halifax:

"There is probably no large Canadian city so badly served by its newspapers." It finds the "highly profitable" Hall-Star and Chronicle-Herald "guilty of uncaring, lazy journalism."

These publics are made in a survey done for the Senate committee on the mass media. The survey says that "by and large, despite a number of reservations," most Canadians are satisfied with the job the media are doing.

It says of Halifax:

"There is probably no large Canadian city so badly served by its newspapers." It finds the "highly profitable" Hall-Star and Chronicle-Herald "guilty of uncaring, lazy journalism."

The report says the judging standard should be: "How successful is that newspaper, or broadcasting station, in preparing its audience for social change?"

Among newspapers that take the "constant bump of surprise" out of the news it finds the three Toronto dailies—Globe and Mail, Star and Telegram: The Star, Le Devoir and La Presse of Montreal; the Windsor Star; the Vancouver Sun; the Edmonton Journal; and "a handful of others."

Graded next are the Montreal Gazette and dailies in Ottawa, Winnipeg and Calgary. "Despite occasional lapses into excellence," they "manage to achieve a consistent level of mediocrity."

The third kind of newspaper "prints all news relevant in fact," rarely digs for anything beyond the local trough-festival, substitutes "Chamber-of-Commerce boosterism" for community service and ranks among the most profitable, the report says.

Lord Thomson owns 30 dailies in Canada. He owns, in all, some 86 weeklies and one triweekly. In Australia, living overseas or controls the five English-language dailies in New Brunswick.

While Mr. Irving has "achieved the country's highest degree of regional concentration of mass-media ownership," group ownership cannot be the scapegoat for poor performance the committee says.

"The dailies published in Canada by the Thomson chain are almost uniformly disappointing. The dailies published by FP"—eight, all in Ontario or the West with a combined circulation of 853,170—"range from competent to excellent."

The committee says deliberate suppression of news by publishers is not much of a problem.

"It happens, but seldom blatantly.

"More often, it (suppression) is the result of a certain atmosphere—an atmosphere in which boat-rocking is definitely not encouraged—and of news editors trying to read the boss's mind.

"One-newspaper towns are the most frequent victims."

In general, small or large newspapers were more profitable than metropolitan dailies.

Companies publishing newspapers with circulations below 10,000 or above 100,000 consistently earned after-tax profits of more than 16 per cent since 1963.

Newspapers with circulations between 10,000 and 100,000 were less than half as profitable as the industry as a whole.

Communications in Canada is big business, the report says, with $1 billion a year in advertising revenue alone, an amount which has tripled in 20 years.

"Every time you spend a dollar on consumer goods or services, it means that an advertiser has invested about 1½ cents to persuade you to spend it."

Despite frequent complaints by industry spokesmen about a cost-price squeeze, the numbers suggest that just the opposite occurred; revenues advanced somewhat faster than costs—not the other way around."

Larger newspapers could produce at lower cost than smaller ones and this, the report adds to explain the relentless tendency in the or any other country towards the one-newspaper town."

Last Night Was A Dandy One for TV Viewers

NEW YORK (AP) — It was one of those. Increasingly rare occasion-ish network television. Two interesting special programs competing with each other.

ABC on Wednesday night preempted all its regular shows for a string of specials. NBC decided to broadcast one of its excellent White Paper documentaries.

So it was George Plimpton on ABC in a carefully-edited account of playing a heavy in a John Wayne movie. At the same time NBC had a cool, incisive report on victims of street crime—the robberies, assaults and burglaries which have overwhelmed in recent years.

White Paper: The Besieged Majority was achieved by taking the cameras into a high crime area in Philadelphia, a neighborhood which only a few years ago had been a quiet, middle-class section of town.

It focused on small shopkeepers robbed, assaulted and put out of business; on residents afraid to walk the streets even before dark; on a young family, burglarized three times, living behind bolted doors and windows and protected by a sophisticated alarm system.

It was a story of angry people, frustrated law enforcement officials.

Meanwhile, author Plimpton was attempting—with spotty success—to translate his literary specialty into a visual documentary.

The tall, diffident Plimpton has pitched in the major leagues, tackled in professional football and written graphically of his reactions. This time he tried to describe what it was like preparing for a minor role in a Wayne film. As the cameras followed him from wardrobe to makeup to set, he attempted to describe how an amateur felt when he suddenly turned actor.

The result was mild comedy, a look behind the movie scenes—and a lot of padding which included a major plug for Wayne's new flick.

The busy ABC evening started with a half-hour Christmas cartoon, "The Night the Animals Talked. The well-animated story was based on a premise that on a certain night 1,970 years ago all the animals in a certain stable suddenly were able to talk like humans. They immediately began squabbling and asserting themselves like humans. But there was a happy ending.

Gene Kelly then was host on a variety special, Changing Scene, which included some nice musical numbers, some fine dancing—especially Kelly's —and some mediocre comedy.

Petula, which followed, was a handsomely mounted, star-studded hour that deserved better than being buried in a stack of specials. Petula Clark was host—ess and was aided by such skilled performers as Peggy Lee, Dean Martin and the Everly Brothers.

Dictators Common

Almost half of the nations in South America are ruled by dictators, including the two largest countries — Brazil and Argentina. Of the six dictatorships, only Ecuador has a civilian dictator. Brazil lost its democratic form of government in 1964 and the military regime now is headed by Gen. Emilio Medici. Argentina has been ruled by Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania since the military overthrew the civilian government in 1966. One of the most durable of South America's leaders is Gen. Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay who assumed the presidency in 1954 and has been in power since. (CP Newsmap)

Parents Checking Open Area Concept

Avondale and Sir John A. Macdonald Home and School Association members have been engaged in their own adult education program investigating the open area classroom concept.

A bus took the parents on a day - long trip in November to visit open area classrooms in session and this was followed by a meeting with educators concerned with implementing the concept.

Frank Tate, associate superintendent with the county board, led the discussion, stressing that the open area classroom is only in the beginning stages in this county.

"Granted, it is experimentation, but we hope the children gain from it," he said.

The child educated in an open area classroom realizes that he is important in himself and is free to learn at his own speed. Teachers, three or more in a classroom building over 100 pupils, use the team approach to utilize all their various talents.

So far, teachers have noted that pupils in an open area classroom develop a noticable interest in any situation, the absentee list is down and extroverts and introverts all get individual attention sometime during the day.

Mr. Tate added that secondary schools are gradually using the grouping system and an open area secondary school is being built at Bayside.

Kenneth Gillies, principal of Marmora Public School said that in his school grouping and regrouping of students may be done at any time to suit the child's needs. Three teams of three teachers have eliminated all formal examination and have developed a record of progress — an inventory of the skills of each child.

Mr. Gillies said that growth is continuous and that he believes children should experience success. His school uses senior school students as teacher aides and has a large resource of teaching material.

John Murphy, principal of Madoc Public School, said that there was a one - hour - half to two years' experience in an open area classroom, children will learn to work on their own and not have to be checked on continually. But, he stressed, the speed at which children learn is dependent on the calibre of the teachers and the resource materials available.

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Jo Ann Williams returned from a two-week vacation and found she had had guests while she was gone. The television set had been plugged in, drapes were open, ash trays were filled and a $100 guitar was missing. Neighbors reported seeing various vehicles around the house at different times. They also saw two men walking around the house, but assumed they were guests. They weren't.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Many Young Folk Have Big Worries

School days! School days! Often we look upon them as the good old days. Sans problems, sans anxiety — all fun. We become so shocked in our adult problems we think that all kids never had it so good.

We forget. It does not follow: little children — little problems; big adults — big problems. Children begin to worry early. Some more than others.

At first I used to be surprised on receiving a letter from an adolescent or preteenager. Not any longer. It seems that many anxious youngsters seek advice or encouragement as soon as they are able to read a medical column, and able to write for help.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am writing to you for advice. I need it very bad. I am 12 and will be 13 in a month. I am overweight. I weigh 172 pounds, and am 5 - ft tall. I think I have a figure like a fat 10 - year - old.

I hope you can give me a diet to go by, or some good advice. Please answer, as I said, I need it very bad. — Miss X.

Comment: Dear Miss X., I hope you will forgive me for not giving you a special diet to reduce. I'd have to know you better before I could do that. How much you eat, how many soft drinks you take, how you like desserts and all that. I think you understand.

But I can answer your plea for advice. Show this reply to your parents. I think it is important they take a hand in it. Perhaps they do not realize how much your weight is "bugging" you. If they do, they will take you to the family doctor.

He will advise you and help you. From then on, your weight loss will depend upon your own will power.

I am glad you asked me, and I am sure you will lose with proper treatment. Good luck.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: After a complete physical, should one also go to an ophthalmologist for an eye examination? — Mrs. W.

Comment: It makes good sense. Especially in later adult life. An examination of eye pressure at least every year (or two) is good insurance against a silent attack of glaucoma. A checkup on the lens (for cataract) and the back of the eye (retina) is also essential in the early discovery of eye trouble.

Comment: Not only possible, but fairly common. Many patients are surprised that stones are discovered even though they have not indigestion. They are called "silent stones."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What does a doctor look for when he requests a laboratory examination of the stool? — Mrs. Q.

Comment: Worms, worm eggs, blood, stool consistency (too much fat, etc.), bacteria, amoeba and other specific things suggested by the patient's history and physical examination.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can early cancer of the lung be detected by X ray? — Mr. O.

Comment: Yes. This is one of the important reasons for having routine X rays of the lungs. But sometimes, in doubtful cases, sputum examination and bronchoscopic examination (looking into the bronchi of the lungs with a lighted tube) are important diagnostic tests.

Ambulance Attendants Overlook Their Patient

TORONTO (CP) — A man who fell and struck his head lay on the back seat of his car for seven hours undiscovered by ambulance attendants who made two visits to where the incident occurred, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

It was not until next morning, Nov 3, that Peter Vaughan, 37, was found by a deliveryman and taken to hospital where he died three days later.

Waiter Norman Reed said that he and Mr. Vaughan had an argument over Mr. Vaughan's car which was blocking his.

No blows were exchanged but Mr. Vaughan was shadow-boxing when he fell backwards and hit his head on the bumper of a car. Two witnesses to the accident put Mr. Vaughan in the back of his car.

Mr. Reed said when he realized the ambulance attendants had not picked up Mr. Vaughan the first time he called again.

It was not until he went to work next day that he discovered Mr. Vaughan had been missed a second time. He went to police after hearing an officer say it looked as though Mr. Vaughan had been severely beaten.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 11

Your birthday today: A campaign planner for broader recognition in your field. Hidden elements of your character emerge now to give added personal charm. Physical culture, commonsense dieting offer tremendous advantages for a lover enjoyment of life. Emotional life encounters complications. Unexpected detours. Some relatives generally are independent, ambitious with little love for holding a comfortable place in society.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): So much is going on you cannot keep track of it all. What you do hear is only a small part of the story. Your care of joint money may be questioned: have your facts ready.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your logic is good; if your sympathy is equally so, your relationships can be rich. Business and personalities mix no better than ever, so keep them separate.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Let people exit in peace even if it means missing a chance to put in some special plea. Where you must collaborate, do it right, checking times and sums as you go.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your career could be at cross roads; do what intuition tells you is the best expedient. Friends don't see things as you do, so expect some static. Use spare time for technical planning.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Look to see which of your ventures pay and which do not — drop unproductive activities and watch build for the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 —Sept. 22): Long journey; particularly over water, are now favored now. Using gifts as substitutes for emotional expression does not work. Where a relationship is over, seek a new basis for a fresh try.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): An idea now may lead to a bigger group success later. It's better to share responsibility where you can. The later hours offer a bit of festivity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now your impulses stem largely from sounder intuition, particularly in the morning. So start early in good humor; keep busy for a productive day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Everybody seems willing to help. Even your hobbies show a bit of potential. Make the most of the passing chances to increase earnings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Reorganize your career efforts, changing tactics as needed. Interesting news concerns a distant goal of yours. Pursue sentimental ventures this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your emotions include much wishful thinking, just when your competitors are putting together a coup. Stay within your natural limitations. Offer no favors now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It's usually fun being a bit offbeat, but not today. Tact isn't enough, extend a word of praise, too. Don't go to a chic, expensive place — almost any place will do, with the right people along.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Sincere Don't Boast

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Publicly, most people proclaim their belief in democracy; privately, the majority would prefer a "good dictator" — that is, one who would run things to their advantage.

* * *

The real tragedy implicit in McLuhan's concept of the modern world as a "global village" is that we have indeed been compressed to the small dimensions of a village without at the same time having become neighborly; which is worse for world relations than if we still lived weeks or months apart from each other.

* * *

Whenever someone mentions his "sincerity," I recall Henri Peyre's fine observation that "The primary condition for being sincere is the same as for being honble: not to boast of it, and probably not even to be aware of it."

* * *

Superstition has bertayed fewer men than skepticism has immobilized.

* * *

Actors and entertainers and celebrities of that sort are judged more leniently for their dereliction of morals than we judge ordinary people; the reason being that we grant such figures special privileges in order to have them act out our private fantasies, so that we might enjoy vicariously what we lack the resources to experience at firsthand.

* * *

Speaking of entertainers, how little the essentials of human nature have changed since Horace wrote in his Satires 1,200 years ago: "There is a fault common to all singers — when they're among friends and are asked to sing they don't want to, and when they're not asked to sing they never stop."

* * *

The reason so few marriages are happy is that young women spend more time in making up their faces than in making up their minds; and young men expend more energy in trying to achieve physical contact than in trying to learn what lies beneath the makeup.

* * *

* * *

No matter how good we may be at keeping secrets from others, we are always best at keeping secrets from ourself. (This is why someone, after meeting us for 10 minutes, can often tell more about our character than we will admit to ourself after a lifetime.)

* * *

The capitalist notion that property rights are "inviolable" is as absurd as the notion that property is sacred; all property is acquired by labor or by theft, and it is the task of a just society to distinguish ethically between the two, neither to sanctify nor to abolish the property relationship.

Nixon Tells Hanoi Raids May Resume

Trains Roll Again

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. government, industry and commuters heaved a sigh of relief today following the collapse of a country-wide railway strike after one day.

Trains began rolling again today and service was expected to be back to normal by Saturday night.

The largest and most militant union, the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks representing 200,000 of the 500,000 workers involved in the 24-hour strike, capitulated when confronted with the prospect of heavy court fines.

The walkout was called off after a federal judge found the railway clerks in contempt and set a fine of $200,000 a day if the walkout went beyond midnight Thursday night.

Shortly after the strike began at 12:01 a.m. Thursday, Congress approved emergency legislation outlawing the walkout.

Three of the major rail unions bowed to the congressional back-to-work order but the rail clerks held out until the contempt ruling Thursday night.

While prepared to return to work pending further negotiations of their grievances, other unions refused to cross picket lines set up by the clerks and almost all passenger and freight trains came to a halt Thursday.

The back-to-work order by the rail clerks union president, C. L. Dennis, lifted fears of a lengthy rail shutdown.

The Nixon administration estimated that a national rail stoppage lasting only one week would chop a full five per cent off the year's gross national product.

Israel Balks At New Talks

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — An Israeli official poured cold water Thursday on a reported Big Four belief that the Middle East peace talks will be resumed by around the end of the year.

But Gideon Raefael, director-general of the ministry of foreign affairs, implied that Israel might reconsider its position if Egypt announced it is returning to the unconditional ceasefire that ended the June, 1967, war.

Meanwhile, he said, Israel will not enter peace talks unless there is military and political equilibrium. But he stopped short of demanding that Egypt withdraw missiles it has established in the Suez canal ceasefire zone.

Thirty Killed In Train Crash

SACAVEM, Portugal (Reuter) — Two passenger trains collided near Sacavem on the outskirts of Lisbon early today, killing an estimated 30 persons and injuring about 50 others.

Rescue parties, working in pouring rain dragged 16 bodies from the wreckage and continued searching for further victims. One train plowed into the rear of the other just outside Sacavem station.

The impact was so great that one body was found hanging from an overhead cable nearby.

News Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee approved Thursday emergency legislation that would give the financially-troubled Penn Central Railroad $100 million in direct loans from the United States treasury or in loan guaranteed by the government.

KINGSTON (CP) — Dr. R. Beverley Lynn says that between 15 and 25 per cent of patients now in Canadian hospitals are there because cigarette smoking has contributed to their illness.

Shrinking U.S. Force Will Be Protected

WASHINGTON (CP) — In an expansion of his bombing policy, President Nixon says he will send American planes against military targets in North Vietnam again if troop infiltration imperils the shrinking U.S. force in the South.

In a stern warning aimed at Hanoi, Nixon told his first news conference in 19 weeks Thursday night that if infiltration threatens to intensify the fighting in the South as U.S. troops withdraw:

"I will order the bombing of military areas in North Vietnam, the passes that lead from North Vietnam into South Vietnam, the military complexes, the military supply lines . . . let there be no misunderstanding. . . ."

Although there were heavy air strikes against North Vietnamese targets last May and again in November, Nixon's declaration expanded the stated policy on bombing and raised the possibility of increased U.S. air action over the North in the months ahead.

Stressing withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam as his central purpose, Nixon also said Cambodian forces now are tying down 40,000 North Vietnamese troops who otherwise "would be over in South Vietnam killing Americans."

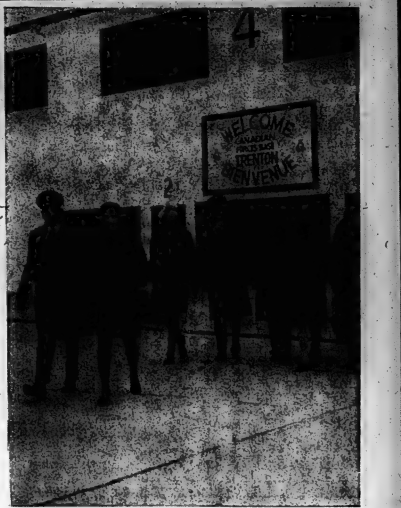
He said he could conceive of no circumstances—"none whatever"—under which the United States would again send its own ground forces into Cambodia.

The president offered limited ceasefires at Christmas and New Year's but rejected an extended one-sided truce by the United States.

Nixon, who conferred with King Hussein of Jordan here this week and will hold talks today with Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, appeared to move toward support of Israel's demand to agree to withdrawal from occupied Arab territory without binding border agreements with its neighbors.

He said U.S. policy basically hinged on the UN resolution of November 1967, calling for an Israeli pullback. But he stressed that the extent of a withdrawal "is a matter for negotiation."

New Lead In Laporte Case Hinted



MONTREAL (CP)—A hint that police had discovered new and important information in their hunt for the kidnap-killers of Pierre Laporte was dropped at the inquest into his death Thursday but police reported no dramatic action in the case by early today.

Crown prosecutor Jacques Ducros gave the indication of a break when he asked for and was granted a postponement until Dec. 21 of the inquest into the death of the former Quebec labor minister kidnapped Oct. 10 and strangled to death a week later. It was the second postponement in two weeks.

Mr. Ducros said that if persons scheduled to testify Thursday were to tell the truth it "could hamper the police investigation."

He did not identify the witnesses, but defence lawyer Bernard Meyjier said later that the three persons scheduled to testify were Clement Roy, Pierre-Marc Beauchamp and Lise Rose, sister of kidnap suspects Paul and Jacques Rose.

All three are being held for trial in January on charges of being, or professing to be, members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The decorations are in recognition of 424 Squadron's relief mission to assist Peruvian earthquake victims in June.

Kill All Living Things Said Order at My Lai

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The night before Lieut. William Calley's platoon swept through My Lai, a U.S. Army chaplain paid a courtesy call on two of the lieutenant's superior officers.

"We generally discussed the operation," said the chaplain, "and one of the two said: 'We are going into the village and if we receive any return fire, we are going to level the village.'

"I said I didn't think we made war that way," Rev. Carl Edward Creswell, an Episcopal churchman, testified at Calley's court martial Thursday. "One of the officers replied: 'It's a tough war.'"

At the company level, Calley's chief defence lawyer said in his opening statement, the orders passed down for My Lai were "to kill every living thing in the hamlet."

The 27-year-old Calley will tell his own story, lawyer George Latimer told the jury, "thereby giving you a full account of his actions, conduct and behavior."

Latimer said the soldiers in Calley's platoon were told that all civilians were gone from the village and "if there were any occupants remaining, they would be Viet Cong or Viet Cong sympathizers."

Latimer said the company commander, Capt. Ernest Medina, "ordered the village burned, the livestock killed, the wells contaminated and every living thing in the hamlet killed. No instructions were given on the handling of civilians."

The general consensus of 33 prosecution witnesses was that Calley's men met no answering fire from the longtime Viet Cong stronghold that day but that the villagers—mostly old men, women and children—were rounded up and executed.

Southern Ontario Hit by Snowstorm

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of southern Ontario was swept by a snowstorm today that disrupted traffic and caused numerous accidents.

A provincial police spokesman said Highway 401 just north of Toronto was blocked for two hours after 12 separate accidents in a two-mile span.

He said there were several injuries, some serious.

The department of transport issued a weather warning at 7 a.m., forecasting as much as 10 inches of snow in southwestern Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula.

"We're in the thick of it now" a weatherman said at 10:30 a.m. "But it should taper off to flurries by this evening."

The storm swept in from Michigan and struck he Windsor area first as it moved in a westerly direction. It is expected to peter out in the Kingston area.

The Acid Test

Workers mill about wreckage of Canadian Pacific Railways freight train Thursday beside the Pickerel River, about 48 miles southeast of Sudbury. The train derailed late Wednesday with 13 cars going off the tracks. Three of the cars containing sulphuric acid were ruptured and spilt their contents into the river. (CP Photo)

Land Is Blackened

No Acid Is Found Downstream

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP) — No significant traces of highly-corrosive sulphuric acid have been found downstream from a derailed acid train, an Ontario Water Resources official said Thursday.

Thirteen cars of a 46-car Canadian Pacific Railway acid train went off the track Wednesday night beside the Pickerel River, 48 miles southeast of Sudbury.

OWRC officials said at least three of the 9,000-gallon tank cars were punctured and leaked their contents into a swampy bay beside the river.

The scene was described Thursday as a blackened area that resembled land swept by a military flame thrower.

John Ball, district forester with the Ontario department of lands and forests, said no appreciable traces of acid were found downstream, possibly because any that seeped in would be diluted rapidly by the swift-flowing water.

He said a lands and forests official flew downstream 12 miles and found no signs of dead fish or wildlife, although there were some dead perch in the immediate area of the swampy bay.

The Pickerel joins the French River system a few miles from the accident scene and empties into Georgian Bay on Lake Huron, about 16 miles from the accident.

As CP Rail employees worked to restore service on the CP mainline Thursday night, lime was being shipped to the scene to neutralize the acid still trapped in the area.

No one was injured in the derailment and no one has been affected so far by the acid.

Study Proposes Major Renovation for Arena

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Crowd safety facilities at Belleville's venerable Memorial Arena are so grossly inadequate an emergency could be disastrous.

Total width of all exits is only half the dimension required by the National Building Code. And spectator aisles between the bleachers are below minimum standards, the city's recreation-arena committee was warned yesterday.

"In the event of a panic this could spell disaster. We feel that the existing (safety) facilities are grossly inadequate," city architect Paul Wiegand declared to the committee.

Mr. Weigand's warnings originated in a feasibility study suggesting guidelines for possible restoration of the 40 year-old ice rink — for years ridiculed for its dinginess and inadequacy, but still surveying as the city's major recreation centre.

The study, commissioned by the committee in mid - summer from city architects Watson and Wiegand, outlines a $783,000 basic rehabilitation project designed to restore the arena to its one-time community role as a focus of downtown vitality.

The added cost some extra staging facilities could be acquired, which would expand the arena's year-round programming potential to a schedule ranging from hockey to opera.

In the elderly arena worth the effort and expense?

Mr. Wiegand, questioned by a committee member yesterday, supported such a renovation project.

"I think the building — taking into consideration its location — warrants it," he told the committee. "Of course, I'm a firm believer in bringing new life to the centre of our city and I look on this as something that would do that . . ."

The study project — centred on an ice rink with first-class seating for 1,700 and standing room for 300 — includes these key features:

(1) Removal of steel support columns — the arena's best - known frustration for both spectators who can't see around the posts and management, which thus loses seat sales.

(2) A streamlined rink facility with wider corners: protective puck-stopping glass surrounding its circumference; dressing rooms, four of them new, centralized on the east side; enlarged players' boxes on the east side and bigger penalty and timekeepers' boxes on the west side.

(3) A glamorous, glass-fronted lobby and entrance facade with a big lounge area overhead for use as a meeting, luncheon or club room.

Other features include two concessions on the spectator floor augmenting a main lobby concession: more accessible washrooms, better storage and service facilities; brighter rink lighting.

To achieve such a major overhaul would require two main construction features — an addition to the arena's east side and arching four steel trusses over the arena's roof.

The study outlines the project after listing the problems posed by current fires at the arena — among them its safety features.

"Exit facilities for emergency purposes are below standard," read Mr. Wiegand. "The present total exit width for ice surface and bleachers is 35 feet. National Building Code requirement is 72 feet."

Delay Costly

The study, prepared by Watson and Wiegand on the city's Memorial Arena, recalled the total cost of tenders two years ago for a new arena.

The tender price in March 1968 was $1,953,000. If a similar tender were called in March 1971, said the study, its price would be about $1,400,000 — an increase of $350,000 in three years.

The code sets 3 feet 6 inches as the minimum width for any aisle. The arena's present bleacher aisles are 2 feet 6 inches. The collector aisle at the bottom of the bleachers taking most spectator traffic is only 2 feet wide.

The building also is without a fire alarm and emergency exit lighting system.

Outside, the arena lacks the positive advertising appeal necessary to successful business entertainment venture.

The lobby is "badly congested, confusing, unsightly and inappropriate," says the study. "It creates an offensive first impression unworthy of the entrance to a community building."

"The unsightly first impression of the entrance does not improve as patrons enter the various areas of the building."

The study finds the profit potential of concessions not being fully realized, with the present concession in a poor location, inadequate in size and facilities.

The seeming public address system is "minimal."

The Watson and Wiegand report also points out the need to make the arena adaptable to a greater variety of events besides hockey and skating. This is necessary, not only as a public service, but to place facilities on a "sound economic" basis.

To meet such a demand, optional equipment — including portable stage, lighting, an insulated floor for winter use — could be acquired at a later date.

Cost estimates for the basic overhaul project include: Removal of steel beams and trussing of roof, $79,000; east-side addition, $185,000; building alterations, $335,000.

The total of $782,780 is based on a time schedule calling for construction tenders by April, after that inflation sets in. If construction is delayed to next mid-winter costs would rise five per cent. A delay to the following year would bring a 10 per cent hike.

There were no indications at yesterday's meeting how the committee reacts to the study or how far it might be prepared to go with the proposals.

At the suggestion of committee chairman Alderman Donald Soutter, committee members confined queries to seeking professional advice from the Watson and Wiegand architectural team on various engineering aspects and alternatives.

Among options explored was the possibility of proceeding with partial renovations, including removal of the posts — instead of the over-all extension scheme.

Mr. Weigand pointed out such options also would bring adjustment in cost factors.

Architect Bob McInnes also warned the committee that proceeding with piecemeal alterations instead of an overall project could create involvement over fire safety regulations.

The committee must further debate the study recommendations before drafting any policy on the proposed project, said Ald. Soutter.

"I don't think we should be thinking of making any decisions at this stage," he said.

First Impressions

Arena and recreation committee members get closeup of what could be done to rehabilitate city's 40-year-old Memorial Arena. But project outlined by architect Paul Wiegand — costing $782,000 for essential items — is only in the first-impression stage. Committee will discuss feasibility study further before reaching any decisions.

Hydro Ready

Christmas is peak time for power usage by the citizenry of Ontario but the Ontario Hydro Commission should be able to keep adequate power running to their customers.

Norman Manning, public relations officer for the Ontario Hydro's Eastern Region with headquarters in Belleville, told The Intelligencer Tuesday 22 and 23 were peak days when the reserve power of the Hydro would be needed.

As an example, he cited Thursday's expected power peak at 10,132,000 kilowatts.

He said at this time of year when the power requirements peak, a major failure in the hydro system could be critical.

"We try to ensure that every generating unit is ready to work," Mr. Manning said.

In addition Hydro staff receive frequent reports on operating conditions throughout the system.

Last December, the peak was 10,555,000 kilowatts, but a second peak in January overpowered that by 10 kilowatts.

The system already is capable of accommodating 12 million kilowatts.

Insufficiency in power could occur but the likelihood of that is improbable. "All of Northeastern North America would have to turn everything on all at once," Mr. Manning explained. "That includes factories and all appliances."

Councillors Don't Want Any Part of Assessment

Hastings county councillors were not exactly happy a year ago when the province took over the assessment function formerly done by county staff, but they don't want it back under any circumstances.

This was indicated yesterday during resumption of discussion on municipal reform which had been held over from the previous day.

Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside, chairman of the county municipal reform committee said that at one time he had agreed with the offer of Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough to turn the assessment function back to the counties in five years.

But, he said he had now changed his mind.

"We couldn't afford it," he said. "It would be like taking back a Cadillac when a Ford would do."

The comment with respect to assessment came during a clause by clause examination of 17 recommendations for municipal reforms proposed by ACRO (Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario) which are to be submitted to the Ontario Legislature.

The recommendations are contained in a booklet "Guidelines for 1976" and are to be considered by all county councils before the end of the year.

During discussion of the possible return of the assessment function to the counties, council was told that costs under the provincial takeover had increased tremendously.

Reeve J. Mackenzie of Faraday said that where one assessor formerly did the work in his township, three men now come around to do the same work.

Reeve Calvin White of Dungannon noted that the reason for the provincial takeover of assessment had been to bring about equality of assessment throughout the province.

The county had been vested on its way toward reassessment at the time of takeover but Reeve White agreed with Reeve Burnside that the county didn't want it back.

Council agreed with the ACRO recommendation that assessment remain with the province with complete reassessment at market value be a top priority.

Council also went along with ACRO's recommendation for fiscal reform which Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman said was necessary to end the present "stopgap" policies involving tax rebates and other measures.

But council disagreed with an ACRO recommendation that county wardens be elected for two years instead of the present one.

But Reeve Burnside said there were arguments in favor of a two-year term for wardens.

In the modern day close association of counties with larger urban centres, Reeve Burnside said county wardens were meeting with municipal officials who had been in office for long periods.

He said urban mayors can present some pretty fluent and convincing arguments and a warden hardly gets to know the ropes before his one-year term is convelented.

Almost without exception, Reeve Burnside said, ex-wardens would agree that they could have served their county better if they had had a second term in office.

On the other hand Reeve Jesse Carr of Monteagle said that two years away from their business would be a stumbling block for many aspirants for the warden's chair.

All the 17 recommendations for municipal reform proposed by ACRO were approved by council with the exception of

Students Impress Parks Board

Student power came to the rescue of Belleville Parks Board last night.

The board had appealed fruitlessly to the public at large for suggestions on the development of East Zwick's Island, and its consultants in Toronto were awaiting the suggestions before going ahead with plans.

But the board had nothing to send them until the drafting and physical education students at Moira Secondary School made the park development into a school project and outlined their results to the board at a meeting at the school.

One group from Oscar Bonin's drafting class circulated a questionnaire to about 2,000 students and adults and came up with the same results as the parks' board — people had so many ideas, all different that they couldn't settle on what they wanted. For this reason, the students designed a passive park with no special sports areas, but with parking overlooking the bay where motorists could sit and watch the water go by.

Another group given no restrictions on money or facilities, let their imaginations run wild and came up with a zoo instead of a park, complete with a pond and creek with waterfalls running through the cages.

They produced designs for cages with walkways above so visitors could get an aerial view of the animals. They added a restaurant overlooking the bay and a springy rope bridge "for fun".

They included a list of Canadian animals that should be in the collection, and their barless cages, designed to stimulate the natural habitat of each animal, drew the close attention of parks superintendent Lloyd Syrra.

Spokesmen for four other student groups handed in detailed plans for recreational facilities for all age groups from small children to senior citizens.

Most included volleyball, basketball and tennis courts; some added shuffleboard, skipping and hopscotch areas for small girls. One group wanted to put a lawn bowling area beside the basketball courts so that young and old could meet and mingle.

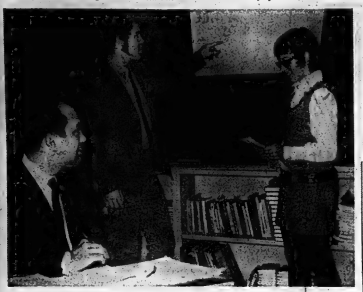
One group planned a dock with canoes and paddle boats for rent and a miniature golf course operated by private enterprise. They added a maze, made of shrubbery six feet high, layed out like a nature trail and embellished with a creek. At the entrances to the creek they put a windmill and paddle wheel to provide a decorative touch and serve the practical purpose of pumping water into the creek.

Other groups put a boardwalk completely around the park and added a hill in the centre "for tobogganing, because, they said, the city is lacking in slopes where youngsters can play with their sleighs and try out their skis.

Because opinions differed on bay pollution, some drew in swimming pools and other added a beach, but most agreed on the need for swimming facilities.

One suggestion that surprised and pleased the parks board was a summer dance pavilion, "because the one at Presqu'ile draws crowds and we should have one here."

Board members were impressed by the students' practical bent — the care they took in planning entrances and exits to the park and in locating parking lots, washrooms, drinking fountains, barbeques, picnic areas and windbreaks of trees and shrubs.



Some had drawn up budgets for their projects and had outlined step-by-step schedules for construction of the facilities they suggested.

After the 14 students, who said they were spokesmen for many others who had worked on the plans, had finished their presentation, Donald Templeman asked them to supply copies of all their material to the parks board.

This has been the most refreshing parks board meeting in years, he told the students. "I knew there was a great storehouse of ideas in this town if we could only tap it."

"I'm very impressed," he continued. "We must have you people meet with our consultants and continue to participate in the development of the park."

Mr. Templeman emphasized that the board is still open for suggestions from the public and would like to hear comments from adults on the Zwick's Island site.

How to Glamorize A Dump

Phil Kirby and Jackie Fraser, two of the 14 Moira Secondary School students who presented designs for East Zwick's Island last night, outline the details for chairman Paul Russell and members of Belleville Board of Parks Management. The students answered the board's appeal for park development suggestions and were invited to continue to participate by meeting with the board's Toronto consultants, who will be responsible for transforming the city's garbage dump into a recreational area.

The Ski Whiz Rocky Mountains Endurance Run

The Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute pounds Massey-Ferguson snowmobiles day and night over 2,000 miles of ice and rocks and railroad ties, 12,000 feet up in the Rockies.

We think a lot of snowmobilers are fed up with machines that talk tough, and keep on breaking down. So we decided to go all out to prove just how reliable the Massey-Ferguson snowmobile really is.

We gave a nationally-known testing company, the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute, four of our stock model Ski Whiz 400 SST's, and told NCTI to put them through the most devastating endurance test they could dream up.

They put them through what they call "accelerated testing". You'd call it sheer torture. NCTI told us that 500 miles of driving under the conditions they set up would be equal to one full season of normal snowmobiling.

On October 15th, they began running the Ski Whiz day and night, around the clock, 12,000 feet up in the Rockies. A team of 14 NCTI drivers took turns pounding them over ice and slush and frozen crust. Over stretches of rocks and bare ground and mud. Over slick hardpack and deep powder.

Every day they rammed them up an old abandoned railroad bed—a treacherous incline of 3,000 feet in six miles. Over railroad ties, gritty cinders and winding ditches. They maneuvered them through dense forests, around icy hairpin turns with 1,000 foot drop-offs. With winds gusting at 20 to 50 mph. And temperatures varying from 4 to 50 above.

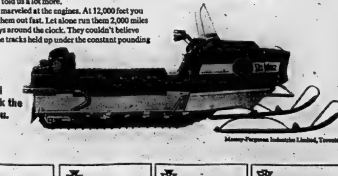
The key to NCTI accelerating testing program was to see how much punishment the four machines could take without a major repair. No repair that couldn't be done by the driver with just normal replacement parts and an instruction manual would be permitted.

Finally, after seven days and 1,509 miles, the first Ski Whiz gave out. The engine needed new points and a tune-up. So we took it out of the run.

After ten days and 2,065 miles, the last Ski Whiz was disqualified because it too needed a repair the driver couldn't make by himself.

According to the "accelerated testing" standards of the National Consumer Testing Institute—that distance equals four full seasons of operation. Under the most rugged conditions.

But durability wasn't the whole story. The NCTI drivers, all experts with long experience on other machines, told us a lot more.



They traveled all of the engines. At 12,000 feet you can burn them out fast. Let alone run them 2,000 miles for ten days around the clock. They couldn't believe the way the tracks held up under the constant pounding they were taking. "Excellent", they said about the stability and the steering response. And they were most thankful for the unusual seating comfort. Understandable when you're running over 200 miles a day.

Before you get stuck with a snowmobile that talks tough and breaks down easy, check out the machine that proved its reliability the hard way. The Ski Whiz Rocky Mountains Endurance Run proved there's one you can count on to get you back—wherever you take it. Season after season after season.

There are four tough Ski Whiz models to choose from. All built for keeps by Massey-Ferguson, the company with 123 years of engineering know-how.

At Last!

The Royal Commission on the Status of Women began its work four years ago. That it has only now tabled its report is eloquent not of sloth but of the magnitude of the task. The report is a 488-page document (in summary form it covers 84 pages) which goes far toward recognizing the whole range of discriminatory attitudes against women. Discrimination not only of attitude but of status — in the sphere of jobs for example.

The Commission makes 167 recommendations and they include such provisions as paid maternity leave, abortion on request if the woman is not more than 12 weeks pregnant and a suggestion that the federal government act 18 as the minimum age for marriage. Birth control information and day-care centres are also mentioned.

The recommendations on day care centres seem to us among the most important. As Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP Vancouver-Kingsway), the only woman member of the House of Commons, has put it, lack of such centres is an encouragement to mischief in small children which in later years can run into even more dangerous anti-social behavior.

Or as the Commission says, it is of the opinion that supplementary care benefits such as day-care centres can aid both parents and children. Research, the report goes on, "has shown that additional sympathetic care from several adults may be more beneficial to the child than exclusive attachment to one. Psychologists have pointed out that over-protection and possessiveness which can result from a mother's undivided attention may be sometimes harmful." And it goes on to point out that earlier generations had much wider family relationships and often included grandparents, aunts and uncles under the same roof. We would hope that the Commission is not suggesting a return to such living conditions (psychologists, and family members their own experience are also only too aware of the tensions that can arise from too close proximity, from overcrowding and from say parents, children and grandparents living under one roof). Nevertheless it is also pointed out, sole reliance on the mother has been a more recent development. A happy medium is the solution here, with members of families seeing each other on occasion, but not all living together.

There is so much more of course to the Commission's report than possibly can be dealt with here. We shall undoubtedly return to the subject and to the Commission's recommendations, but it is ironic to note in passing that The Globe and Mail, in a panel underneath its front-page report shows a picture of a model parading before a "for-men-only" fashion lunch at the Ports of Call in Toronto.

The occasion, and the newspaper's front-page reference to it, with further details and pictures on an inside page, was a classic example of women as mere sex objects. As London writer Joyce Carter noted, the diners were mostly city "straight men," scarcely a swinger among them, but "there was nothing meek about the leers they served up to the models."

As if this were not enough, right beside the Commission's report is a picture of Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath sharing a laugh with three scantily-clad dancing girls, performers at a Christmas program in London. Well, we would not want any Royal Commission recommending an end to either the modelling or dancing professions, just a little more respect between the two sexes. For men, there is no harm in thinking a woman don't leer. And girls, when a fellow holds a door open for you, thank him or smile, but don't sail through without a word!

The Bible Speaks

The world's leading best selling book, The Bible; is now being published for the first time ages, but it has yet to be published in another 1,000, according to The Canadian Bible Society. At present more than 3,000 translators are at work in 800 languages. We think this is a tribute to those of the world's citizenry who realize that evolution, however slow and painstaking it may be, of necessity, is in almost every instance the only satisfactory way for mankind to progress. A tribute also to those who see in Christianity the continuing hope of mankind.

Woman Research Officer Outlines Legislation

Equal Employment Opportunity Act Under Fire

From the Brockville Recorder and Times

A group of businessmen wary of the implications of the Women's Equal Employment Opportunity Act which came into effect Dec. 1 in Ontario expressed their fears last night in a discussion of the thinking behind the act and its immediate results.

Some 35 members of the St. Lawrence Valley Personnel Association met in the Legion hall in Cardinal to listen and pose questions to Mrs. Kay Eastham, research officer, Women's Division, Ontario Department of Labor.

Mrs. Eastham said the principle behind the act was that of "merit employment", the opening up of jobs to qualified individuals without discrimination in employment because of sex or marital status.

"Women are a disadvantaged group, subjected to low paying and low - status jobs. Females, on the average, are better educated than males and the underutilization of women power is an irrational waste of human resources," she said.

Mrs. Eastham said this new legislation prohibits separate male and female job classifications which is binding on newspapers and eliminates seniority lists based on sex.

However, she said, there are two forms of exemptions, group exemptions and job exemptions. In the latter case an employer can apply to have women unemployed from a job even though she feels she is capable of handling the jobs.

"If employers feel a job is more suited to one sex than the other they can apply for an exemption before the job is advertised. It is only reasonable that certain jobs be exempted when the asking of the sexes is a contravention of morals," she said.

One of the main items for discussion was the pregnancy clause in the act. The act states that an employer cannot terminate the employment of a woman because of pregnancy, but management can require the women to take leaves of absence when she can no longer perform her job adequately.

In reply to a question that women must now be educated as to their role under the act, Mrs. Eastham said just because there are "hot mamas" women in management does not necessarily mean discrimination.

"It is realized there are not many women engineers because not many women are registered in engineering courses. We are not asking for a special case for the unambitious woman but if a woman wants to go ahead in a career do not bar her from a job on the basis of sex or marital status.

She agreed that "unpromotables" should not be hired and agreed a line of progression for certain jobs could be exempted if a woman could not handle a certain phase of the job.

Some members felt management would be up against the logic of women when it is they feel they are capable of doing the job, no amount of explanation will satisfy them that they are not suitable for it.

Concern was expressed that the expense of training women in order to find out if they are suitable for a job would be prohibitive and that the unions would be siding against management in the issue.

Those present questioned Mrs. Eastham as to the economic feasibility of hiring a woman for a job that could be done by a man and risking losing her through pregnancy leave each year. The possibility of a restriction on the number of pregnancies was suggested.

Mrs. Eastham said the trend today is toward smaller families and women with large families simply haven't the time for an outside job.

She urged employers to accept the spirit of the act and explained the method of lodging a complaint. An individual may lodge a complaint if he or she feels she is being discriminated against, an uninterested individual can lodge a complaint with the approval of the individual affected, and the Ontario Women's Bureau may lodge a complaint.

She was asked if newspapers would have access to complaints or discrimination and she said the stage of the court of inquiry was public. She was sure that the press could attend the actual inquiry, but the report issued from the inquiry would be available to the press.

Concern was expressed that the reputations of employers would be at the mercy of the press, whereupon Mrs. Eastham replied "it is up to the company to make sure its reputation is based on solid grounds."

Mrs. Eastham said if two persons are equally qualified for the job, then it is the employer's decision as to which one he should hire. The fact that female applications are accepted is not considered is abiding by the act.

There was a question on hiring from lists of applicants submitted before the job opens up. She replied that the act applied in this case to the compilation of the list in an indiscriminate way, giving an equal chance to women as to men based on qualifications.

She said that two seniority lists in industry separating jobs into male and female classification are now illegal and the lists must now be merged.

The legislation is binding only on the provincial crown and does not bind the federally operated Canada Manpower. However, it is agreed that the organization will abide by the law in its Ontario operations.

This, pointed out one member, does not prevent the federal organization from second guessing the wishes of a company and sending only male applicants for a job previously considered male territory.

Mrs. Eastham said this already is being done by employment agencies.

She said she knew of no evidence to support a member's question that the reality of a working wife causes rising divorce rates.

"The relaxed divorce laws now in effect certainly have influenced the rise in divorces, and I believe a family breakdown has more complex reasons than the working wife," she said.

She assured members the law was not as bad as they anticipated.

"It's worse," replied one member.

Miles Brown, personnel manager of Phillips Cables, in thanking Mrs. Eastham said perhaps one of the reasons for the heavy questioning was that members were aware that the women employed in their businesses are affected by the main principle behind the act.

LOOKING BACKWARD

20 YEARS AGO

December 11, 1958

The Belleville and District Film Council had their monthly meeting Thursday night. The topics of discussion were more and better Christmas films for Belleville and district. The possibilities of sponsoring a film festival, similar to the successful film festival which was held in Kingston last September, were also discussed.

The regular meeting of the Underwood Women's Club of Belleville and vicinity, was held at the home of Mrs. A. E. May with Mrs. Arthur Locke, the president, presiding. Mrs. Locke introduced the speaker of the evening, D. I. MacKinnon, probationary officer in the Juvenile Court of Belleville and Hastings County.

Mary Alice Rogers, formerly of this city, now of London, Ont., will be singing over CBL on Sunday in the "Singing Stars" concert.

Duplicating in practically every detail the manner in which it was perpetrated some four years ago, robbers drilled through a 15-inch brick wall and gained entrance to the vault at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, from which $20 in cash and some $50 worth of War Savings Stamps were stolen. Efforts to open a large 1,000 pound safe in which most of the finances of the school is secured, proved futile as the robbers hammered off the combination dial which was found on the floor.

Township roads and by-ways in Prince Edward County are still badly plagued with snow, according to residents of the southern county.

Politics in Elizabethtown

Brockville Recorder and Times

Nomination day in Elizabethtown this year was a sad affair, more so than usual. The democratic process always has been a thread at these meetings, mostly as a result of apathy on the part of the electorate. There was less than a thread holding on to it this year.

It was a dull event, but it could be long remembered as one of the most incredible in the history of Elizabethtown township.

It was a living example of the fruits of apathy and the results of development of a club spirit smacking of the political boss era.

The people who showed up, about 50, heard the chairman of the nominating committee, Reeve Donald Ferguson, belittle a candidate for council when the candidate wasn't present and then heard Mr. Ferguson declare that he would do his best to see that the candidate didn't get a vote "this side of 29 highway".

Mr. Ferguson, it seems, was upset because there was going to be an election for council. He seems to favor acclamations. Then he also feel people haven't the right to expect an election! That the offices of reeve, deputy reeve and council should be passed around as though it were a private matter! And it is very disappointing to see the other persons nominated withdraw from the race after Mr. Ferguson's outburst against one candidate, Mr. Robert Crowder, of Lyn, exercising his democratic right by standing for office against the will of a seemingly "family compact" complex.

The nomination meeting was incredible for another reason. Reeve Allan Hanna was returned to office without opposition despite his involvement in a matter that has become controversial. Mr. Hanna should have ruled otherwise should court action be taken by some taxpayers, will continue to sit as reeve and as a township representative on the counties council while an appeal is before the courts. Mr. Hanna accepted his acclamation as proof that the people of the township are with him all the way. We'd like to submit that a people, rather than being with him, sadly pathetically, aren't interested.

The only way for people interested in municipal affairs is to have elections for reeve, for deputy reeve and for council seats. And then let the candidates do their best to stir up interest and get elected.

Acclamations defeat the democratic process and in Elizabethtown apparently there is need for a good injection of democracy.

Trains More Than Ever Essential

Peterborough Examiner

The Canadian Pacific Railway's efforts to discontinue the daytime service between Toronto and Havelock, which would deprive Peterborough, too, of rail service, comes at a time when, after many years of decline, experts begin to forecast a future for the railways.

The number of cars on the road is nearing the limit and the pollution caused by them is at a dangerous level. The population explosion demands that we be able to transport large numbers of people with the most efficiency and with the least pollution.

Buses are better than cars, but they cause more pollution. Plane service between small cities at short distances is uneconomical and impractical.

Trains provide the only transportation method to carry large numbers of passengers, fast, efficiently and with little or no pollution at all.

Yet, the CPR would stop the trains.

They claim that few people use them; that they lose money, etc.

True, few people use the trains these days. But not because people don't like them, because the train schedule is such that it deliberately drives people away.

Peterborough has one train each day leaving for Toronto at 7 a.m. That is about the most inconvenient time for travelers.

Railways went into a decline because the rail companies neglected the passengers. They stood toward freight, because it meant a quicker and maybe bigger profit and because moving freight is less troublesome than moving passengers.

The first to bury the railways were the railway companies.

This trend must be stopped. Peterborough and every other community needs the trains and, it's quite conceivable, the world will not be able to get along without them a short time from now.

The decision by the Chamber of Commerce to send a brief to the Railway Transport Committee in support of continuing the rail service is laudable.

No doubt they have the full support of the community.

But keeping the only train we have is not enough. The CPR must stop this suicidal neglect of the passenger service and provide the communities with a service which is not only necessary but which belongs to the 20th century.

They will have enough passengers.

Automated Service Station

German Features

HAMBURG — Europe's first fully automatic filling station — including oil change, washing and other servicing operations — has opened in Neuwiedenthal, a Hamburg suburb.

Motorists can give their cars lube jobs, vacuum out the interior and get air and water at the station, which doesn't have a single attendant. There are six washing and servicing stalls at the facility.

At most automatic gas pumps in Germany — usually around-the-clock stations where coins were necessary here before, a frequent cause of annoyance to motorists with only bills and no change in their pockets. At the new automatic station in Neuwiedenthal, customers can also use bills.

The special bill-taking pump has a built - in electronic scanning device which checks the authenticity of bills in a matter of seconds. Counterfeit bills turn the pump off right away.

County Councillors Consider Resolutions

Hastings county councillors don't agree that the administration of welfare should be removed from the individual municipalities and counties.

And by way of illustrating their feeling, councillors this week took no action on a Goderich resolution asking that the administration of general welfare assistance, supplementary assistance and special welfare assistance be taken over by the province and placed under its department of social and family services 'regional offices.

At the same time they concurred in a resolution from the united counties of Prescott and Russell which went on record as being completely in disaccord with the Goderich resolution.

Although the amount of welfare assistance given was dictated by the province, the Tweed reeve said there was a local option in the decision about giving special assistance such as the supply of dentures eye glasses and so on.

Due to heavier than anticipated welfare cost during the past year, Reeve Allen said the local board had decided to provide dentures and other such items only in cases of great urgency.

UCS Campaign Passes Goal

The Belleville and District 1970 United Appeal campaign has gone beyond the minimum requirements by two per cent.

Appeal chairman Ben Corke announced that the UCS is "12 per cent ahead of last year" in campaign funds.

The 1969 appeal reached $116,562.

"Despite the fact we haven't reached our goal of $130,000, we are very proud" to report a 12 per cent increase over last year.

The theme of this year's campaign was "give at least 10 per cent more."

UCS manager Isidore Coppersmith announced that the campaign isn't over yet until everybody who wants to give has had a chance to contribute."

More than 1,000 volunteers assisted in this year's campaign; 500 of them students canvassing the residential district.

Mr. Corke proudly announced that in the 20 - year history of the campaign, "Belleville has never before raised $130,000 . . . higher by far than ever before."

Expenses along this line last year amounted to $6,000. Only $2,300 was spent this year on newspaper and radio advertising and brochure printing.

Mr. Cooperman explained that "our allocations for agencies are based on receipts of $130,000" the figure already achieved.

"I'm proud of the Belleville," concluded the campaign chairman.

Students of English Entertain at Party

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

A Christmas party held on Thursday morning at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was a time of fun and fellowship for a number of women and children whose native lands are as far - flung as Greece, Hong Kong, Portugal, Italy, Spain and Finland.

Brought together by their desire to master the English language, these women and children who are currently living in Belleville gather every Thursday morning at the church hall where they are given instruction in English by a number of Canadian volunteers.

The party was preceded by a concert which consisted of a puppet show and songs by the children and talks in English by some of the women, and was indicative of the tremendous progress they had made during the past year. The talks on various subjects including the way in which Christmas is celebrated in some of their countries were prepared entirely by the students themselves.

The decorations on the small white Christmas tree which adorned the stage were the handiwork of the children who had also made gifts for their mothers.

The concert was followed by a social time during which coffee and a variety of exotic refreshments including Greek pastries, Chinese candy and figs from Portugal contributed by the students themselves were enjoyed by all.

These classes are held under the auspices of the Central Volunteer Bureau and are sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

The group is divided into several classes according to the proficiency of the members in the English language. Both written and spoken English are taught and any woman who wishes to learn English or to improve her already existing knowledge of it is eligible for these classes which are free of charge. Small children are taken care of in the kindergarten class which is held at the same time.

Co-ordinated by Mrs. H. B. Simpson, the program not only facilitates the learning of English but also helps to combat loneliness which might otherwise overtake these women in a strange country. Some of the women are the only ones of their nationality in the city and with inadequate means to communicate with the majority of its residents would find it extremely difficult to make friends or even to do their routine housewifely chores such as shopping. Thus these classes represent their initial steps in adjusting to life in a new country.

The teaching staff consists entirely of volunteers - Mrs. J. Musgrove, Mrs. F. B. Sheffield, Mrs. Jack Tooth, Mrs. Gordon Miller, Mrs. Charles Osgoode and Miss J. Tickell. Mrs. George Hume is in charge of recruiting and public relations.

Teaching the children in the kindergarten are Mrs. Gerald Boyce, Mrs. Douglas Woodley and Mrs. J. Brass. They are assisted by three students of the early childhood education course at Loyalist College, Jan Kiensterman, Barb Rempel and Beth McPherson. Another helper is Rosemary Chesnut, a student at Moira Secondary School. Music for the tiny tots is provided by Mrs. W. M. Barlow whose assistant is Mrs. H. Brown. The teachers are unanimous in commending the enthusiasm and keenness of their pupils and all are of the opinion that it is a worthwhile and rewarding experience to teach them.

In the kindergarten class, the boys and girls whose ages range from one to five learn the language the fun way and play together with the easy spontaneity and lack of self-consciousness of early childhood.

They participate in various activities such as painting and handiwork while they learn and each week's lesson deals with some topic of general interest such as safety or farm animals.

The classes are held throughout the school year since most of the women have older children in school and would then have more time than at present their study.

Finances for this project are provided by interested and sympathetic individuals and groups who give donations from time to time. The group uses the church hall through the courtesy of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and the women of the congregation provide coffee which is served after the classes.

The adult students are Cindy Tom and Toy Kin Ng (Chinese), Alexandrina Oliveira and Maria Goncalves of Portugal, Seija Pylvainen of Finland, Litas Baliotis, Joanne Zamanes, Frini Theodosakos, Anxino Christodolou and Maria Pappas of Greece, Gina Di Cesare, Cathy Rosit, Aratha Cardoni and Armida Romano of Italy and Rosario Catala of Spain.

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH WAYNE WOOD

Wood – Jandrew

Brenda Annette Jandrew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jandrew became the bride of Kenneth Wayne Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Wood, at the ceremony held in Wellington United Church on November 28, at 12 noon. The officiating clergyman was Rev. N. J. Truax.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white street length dress of lace over taffeta with long lace sleeves. She also wore a short veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of red carnations.

The matron of honor Mrs. Brenda Cleave wore a short empire style dress of red velvet with a headpiece of white carnations and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother Raymond Wood as best man. After the ceremony a reception was held in Maple Inn, Bloomfield.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride left in an A-line dress of orange crepe with a white collar and matching cuffs.

Upon return the couple will reside at 39 Prince of Wales Drive, Belleville.

Views of the Orient Enjoyed by Horticulturists

"An ill wind . . ." such was the case as the Belleville Horticultural Society improvised a program when the scheduled speaker was unable to attend due to illness.

The December meeting held at Tabernacle United Church turned out to be a surprise package. The executive had prepared the program within a very short notice, and the meeting proved to be one of the best all season.

President Larry Johnson kept the program moving at a lively pace while Miss Helen Sulman, continued the good spirit by giving a humorous reading. Cecil Becker was pianist.

Members were pleased to welcome Art Drysdale, editor of the Canadian Trader Magazine and the executive director of the Canadian Parks and Recreation who had been sent to pinch hit for the original speaker.

Mr. Drysdale showed interesting slides of Hong Kong, Kowloon, Japan and Hawaii. Speaking of Hong Kong he noted that it was a city of contrast and one of the most beautiful cities in the world at night because of its myriads of lights. It is situated on an island with narrow streets and overcrowded homes. Hotels are quite expensive with cost of $25 per single room, however everything else is cheap. Many people live their whole lives on sampans and junks, flat bottomed boats. The family cat is chained on board, chickens are kept in crates and rice is grown in boxes. Beautiful Japanese floral arrangements were shown as the speaker had arrived in Japan at the time of their national flower show, Chrysanthemums are the national flowers of Japan and at that time were at their peak.

In conclusion the speaker showed many colorful pictures of Hawaii including their exotic costumes and the beautiful orchid trees with butterfly leaves. Also shown were the unique cannonball and sausage trees.

ST. JOSEPH'S CWL COUNCIL

A brief executive meeting of St. Joseph's Parish Council of the Catholic Women's League was held recently in the Parish Hall at which time it was announced that there would be no meeting in January.

President Mrs. H. Clarke also noted that a joint meeting with the councils of Holy Rosary, St. Michael's and St. Joseph's will be held at the February meeting in St. Joseph's Parish Hall. Plans are being made for a telephone bridge and euchre and further details will be announced in the Sunday Bulletin.

An entertaining program was enjoyed which included singing by the choir of Grade 3 under the direction of Mr. Revell; accordion selections by Barbara Schrieder and Lorraine Carrier; a quartet consisting of Mrs. R. Nagade and children; a solo by B. Park and a humorous reading by Mrs. D. Nurley. The program concluded with the singing of Christmas carols, with Sister Mary Avila as accompanist.

"THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES"

Poets and philosophers have so often said that a woman's personality and attractiveness are brought out most by the expressiveness of her eyes. No wonder then that today in cosmetics there has been such emphasis put on eye make-up products. The art of using these products to produce a coordinated effect is not very difficult to master and the results are well worth the effort.

Your personal beauty consultant at the exclusive "Beauty Boutique" in Geen's Pharmacy is a qualified expert in every phase of the eye make-up art. For, in addition to personally testing all new items, she has regularly attended training classes that deal specifically with the subject. Your beauty consultant will never recommend a cosmetic that does not measure up to her very strict standards.

For, at Geen's "Beauty Boutique", we cater to the beauty conscious woman who wishes to always be at her very best — using carefully chosen perfumes, make-up, treatment items and other cosmetic products.

Of the approximately 20 variations of soil type in which vineyards may be successfully grown, six are found in the great Niagara fruit-growing belt.

Tempered by the great bodies of water that cradle it, the Niagara climate is roughly comparable to that of northern California and the Bordeaux region of France.

In 1934 we began a tremendous program of viticulture research and development that has seen over 300 varieties of vines imported from every wine-growing country in the world. As a result today we can offer fine Canadian wines that rank—on any basis—with the great majority of the wines produced anywhere in the world.

To mention six which should find a place in every Canadian "wine cellar":

President Burgundy	• A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne	• A delicate light white wine.
President Sherry	• Ideal before lunch or dinner.
President Extra Dry	• A dry white wine of quality.

Ann Landers

Some Homosexuals Helped by Therapy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't sign my name and I can't get any mail at home because if someone should open your letter I would die of shame. I am 18 and a homosexual. Some gay boys love the life and don't want to change. I am not one of those. I want to marry and have a family. But when I see a pretty boy I am helpless.

It all begins very casually. We start out being friends and everything is wholesome and decent. Then I get ideas and the relationship changes into something else. Not all the guys go along, but most of them do. This ANN LANDERS leads me to believe I pick my friends with that goal in mind.

I've always wanted to be a minister but I'm afraid I would get into trouble and disgrace my church as well as myself. Where can I go for help? After one of my escapades, I become so depressed that suicide seems like the only answer. — WOODY.

DEAR WOODY: You need therapy at once. If your parents can need you to a private doctor, I recommend it. They need to know the nature of your problem. Many teens seek psychiatric help for "severe moodiness." If you can't afford private treatment, get counselling through a mental health clinic. Look in the telephone book.

I recently stated that the percentage of homosexuals made straight through therapy is very small (under 4 per cent.) I received some angry letters from psychiatrists but I'm not backing off. The statement stands.

I continue to suggest therapy for homosexuals, however, not because I believe it will make them heterosexual, but because therapy can help them accept themselves as they are. It can also help them cope with other personality disorders and reduce their feelings of self-hate and guilt.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a twice-divorced woman of 33, with a six-year-old child. I am attractive, college-trained and have worked in my profession for eleven years.

My second divorce was in 1968. I decided I would never marry again since I had made the same mistake twice — mama's boys, weak, immature, afraid of responsibility. Then I met a handsome, successful 40-year-old who had never been married. Within three months he asked me to stop dating others because he wanted to marry me. I was flattered and thrilled. He promised an engagement ring for Christmas. On December 23 he said he needed more time to "think." I said O.K. On New Year's Eve he said he would give me a ring for Valentine's Day. On February 12 he needed more time to "think." I was deeply embarrassed because I had told all my friends, "This time for sure." I dug out a solid engagement ring from a previous marriage with the fervent hope that I would soon have the real thing.

To date — still no real thing. I am busily ducking my friends because they want to know "when?"

Should I break up with what I thought was my dream man and try to forget hi mand date others? I need your advice. — WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR WASH: If you want to go with a guy for the rest of your life, this bird will cheerfully oblige. If you want to get married, dump him — and don't shed any tears. He sounds as if he could have been your third mistake.

The Original Recipe For White Fruit Cake

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: The enclosed clipping for 1959 White Fruit Cake is (so frayed) . . . some amounts are missing. My family will not hear of a change so could you help me out as soon as possible? — Edna W.

ANSWER: Anybody who saves a clipping for 11 years is a loyal fan and I gladly repeat the original recipe.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE 1959

NOTE: These amounts will make two loaf cakes 8½ x 4½ x 2¾" or 9 x 5 x 3". No baking powder is needed in this cake.

1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup white sugar
4 eggs
2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
4 oz. candied pineapple, chopped (2 rings)
4 oz. candied citron peel, chopped (scant ¾ cup)
½ lb. red candied cherries (1 1-3 cups chopped)
½ lb. green candied cherries (1 1-3 cups chopped)
½ lb. blanched almonds (1¼ cups chopped)
4 oz. light Sultana raisins (1 cup chopped)
2 oz. desiccated coconut (⅓ cup)
½ cup fresh orange juice (OR —this is recommended by me — ½ cup fresh frozen tangerine juice diluted in proportions of one 6-oz. to two 6 oz. cans of water, but use only ½ cup of this dilution)
2 tsps. vanilla
1 tbsp. milk
2 tsps. almond extract or rosewater (I prefer almond extract)

Soak the desiccated coconut in the milk and orange juice (or tangerine juice). Cream the butter or margarine until pale and light then cream in sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well between additions. Add soaked coconut and flavorings, stir in by hand. Add vanilla and almond extract or rosewater and stir in well. Line two loaf pans smoothly with double heavy wax paper and butter them. Turn batter into lined loaf pans and press it smooth on top. If desired arrange two "flowers" as a design on top using five whole blanched almonds for each, putting a centre in one of a whole red cherry pressed half way in and a whole green cherry pressed half way into centre of other "flower". This design does not sink in when cake is baked and is attractive. Bake pot luck at centre of oven at 250 deg. Fahr. 3½ to 4 hrs. having water pan below throughout. Refill water pan as necessary. Cool cakes in pans glaze cake (see below). Wrap very well to store.

GLAZE: Combine ¼ cup light corn syrup an' ¼ cup water and bring just to a rolling boil. Remove from heat. Cool to lukewarm. Pour over cold cake before or after storing.

Obesity Deemed A Serious Health Problem

By DORIS CLARE

I read where more than 60 million people in the United States are too fat, and that this is a health problem of epidemic proportions:

If the same percentage works out for Canada, this means approximately six million Canadians are also guilty of carrying too much weight around with them.

Assorted illnesses can result. Heart, blood pressure, arthritic tendencies, may be affected. Not to mention only three vulnerable areas.

Overweight women have larger babies, pregnancies last longer; the chance of miscarriage is greater among obese women.

And what about general fatigue? Reducers report a growing sense of well-being and new energy.

Anybody want to start now today, to mow down those health-threatening pounds?

Dear Doris: My daughter married a very fine man and has two teen-age children.

Until four years ago everything was going well. Then my daughter met a man whose wife left him with three children. She felt sorry for him and started doing things for this man and his kids.

She has been seeing him on the sly. I couldn't take it any longer and I told her I would tell on her. She got mad and said if I did she would never let her kids write (as she doesn't live close to me).

I have helped and spent thousands of dollars. I am only a cleaning woman but I liked doing things for my kids. She now says you can't buy love.

Should I not buy or give anything any more? I don't know what has come over her. Why should she cheat on her husband after 23 years? — Worried.

Dear Worried: That must have been a humdinger of a quarrel you had. Your daughter really hit below the belt when she threatened to withhold those precious letters.

Telling on her would only put you in dutch. If her husband is not already clued in about her affair, he may not believe you anyway.

Don't tell. Don't lavish gifts on them (outside of Christmas and birthdays). Let your messages of love be sincere— but don't get down and let her wipe her feet on you.

There'll be a sequel to all this. Something tells me there will be a sorry girl for you to comfort when this breaks.

* * *

Dear Doris: My problem may seem too simple to print, but I hope not. I am a widow of 56 years of age.

I would like to know the proper way to act when a man — either relative, friend or special friend — seats you at the table. It may be in home or in public.

Some women can be so gracious, but I find this hard, since my husband died. — Constant Reader

Dear Constant: You were used to your husband's attentions. Without him you feel too much on your own; and when, on a special occasion, a gentleman gallantly recognizes your femininity with a small service, you become self-conscious.

Do what comes naturally. Walk for him to pull out the chair, then step in front of it and allow him to push it forward as you sit down. Thank-him.

Rum Island To Be Sold

RUM ISLAND, B.C. (CP) — Rum Island is for sale with its eight acres of arbutus and cedar; its wild inhabitants— mostly mink, otters, cormorants, loons and herons.

But only, says owner Mrs. Reese Nelson of White Rock, B.C., if it is kept for the enjoyment of Canadians.

Mrs. Nelson is an American-born museum curator who came to Canada as a child in 1912 and bought the wilderness property in 1945.

Now she wants to sell it to the provincial government with the proviso that it be kept for Canadians.

"I've had two or three private offers but I said I wasn't really interested," says Mrs. Nelson. "I don't want it ever to be sold to Americans."

She adds: "God forbid that the Gulf Islands get any more commercial than they are. . . . American ownership is mostly the result of apathy on the part of Canadians who didn't recognize a great thing.

"When they do, it's too late."

Mrs. Nelson says Rum Island would be an ideal addition to the marine park created by federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.

Betty: "Jenny hit me first!"

Jenny: "I did not. She bumped me real hard first."

Mother: "I think you are to blame, Jenny, as you are to your room until you can behave."

When quarreling begins, it's obvious that children are tired, bored with each other or unreasonable. Separation, not punishment for the principle wrongdoer, is the logical answer to the problem.

Mother: "I don't think it's important who hit first. You obviously are tired of playing together, so Jenny will play in her room and you play in yours until dinner time."

Conservatives Will Select Leader Feb. 10 to 12

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Progressive Conservatives had barely chosen the time and place for a leadership convention to pick a successor to John Robarts Thursday when speculation about who that will be swung into high gear.

R. Alan Eagleson, president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, said following a meeting of the party's 35-member executive committee the convention will be held Feb. 10 to 12 at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

In announcing the dates, Mr. Eagleson said the days were chosen so that the new party leader will have two or three weeks in which to choose a cabinet and complete a legislative program prior to calling a new legislature session before Easter.

The party president said it will also be up to the new leader to pick the date for a provincial election, not necessary until 1972.

Mr. Eagleson said the leadership vote will occur on the last day of the convention, a Friday, with the result known about 7:30 p.m.—prime television viewing time.

He added he expects about seven candidates, including Education Minister Davis and Mines Minister Lawrence.

There will be 1,719 delegates eligible to vote at the convention, about 400 fewer than at the last leadership convention. Each of the 117 ridings in the province will send 10 delegates and 10 alternates.

All delegates will be chosen at open riding meetings. Mr. Eagleson said the short leadership campaign may cost candidates between $75,000 and $100,000.

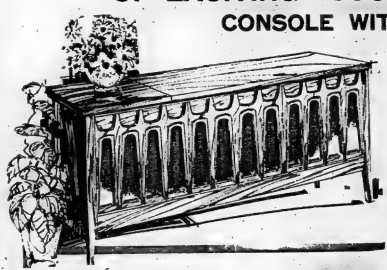
Seaway Cargo Is Record

IROQUOIS, Ont. (CP) — A record 50 million tons of cargo for the Montreal-Lake Ontario section of the St. Lawrence Seaway was set Wednesday night when the freighter Irish Sycamore passed down through the Canadian lock here.

The Irish Sycamore's load of 12,143 tons of grain brought this year's total tonnage for that section to 50,004,952.

There are 30 vessels still in the seaway, nine of them above the Welland Canal. Twenty-eight are ocean bound.



HAMILTON (CP) — The total of cargo moving through the port of Hamilton this year should exceed 12 million tons for the first time, port authorities say.

Chairman E. D. Hickey of the Hamilton Harbor Commission said in a statement Wednesday that 11,513,569 tons had moved through the port by the end of November.

He said this total represented an increase of 1,342,568 compared with total tonnage handled during the same period of 1969.

County Council Approves Purchase Of Bridge Street House for Museum

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hastings county council yesterday gave approval in principle to the purchase of historic Glanmore House on Bridge Street, East, for use as an expanded county museum.

The proposal is that the old Bridge Street residence owned by Mrs. Phillips Faulkner be purchased by the city using money from the Salaman Estate in England, both for the purchase price and for required renovation.

The county's commitment, is that it will enter into an agreement with the city to pay a share of the annual operating cost of the museum. The county share of such costs is estimated at $3,300.

City council some weeks ago approved purchase of the house and some of its furnishings. Renovation costs are, estimated at $19,000.

Purchase of Glanmore House was recommended by the Hastings County Historical Society which indicated it was greatly in need of additional space for display of society-owned artifacts, and also for the Couldery collection, willed to the city through the Salaman Estate by Mrs. Anna Salaman, a former resident of this city.

Available immediately from the estate is a sum of $78,000 with another $140,000 to be available on the death of three descendents.

The will directed the money be used to provide display space and maintenance for the Couldery collection of family heirlooms and paintings.

"I am very pleased — everything has turned out as we hoped it would," commented Ald. Robin Jeffrey, president of the historical society, following county approval for purchase of Glanmore House.

Mrs. Jeffrey said that arrangements would be made as soon as possible to complete purchase of the old Bridge Street residence from Mrs. Faulkner.

Wednesday, Mrs., Jeffrey, along with Frank Foley, society vice president and two society executive members, attended county council to request approval of purchase of the house.

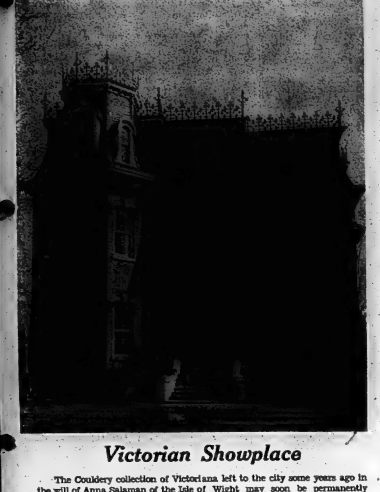
Later council members were taken on a conducted tour of the house.

Yesterday, Mrs. Jeffrey said that the visit to the house by council members was greatly instrumental in getting county approval for the purchase. Also, she said, Mrs. Faulkner had been very co-operative.

Thursday morning many of the county councillors expressed their delight with the Faulkner house.

Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside said he had been impressed with the fine condition of the house and suggested it was a "bargain at the price".

Reeve Jack M. Bush, also attested to the fine condition of the house stating he was "amazed" that major renovations would not be necessary.



Warden John Willets agreed that the cost of the Faulkner house and its renovation would be far less than original estimates for a suitable new building.

Although in agreement with house because of its good construction of the Faulkner dition, Reeve hTomas Burnside of Madoc noted that there were similar houses in Madoc.

He hoped in future that such projects could be spread more evenly throughout the county.

Later Mrs. Jeffrey said her society hoped to move in the direction suggested by Reeve Burnside.

The intention of the society would be to give encouragement to local municipalities to preserve historic buildings and possibly use some of them for municipal offices.

Victorian Showplace

The Couldery collection of Victoriana left to the city some years ago in the will of Anna Salaman of the Isle of Wight may soon be permanently housed in Glanmore, the residence of Mrs. George Faulkner at 257 Bridge St. East. Hastings county council yesterday agreed in principle to joining the city in sharing operating costs of the house after it has been purchased and restored by the local historical society.

Some Disagree with Choice

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The successful climax of the four-year campaign to preserve and restore Glanmore House on the corner of Bridge St. East and Dufferin Ave., has drawn mixed reactions from those originally concerned with the proposal.

Although they agreed that the house is a fine example of high Victorian architecture some doubted its suitability for a county museum.

Gerald Boyce, president of the Historical Society when it first presented the proposal of buying the house for restoration as a city Centennial year project, said today he is "delighted that the county is going along with the proposal".

Mr. Boyce, a high school history teacher and author of the history of Hastings county, published in 1967 said the house will be "an inspiration to the people who visit it".

However, he repeated the remarks he made at the historical society meeting Aug. 12 when the renewed efforts to obtain the house were first outlined to members.

"Some arrangements should be made for the archives and the collection of local photographs to be housed in a fireproof library wing of the public library," he said.

Mr. Boyce added that the success of the project would depend to a great extent on the hiring of "someone with dynamic drive" as curator.

"The articles in the Couldery collection, left to the city by Anna Salaman are from one or two rooms in her former home in the Isle of Wight. There is no bedroom or dining room furniture, so there will be gaps in the furnishings of the house," he noted.

The man, who in a sense started it all by instituting a survey in 1963 of Belleville's historic houses, has misgivings about the house as a museum.

R. C. Greig, a secondary school art teacher and graduate of art and archeology from the University of Toronto identified the buildings of chief interest in Belleville for the Architectural Conservancy of Ontario.

"The Faulkner house is a splendid place," he said today. "But it's not suitable for a museum."

Calling the house "a fire trap" he said he was curious about how the problem of fire protection will be handled.

"I don't see how they will get permission to hold large meetings in the house," he added. "Certainly, I wouldn't dream of housing the archives in the house. They should be where they are, in the former registry office or in some other fireproof building."

The house was built in 1862 by a Montreal architect for John Philpott Curran Phillips, a Belleville banker, and ancestor of the present owner. The exterior is fashioned after the Victorian idea of a French chateau, with the popular mansard roof of the era, capped with ironwork tracery.

The interior, rich with gilt and wood designs after the style of the exuberant French Rococo-period, has ceilings embellished with paintings of pastoral scenes and a drawing room girthed with a ceiling frieze of lions' heads.

The historical society's first museum curator, A. J. W. Sargent, now living in Ottawa, shares the misgivings of Peter Styrna, provincial museums' director, regarding the use of restored houses as museums.

"Static displays in a restored house are not the drawing card they are reputed to be, especially in a small town," she said noting the difficulties similar projects in Napanee and Cobourg have in staying in operation.

"I stand by my original conviction, born of experience, that a new fireproof building is best for a local museum and consequent professional help is the society's greatest need," she said. "A proper, professional inventory of the museum's collections should be made before a decision is reached on housing them."

Mrs. Sargent said the Couldery collection is incomplete, consisting of a few large case goods pieces, considerable silver flatware, Victorian bric-a-brac and objets d'art.

The Victorian paintings in the collection, done by the Couldery family, proved to have very little audience appeal," she said.

"The archives and the Paul lamp collection are the most valuable parts of the museum's collection and their worth appears to have been overlooked," she added.

Mr. Boyce noted that the historical society's executive had suggested a carriage house addition at a later date to house the museum's collection of Canadiana — artifacts of early pioneer days in the Quinte area.

However, he suggested that these might be placed at the Trenton Air Mill site, near Madoc, to augment the displays at the mill and at the restored farmhouse nearby.

Vandals, Thieves Busy Last Night

Belleville, City Police are investigating a pair of breakins that took place yesterday morning and early this morning that resulted in extensive damage to one place of business and theft in a second.

The business office and filing system was ransacked yesterday morning at Enco Kawartha Limited, 191 East Moira.

According to deputy chief Harold Reid, intruders rifled through files and records and ransacked the office "but good." Two business machines were smashed when they were dropped to the floor.

Deputy Reid said entry to the building was gained by forcing a door — locked only with an eye and hook by employees working late — to gain entry.

Early this morning $200 worth of cash, combs and cigarettes were stolen from Peter's Lunch on East Dundas Street.

Thieves gained entry by smashing a pane of glass in a rear door of the restaurant. The entry was discovered this morning at six.

Objection Sustained

Transportation of prisoners to and from the new regional jail at Napanee will be a direct charge on only a few of Hastings county municipalities, but county councillors yesterday supported a Trenton resolution asking relief from such costs.

Under present policy, operation costs of the new four-county regional detention centre will be paid by the province, but the cost of transporting prisoners for court appearance is to be an expense of the local municipality.

However, county councillors were told that this transportation charge applied only to municipalities which had their own police force.

This would mean that only two or possibly three villages or towns would be involved.

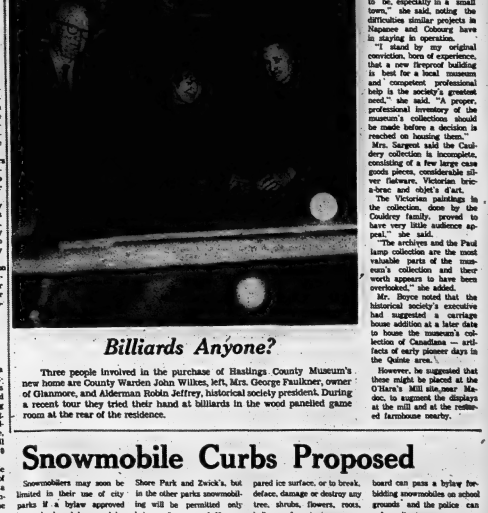
When charges are laid by provincial police, there is no direct cost to the municipality involved.

Both Belleville and Trenton have objected to the expected heavy costs in prisoner transportation and the matter is to be reviewed by provincial authorities.

Picton Parade Tomorrow

PICTON (Staff) — Santa Claus has crammed a weekend visit to Picton in his holiday travel itinerary and will greet youngsters during a parade Saturday morning. Sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, the 1970 Santa parade will include approximately 50 floats.

To encourage county-wide participation, the chamber of commerce has offered a trophy for the best community float. A prize also will be awarded in the best commercial float and the best individual float. A fourth trophy will be presented to the best marching unit.



Chamber president Ronald Scott said yesterday that three bands are expected to join the parade leaving Picton fairgrounds at 10 a.m. Saturday. The parade will travel up Main Street to Lake Street where winners will receive their trophies.

Highlighting the parade will be a number of equestrian entries among them riders from the Sophiasburg riding club.

Toast of Real Estate Board

Head table guests at the Belleville and District Real Estate Board Christmas party toast the Queen before commencing the dinner segment of their get-together. Included as head table guests were the board president Frank Fullwell, Mayor J. Russell Scott, industrial commissioner Fred Bemis and Chamber of Commerce president, Frank Murray. Over 150 people were in attendance.

Billiards Anyone?

Snowmobile Curbs Proposed

Snowmobilers may soon be limited in their use of city parks if a bylaw approved by parks board is passed by city council.

At a meeting last night, the board agreed that snowmobiles should be banned in all parks except Exhibition Park, Stanley Park, Cascade Blvd., the northern half of Hillcrest School park site, Park Dale Park, Centennial School Park, Victoria Park, CNRA field, Riverside Park, East Bay Shore Park and Zwick's Island.

There will be no time limit on Riverside Park, East Bay Shore Park and Zwick's, but in the other parks snowmobiling will be permitted only between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. daily and between 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. Sundays.

No person shall drive a snowmobile in the specified areas unless he is insured under a motor vehicle liability policy.

The bylaw also calls for the vehicle to be equipped with a muffler in good working order to prevent excessive noise and smoke.

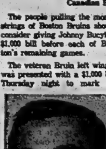
No person shall be permitted to operate his snowmobile over or along any prepared ice surface, or to break, deface, damage or destroy any tree, shrubs, flowers, roots, bushs or fences.

Violations of the bylaw would be prosecuted by the police and the penalty will be a fine not exceeding $200.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey said she had received many complaints of snowmobiles using school board property and annoying nearby residents with the noise. She said there were 45 machines on Moira Secondary School grounds last Sunday.

City solicitor John C. Miller told the board that the school board can pass a bylaw forbidding snowmobiles on school grounds and the police can enforce it.

Several parks board members noted that school grounds are already posted against "unauthorized vehicles", but the snowmobilers ignore the signs.



Board member Edward Burley said that 1,000 snowmobile licences have already been sold in the city and the operators are going to use public facilities this winter. He warned against "unfair restrictions".

What Bucyk Won't Do For $1,000!

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The people pulling the money strings of Boston Bruins should consider giving Johnny Bucyk a $1,000 bill before each of Boston's remaining games.

The veteran Bruin left winger was presented with a $1,000 bill Thursday night to mark his

JOHN BUCYK

1,000th regular-season National Hockey League game.

Bucyk showed his appreciation by scoring his 18th and 19th goals of the season and setting up four others as the Bruins walloped Buffalo Sabres 8-3.

In other games, Montreal Canadiens dumped Minnesota North Stars 6-1 and Detroit Red Wings defeated Philadelphia Flyers 3-1.

If there was any reason for Boston and Buffalo to be tied 2-2 after two periods, it was the goaltending by Daley, drafted by the Sabres this year from Pittsburgh Penguins.

In the first forty minutes of the game, the 27-year-old Winnipeg native faced the rapid-fire drives of the Bruins at the rate of one a minute.

However, the Bruins, faced with the embarrassment of succumbing to a first-year team that holds down the cellar in the East Division, seemed on to the ice for the final period and broke the Daley spell with a six-goal barrage.

In all, the Bruins blasted Daley with 72 shots, while Ed Johnston in the Boston net turned back 26.

The league's leading point-getters, Phil Esposito, Bobby Orr and Ken Hodge each scored once. Esposito's being his 23rd of the season.

The win moved the first-place Bruins two points ahead of New York Rangers in the East Division.

At Montreal left winger Jacques Lemaire tallied twice and picked up an assist as the Canadiens, shut out the night before by Toronto Maple Leafs, swamped the North Stars.

Orr Adds Four

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Bucyk of Boston celebrated his 1,000th National Hockey League game Thursday night by scoring two goals and picking up four assists in the Bruins' 8-3 romp over Buffalo Sabres.

Bucyk's six-point splurge moved him into a sixth-place tie in the NHL individual scoring race with Alex Delvecchio of Detroit Red Wings, who also has 30 points.

Bobby Orr had another big night for the Bruins, collecting four points on one goal and three assists. Orr, last year's scoring champion, holds second place in the scoring race with 42 points, nine behind league leader Phil Esposito, whose two-point performance Thursday gave him a season total of 51.

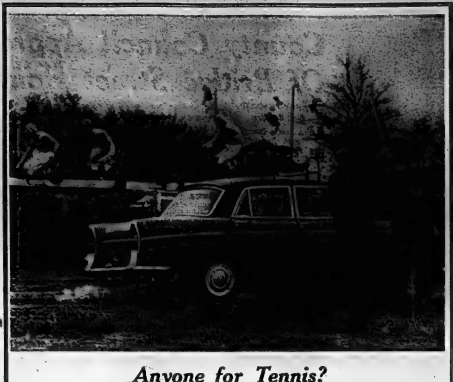
After a scoreless first period, the Canadiens snapped a 1-1 tie with a four-goal outburst and added one more in the final period.

Montreal strengthened its hold on third place in the East, nine points back of the Bruins and five ahead of fourth-place Vancouver Canucks, the NHL's other rookie club.



Tom Webster paved the way for the Red Wings' win of home ice, scoring his 11th and 12th goals of the season.

Goalie Dan McLeod, one of seven Detroit rookies in the lineup, kicked out 27 of 28 drives while Bernie Parent in the Flyers' net faced 35 shots.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Toronto lost the services of Brian Glennie when the defenceman's nose was broken by team-mate Darryl Sittler's elbow during a drill.

The Leafs also reported that Paul Henderson, who suffered a broken jaw in the game with the Canadiens when struck by Leaf Ron Ellis' shot, will play in Saturday's game against Chicago Black Hawks.

In games tonight, New York visits California Golden Seals in Oakland and St. Louis Blues play host to Pittsburgh Penguins.

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny Mostil, 74, former Chicago White Sox baseball star, raised almost as legendary Tris Speaker as a centerfielder, died Thursday after a long illness. Mostil, holder of the White Sox season record of 135 runs scored set in 1925, was in a Midlothian, Ill., nursing home for the last six months.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Fresh Yankee, 1970 Harness Horse of the Year, faces archrival Dayan and six other contenders Saturday afternoon when she tries to defend her championship in the $100,000 American Trotting Classic at Hollywood Park. Fresh Yankee, owned by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., will also try to move closer to becoming the first million-dollar trotter. With 19 victories in her last 21 starts and seasonal earnings of $332,815, Fresh Yankee seeks her 22nd win of the year in the mile-and-one-furlong race which she won last year in 2:13. Trained and driven by Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., Fresh Yankee would move into second place in career earnings with a win here. French ace Roquepine is the leader at $956,161 and Fresh Yankee has $936,642.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Chicago Bulls whipped Buffalo Braves 126-120 in a National Basketball Association game Thursday night. The closest the Braves came in making the game a close contest was in the second quarter when Buffalo managed on three separate occasions to cut the Bulls' margin to three points. Bob Kauffman, 6-9, led by Bob Kauffman, never managed to break Chicago's fast pace, set by Bob Love.

HAMILTON (CP) — Civic Stadium, home of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, has been renamed Ivor Wynne Stadium. It was announced Wednesday. Mr. Wynne, who died Nov. 1, was a former athletic director and dean of men at McMaster University and a former president of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. He was chairman of the city parks board when he died at the age of 51.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Foster said Thursday he still considers himself the light heavyweight boxing champion even though the World Boxing Association has stripped him of the title. Foster said he will fight the WBA on the sidelines and No. 1 contender Jimmy Dupree in the ring to prove it. "They're just hurting themselves," Foster said. "It's a nothing division without me. I'm still the champion until somebody beats me. I want to fight Dupree." Bill Brennan, president of the WBA, said in Richmond Wednesday Foster's crown was being lifted because his manager, Lou Viscusi of Tampa, Fla., failed to post a $5,000 forfeit bond for the fight with Dupree within 10 days after Foster was knocked out by Joe Frazier in his bid for the heavyweight title Nov. 18 in Detroit.

MIAMI (CP) — Sandy Hawley went winless for the third straight day Thursday at Tropical Park and the 21-year-old jockey from Whitby, Ont., now has only 18 racing days remaining to surpass Willie Shoemaker's record. Hawley, who had been listed with four mounts Thursday, came up with only two third-place finishes to remain 33 victories behind the record of 485 wins in one year set by Shoemaker in 1953. Hawley finished the season in Ontario with 431 wins but one victory Monday is all he has managed since moving here Sunday to finish the year in pursuit of a North American record. The entry list for today at Tropical Park has his name beside six mounts in the 10-race program.

MUHAMMAD ALI

JOE FRAZIER

Ali-Frazier Site To Be Astrodome

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Muhammad Ali was granted a boxing licence in Texas Thursday, clearing the way for a possible match with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in Houston Astrodome.

Tommy Smith, commissioner of labor statistics, who has jurisdiction over boxing licences, granted the permit after receiving notice that Ali's suit against Smith had been dismissed.

All applied to Smith for a licence a year ago but was turned down because, Smith said, it would be "detrimental to boxing in our state."

Texas law authorizes rejection of applications where the commissioner feels its issuance would be detrimental to boxing in Texas.

Ne Yorkw has a similar law, Smith said, and Ali successfully attacked it in New York courts. Smith said that left him no choice but to grant the licence.

Nicholson Upsets Collegians

'Foul' Play Wins for Saints

Quinte senior Saints were hot from the foul line, while Nicholson Catholic College who just plain hot, taking all three high school basketball contests from BCI last night.

Quinte used a 1-3-1 offence to crack Centennial's zone defence and stop the Chargers 65-51, but it was their foul shooting that made a decisive difference. The Saints hit 23 of 47 from the free throw line.

The winners lead 36-23 at half time and went on to record the win that put them in the finals against Moira for the right to represent Belleville in the annual Queen's Tournament.

Stan Brooks was top scorer for Quinte with 20 points followed by Steve Nash with 12 points and Darvin Easton with ten. Junior fill - in Rick Meagher played a strong defensive game for the Saints.

Centre Bob Henderson hooped 19 points for the Chargers as well as carrying much of the rebounding load. John Lanning followed with seven points.

Nicholson midgets sent BCI to their first defeat of the season taking a 43-43 decision. S. Calhane paced the attack with 17 points with J. Edwards adding six points and P. McCabe four.

Fred Cass potted 18 points in a losing effort.

Poor shooting in the third quarter helped send the junior Collegians to their first loss as Nicholson came up with a 13-10 win. BCI was good in only two of 22 shots from the floor after the half time break.

For BCI it was Peter LeBaron hitting for 13 and Wayne Giles adding 12 points.

Rob Woodley's 14 points weren't enough to help the senior Collegiansras they dropped a 55-49 contest. Names of the Nicholson scorers were not available.

'Forgetting Something?'

Quinte forward Tom Churchill overruns a loose ball, while Centennial's Mike Thompson prepares to make the recovery. The senior Saints came up with a 65-51 win and will go on to meet Moira for the right to represent the city in the annual Queens' Tournament, Dec. 28 and 29 in Kingston. Moira and Quinte play the deciding game Monday with the site still to be determined by a coin flip.

CARY BOWERMAN

Bowerman Noticed

Gary Bowerman's rookie performance on the United States Professional Golfers' Association tour did not go unnoticed.

The Belleville native, who for the past several years had been assistant pro at Toronto's Maple Downs Country Club, has signed a contract to represent DeSoto Lakes Golf Club at Sarasota, Florida on the 1971 PGA circuit.

Bowerman, 29, qualified in 19 of 35 PGA events on the 1970 tour, with total unofficial winnings of $11,600.

Jackson Ponders B. C. Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal says there is a possibility that Russ Jackson, retired quarterback of the Ottawa Rough Riders, will return to professional football with the British Columbia Lions.

"The Lions are thinking in terms of roughly $100,000 a year," with various payment deferrals and some real estate considerations and so on to help relieve the tax bite.

RUSS JACKSON

"Jackson will not commit himself but he does admit he would listen."

Jackson retired after playing the 1969 season in which Ottawa won the Grey Cup. He said at that time, he felt he had had enough and he wanted to devote time to his family and his career. He is principal at Champlain high school here.

When Jackson last played for Ottawa, he had a basic contract of $37,000 a season, plus bonuses.

Jackson led Ottawa to three Grey Cups since joining the club in 1958 after graduating from McMaster University in Hamilton.

Mo-Hawks Fight to Switch Losing Senior A Ways

The Belleville Mo - Hawks would rather fight AND switch.

That's the reasoning behind coach Dave Jones' plans to insert two new faces in the lineup for tonight's 8 p.m. OHA Senior A visit by Woodstock Al's.

"I want to see if I can get some hitting in the lineup" Jones said, informing that he was asking Picton Intermediate permission to borrow defenceman Greg Burkitt for tonight's game. Burkitt, a hardnosed performer with Belleville's Junior B. entry last winter, was out for the Mo-Hawk training camp and joined Picton after being cut.

The Mo-Hawks also hope to dress centre Paul Grills in an attempt to snap their current slump that has seen them drop five of their last six games.

"There's nothing outstanding about Grills," said Jones, "but he's a solid hockey player. He was out with us for last Tuesday's practice and we'd like to have a look at him for a few games."

GREG BURKITT

Going into tonight's game, the locals are 7-11, tying them with Owen Sound for fifth spot in the eight - team standings, although the Crescents have a game in hand.

Last year after 18 games, the Mo-Hawks were 9-7-2.

Woodstock, who had only five wins to show for last winter's 40 game schedule come into town tonight sporting a dismal 2-16 record. The A's have lost both their meetings with the Mo-Hawks, 9-4 and 5-4 setbacks.

"I just hope they play like a last - place team tonight," quipped Jones.

Sanders Yawns To 66

FREEPORT, The Bahamas (AP) — Doug Sanders, who said his game is not suited to early-morning play, turned in a sparkling round Thursday to take the first-round lead in the $130,000 Bahama Island open golf tournament.

Sanders, who overslept and did not have time to shave, stumbled around the 6,000-yard par-72 Emerald course at Kings Inn and Golf Club with a stubble of beard and bleary eyes. But he pulled himself together on the back nine, taking a hole in one and two consecutive birdies for a 66.

Curling Challenge Round

Stand-by Rinks Stand Out

WELLAND (CP) — Two stand-by rinks called in after cancellations stand a chance to win top positions in the Ontario Curling Association challenge round, which opened Thursday.

The two top teams at the end of the three-day event go to the Ontario championships in Guelph next month.

All games in the double-knockout challenge round are 12 ends and two losses eliminate a rink.

The OCA, invited 32 rinks and notified four rinks on a stand-by basis in case of cancellations.

Creighton, called in Wednesday night to replace an Ottawa foursome, downed Ray McGee of Unionville 10-9 in an extra end Thursday night. Earlier, he edged Joe Gurowka, also of Toronto, 10-9 in another extra end.

The other stand-by rink among the 28 rinks still alive is Gord Cavanagh's, of Toronto, with a 9-8 win over Ted Brown of Kingston in the evening and a 13-11 loss to Rich Vesey of Oshawa in the opening draw.

Of the seven other rinks with 2-0 records, four come from Toronto: Bob Churchish, Stan Jones, Bruce Munro and Paul Savage, the defending Ontario champion.

Earle Morris of Oshawa, Harvey Acton of Uxbridge and Victor Easy are the others.

Savage's rink came up with two convincing wins in the morning round although Savage was unable to play in the first because of work commitments. The rink defeated George Ellis of Waterloo 16-6 and then Harry Sheldon of Unionville, 11-6.

Munro, one of the big favorites in the event, came up with two impressive wins. His rink topped Murray McGregor of Guelph 7-5 and Cam Gujatt of Hamilton 9-5.

Former Friends Fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mando Ramos knocked out former stablemate Raul Rojas with a sharp left hook to the chin at 49 seconds of the sixth round Thursday night in the celebrated grudge match between the two 135-pound fighters from San Pedro, Calif.

Ramos, 23-4-0, former world lightweight champion, was a 3-1 favorite over Rojas, 23-5-2, former featherweight and junior lightweight king. They developed a dislike for each other during sparring sessions which often had to be cut short.

Petes Explode in Final Period

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — First-place Peterborough Petes scored only one goal against the close-checking Oshawa Generals squad in the first two periods but exploded for five in the final period to score a 6-1 victory Thursday night.

The win gives the Petes a nine-point lead over St. Catharines Black Hawks and Ottawa 67s in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Captain Greg Ramsay; the Petes' leading scorer, figured in all but one Peterborough goal. He had one goal and four assists.

Other Peterborough scorers were Skip Foster, Doug Gibson, Ron Lalonde, Brian Shortreed and Danny Gloor.

Goaltender John Garrett, leading goalie in the league, came within four minutes of his third shutout this year. Sullivan's goal came on a shot from behind the net that glanced off his pad.

He stopped 27 shots. Ted McComb, the Oshawa goalie, stopped 32.

73 Takes Cake

HAMILTON (CP) — Dick Hanscom of the U.S. Thursday won $1,000 first-prize money in the 18-hole professional golf tournament at the Mid Ocean course here. He shot a two-under-par 73.

Second- and third-place money of $800 and $600 also was shared by U.S. golfers, Lee Wood and Mike Krak, both with 74s.

One stroke back were John Davis of the Burlington, Ont., Golf and Country Club and Bruce Murray of the St. Catharines Golf and country Club.

Norman Smith of the York Downs Golf and Country Club, Downsview, Ont., finished with 77.

Amiable China Provides Puzzle for Perplexed Diplomats

LONDON (Reuter) — China is casting such a benign smile upon the outside world today that perplexed diplomats wonder whether it signifies a return to coexistence.

Chinese ambassadors have returned to their overseas posts after an absence of several years. They lift champagne glasses with the rest of the crowd to honor heads of foreign countries scourged as "foreign devils" during Pekings cultural Revolution of 1966-68.

The Chinese envoys smile freely and rub shoulders with both Western "imperialists" and Russian "revisionists." Their changed attitude is a glasses with the rest of the major topic of conversation in world centres.

By its own choice, China is no longer a rebellious outcast in the society of nations. Whatever the reasons, economists note that China's trade with the rest of the world is beginning to grow.

Every day there are reports of fence-mending, appointments of new Chinese ambassadors, trade agreements and a general improvement of relations with other countries.

A French diplomat describes the new Peking approach as "the policy of the smile." What, asks the West, is behind the smile?

China apparently wants to be friends with the world again, but in its own way and in its own time. Some countries are still waiting for the return of Chinese envoys, especially those which have close ties with the United States.

During the UN debate on China's seat, the official New China news agency expressed enthusiasm over growing support for Mao's cause.

The debate, it said, showed "the international prestige of the People's Republic of China has been mounting daily and that China has friends all over the world."

Peking's new smiling image is probably best reflected in the mirror of relations with Moscow. The two major Communist powers have just exchanged ambassadors for the first time since 1966.

Broken windows were repaired and ink stains removed from the Chinese embassy in Moscow before the arrival this week of Peking's new envoy, Liu Hsin-chuan.

One of the Chinese ambassador's first tasks is to help boost trade between the two countries, which plummeted to $8 million a year from $2.20 million in the last decade.

Another straw in the changing winds from Peking came in late November with the restoration of full ambassadorial level of China's relations with Poland. China took the initiative three months ago by sending Ambassador Yao Kuang to Warsaw. Polish Ambassador Franciszek Stachowiak recently arrived in Peking.

China is also improving relations with other East European countries closely aligned to Moscow. A new Chinese charge d'affaires was sent to Prague and trade with Czechoslovakia continues to increase.

Likewise, East Germany is building up trade with China at an estimated annual rate of 20 per cent. A new Chinese ambassador arrived in East Berlin two months ago to fill a post which had been vacant 3 years.

Chinese envoys have returned to Hungary, Rumania and Yugoslavia as well as to Albania, Peking's closest friend.

In all cases, China is casting a hungry eye on increased trade with Eastern Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Asia.

GM-Union Talks Break Down

TORONTO (CP) — Break prospects of Christmas on the picket lines came a giant step closer Thursday for 23,500 striking General Motors of Canada Ltd. employees with the collapse of contract talks between the company and the United Auto Workers union.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW international president, announced the breakdown at a news conference Thursday night, then left immediately for Detroit and a meeting with James Roche, GM chairman.

Looking strained and tired after days of hectic bargaining, the UAW boss said he hoped to get together with Mr. Roche later today or Saturday in an effort to resolve the impasse.

"I regret to announce that although the company has made a new proposal, negotiations have broken down between the UAW and General Motors of Canada Ltd.," Mr. Woodcock told reporters.

He termed GM's latest contract offer, a $4.07 hourly base rate and an additional 18 cents for cost-of-living starting in December, 1971 and ending in November, 1973, as "completely unacceptable."

The company's Canadian employees have been on strike for 17 days. In the United States, GM employees settled for $4.25 hourly plus an extra five cents in the first year for cost of living.

The American contract gives workers there a 23-cent-an-hour boost over their Canadian counterparts.

The key issue is wage parity for Canadians with Americans. Thursday, the talks in Toronto collapsed over the difference between the 1940 Canadian consumer price index and the 1961 index.

The company says it's willing to predicate the cost of living formula on the 1949 index, which would give the union men an extra cent an hour with every .8 rise.

Grenades Win Talk with Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese army doctor holding a hand grenade staged a one-man protest against government corruption on the steps of the National assembly Thursday, then later was allowed to see President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Reporters were barred from the meeting in Independence Palace.

A spokesman reported the doctor, Maj. Pham Van Luong, 34, left four fragmentation grenades at a guard post before going in to see Thieu.

Mother, Children Perish

UPTERGROVE, Ont. (CP) — A 25-year-old mother and four of her children died Thursday after she led one daughter to safety through their burning home and returned for the others.

Police identified the dead as Robina Belanger and Daniel, 8, Ann, 6, David, 5, and Gidget, 2.

The surviving daughter, Wanda, eight, is in an Orillia hospital in satisfactory condition with first-degree burns.

Constable Richard Sleet of the provincial police detachment said Mrs. Belanger led Wanda to the back door, then went back into the flames.

The mother and three of her children were found at the bottom of the stairs in the two-storey frame home. The fourth body was found in an upstairs bedroom.

The father, Maurice, was at work in Orillia at the time of the blaze, which raged for more than three hours before firemen could bring it under control.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known but nearby residents said an explosion shook the house seconds before the blaze erupted.

A member of the Orillia fire department said a tank truck had to be used to bring water from the Narrows, between Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching.

Ask Quota On Foreign Students

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario department of education committee on university affairs had drafted a report suggesting limitations be imposed on the number of foreign students entering graduate schools in Ontario universities.

The report, to be discussed Dec. 14 by Ontario university presidents and an advisory committee of the department of education, suggests ways in which foreign student enrolment could be limited.

Provincial support of foreign students without landed immigrant status prior to registration in a graduate program could be limited to up to 25 per cent of the Canadian students enrolled.

Andy Griffith Trying Again

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rarely in the sudden-death world of television does a series star get a second chance in the same season. Andy Griffith is the exception.

On Jan. 8 Griffith will turn up on CBS in The Andy Griffith Show as mayor of a southern hamlet. This may prove a mite confusing to viewers who have seen him during the first half of this season as a private school principal in Headmaster.

The reason for the switch: Headmaster didn't sell, at least not in the ratings numbers battling a television superstar such as Andy Griffith.

The man who is supervising the transformation is Aaron Ruben, a television veteran who produced the first coming of The Andy Griffith Show, then created and produced Gomer Pyle.

Ruben told about the inception of Headmaster:

"When Andy and I got together again, we both agreed: 'Let's not do what we did before. Let's do something that is more meaningful this time.'

"What we tried to do was to combine serious material with comedy, just as it is done in some of the good foreign movies and in a program like M.A.S.H. We wanted to be entertaining and yet in our own small way to deal with the problems that face young people today."

CBS was enthusiastic about the concept. And so Ruben went ahead with scripts which had a modicum of humor but dealt with such matters as dope, sex, race, etc.

It didn't work. Griffith made a brave try, but he admitted feeling uncomfortable and this seemed to be recognized by the audience.

One Sunday Griffith called on Ruben and said, "I'm uncomfortable. I want to go back to the South."

In three frantic weeks, Ruben overhauled the series. He switched Andy's wife Lee Meriwether for Claudette Nevins, and gave him a couple of cute kids (Lori Butcher and Marty McCall) and a comic sister-in-law (Anne Morgan Gilbert).

For the first show Andy is rejoined with Don Knotts, plus Fred Hartman and George Lindsay of Mayberry RFD, the spinoff of the old Andy Griffith Show.

CBS's reaction to the change: "Right on!"

Ruben's comment: "I'm truly sorry that the other show didn't work. I firmly believe there is a place for such a series, but maybe Andy Griffith was not the one to try it. What people seem to expect from him is warmth, folk humor and stories that are not giant-sized."

Tough Policy

GROSLEESIGAL, South Africa (AP) — Traffic officials said 69 of 130 auto accidents in the last six months were caused by stray animals, so policemen were ordered to shoot them. Police said two traffic cops brought down 61 goats, six oxen, two pigs and several donkeys in half an hour.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Many Bothered By Little Things

On some days my mail is filled with requests on how to overcome the "little things." The "big problems" like heart disease, cancer, emphysema, and arthritis are relegated to the back seat.

For example, consider the "little" problem of nail-care. Yesterday I received many letters from readers who are concerned about stubborn nail problems.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My nails split and peel when I put on nail polish — all kinds, any kind. Some allergic to it. Without polish my nails are fine. Thought your readers would like to know. — Mrs. E.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I read about the woman who was having trouble with splitting nails. She said she was taking gelatin, which didn't help. I had a similar experience. Then I quit using nail polish or anything else on my fingernails. After several months I noticed that my fingernails grew long and nice. Just a tip. — Mrs. M.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Your recent column included yet another pathetic letter from a woman with cracked and peeling nails. Personally, I got some excellent advice from a woman at a cosmetic counter of our largest department store. Combined with my own experience, here are some suggestions on how to eliminate cracked and peeling fingernails.

1. Stop using all nail polishes and cuticle removing preparations. This includes even so-called nail-hardening polishes.

2. Find a dish-washing detergent that agrees with you.

3. Avoid harsh household cleansers such as ammonia. Or else, wear rubber gloves when you use them. (There are many good rubber substitutes.)

4. Rub in a good handlotion at least a half-dozen times a day — or whenever your hands have been in water.

5. Buy a jar of paste polish for fingernails and a chamois buffer. Use it at least once a week. Every day is not too often.

6. When filing nails, use only the "fine" side of an emery board and file in one direction only — from the corner of the nail to the point on each side of the nail. Do not file the nail too close. Keep nails relatively short. (Chinese mandarin nails are for ladies in commercials — not for housewives.) File broken nails immediately and do nails regularly once a week.

7. Cuticles can be pushed back with an orange stick after they have been soaked and nails scrubbed with a brush.

I guarantee this system will work. It has for me and all of my friends for several years. Even my doctor has passed the word on to other patients with gratifying results.

Of course, it's important to take a nutritious, well-balanced diet with generous portions of fruit juices. All this is far better than taking enough gelatin to float a battleship!

— Mrs. K.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Ordinarily I would call our baby doctor, but my question is a bit embarrassing. My son is 11 months old. Every time I change his diaper he puts his hand in his penis, his legs fly up in the air and then he smiles. Even worse, he giggles. I try to stop him but it is getting worse. I know there is a normal curiosity, but I didn't think it began in infancy. — Mrs. H.

Comment: Don't try to stop him and "make a case out of it." The less you are evidently aware of it, the sooner he will get over the habit. As the aphorism goes: "This, too, shall pass."

Indians Postpone Their Court Battle

BRANTFORD (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court battle between the Six Nations elected council and the rival Confederacy council, which was to begin this week, has been postponed until at least January because one lawyer did not file his case outline in time.

The elected council is seeking a permanent injunction against supporters of the Confederacy, prohibiting them from demonstrating at or near the council house on the reserve near here. They obtained a temporary injunction last summer after Confederacy supporters took over the council house.

The elected council deposed Mr. Logan as hereditary chief of the Six Nations Confederacy, claiming he was deposed illegally when he was absent from the reserve in 1924. The elected council system was set up by the federal government under the Indian Act.

Two lawyers are representing the Confederacy.

John Sopinka is representing all the persons named in the injunction except Chief Joseph Logan. Mr. Sopinka did not file his case outline in time to get it on the court list for this week.

Toronto lawyer Malcolm Montgomery is representing Chief Logan. The Confederacy filed him this fall because it objected to the way he planned to state his case. He will try to prove the Indian Act is discriminatory under the Canadian Bill of Rights. If the Indian Act were proved illegal under the bill it could be thrown out, and with it would go the elected system the Confederacy opposes.

Mr. Montgomery filed a brief of his case on behalf of Chief Logan in October and was prepared to begin this week.

He said in an interview he has amended his brief, making an exception of those sections of the Indian Act that guarantees the legality of Indian treaties and defines who is an Indian.

During the court recess this summer leading up to the temporary injunction, the Confederacy supporters declared the reserve an independent nation. They demanded that the Confederacy council become its place as the recognized government.

Fraud Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's social and family service department has paid out $850 in welfare between June and November to a family that doesn't exist, police said Thursday.

According to department files, a man, his wife and their four children, were having a hard time because the father was ill.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Generals All Alike

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If you look all the generals of every country, put them in the same room, stripped them of their uniforms and their national accents, nobody would be able to tell them apart.

Generals as a class have much more in common than they have differences; they believe much the same things, react the same way toward events, and approach problems with the same attitudes, no matter which country they belong to.

Almost without exception, they are proponents of more power and more force, and are unanimously convinced that the "enemy" — however defined — can be met successfully only by expanding the role, the budget and the policies of the military.

Military education is roughly the same in every land, no matter what creed the politicians or the people profess. Professional officers tend to sympathize with each other more than they do with their own civilian populations, and as they may give lip-service to the tenets of these social bodies.

This education, until now, has been narrow, rigid, uncreative, and fatally goal-directed. The goal is military superiority, and the military considerations are the tactics and techniques that will assure this.

If U.S. generals happened to have been born in Russia, they would be interpreting the same image of what they say here; if Soviet generals happened to have been born here, they would be doing exactly the opposite. The uniforms and the goal — posts would be reversed, but the name of the game remains the same the world over.

It is too late for this. The power to annihilate has become too vast, too delicately balanced, and too irreversible, for such decisions to be shaped (if not finally executed) by the military of any nation. Once the finger presses the red button, everybody's world will go up in smoke — for the concept of "victory" is now a catastrophic illusion.

Nominally, we have "civilian control" over the military in the U.S. But the structure of the Pentagon is immense and implacable, and the final judgment of the President cannot help but be formed by this weight of opinion, attitude, and posture. Especially when the countervailing forces are relatively weak, dispersed, and lacking in official authority.

There is no "Secretary of Peace" in Cabinet, no agency specifically delegated with the task of distinguishing between real and specious needs and our megalomania for more weaponry and more megatonnage. Each day we become more like a hospital in which the patients prescribe their own dosage, while the doctors languish outside the gate. Such a hospital is not far removed from what we might rightfully call a madhouse.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 12

Your birthday today: A Pandora's box of new situations, changing conditions opens — the results of recent decisions. Where you've taken little action, your progress is difficult to organize. Where you've been striving to bring about a better life, this coming year can be a satisfying time of reward. In either case, the transformation is irreversible. Today's natives are quick-pitched, pleasant of manner, orderly in behavior.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): New ideas swarm in, more than will fit. Make notes for future reference where you can't have immediate advantage. Gadgets, appliances need careful handling.

TAURUS (Apr. 20—May 20): Feel lucky in missing some of the things you've been assigned as co-operation requires persuasion. Prices run high, too. Evening hours favor meditation.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Begin with full self-confidence or seek conditions in which you have more of it. Then do something that is not your usual habit or go to places you seldom visit.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): By the time you cope with weekend routines — an extra chore falls on you or personal competition comes from somebody — you'll be tired enough to retire early.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Stay around your home. Things have changed since you last really looked. You may want to make minor improvements. Objective thought to our health care habits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Nothing promises to go comfortably for you today. Friends have some comment to offer. Your patient acceptance of them as friends makes an essential difference, saves relationships.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): A moment's reflection will show you how to make the day's chores much lighter. Take measurements, decide color schemes. News arrives from unexpected sources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Somebody near you tries to take on more than is feasible. Ask yourself just why you find present changes undesirable. Patience is now worth your weight in gems.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Somehow make due allowances for all sorts of people with divergent opinions and good reasons for them. Get your facts straight before you speak out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your habits are in deep grooves. Don't expect too much from others, but look for the gap between yourself and more adventurous friends; seek a middle course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Formal endorsement for your plans, property deals, seems assured. You can get to more people now for agreement on what is to be done. Surprises are promised.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Consult all who are going with you, and make a tour of your neighborhood. Then venture farther into unaccustomed places, seeking nothing spectacular or extreme.

Trudeau, Bound for Far East, Won't Be Back Until February

OTTAWA (CP) — Next week will be the last in the Commons for Prime Minister Trudeau until February.

The Commons is scheduled to adjourn Dec. 18 to Jan. 11 for the holiday and Mr. Trudeau will have Jan. 9 for a Far East tour which will take up the rest of the month.

Consequently, the prime minister would like to pilot through the Commons by next Friday his own bill for further government reorganization, including creation of a department of the environment and ministries of state.

The bill would empower Mr. Trudeau to appoint more parliamentary secretaries—MPs who assist cabinet ministers in their parliamentary and administrative duties. There are already 16 of them. The posts pay $4,000 on top of an MP's regular annual salary of $12,000.

The prime minister would like to put the bill through all stages before Christmas. Chances of this appear remote at the moment but there could be agreement with the opposition for quick passage.

The opposition parties say there is just too much in the bill to get through quickly. For instance, the whole subject of pollution will be opened up.

Moreover, the bill will not be sent to a standing Commons committee but will be put through committee of the whole House, thus enabling all MPs in the 264-seat chamber to talk on each clause and present amendments.

The government used the same committee procedure with the public order bill, now law, and it took a month to get it through.

Britons Revolt

"Remember. We've only achieved parity when we've a five-to-one missile superiority."

Sprayed Manure and Threats Face Electricians

LONDON (CP) — A glimmer of hope appeared today in the five-day, hit-and-run power blackouts across Britain as unions and electricity management agreed to resume wage-talks. But union men warned there would be no reprieve from the candlelight crisis without a bigger pay offer.

As the fight soon resumed their negotiations—with the government determined there would be no settlement that merely stirred inflation fires—a national storm of protest seemed to be building up against union members.

Doctors warned that the sudden blackouts, staggered from area to area, may lead to "murder" of elderly patients deprived of body heat. The death of at least one heart patient was attributed to power failure while an attempt was made to link up heart equipment.

Army engineers rushed emergency generators to some hospitals but these provided only limited power facilities, mainly for essential operations.

As the patient "Britain" groped through darkened streets where traffic signal failures caused traffic tie-ups—and accidents—they began to fight back, threatening some union men with "punch-ups," spraying their cars with luminous paint, threatening their wives with kidnapping and bombs.

Farmers were angered as their electrically-heated barns and poultry sheds grew cold.

Farmer Harold Stewart sprayed the walls and foyer with the putrid stuff until it ran one inch thick.

"Real, ripe stuff it was," he said. "I made a right mess and a right stink."

Stores, bars and gasoline stations refused to serve power-men. A bus conductor at Shrewsbury recognized an electricity worker and told him: "Your lot have put me to a stack of inconvenience—get off, and walk."

Office and factory workers found their work places suddenly plunged into darkness—and cold meals when they arrived at their darkened homes. Some persons were caught between floors in paralyzed elevators. One apartment house was flooded by an electrically-controlled water pump that failed.

News broadcasts and television shows were suddenly cut as power control centres switched current from one area to another to spread the rationed electricity across the country.

Someone buried a brick through the window of an electricity showroom in London. Power stations received thousands of abusive telephone calls.

The General Dental Practitioners' Association recommended all dentists not to interrupt their appointment lists for power workers made free for treatment by their work-to-rule. A Nottingham real estate agent said he wouldn't sell houses to powermen.

Bomb threats against electricity stations and power workers' homes were received in several areas. None developed into violence.

"I don't get a hot drink for breakfast—I don't see why they should get a loaf for tea," declared baker Robin Prior, announcing he refused to sell to electricians.

In London, 250 housewives said they wouldn't pay the £1 standing charge on electric bills because of the "enormous inconvenience" suffered.

A candle shortage forced prices sky-high. A lodge fined one candle thief £20, admonishing him for this crime in the current crisis.

For periods, the House of Commons had to hold candlelit sessions, with one candle carefully doled out to each senior member of Parliament.

Professor Is Rapped By Forsey

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The concept that a new constitution should contain everything "but the kitchen sink" boiled over into a heated debate Thursday night during hearings of the federal constitutional committee.

Senator Eugene Forsey, a Newfoundland - born constitutional expert, expressed dismay after public hearings in four major cities of southwestern Ontario that people are expecting to put everything into a new constitution from job-security to building a cross-Canada pipeline.

"I'm afraid people are trying to put into a constitution everything but the kitchen sink," he told Prof. Ed Rathomby, one of three University of Windsor law professors who presented briefs to the joint Senate-Commons committee before about 200 spectators, mostly teen-agers, at the university law building.

The 21-member committee, under Chairman Mark MacGuigan, Liberal MP for Windsor-Walkerville, has heard about 45 briefs in sittings this week in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Windsor. It returns to Ottawa today.

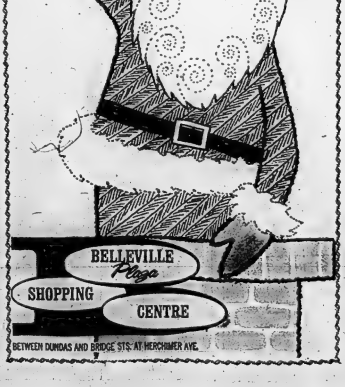
Marchand Denies Favoritism

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand has reacted those who allegad a Quebec bias in the government's industrial incentive programs, saying the Atlantic provinces and the Prairies have received more incentive money for each of their unemployed than has Quebec.

Mr. Marchand told the Commons Thursday that in Quebec, $32 million had been committed in incentives since the start of the program—1½ years ago—$200 for each unemployed in the province.

The four Atlantic provinces had received $34 million, or $1,000 for each unemployed—a figure for the Prairies worked out to $250 for each unemployed person.

Mr. Marchand was starting debate on second reading of a bill to expand the incentive program to cover new kinds of industry and new areas. Debate continues on the bill today.



Earlier Thursday, the Commons gave second reading and sent to the welfare committee for clause-by-clause study the government's bill to increase the basic old age pension to $80 from $75 and raise the maximum supplement to $55 from $50.

Ease Tension

HALIFAX (CP) — Legislation to ease labor tension and to stimulate housing construction were among the major items outlined Thursday in the speech from the throne opening the Nova Scotia legislature.

The labor legislation, to be introduced today, is directed primarily at union-management relations in the construction industry, but also includes a measure to give fishermen collective bargaining rights. It will also limit the use of ex parte injunctions in labor disputes.

UK Power Crisis Worsening Daily

Unemployment Highest Level In Nine Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Monthly unemployment figures in 1970 will average more than six per cent, making it the worst year for the jobless in nine years.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson is counting on a steadily declining rate of unemployment over the next several months but official sources hint that there might well be little improvement in the annual figure projected for 1971.

The government and economists generally attach great importance to the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment each month. This is arrived at by mathematical and statistical processes designed to show the effect of unemployment if all the usual seasonal variations are taken out.

But they barely disguise the fact, for instance, that 476,000 workers out of a total labor force of 8,400,000 were unemployed at mid-November. That was an increase of 57,000 people without jobs from mid-October, when one in every 39 workers was unemployed.

The 476,000 people out of work last month compared with 354,000 in November last year, when the total labor force numbered only 8,115,000.

The sharpest increase in the unemployed this fall was among young people, either just out of school or university.

A year ago, 75 out of every 1,000 young men and women aged 14 to 24, nominally in the labor force, were without jobs. This November, the figure rose to 102 out of every 1,000. There were actually 140,000 jobless in this age group a year ago; and 212,000 in November this year.

Backlash Developing

LONDON (AP) — Official sources said the British government asked the queen today to proclaim a state of emergency permitting nationwide rationing of electricity in the six-day power dimout.

Royal assent was expected shortly as a formality. The Queen headed back to Buckingham Palace from a visit outside London for an evening meeting with the Privy Council, her top advisers.

Prime Minister Edward Heath and his cabinet issued no public statement after conferring for two hours on the power crisis, brought on by a slowdown of 125,000 electricity workers in a pay dispute.

But informants said the government planned a series of measures restricting non-essential use of power as soon as the emergency proclamation took effect. Thea measures included a ban on advertising signs and shop displays.

The sources said the government intended to supervise closely the distribution of power to industries but did not plan stringent control of lighting and heating for Britain's 18 million homes.

The sweeping regulatory powers sought by the government would come into effect as soon as the royal seal has been placed on the emergency proclamation. Violators would face penalties to be announced at the same time.

Parliament is expected to receive the measures Monday.

ATHENS (Reuter) — The Greek government introduced life imprisonment today for people involved in smuggling and illegal selling of narcotics on a large scale. A royal decree published in the official gazette also said that people arrested for trafficking in narcotics are liable to prison terms ranging from five to 20 years.

WOODSTOCK (CP) — For 750,000 unemployed Canadians it is going to be a bleak Christmas, says David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor. In a speech today to a local of the Textile Workers Union of America, Mr. Archer said government cannot be allowed to use the suffering of the unemployed to further their economic theories.

Dick Ellis Rink Topped Off

Aiming at a completion date of the first week in February, workers are driving ahead on the Dick Ellis Rink adjacent to Centennial Secondary School. This week, 100-foot prestressed concrete T-beams made by Wilson Concrete Products were hoisted into place in preparation for roofing the structure. Carr-Brant Construction of Belleville is the general contractor for the $305,000 rink.

Job Incentives Preoccupy House

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment and the need for new initiatives in the Canadian economy were the main concerns in Commons debate Friday over amendments to broaden the government's industrial incentives program.

Opposition MPs spun out the debate for the full day, leaving no chance for Prime Minister Trudeau to expound as expected on plans for creation of a giant new department of the environment. Second-reading consideration of the bill will continue Monday.

But the prime minister was given several opportunities to handle questions about a high rate of unemployment among young people. He said during question period the government is concerned about the problem, but its policies should not "discriminate against the aged people in favor of youth."

The incentives bill, following from announcements in the budget speech last week, would extend the present program of grants and loan guarantees to manufacturing firms to the service industries.

The designation of Montreal was a bitter thought for Louis-Roland Comeau (P C—South Western Nova) who suggested the government has written off the Atlantic provinces since the Conservatives hold 25 of the 32 House seats in the area.

The new designated area brings all of Canada east of Ontario, except for Labrador, into the incentive plan. Mr. Comeau protested there was little sense in providing incentives if they also applied in Montreal.

Doctors Say Medical 'Trick' May Enable Body Transplants

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Two scientists say they have developed a method to isolate a substance from human cells that, injected into a transplant patient, may "trick" the body into accepting a donated organ.

Dr Ralph A. Reisfeld and Dr. Michael Pellegrino of Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation said Friday their work could solve the major problem of transplantation—rejection by the body of a foreign organ.

"We have isolated and purified transplantation antigens from human cells in test tubes which could be injected into a recipient so that his body accepts someone else's organ," Dr. Reisfeld said in an interview.

Antigen, he explained, is a substance that when introduced into the body stimulates the production of an antibody.

The problem of rejection has been so formidable, he said, that efforts to transplant organs such as the heart have almost stopped after most failed.

"The key factor," he added, "is that the body of the recipient recognizes most tissue transplants as foreign."

"Then, the same antibody system that protects people against infections goes to work and destroys the tissue."

Under the new process, Reisfeld said, "white blood cells would be drawn from a prospective organ donor by growing them in tissue culture in the laboratory."

"The antigens in the donor cells would then be extracted and injected into the recipient."

This would desensitize the patient, he said, and "trick" his body into accepting the donated organ.

The scientists said they achieved isolation of transplantation antigens by bombarding living cells with low-frequency sound waves and chemical separation.

"So far we've worked only with animals and the results are most encouraging," Reisfeld noted. "But with additional tests and approval by the Food and Drug Administration we will be able to test our process in humans within a year."

Current work, he added, aims at long-range the method of taking white blood cells from a prospective donor, isolating antigens from them and injecting them into a prospective transplant patient.

"This desensitization process," Reisfeld said, "may enable people to tolerate transplants from others who are antigenically very different."

Sugar Harvest Comes First

Cubans to Celebrate Christmas... But Not Until July

HAVANA (Reuter) — Thrilled Cuban children pressed their noses to store windows this week, fascinated by the display of shiny new toys from Russia and China.

It was a reminder that Christmas and the New Year are near. But for their parents the holiday season is still more than seven months away.

Premier Fidel Castro Monday announced Christmas celebrations would be postponed until July because work was going ahead on the current sugar-cane crop.

Christmas last year was also postponed to July this year and Castro hinted Monday the change might well be permanent.

He felt the traditional manner of celebrating Christmas with decorations, lights, greeting cards and religious scenes was not suited to his tropical island.

The greeting cards were still to be found a few years after Castro took power in January, 1959, but these now have disappeared. So have the stars, garlands and other decorations from the streets and windows of the state-run stores.

But for the children of Cuba it is still a season for presents although they can hardly believe now in the Cuban version of Santa Claus.

In the traditional Cuban Christmas, children place three shoes by a window so that the three biblical wise men passing by on a camel, an elephant and a white charger can put their gifts in the shoes.

But children no longer hear their parents talking about the gift-bearing wise kings. Instead, there is talk about the problem of buying toys and the lines which must be formed outside the stores to purchase the best ones.

Parents are given coupons to buy toys for children under 12. Each child is allowed one toy worth more than $2 and two others valued at less than $3.

In an effort to avoid long lines, the internal trade ministry has issued instructions to stores that purchase orders be taken over the telephone and early callers be served first.

The big day for the children is not Dec. 25 but Jan. 6 the Day of the Wise Men. It has been renamed the Feast of the Children and parents will hand over to the youngsters on this day Russian bicycles, Chinese-made toy machine-guns, jet planes, cars, dolls and kitchen cutlery among other items.

The adults' feast day will come after the crop is harvested in July. Meanwhile, it is work as usual on Christmas Day, New Year's Day and even on Jan. 2, the anniversary of Castro's triumph.

For them there will be no extra rations or rum, pork, honey and almonds, the traditional food and drink of Christmas in Cuba. They must wait for the feast of the sugar cane harvest.

Prenatal Course Is Held At OSD

A workshop held at the Ontario School for the Deaf from Monday to Friday prepared a number of public health nurses from various health units of mid Eastern Ontario to educate couples on childbearing and parenthood.

Under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Stucker, provincial consultant in maternal and child health, the first day's program included a discussion of the philosophy of parent education by Miss Stucker. The participants divided themselves into groups and practised communicating skills. They also saw a film entitled Eye of the Beholder on the subject of perception.

On Tuesday Dr. R. Ehasen, medical officer of maternal and child health gave a talk on family planning and the latest theories of prenatal nutrition. The participants saw a film on the father's role during pregnancy which is shown at classes for parents - to - be.

On Wednesday Miss Jean Guthrie, provincial Eastern consultant in nutrition discussed what food means to various people and Miss Stucker led a discussion on the different cultural views on child rearing. On Thursday, Dr. Jean Alexander, pediatrician from Beechgrove School, Kingston, discussed the implications of husband-wife relationship. A videotape showing different reactions to parenthood was shown.

On Friday Dr. J. R. Richard, chief of obstetrics, Belleville General Hospital discussed highlights in obstetrics and the implications for nursing. A review of the whole workshop was held to enable the participants to take back the benefits of the workshop to their health units. Each day they also practised relaxation, rest positions and muscle toning and discussed the importance of posture both during pregnancy and at other times.

The workshop was convened by Miss Ethel Hounslow, supervisor with Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit. She was assisted by the staff nurses of the Hastings and Prince Edward County health unit.

The participants were welcomed by Dr. C. B. Lenk, medical officer of health and Mrs. Jean Hyatt, Director of Nursing, Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit.

Jaundice Warning For Quinte Area

The Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit says that infectious hepatitis — commonly called yellow jaundice—is prevalent in parts of the Quinte district.

The report does not pinpoint any local concentrations of the infection but says it has been prevalent "for some time" in some localities in the area served by the unit.

Every case of suspected jaundice should be reported to a physician, says health officer Dr. C. B. Lenk.

But "drastic measures" — including school shutdowns — don't prevent the infection spreading, and are not advocated by experts.

Massive injections are not prescribed either, since they are of doubtful value and are "not devoid of dangers," he said.

The disease is most probably caused by personal contact, contaminated water and "unhygienic toilets.

"Commonsense and cleanliness and other preventive measures produce good results", said Dr. Lenk.

The disease is so mild many children and adults may not be aware they have contacted jaundice. However, it is difficult to prevent it spreading, he said.

Truckers Meet Again

DHO Snowplow Operator Meets Man He Saved

Rush Waite, 31, of Brighton, awarded the Dunlop Company's trophy for an act of bravery above and beyond the call of duty had met Wilson Concrete's truck driver Edward Lacroix once before last March under somewhat different circumstances.

Mr. Waite, a snowplow operator with the Ontario Department of Highways, was working in the DHO salt barn in Codrington on a rainy spring day when Mr. Lacroix was unloading concrete blocks from his delivery truck. As Mr. Lacroix swung the boom of his crane around, it hit a 4,800 volt overhead hydro cable and still clutching the control unit and current carrying cable, he was thrown to the wet ground.

Mr. Waite saw and heard the flash and ran across the yard, grabbing a piece of board as he ran. With this, he tried to push the cable away from the injured driver but received a bad shock.

Thinking the truck's engine might be adding to the trouble, he attempted to switch it off, but had the presence of mind to flick his glove at the truck's body first. He was thrown back by the shock.

Another attempt to free Mr. Lacroix from the cable gave Mr. Waite his third shock. He ran back to the barn and found a dry eight-foot length of wood. With this he was able to lever the control unit and cable away from Mr. Lacroix. Risking further shocks, he half-pulled half-carried the trucker to lance.

For his action Mr. Waite was picked by the judges from among 19 nominees for the National Truck Hero Award of 1970. A calm and retiring man he has found the consequences of his act more nerve-wracking than his life-saving deed itself. His worst moment came he says, when he faced television cameras in Toronto in November during ceremonies connected with the presentation of his award.

Mr. Waite received the here trophy — an inscribed silver rose bowl on rosewood, a parchment citation, an inscribed watch, a cheque for $500 and an all-expense-paid week in Toronto for him and his wife.

Mr. Waite was born a few miles from where he now lives on his 125-acre farm near Brighton. Before the war he sailed on the Great Lakes as a merchant sailor and during the war was a telegraph operator on Royal Canadian Navy minesweepers.

He started his own trucking operation after the war and ran it for almost 20 years. For the past eight years he has worked his farm in the summer and driven snowplows in the winter.

The man who nominated him for the Dunlop Company award, DHO district engineer D. P. Collins, was on hand for the reunion of the two truckers yesterday.

For Mr. Lacroix the occasion was an opportunity for another reunion — with his fellow truckers at the Wilson Plant. Still recovering from the deep burns he received when 4,000 volts of electricity coursed through his body for several minutes, he hopes eventually to return to work at the plant.

Bogus Bills In Belleville

A counterfeit $10 bill turned up in the bank deposit of a Front Street merchant yesterday and police have issued an alert to all city business operations.

The bogus bill was passed at Meagher's Men's Wear in the last two days, say police, the office to await an ambu-

Snowmobilers Frustrated

A near miss by winter has moaned up an entire weekend for Quinte - area snowmobilers.

Winter sportsmen — promised a four-inch snowfall yesterday were left dry and disappointed when the storm skirted the area by way of Lake Ontario.

The snow missed the Quinte shoreline by about eight miles, the CFB Trenton weather forecaster said today.

For the rest of the weekend, only a few snowflurries are expected, the forecaster said.

with a request to approve them for an initial period of up to 28 days. They could be renewed later.

As lights across the country flickered and died for the sixth consecutive day, there was evidence that much of England faced a Christmas by candlelight.

Christmas lights, store windows, advertising signs, street lighting and power used by non-essential industries could be cut off or rationed so that hospitals, homes and important industries can be served.

The unions say the government is making them scapegoats in the anti-inflation battle. Parliamentary backlash appeared growing against the workers today.

Electricity boards across the nation asked citizens to stop attacks and threats on their personnel. The Yorkshire board ordered its men to go on outside jobs in pairs for protection, and a union leader said: "If the violence continues and if there is any damage to property, we will close down all the power stations in Yorkshire."

Anti-strikers were sprayed with acid and windows of homes and offices smashed. Stores and restaurants were closed to serve electricians. Abusive and obscene telephone calls went to strikers' homes.

Sunday Races Get Approval

Belleville Parks Board decided Thursday to permit motorcycle races on Sundays at Exhibition Park after a spokesman for the Pinton Pumbers Motorcycle Club appeared before it to request rental of the park for three Sundays next year.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey, a former opponent of Sunday races, made the motion to rent the track, although, she said, "I still respect my Sundays."

But, she said, it seemed unfair that snowmobile owners can run through the parks day and night when motorcycle race spectators who perhaps cannot afford snowmobiles, are denied their sport.

Still to be settled is the sum to be paid for reconditioning the track with rock dust each fall. The Quinte Riding and Driving Club spends about $2000 for the rock dust for annual reconditioning, and wants other track users to share the cost. The matter will be discussed at the next parks board meeting, but Garry Sherman, spokesman for the motorcycle race sponsors, said the decision on the allocation of costs "may change the whole picture".

He said he personally considers it unfair to ask the motorcyclists to assume one-half the yearly cost.

Parks board also decided to rent Exhibition Park next June 27 for a repeat of the successful Highland Tattoo, held for the first time in Belleville last summer.

Council Appoints Land Committee

Hastings county council Thursday appointed a seven-member land division committee to deal with land split requests in county municipalities not having their own committees of adjustments.

The land division committee members approved by council were recommended by the new Hastings County Planning Board.

They are: Bruce Ford, Tyendinaga; Donald Rogers, Rawdon; Vincent Hagerty, Hungerford; Kenneth Holland, Huntingdon; Edward Cobden, Rawdon; Elmer Bronson, Marmora; Ralph Martin of Faraday township.

The report of the county planning board, outlining its functions and duties, was presented by board chairman William Shannon who recently resigned as Marmora reeve to take on the duties of village clerk.

Mr. Shannon said it was the responsibility of the county planning board to undertake a county planning program with the final objective of preparing the official planning document - an official plan of the Hastings County Planning Area; 2. secondary plans for the urban areas where these are considered necessary, and 3. zoning bylaws for the participating municipalities.

Board Suggests Portable Benefits

With the formation of the Quinte Planning Area, the future of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board as a separate entity is short.

For the benefit of the planning staff, the board Thursday recommended that the employees of the BSPB be transferred to the Quinte Planning Board in similar positions and salary, with the understanding that positions and salaries will likely be reviewed.

The board also requested that all benefits under Annual Leave and Sick Leave Plans be credited to those employees as if they had been continuously employed by the QPB, without a split in benefits.

Car allowances are also included in these requests, subject to review by the new board.

Gas-Wash Complex Planned for Mall

Bruce Hill, marketing and developing representative for Shell Oil of Canada, Thursday night outlined plans for a new car wash and gas bar complex before the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

The complex will be situated on the southwest corner of the new mall. Major approval is received on the site plans.

The 42,000 sq ft. lot will contain a drive-through mlouts car wash and gas bar. Mr. Hill explained that six men would be needed at all times, but this would not be a service station, simply a dispenser of gas and suds.

Completely landscaped, the Shell company complex will have an entrance onto the mall.

Planning board last night expressed concern over the exits and entrances on the proposed gas station.

Bert Kenny, planning director, explained that the city lem af its meeting next week. traffic committee will be considering the traffic flow problem.

At the last meeting of the planning board, the entrance to the plaza was considered against policy. Local consultation on the part of the board, revealed, however, that an entrance to the plaza would be allowed.

Allan Ralley Resigns Liberal Party Post

PICTON (Staff) — Allan Ralley, president of the Prince Edward - Lennox riding Liberal association, will not stand for re-election to office. He informed fellow association members of his decision during an annual meeting held in Pinecrest Memorial School, Bloomfield.

Mr. Ralley stated that he would "withdraw to the background" for three reasons. He explained that he did not feel he was the right person for the job, noted that there was no real "volunteering" among association members to assist in riding association work and said that the association was avoiding involvement with issues.

Mr. Ralley observed that he and other members have neglected to write letters to newspaper editors concerning discussion topics and added that no one was "beating the drum for Liberalism".

The president stressed that members must become involved with issues if the association expects to gain public attention. He suggested investigations of the county system of government, assessment, and the large sums spent by the government on printing alone as keys to involvement.

A group of more than 20 persons attending the meeting voted to retain the present executive for another term. It was clarified, however, that executive members will resign next month and an election of officers will be conducted in Bloomfield on January 12. Association members expect to have a larger turnout to be addressed by a guest speaker.

Reeve of South Marysburg township and recently defeated in a municipal election, Mr. Ralley has been rumored to be a possible candidate for the Liberal party in Prince Edward - Lennox. He told members of the local Liberal association that he feels the next provincial election will be held in April.

Mr. Ralley said that he felt the association should choose its candidate immediately after the Liberal convention to be held in Toronto in late January.

New Glen Miller Bridge Construction Started

The long - awaited construction of the new Glen Miller bridge over the Trent River two miles north of Trenton is under way.

Reeve Kenneth Smith, chairman of the county roads and bridges committee told county councillors this week that the contract for the bridge construction had been let to Cooper - Ellis Ltd. of Ottawa for $426,640 and that work had already been started on the east approach.

The tender by the Ottawa firm was the lowest of seven received for the project. Pre-stressed concrete deck beams for the bridge have already been fabricated by Wilson Concrete of Belleville.

The new bridge will replace the present swing structure over the Trent Canal and the long obsolete two - lane span over the Trent River.

Construction scheduling for the new structure, to be built immediately to the north of existing bridge, calls for the east approach ramp, one abutment and two piers to be proceeded with this winter.

This would permit erection of the girders and pouring of the deck on the section over the canal early next year during the spring runoff.

Hopes are that the remaining piers and the west approach ramp can be done next summer with the entire bridge completed before the end of 1971.

The design of the new bridge will give a 22 - foot clearance between the high water level and the underside of the bridge girders.

Reeve Smith in his report said that serious problems had been encountered with the Anderson's Island Bridge southwest of Stirling as result of rotting of the timber deck.

The entire deck had been replaced with galvanized steel grating designed for bridges. With installation of the grating it is expected that snow and ice hazards during the winter will be reduced.

Plans also call for replacing of the CNR timber bridge on County Road 8 — Moira Road. A submission has been made to the Canadian Transport Commission for approval to proceed with the work and for a ruling on cost sharing. The county expects a considerable grant from the CTC and also from CN.

Reconstruction of County Road 5 from Foxboro to Highway 37 (old Modest Lane) was said to have progressed well despite adverse weather conditions but was expected to be closed down shortly for the winter months.

Pre - engineering on several other county road projects was said to be progressing and property acquisition plans are being prepared for Road 5 west of Frankford; for Road 7 from Highway 401 to Shannonville, and for Road 13 from Highway 37 to Shore.

Five Candidates For Warden's Job

The 1971 wardenship for Hastings county is in great demand.

This was indicated Thursday when, at noon luncheon on the last day of their December session, no less than five county reeves announced they would be in the running for the warden's chair in February.

Aspirants for the job of heading county council next year are Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen; Menie Hamm of Limerick; Carman Gibson of Tyendinaga; Jack Bush of Sidney, and Kenneth Smith of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe.

Of the five aspirants, Limerick Reeve Merton Hamm has the longest experience on county council. With a break away from county council a few years ago, Reeve Hamm is now commencing his ninth year as head of his municipal council.

The next longest county council service of the five aspirants belongs to Reeve Gibson who has been reeve and deputy reeve for six years.

This year's warden John Wilkes of Marmora will conclude a term of county council for the balance of 1970 and until the middle of January when council meets for its 1971 inaugural session.

The Mass Media

Release of the report of the Senate Committee on Mass Media at this time calls to mind the words of Shakespeare's Hamlet: "When troubles come they come not single spies but in battalions." Not that 'trouble' is the appropriate word in this context, but rather that there has been so much of late to digest — the White Paper on Social Welfare Reforms, the budget, the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, and now this.

Aside from the economics of the recommendations (for example, the call for removal of tax exemptions on the Canadian editions of Time Magazine and Reader's Digest, and advocacy of a five-year grant, rather than an annual one, to the CBC), what has the committee to say about the overall quality of the media in Canada today?

Well there is no profession that can claim to be above criticism and the media by its very nature, displaying its strengths and weaknesses in public (a phenomenon shared only to a small degree by other professions and businesses) is particularly vulnerable to public criticism. That is as it should be, for the public which subscribes to a newspaper seeks from it a wide range of the news of the day, in addition to advertising and informed comment on local and world events. How effectively then does the media discharge its responsibility in this regard? The Committee's findings are not flattering.

Although profitable to its owners, the Committee finds, "there is something about the media that is turning people off." Not because of bias, sensationalism or superficiality, but rather "there is something more basic (says the report written by Toronto writer Alexander Ross of The Financial Post) than the failings which all these archaic weapons words describe."

Ross goes on: "It has got something to do with society itself, and the way it is changing and the way people react to it. If the media turns people off, it is because society at large turns them off. If newspapers are losing friends, it is part of the same process by which Parliament is losing friends, and the courts, and the corporations, and the schools, and the churches."

It is a penetrating analysis, this observation of Alexander Ross, and without being specific it seems to open up the whole malaise not only of the media but of society at large. For does not the Press mirror the society of our time and there is plenty that we see wrong there.

The Committee says there is vast room for improvement in Canada's press, radio and television and it asks the public to become involved to this end. This newspaper does not think local Press Councils are the answer, for they would serve only to compromise the professionalism and autonomy of the media, but there is merit in suggesting the public become more interested in the product.

This newspaper has always welcomed letters; as the report says, instead of complaining out loud to your television set (or newspaper or radio) — as do four out of ten Canadians — telephone the owner or write to the editor. "Call it on the hot line," it says. "Speak to the advertiser. Share the performance."

The committee's advice is valuable. In passing, we might mention the committee's views on the student press in Canada; they are revealing. The best of the lot, the report says, is professional, shrill, scurrilous ,radical, tasteless, inaccurate, obscene and wildly unrepresentative of its campus audience — but it has always been thus. How true! But then, the students grow up, shedding their immaturity, their vulgarity, and know-it-all attitudes. Meanwhile, the committee finds the campus publications good training grounds for journalists. And in this regard, incidentally, the report suggests the establishment of university scholarships for bright journalists.

A Fresh Approach

One of the 1971 Canadian calendars contains some interesting new scenes. Instead of the same familiar shots this one includes pictures of Teslin Lake — a dreamy, other-worldly spot in the Yukon, far from the cities, and the icy beauty of the waters around Ellesmere Island in the Northwest Territories. A snowbound cabin in Yoho national park in British Columbia is another impressive picture and there is a scene of more familiar terrain in the shape of Ontario woodlands in autumn. Scenes from the other provinces — the pictures are by George Hunter — complete this fine new addition to Canadian calendar art.

Setback for Leader's Hopes
Creditistes Strange About-Face on FLQ Issue

By GREG CONDOLLIFF,
Ottawa Bureau Chief

OTTAWA — If Real Canada is serious about reviving the Social Credit party on the national scene and becoming its leader, he has suffered a major setback in recent weeks through the incredible performance of Creditiste MPs in the Commons.

Mr. Caouette and his MPs in the Commons followed such an irrational course in the debates over handling the FLQ crisis in Quebec as to raise the question of their fitness to be in Parliament.

And when one considers some of the unusual gentlemen who have sat in the Commons over the years, that is quite an indictment of the Creditiste faction from Quebec.

When the FLQ situation first developed in Quebec there had been appeals and murder the Creditistes were strong supporters of repressive measures. No one was tougher than Mr. Caouette who wanted to line the FLQ members up against a wall and shoot them.

But as time moved along and the Commons turned to substantive legislation for the War Measures Act, the Creditistes began to oppose these penalties for the FLQ and for the weirdest of reasons.

One Creditiste MP did not like the new bill because there was no review board provided. Why did he want a review board? Well, he had heard about a poll in Quebec which showed that most people there thought terrorism were a poor lot and that judges only got appointed because of their political connections.

Another disciple of Real Caouette was against the anti - FLQ measures because it was aimed at Quebec. He did not explain why it should be designed for other provinces where the FLQ does not exist. He just felt Quebec was being discriminated against.

Yet a third Creditiste objected to the bill sponsored by Justice Minister Turner because he had had several run-ins with the Ontario provincial police. He had been arrested in English, tried in English and fined in English. He did not like that at all and this seemed to him a reason for voting against legislation to curb the FLQ.

During the third reading vote on this Public Order bill all the Creditistes in the Commons joined their unlikely allies, the New Democrats and Tory Conservatives, trying valiantly to defeat the measure. Mr. Caouette was away for this vote and probably it was just as well for his mental well being.

One newspaper editor who watched the Creditistes in action finally shook his head and declared they were just "incomprehensible."

The Creditistes have been regarded as a small "c" Conservative, rural group distinguished by adherence to Social Credit fiscal and monetary theory. They would have the state take over the Bank of Canada and provide money for state purposes without oppressive interest charges.

Apart from this lack of orthodoxy, the Creditistes had seemed to be fairly normal members of the House of Commons. They have had some lively ones like the Gilles Gregoire who was arrested on Parliament Hill by the RCMP because he would not pay his speeding tickets.

Gregoire used to live in a boat in the Rideau Canal near the Hill. Whether it was this mode-of-life that influenced him, he quit the Creditistes and joined Rene Leveque's Parti Quebecois.

There was another Creditiste MP who disappeared into the enemy side of Hull, across the Ottawa River from Ottawa, and had to give up his political career.

If one goes back to the time when Social Credit and Creditism were one and the same, it could be said that several other MPs of this group have been somewhat diverted by fate. There is for example Bob Thompson, the former Second National leader, like a Conservative middle-bencher in the Commons. And there is Bud Olson, a Liberal minister of Agriculture of all things.

But Mr. Caouette has been talking about getting the national party going again and he has aroused some interest in this project in Alberta and British Columbia. If he is going to use that group of Creditistes in Ottawa as the base for his new grouping, he is leaning on a mighty frail foundation.

Five-year-Olds Type

German Features

HEIDELBERG — Experimental educators in West Germany are teaching five - year - olds to type.

The first experiment is being carried out in the town of Eppelheim near Heidelberg, where 165 kindergarten children are also learning to read and write.

Under the so - called "Eppelheim" program, the pupils start off on special typewriters with the ten-finger system.

Each key has a different color, which is also dashed into the child's corresponding finger nails. The text to be written is programmed into the typewriter.

Each time Johnny or Jane hits a false letter, the key fails to operate. The child sees what he has written in front of him, which simultaneously teaches him to read the printed word.

Still Going Strong

This Moffat printing press in the public library in Kimberley, South Africa, once produced Twsana catechisms and Bibles — the first pirnted in a Bantu language. Abandoned and then restored, the press dates from 1831. Here Mrs. Carole Humphries of Uje library staff shows that the equipment is still in excellent working order.

And There Is Word From a Non-Voter Education — How Much Do The Critics Know First-Hand?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In answer to letters from E. King and Mother of Two, published in Intelligencer's edition of The Intelligencer, I propose to do something that your columnist, Lenny Williamson, failed to do in a recent series of articles regarding the educational system in Hastings County — to inform the public.

There seems to have been a consensus in the letters of the aforementioned writers that the administrative group was at best, overpaid, and at worst, unnecessary. I believe writer Williamson similarly implied this was so.

I wonder if these correspondents and the multitude who have stayed away from the election polls represent the opposite ends of the public spectrum of opinion with regard to the quality of education in the area.

If The Intelligencer's figures are accurate, and even though all will have to share the education costs in Hastings County during the next two years, approximately 10 per cent of the eligible voters bothered to take a hand in the selection of those who will determine the latter school. This turnout suggests that few people actually care about the likely increase in education costs over the next two years.

Could this indicate a similar lack of agreement with the a forenamed correspondents? Or, could it be taken as tacit agreement with the salaries being paid and the policies being established by "this veritable pyramid of power"? (to quote writer King.)

To both readers and to others who are in silent agreement, I pose the following questions:

(a) On what first-hand experience and comments regarding the quality of education in Hastings County have readers based you visited any school recently, except by invitation?

(b) By what yardstick are you measuring the quality of education, past and present, in Hastings County? Is what was good enough in the "good old days when I went to school" applicable now? Is what is good enough in the "good old days when I went to school" applicable now? Is what is good enough in the "good old days when I went to school" applicable now? Is what is

More Turn to Contemplation As Solution to Living Today

LAKE DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — More and more people seem to be turning to contemplation as a solution to man's problem of living in today's hypertense, overcrowded world, that's the conclusion at a retreat house near Dallas, in its case.

The Jesuit-run Montserrat Retreat House here is steadily growing in popularity. Nearly 750 persons so far this year have put home, business and recreation aside for three days to "retreat" to this quiet spot about 20 miles north of Dallas.

The attendance shows a steady increase over the 679 retreatants in all of last year and the 600 the year before. A total of 16,000 persons have come to Montserrat since it opened its doors 11 years ago.

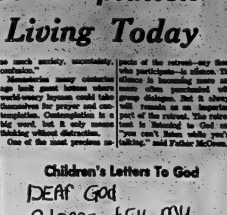
Protestants as well as Roman Catholics are looking to what Rev. J. H. McCown, one of the retreat directors, prefers to call "Homes of Renewal" for spiritual and psychological refurbishment to cope with life.

It's not a new idea. Aristotle — whose philosophy has influenced Christian philosophy — believed contemplation was the highest and most perfect form of happiness.

Christ himself, his disciples, back from strenuous missionary activity, "Come apart into a desert place and rest a while."

Outside the Christian sphere, many Eastern religions have been strong exponents of contemplation and some people today are turning to Buddha and the Hindu disciplines called yoga for the same freedom of the individual accomplished by joining with the "Universal Spirit."

Father McCown said the retreat house may help man find a peaceful, creative life even today.



"Never was there a greater need for this kind of renewal," the priest explained. "Never such distractions, such noises, such demands for our attention, so much anxiety, uncertainty, pain of the retreat—my term for contemplation."

Monasteries many centuries ago built great homes where world-weary laymen could take themselves for prayer and contemplation. Contemplation is a big word, but it only means thinking without distraction.

One of the most precious moments of the retreat—my term—is the silence in between times when other participants are following their own personal programs of prayer and contemplation. Communication is a part of the retreat. The retreatant is "listening to God and talking without distraction."

"You can't listen while you're talking," said Father McCown.

Special Bus Conveys Handicapped to Church

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Getting to church on time is no longer a problem for members of the 11-year-old Bartimaeus Baptist Temple in Dallas—a specially outfitted bus now picks up and delivers them to Sunday school and church every Sunday.

Bartimaeus Baptist Temple is a church operated solely for the handicapped—persons unable to live a normal life. Some members are blind. Others paralyzed. All are handicapped in some way.

The bus, dedicated Sept. 26, was the gift of the Women's Mission Union, which started the project in 1967.

An elevator platform lifts at the curb side of the bus is used for wheel chair and disabled passengers. Opposite the elevator, three seats have been removed and a railing and clamps have been installed to anchor four wheel chairs comfortably with the passengers in them.

For those able to move about, there is additional seating space for 39 adults. A recent front curbside door is provided for ambulatory passengers who can negotiate the steps. The aisle inside the bus is wide and the seats are comfortable.

Picking up members by bus starts at 12:30 Sunday afternoon with Pastor Whitmore and the driver aboard. Members are picked up from suburban cities and Mesquite and bring as well as area rest homes, housing projects and individual homes. Bus pickups are timed to coincide with the start of the 3 p.m. church services.

Pastor Whitmore, 51, who suffers from partial paralysis, said special facilities have been made available to his parishioners in the North Dallas Baptist Church, providing modern facilities, with central air conditioning and heating.

Womens Liberation Movement Gains Strength in Europe

LONDON (AP) — The women's liberation movement in Europe sometimes looks as The New Statesman, the London weekly, commented that "women liberation is no longer a stylish pink; it is very red."

In general, the European movement stresses women's worth and specific reforms to the benefit of both sexes.

Feminists in Britain, Denmark and The Netherlands are Europe's current leaders, even if their numbers are small. The colony has a familiar ring: women are second-class citizens who suffer gross and systematic lack of opportunity in education, vocational training and jobs.

Their demands include equal pay for equal work, abortion reform, more nursery schools and day-care centres, measures to invade economic strongholds manned until now by males.

The British movement began to crystallize last March, when a conference in Oxford drew 500 delegates. Now Women's Liberation Workshops has 750 members organized into local groups with their own publication, Shrew, formerly called Harpies Bizarre.

The workshop is concerned primarily with "raising consciousness." The practical initiative still rests firmly with a committee and a Conservative member of Parliament, Dame Joan Vickers. While the committee dabbles in Parliament for equal rights and an end to discrimination in jobs, the workshop attacks the advertising industry, which it claims presents women as "sex objects, consumer dunbbins, unreal unless being regarded by men."

In Denmark, a dozen of the 600-strong Redstockings are awaiting trial for refusing to pay more than 20 per cent of bus fares. This is an attempt to protest wage discrimination.

Eva Hasmar Hansen, 37-year-old president of the Danish Women's Society, said: "It now is primarily a question of changing mentality and attitudes to eliminate all lines of thought that distinguish between men and women—except in the one field where it is and always has been relevant."

Amsterdam is stirred up by some 3,000 feminists, led by the formidable Dolla Mulder, whose attack on the male dominance and wage discrimination reached a peak last spring.

In France, where most women seem to believe feminine charm exerts the best leverage, the Feminine Civic and Social Union has doubled its membership to 30,000 in three years.

Germany, Belgium and Switzerland have yet to join the women's liberation campaign on a wide scale.

In Germany, one woman in three works. A recent poll indicated 69 per cent consider it "not quite normal" to ruin a career before marriage. A Frankfurt action group campaigning for abortion reform succeeded in collecting 1,000 signatures.

Swiss women still cannot vote. The largest existing feminist group, in Zurich, today has only about 30 members.

In Belgium, women demand only equal pay for equal work.

In Spain and Italy, a woman's place is still in the kitchen, but there are signs of a stir among Latin women.

"This is fertile territory," says Italy's Anselma dell-Olio, 29, founder of a New York feminist theatre. "Women are very oppressed and very anxious to be liberated."

A young Barcelona actress, Emma Cohen, agrees. In Spain a wife needs her husband's written consent to obtain a driver's licence or passport, to hold political office or to take a job.

Women's lib has not yet hit Eastern Europe officially, there is nothing for women to complain about.

The spokesman of economic equality has been law in Communist states since Dmitri Lunacharsky. In 1918, when women earns two-thirds of a man's pay.

Poland, however, has just appointed its first woman naval captain, Mrs. Danuta Walas-Kobylinska — the 15,000-ton freighter Bieszczady. Her husband is third mate.

Equal pay legislation is currently under consideration in Britain and Spain. Female suffrage is on the agenda in Switzerland.

A West German proposal to reform divorce law recognizes that women can fend for themselves. Italy is facing in October a final vote legalizing divorce.

Has Deficit

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Symphony Orchestra chalked up a deficit of $501,683 for the year ending April 30, 1970 — some $30,000 less than expected. The Montreal Council of Arts, the Quebec cultural affairs department and the Canada Arts Council will provide subsidies to cover most of the debt, but the orchestra is already predicting a higher deficit of $975,000 for 1971 due to increased salaries for musicians.

YOUR ANTIQUES

All Regency Pieces Are Hand Crafted

Regency is a term applied to furniture made in the reign of George III at the turn of the 19th century. Other generic terms for the period are Georgian and Empire. They are taken to indicate the period before Queen Victoria came to the throne in 1837.

For many years, Regency, Georgian or Empire furniture was considered superior to Victorian. To an extent this is true. All Regency pieces are hand crafted. Much of Victorian furniture was mass-produced in factories without a cabinet - maker but those who continued to produce were just as good as their predecessors and their work is just as valuable.

Certain motifs of the Regency period had an immense vogue. The lyre, a musical instrument shown to be base of this table, is one. Empire sofas are all variations of the lyre form. The shape was used to support mirrors, as spirals in chair backs, support for piano pedals, design for music stands and countless other applications.

As shown here the table is one of the best examples of the lyre shape. In a heavier version it continues to be made with a marble top and solid mahogany base priced at about $150. The table illustrated is not for sale. It was one of a kind and the forerunner of many imitations in North America, made by Lemuel Churchill between 1810 and 1815.

The wood used is mahogany, the most popular wood in the first half of the 19th century. The color is brown, not red, the color of most modern mahogany. The decoration is carved, not applied, and the strings of the lyre are solid brass. Other details are equally fine, including inlay and applied decoration. The table was expensive when new and is priceless now.

Simpler versions of this type of work were made throughout the 19th century. Many were made of maple and cherry combined or maple alone. Maple is usually finished in a golden hue and cherry in red, particularly in combination.

Picture Credit: Metropolitan Museum of Art

Most of these tables have a drawer arrangement similar to that shown, sometimes with a bag drawer at the bottom which hung down in place of the lyre base. Bag work tables generally have four tapered or turned legs. Duncan Phyfe in early 1800s made two in which the bag section is veneered wood, a type not copied extensively because of the skill required to manufacture.

The cheapest tables with any similarity to the one illustrated cost well over $100, still a bargain when compared to the modern version. Mahogany is not a popular wood right now and mahogany tables sell for less than maple or maple and cherry combined, particularly if the maple is tiger, curly or birdseye.

Homes Needed for Wayward Boys

TORONTO (CP) — Clifton House, a Toronto residence for wayward boys, is overcrowded and more such homes are needed, Phillip van de Ven, the executive director, contends.

Many of the boys taken to Clifton House have been picked up by local police who found they had been ordered to leave home by their parents.

A few boys going to the school are working and able to pay their own way. To others are given the opportunity to attend school.

Wherever possible we try to leave the boys in the schools they've been attending when they come to us . . . However, if the school is too far away transfers may be necessary," Mr van de Ven said.

Eighty per cent of the home's operating cost is underwritten by the provincial government through the department of social and family services. The other 20 per cent comes from private donations.

Besides through the police, some boys arrive at the home through family courts, schools or the Children's Aid Society.

Sometimes a boy will apply for acceptance on his own. But hundreds knocking at the door have had to be turned away, Mr. van de Ven said.

The residence has opened its own classroom for boys not yet ready to take the discipline of regular school, and the Toronto board of education has provided a teacher. Here they stay until they can fit into a regular school routine.

Food Industry Should Cater to Consumers

TORONTO CP — Food processors should not be hoping consumerism "will go away, they should be moving to meet it with information about their products and practices.

That was the concession of a panel considering change by the food industry held during the convention of the Ontario Food Processors Association Tuesday.

Usher Abrahamson, consumer affairs editor of Chatelaine magazine said shoppers are more selective than they were a few years ago, and there is a general atmosphere of antibusiness feeling. In that climate, she said the food industry should talk more to its customers.

"Too often consumers are given just enough attention to keep them from going in the competition," she added.

She said people are worried about the safety of food, they don't understand its changing technology, they are worried about the disposal of plastics and bottles, bargains lead to questions about the economy.

"Industry is negative and passive and hopes it will all go away. Why doesn't the industry have something to say about cyclamates, detergents?"

Time and Place For Operation Talk

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband recently had the vasectomy operation. We are both happy about it. It was done in the doctor's office and took less than 25 minutes. My husband has decided that whenever birth control is discussed, he will announce that he has had the operation. He believes an attitude of openness might help to destroy some of the peculiar notions people have about male sterilization.

One of your readers said it takes a real man to have a vasectomy rather than put his wife through a much bigger operation to prevent pregnancy. I agree. But don't you believe it takes an even bigger man to admit that he has had the operation? Comment, please. — ST. LOUIS.

DEAR ST.: Yes, I agree, but such an announcement would be inappropriate for just any old get-together. The chief guidelines are taste and judgment.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married for more than two years. The marriage was a big mistake. (Another case of a couple of idiots who were too young, stubborn as mules and wouldn't listen to anybody.) We decided to split before we brought more children into the world. We already have a little boy who is nervous and high-strung because he has been subjected to so much fighting and screaming.

I had a telephone call from my mother-in-law yesterday. She wants everything back that she ever gave me — including the baby's crib. When I told her the baby is still sleeping in it, she said, "That's your problem."

I think my husband should step in and tell his mother off but he refuses to do it. Should I keep the crib or return it? — TROUBLED, INC.

DEAR INC.: Return it. She will then have no excuse to bug you and you can put Mrs. Hugebeart out of your life for good.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 13-year-old son is selling his homework and my husband thinks it is just terrific. He keeps saying, "That kid will make it big one of these days."

Albert has fixed prices (from what I gather when he talks on the telephone.) He gets a done for an arithmetic assignment and 25c for a book review. The boy is doing a very good business. He bragged at dinner tonight that he has saved up $21.

I think this is disgraceful but whenever I open my mouth I am shouted down. My husband insists that Albert has ingenuity, is smart and is making his brains pay off. If I am wrong, please tell me. If my husband is wrong, please tell him. I'm beginning to doubt my own sanity. — CHICAGO MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: You are not wrong and I hope you'll keep talking.

In this age of tax-chiseling, padded expense accounts and political payoffs, it's a small wonder a kid would take to selling his homework. Someone should explain to the boy that it is admirable to help friends with their homework by showing them how to do it. But a person who sells "help" is supporting dishonesty in them and behaving dishonestly himself.

How to Tell A Man You Love Him? -- Doris Says 'Don't'

By DORIS CLARK

Could we judge all deeds and motives,
See the good and bad within,
Often we would love the sinner
All the while we loathe the sin.

Would the grim external roughness
Seem, I wonder, just the same?
Would we help where now we hinder?
Would we support where now we blame? — from "If We Only Understood," by L. Cassidy, Saskatoon Family Service Bureau.

Dear Doris: How do you tell the man of your life that you really love him? I've been in love with a man for a long while, but when I see him I panic. There's not a word I can find to tell him how I feel about him. Do I wait for him to tell me he loves me? — Desperate.

I'm scared that if I do talk it over with him we might not have the control we have now. Do you think I should stop seeing him?

I have always been very unhappy and disappointed in love. But he is generous and kind. Let's face it, he's my type. — Really in Love

Dear Really: Since there is a very real impediment to your becoming serious about each other, you'd better keep your silence. Why make it harder for yourselves and the others who are your responsibility?

DORIS CLARK

Sometimes this is the supreme penalty one pays for a rich, early, but impetuous marriage.

* * *

Dear Doris: This is a problem some of your readers might be able to solve. It is for a very popular ice cream recipe: extremely inexpensive and very delicious. All I can recall is that it contains bananas, crushed pineapple and canned milk.

It was made in an electric freezer, and a great favorite with us all. I think all your budget conscious readers would appreciate the recipe if anyone has it! — Help, Any one!

Dear Help: Sounds scrumptious. If it's economical how what are we waiting for? Readers?

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Canadian Apples Versatile Ingredients

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Somehow I have lost your recipe for Apple Squares. The pastry was quite rich and you cut it into squares when cooked. — Fla D.

ANSWER: That recipe goes back to March 1964 Flo. I am pleased to repeat it since I want us to be using Canadian apples at least once per week.

APPLE SQUARES
2 cups sifted bat not sifted cake and pastry flour
½ tsp. salt
2-3 cup shortening
2 tbsps. butter
1 egg yolk
¼ cup cold water
In mixing bowl add salt to flour and cut in shortening and butter with pastry blender until size of peas. Mix egg yolk with water. Save leftover white for brushing top (see below). Drizzle over flour-mixture, mixing it in with fork until all liquid is just blended in. Turn out on floured board. Press into ball. Divide into two portions. Roll out one to ¼" thickness. Line bottom and sides (to height of ½") of 8 x 12" shallow pan (or one of equivalent area). Chill while you make

APPLE FILLING
2 cups pared, cored, chopped Spy apples
1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ cup sugar
2 tbsps. corn starch
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ cup boiling water
Put chopped apples (roughly the size of raisins) in saucepan and at once sprinkle the lemon juice over them to prevent browning. Mix together dry the sugar, corn starch, and nutmeg. Add to apples, mix well, then add the boiling water and cook, stirring, until thickened. Remove from heat and cool.

Spread evenly in pastry-lined pan.

Roll out remaining half of pastry, prick at even intervals with fork, fold over to make it easy for you to pick it up, and transfer to half-cover apple filling. Unfold to cover other half. Now gently press edges of dough together to seal as well as possible.

Slightly beat leftover egg white and brush top of pastry gently with it. Now sprinkle top all over with about 2 tbsps. granulated sugar. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr., having pan on bottom rack of oven for first 10 min., to quickly bake cold bottom crust, then raise to centre rack in oven to finish baking. Mine required 30 min. baking in all — but you must watch these closely because the sugary top could brown too much.

NOTE: In the Dec. 10 issue, the amount of baking powder in the Spice Cake recipe should be 1½ tsps.

Reluctant Residents

MILTON KEYNES, England (CP) — Britain has spent millions of pounds since 1946 on building "new towns" for big city slum dwellers but the prospective residents aren't turning up, says a report by the development council of Milton Keynes, one of the freshly constructed communities. The atmosphere of new towns has been repeatedly criticized as cold, and a planning group is trying to pin down the precise reasons for the lack of prospective residents.

Washable Blood A Money-Saver

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ever coward and upward—technology. If not always financially and artistically—the movies have a new fake blood.

Its virtue: It doesn't stain costumes.

"In black-and-white pictures they used chocolate syrup, which photographed beautifully and washed out easily," says veteran makeup man William Tuttle, tracing the history of film gore.

"When color movies came in, we'd go to a soda fountain and get some cherry syrup, which we'd chicken with a little cornstarch," Tuttle said.

"In Mutiny on the Bounty we tried a red toothpaste made in England. The trouble with all of these and other concoctions by makeup people, was that they stained the wardrobe. Most red pigments have a staining quality like dye."

Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. "devised the new blood specifically for movies.

"Almost microscopic red spheres of red plastic are suspended in a liquid, probably glycerine," Tuttle explained. "Spill it on a white shirt and it rises rigor out under cold water, without any soap."

Tuttle, for 31 years MGM makeup chief, expects the substance to save studios thousands of dollars by preventing rails to costly costumes.

Tuttle is giving the new blood its first use in a film called The Best of Friends, starring Debbie Reynolds and Shelley Winters. Miss Winters is gashed on one hand another actress is knifed in the back, a fall downstairs batters a man and rabbits are slaughtered.

Canadians Like American TV

The survey, taken for the Nov. 2-15 period and released Thursday, showed that only three of the top 10 shows were Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and two on the CTV network were Canadian.

Canadian Radio-Television Commission regulations, effective last Oct. 1, required the CBC to carry 60-per-cent Canadian content. CTV has until October, 1972, to comply.

The three Canadian-produced shows that made CBC's top 10 places were Adventures in Rainbow Country, Hockey Night in Canada and a Wayne and Shuster special.

The two on CTV were the Miss Canada Pageant and Hockey Night in Canada.

The bureau, a non-profit organization established and supported by Canadian broadcasters, advertisers and advertising agencies, interviewed 54,000 people of all age groups across Canada in compiling the survey.

The number one show on the list was Rising Sun, a program that was Horton Hears a Who, an American children's special that ran head-to-head CTV show was Highlights of the 1971 Ice Capades.

Grisly TV Melodrama Breaks New Ground

NEW YORK (AP) — The public broadcasting network must get credit for televising the most daring program of the year: the apparently uncensored film adaptation of Peter Weiss' Broadway play commonly identified as Marat Sade.

The two-hour film was aired during prime time Thursday night. It was a grisly recital drama which in its complicated, unusual form contained the author's view of the world today and its people.

The full name of the play is The[Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton under the Direction of the] Marquis de Sade. The scene was set in the barred bathhouse of the madhouse outside of Paris in 1808. A group of patients, in a sort of primitive group therapy, were enacting de Sade's drama about the killing of Marat, a revolutionary leader in the French upheaval 15 years before, by Charlotte Corday. The French public was invited to witness the performance.

The 1967 film was essentially a dialogue between de Sade, with his belief in man's individual expression, no matter what the need or whim, and Marat's conviction about the need for revolution even when it destroyed the revolutionaries.

They were patients in straitjackets, Marat's scab-covered body, an adult male scene, writhing madmen and women and a brutally violent climax.

For the viewer, the inescapable point was whether the principal figure bedlam as the people outside were the real madmen, the real unfeeling brutes. It was a shocking and disturbing film. It also was one that no commercial station or network could possibly have risked broadcasting in prime time.

Snap Losing Streak

No Mo-Hawk Games 'At Home'

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville's senior hockey Mo-Hawks don't have any home games. At least that's the impression that was given by the smattering of spectators who showed up Friday night to watch them snap a three-game losing streak by beating Woodstock A's 5-2.

The most noise made by any of the 200 souls who spackled Memorial Arena seats was jeering by unchartable hecklers of the 'home' club.

"We hear them all night, but it only bothers some of the fellas," said playing - coach Dave Jones, a prime target for the ringside loudmouths.

Jones had the last laugh when he capped some fine penalty-killing with a short-handed goal in the last minute of a second period that was the setting for all five Mo-Hawk scoring plays.

Les Colligan batted in a Bill Armour pass-out at 1.13 for the second period to start ball rolling and hopefully start the wins coming. The Mo-Hawks had lost five of six games prior to last night's win.

The two teams stumbled through a horrendously-played opening 20 minutes without a goal between them.

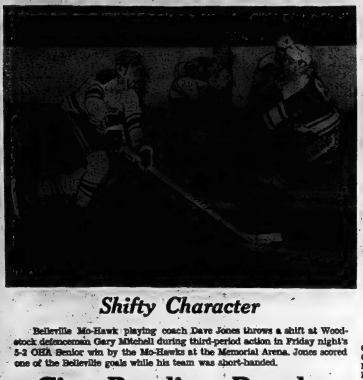
The A's, who travelled the 300 miles in carloads, had to start the game with eight players and were content to stand at their blueline and dump the puck out very time the Mo-Hawks threatened. Another four made it through a Toronto area blizzard by the time the second period rolled around.

Al Ferguson followed up Colligan's ice-breaker with a wicked shot on a two-on-one break. Using Lorne O'Donnell as the decoy, Ferguson fired a 30-footer into a perfect spot high on Ken Kitching's stick side.

The Mo-Hawks showed why they have been suffering a slump when they gave the puck away in their own end and Gerry Harrigan put Woodstock on the scoreboard at 12.22.

But Bill Armour steered in Greg Burkitt's point shot half a minute later to give the locals a 3-1 edge.

Burkitt, with was called up from Picton intermediates for the game, gave a good account of himself. Paired with Lou Kazowski, the overage junior took two interference penalties but neither hurt the Mo-Hawks.



George Godau cashed in on a penalty shot at 13.42 after being dragged down from behind on a breakaway, and Jones snapped a pretty short-handed goal that beat Kitching on the short side with 37 seconds remaining in the busy middle frame.

Bill Rutson gave Woodstock the last word when he poked one past Steve Rezo at 11.18 of the final period. Rezo only had 27 shots to handle, but three of them were breakaways.

Meanwhile Kitching was tested 44 times by the Mo-Hawks, who also took Toby's share of referee Blair Graham's penalty calls — five of seven minors.

The win meant undisputed possession of fifth place in the eight-team senior standings for Belleville, who are now 8-11. Owen Sound Crescents, idle Friday, are two points back with two games in hand.

Next Mo-Hawk action comes in a Tuesday night visit to Kingston, with a Friday night home game with Galt to follow.

Shifty Character

Weeks In Time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With one second left in the game, Jon Rose rapped in the winning goal Friday night as Barrie Flyers halted the first-place Orillia Terriers 4-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action. The winner came after Orillia counted two goals to tie the third-place Flyers at Orillia.

Weeks' winner was his second goal of the night. Corby Adams and Peter Fassaphitis got one goal each for the Flyers. Orillia scorers were Grant Moore, Jim Keon and Ray Dupont.

Golden Hawks Lose When Looking Good

TRENTON (Special) — Look ing like winners isn't enough. Trenton Golden Hawks found out last night.

The Hawks dropped the 12th for 13 Eastern Ontario Junior B games, losing 4-3 to Cobourg Cougars before a whooping the Cougars 40-34.

Only sensational goaltending by Cobourg's Mike J. Cain particularly in the third period when Trenton outshot the visitors 19-4, preserved the two points for the fourth-place Cougars.

Paul Irwin's power-play goal at 8.22 — the only scoring play in the final 20 minutes — provided Cobourg with the win. The Cougars now have 14 points in 14 games, while Trenton Golden Hawks have six in 10 games.

After a scoreless first period, Trenton forced the Cougars to play catch-up hockey throughout the second.

Jeff Howard, Paul Lavender, and Mark Woodward gave the Golden Hawks the lead three times, before a defensive slip allowed Wayne Helps to knot the score with six seconds remaining in the second period. Ray Bevan and Pete Reilly got the earlier Cobourg goals.

Despite the loss, Golden Hawk officials were pleased with their team's performance, considering that four regulars were on the injured list and also that of their two forward lines and four defencemen.

"We've lost at least five games by one goal now," said manager John Yott. "But tonight was the first time we've looked so good in the third period. If it wasn't for that kic in goal we'd have won. He was out of this world."

Yott singled out Hawk centre Mark Woodward for praise. The Picton native was in on all three Trenton goals.

Trenton tackles league-lead ing Peterborough in a Sunday road game while Belleville's Fairways meet Kingston in an 8 p.m. home engagement.

Long Way from Home

Woodstock A's goalkeeper Ken Kitching strays from his crease to stop this scoring thrust by Belleville Mo-Hawk centre Doug Senior. He missed on five others, however, as the Mo-Hawks grabbed a 5-2 OHA Senior A win from the last-place A's.

Court Calls Finish

Dancer's Image Takes Two Years to Win

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — In 1968, Peter Fuller's Dancer's Image sped to an apparent 1½-length victory in the Kentucky Derby.

But Fuller, a Boston businessman, had to wait more than two years before his horse, which was disqualified because of the presence of an illegal medication in his urinalysis, was awarded first-place money.

Dancer's Image was awarded the prize Friday in a ruling here by Franklin Circuit Court Judge Henry Meigs, who held there was insufficient evidence to deny Fuller's colt the winner's purse.

"I'm awfully pleased," said Fuller. "As a matter of fact, I'm thrilled. It means the full recovery of the purse and interest. It means the Kentucky Derby Cup, and it means that my horse is the undisputed winner of the Derby and shares the glory with nobody but himself."

However, Meigs' ruling may be the first step in what could be a long progression of court decisions.

The Kentucky racing commission, which upheld Churchill Downs stewards and decreed Jan. 6, 1969 that the urinalysis showed the presence of phenylbutazone, will meet Wednesday afternoon at its offices in Lexington, Ky., to determine whether to appeal the Franklin Circuit Court ruling.

Meigs ruled that tests on which the commission chemist, Kenneth Smith, based his finding were "inadequate and contradictory."

The judge said the purse, which now amounts to $133,273 because of interest, should be distributed to the original order of finish—Dancer's Image, Mrs. Gene Markey's Forward Pass, Francie's Hal and T. V. Commercial.

Meigs also stated Fuller should recover the costs incurred in his effort to receive the winner's purse—which Fuller says amount to $150,000.

"We'll get a little money back," said Fuller, "but it ain't the money—it's the principle.

"I thought we would win the case all along but knowledgeable people who supposedly knew said the odds were greatly against our winning it.

"I feel very strongly that a great deal of good has come out of the action," Fuller continued. "I know that there have been at least nine changes in the Kentucky racing laws directly attributable to the Dancer's Image case. There's no question that it's better to test the horses than it is not to test all of the horses. Security should be what security is supposed to be."

Mrs. Markey, owner of Calumet Farm at Lexington, was unavailable for comment. The commission had awarded the first-place purse of $122,690 to Forward Pass after Dancer's Image was disqualified.

A spokesman at Calumet Farm said, "Mrs. Markey is recovering from a broken shoulder sustained in a fall and Mrs. Markey is recuperating from an operation.

"I don't think they want to talk about it. Anyway, they're in New York."

Jockey Bobby Ussery, who rode Dancer's Image in the 94th Run for the Roses, said from Tropical Park in Florida that he wasn't surprised with the ruling.

"Naturally, I'm glad," he said, "my guess is that I'll be getting it (his money) any day now."

Both Ussery and trainer Lou Cavalaris Jr. would get 10 per cent of the purse.

At Toronto, Cavalaris, fined and suspended in 1968, said Friday the vindication by the courts was "a very nice Christmas present—it makes me feel very good." It meant about $12,000 plus 3½-years' interest.

"Peter Fuller certainly stuck to his guns," said Cavalaris. "I owe whatever I get out of this to him. Two-and-a-half years is a long time. It represents a lot of trips to Kentucky. A lot of effort went into this."

Winner at Last

Boston auto dealer Peter Fuller, owner of Dancer's Image, flashes a victory sign in his office Friday after hearing the Kentucky's Circuit judge's decision that his colt should be declared the winner of the 1968 Kentucky Derby. Stand-In Easy For Chuvalo

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo knocked out Charles Couture of Lyons, France, at 1:30 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round feature bout here Friday night.

Couture, who weighed 204 pounds, eight less than Chuvalo, was a late substitute for Mike Boswell of Youngstown, who was shot and wounded in an argument with another Youngstown man over a girl Wednesday night.

Boswell was released from a hospital Friday.

Chuvalo, the fifth-ranked heavyweight in the world, floored Couture with a right to the chin for a count of five in the first round. A left hook sent Couture to the floor for the full count in the second round. He was out for a time after the blow.

Boswell, who was shot in the back, will be unable to fight for a month. He has a string of 10 straight victories.

Stampeder Executive Takes Toronto to Task

CALGARY (CP) — Gordon Burton, president of Calgary Stampeders, says the Western Football Conference club will not support any future bid by Toronto to stage the Grey Cup game until field conditions improve at CNE Stadium.

"Our club will not vote in the future to return the Grey Cup game and all its festivities to the city of Toronto and the CNE Stadium until the Canadian Football League can be assured of a better playing surface than was available for the 1970 game," Burton said in a news release Thursday.

"Neither the club nor our fans are suggesting that the outcome of the game would have been different since both Calgary and Montreal were equally handicapped."

The Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference defeated the Stampeders 23-10 in the CFL classic.

Burton said it is difficult to control weather conditions which might damage the field. But he said:

"The Stampeders feel that the CFL does not have to accept a playing surface whereby the sod is loose . . . the league cannot expect players to perform at their best on a field that is so unsuitable."

Hawley Blanked

MIAMI (CP) — There was no money again Friday for Sandy Hawley, 21-year-old jockey from Whitby, Ont., who is trying to break the world riding record.

And worse, one more day has passed, leaving him with only 17 in which to do it.

Hawley was listed to ride six mounts at Tropical Park Friday but couldn't make it win, place or show on any of them.

He remains 33 victories behind the record of 695 set by Bill Shoemaker in 1953.

Hawley has been able to win only one race since moving here from Greenwood racetrack in Toronto last Monday.

Cliff-hanging Kings Trying Talents Against Chiefs

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oakland Raiders, already the National Football League champions in winning cliff-hangers, play Kansas City Chiefs today and the winner should end up as the king of the mountain in the American Conference's Western Division.

The battle of the bitter rivals may well depend on the kicking of the Chiefs' accurate Jan Stenerud and the Raiders' man of the second, George Blanda.

In another game today, Cleveland Browns, 8-4 and tied for first in the AFC's Central Division with Cincinnati Bengals, will be host to Dallas, 8-4 and tied for second with New York Giants in the National Conference's Eastern Division.

The Giants will play at St. Louis Cardinals, 8-3-1 and first in the NFC East, Sunday.

Other Sunday games are: Cincinnati Bengals at Houston Oilers, 5-6-1; San Francisco 49ers, 7-3-1, at New Orleans Saints, 3-9-1; Baltimore Colts, 9-3-1, at Buffalo Bills, 3-8-1; New York Jets, 4-8, at Miami Dolphins, 8-4; San Diego Chargers, 4-6-2, at Denver Broncos, 5-7; Green Bay Packers, 6-6, at Chicago Bears, 4-8; Philadelphia Eagles, 3-9-1, at Washington Redskins, 4-8; Minnesota Vikings, 10-2, at Boston Patriots, 2-10, and Pittsburgh Steelers, 5-7, at Atlanta Falcons, 3-7-2.

In a big game Monday night, Detroit Lions, 8-4, meet Los Angeles Rams, who are 8-3-1 and tied with San Francisco for first in the NFC West.

Oakland counts on the passing army of Daryle Lamonica, who also has figured in the Raiders's cliff-hanging tactics. Last Sunday, Lamonica threw a 33-yard touchdown pass to Warren Wells with one second left in a 14-13 victory over the Jets.

Quarterback Len Dawson, who needs four touchdown passes to reach 200 in his pro career, guides the Kansas City offence.

Cleveland, winner over Houston last Monday, can put the pressure on Cincinnati by beating Dallas—which could end up a first-place club by beating the Browns. A Dallas triumph coupled with a St. Louis loss to the Giants would leave the Cowboys and Giants in a first-place tie.

The Giants ripped St. Louis 35-17 in their first meeting this season, but Sunday's game figures to be close. The Cardinal defence has allowed only three touchdowns in six games since being beaten in New York.

St. Louis will have to get its running game going to complement Jim Hart's passing. New York's seven victories in its last eight games have been built around Fran Tarkenton's passing and the running of Ron Johnson who has gained 918 yards.

Egers Hits Stride

'Smokey' Burns Pair Past Seals' Gary Smith

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Jack Egers' blazing shot earned him the nickname Smokey, but until Friday night he hadn't scorched many National Hockey League goalies.

Then the New York winger blazed two shots by goaltender Gary Smith less than five minutes apart in the third period and powered the Rangers to a 2-1 victory over California Golden Seals.

Egers, born in Sudbury, Ont. and the Central Hockey League's rookie of the year in 1968-69 was CHL scoring champion last year with 42 goals and 48 assists. He gave every indication Friday night he's on the way to complete recovery from a mid-November head injury that kept him out of action for nearly two weeks.

In the only other game Friday night, St. Louis Blues nipped Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 with all the scoring packed into about five minutes of the second period at St. Louis.

Egers, 21, an amateur draft choice of the Rangers in 1968, had an auspicious debut in the big leagues last year, scoring three goals in six scheduled games, then adding three more in the Rangers' playoff loss to Boston Bruins.

His ballet - like drives that eluded Boston's Gerry Cheevers prompted the goaltender to predict: "That guy can score 50 goals with a shot like that."

But fame was fleeting for the six - foot - one, 175 pounder his output Friday night doubled his production for the season. The victory moved the Rangers into a first-place tie in the NHL's Eastern Division with the Bruins.

At St. Louis, the Penguins opened and closed the scoring outburst midway into the game, but the hometown Blues were quick to respond wit hthree of their own. Tim Ecclestone's sixth of the year being the winner, while giving St. Louis a 3-1 lead.

Toronto Maple Leafs, meanwhile, placed centre Mike Walton on the suspended list for failing to show up at a Friday workout.

Walton, who had not been with the Leafs since Dec. 2, was said to be under medical treatment. However, general manager Jim Gregory in announcing the suspension said Walton had been declared medically fit to play."

Walton's lawyer, Alan Eagleson, said he was shocked by the suspension and charged Dr. Smythe with a breach of faith.

He said that at a meeting Walton's case had been postponed until early next week at the urging of Dr. Smythe, brother of Maple Leaf president Stafford Smythe.

Walton's friends have said the player is depressed, emotionally and mentally upset. They say the pressure, building for some time, reached a climax after Toronto's 7-6 win over Los Angeles Dec. 2.

Several persons close to Walton say the doctor has advised him to abandon hockey entirely, but if he continues to play then it should be with a team other than Toronto.

Eagleson said Friday he would appeal the suspension to NHL president Clarence Campbell.

His said hat at a meeting Monday of himself, Walton, Gregory and Dr. Smythe, the doctor had suggested that "we adjourn for a week to 10 days in deference to what he suggested was Mike's unsettled condition."

Walton had scored three goals and 18 assists in 23 games with Toronto this season. He had been hooded on several occasions for riding his beard and said three weeks ago he expected to be traded.

He was suspended in the 1968-69 season by then-general manager and coach, Punch Imlach, had was re-instated a week later after meeting with Imlach.

Kapp Changes Tune

BOSTON (AP) — Joe Kapp, Minnesota Vikings' former quarterback who played out his option and signed with Boston Patriots, said Friday he has been rooting for his former team—mates all season—but not this week.

"I laid a lot on the line with those guys and I've wanted to see them do well every week except this one," Kapp said after tuning up for his first meeting with the Vikings in a National Football League game Sunday.

Kapp said he considers the encounter "just another game." However, referring to the Patriots 2-10 record, he had some advice for the team.

"Maybe we should play a football game some day," he said. "This would be a good time for it."

Kapp, who played-with British Columbia Lions in the Canadian Football League before joining Minnesota, left the Vikings earlier this season after a dispute over money.

Munro Rink Turns Curling Tables

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — What a difference a year makes.

This year, however, it's another story.

Munro and his rink of vice Chris Johnston, second Peter Phillips and lead John Cushing have played in four major events and won three of them.

Their latest triumph came here Friday when they won a berth in the Ontario curling championships at Guelph Feb. 2-6.

With the Ontario Curling Association inviting 32 rinks to participate in the third annual challenge round here, the Munro foursome was the only rink to go undefeated.

Munro won five games, including an 11-2 verdict over Earle Morris of Otawa in the deciding game Friday night.

In Friday's other draws, Morris rink defeated Stan Jones of Toronto 10-5 and Jim Creighton of Toronto 9-5.

Munro will be competing in the Ontario championships for the third time. In his two previous appearances he was eliminated two straight times.

While the pressure is off Munro and his rink there are six other rinks that will feel the pressure today during the final day of the double elimination event.

The six still in contention for the other berth are Morris Creighton, Bob Woods, Alf Phillips and Bob Charlebois, all of Toronto, and Ray Grant and Bob Harris both Unionville.

Creighton, Harris Grant and Charlebois all came up with their decisive wins Friday night to advance.

There were a few upsets during the day, including two losses by Paul Savage of Toronto, the defending champion. In the morning draw he lost to Morris by a 12-8 count. In the evening Creighton proved to be too much for Savage and claimed an 8-4 victory.

The three-day event concludes tonight.

Duguid Tops on TV

TORONTO (CP) — Don Duguid, the 1970 national curling champion from Winnipeg, took the long road but added further laurels to his rink's status early today by winning the CBC-TV's double-knockout championship curling bonspiel.

Duguid, fresh from victory in a Swedish tournament, had to defeat Edmonton's Hec Gervais twice Friday night to grab the winner's share of prizes totaling $22,000.

Rookie Helps In Rarity

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Every now and then Peterborough Petes end up on the short side of an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

The rarity became a reality Friday night in Ottawa when the 67s stopped the runaway series leaders 5-1. It was only the fifth loss of the season for the Petes, against 18 wins and two ties in 25 starts.

As might be expected in such an unusual occurrence as a Peterborough loss, the 67s unleashed a rookie, Ron Bobbette, whom the statistics didn't in press. Bobbette scored three goals in the first period.

Elsewhere, London slammed the Flyers 7-3 in Niagara Falls Montreal Junior Canadiens travelled to Kitchener to stop the Rangers 7-2 and St. Catharines Black Hawks breezed by the Marlboros 8-3 at Toronto.

The Friday night action left Peterborough with 38 points, a comfortable seven-point bulge over St. Catharines and Ottawa, tied for second in the 10-team circuit.

At Oshawa, Bobbette got all his goals in a span of four minutes and 12 seconds. Doug Keeler and Wayne Merrick added single goals in the first frame, then the 67s reverted to defence.

Piston Pair 'Second-Best'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The men of the second — that was Bob Lanier and Chet Walker in the National Basketball Association.

There were 11 seconds left in the game and Detroit Pistons were trailing Boston Celtics 106-102 Friday night. Lanier then scored and nine seconds later fed Terry Driscoll for a layup that sent the game into overtime. The Pistons came out on top 111-118, snapping Boston's winning streak at 10 games.

With 27 seconds remaining Walker hit a 35-foot shot to break an 84-84 tie and then with 15 seconds to go added a free throw to give Chicago Bulls an 87-86 victory over Atlanta Hawks.

Joe Ellis and Jeff Mullins waited a little longer to pull out a victory for San Francisco Warriors. There were 26 seconds left when Ellis and Mullins went to work, hitting field goals for a 102-101 victory over Philadelphia 76ers.

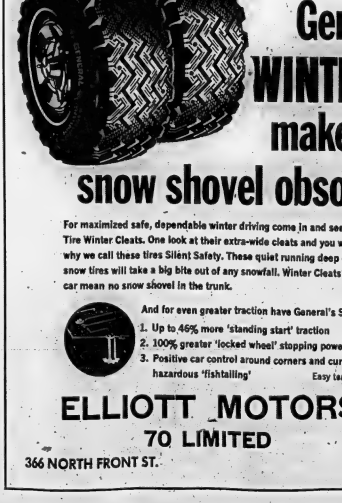
In other NBA action, Milwaukee Bucks smashed Cleveland Cavaliers 134-92, Portland Trail Blazers topped Buffalo Braves 120-105, Los Angeles Lakers tripped Seattle SuperSonics 128-118 and San Diego Rockets beat Phoenix Suns 110-104.

Lanier, who opened the overtime period with two quick goals, finished with 26 points, 14 in the fourth quarter and six in the extra period. John Haliek scored 32 for Boston.

Course Record Tied by Texan

FREEPORT, Grand Bahama (AP) — Chris Blocker, a big, slow-talking, hard-hitting Texan, made one laconic comment after taking the second round lead in the $130,000 Bahamas Islands open golf tournament.

"I got it going pretty good and made some putts."



Blocker said Friday after matching the course record with a 66 and moving into top spot with a 36-hole total at 135, nine-under par on the 6,950-yard Emerald Course at King's Inn Golf Club.

Blocker's six-under-par effort lifted him to a one-stroke advantage over wisecracking Doug Sanders, a non-winner since 1967. Sanders, who set the course record Thursday, slipped to a 70 and commented:

"It's amazing how much more tired you can get just hitting that ball four time more than you did the last before...."

Lurking just off the pace was the formidable figure of Arnold Palmer, the game's all-time top money winner who still is seeking his first individual title of the year.

Palmer had a 69 and was alone in third at 137.

War Crime Verdict

Canadian Jailed in Yugoslavia

LESKOVAC, Yugoslavia (Reuter) — Radovan Mirkovic, a Yugoslav-born Canadian, was sentenced to death by a court here Friday for a war crime in Yugoslavia 28 years ago, but the sentence was immediately commuted to 20 years strict imprisonment.

Mirkovic, 50, a St. Catharines resident who holds Canadian citizenship, was sentenced for executing seven Yugoslav partisans in 1942 while he was fighting on the side of royalist troops.

He was arrested last summer when he arrived for his first post-war visit with relatives in Yugoslavia.

When his trial opened here Nov. 18, Mirkovic rejected prosecution charges that he had executed the partisans.

Dragic Stankovic, the investigation judge, said Mirkovic had acknowledged the charges during the investigation, even volunteering details.

DENIED CHARGES

But Mirkovic denied all charges at prosecutor Dragoljub Mitic, except that he participated in the war on the side of the royalist Chetniks.

In passing sentence, the Leskovac district court said that as a member of the Serbian Chetniks nationalist organization, Mirkovic volunteered to execute seven partisan youths in the spring of 1942.

Mirkovic's son, Michael, 30, said in Ontario last September that his father retired earlier this year after working for 30 years with General Motors of Canada.

He said his father had left Canada June 1 and travelled around Europe before entering Yugoslavia June 20.

Mirkovic emigrated to Canada after the Second World War.

During the trial, the public prosecutor claimed that the evidence was irrefutable, but a defence lawyer maintained it was not substantiated and that his defendant was innocent.

A prosecution witness, Lazar Demjanovic, said to have taken part in the execution along with Mirkovic, has already served a 10-year jail sentence for the crime.

The court did not allow a defence witness to give evidence because it said he was dead when he appeared. The witness was not named.

In St. Catharines, Mirkovich's son, Michael, said he would appeal to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp to intervene in the case.

The son said the family was upset about the situation and did not believe Mr. Mirkovich to be guilty.

"I don't know how he can be guilty because all the witnesses said he didn't do it except for one Communist liar."

He said Mr. Mirkovich has two daughters in Yugoslavia and a married daughter, Julia Marikovich, in Hamilton.

Little - Known Republican Named UN Ambassador By U.S.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — President Nixon has decided to give the United States ambassadorship here to a little-known right-wing Republican millionaire who has no known diplomatic credentials.

George Bush, an outgoing member of the House of Representatives from Houston, Tex., will replace Charles W. Yost, a highly-regarded career diplomat who evidently made, at least in Nixon's eyes, some bad assessments recently.

Nixon's nomination of Bush — the appointment must be approved by the Senate — was announced by the president in Washington and by U.S. spokesmen here.

Veteran UN observers said they could not recall when the U.S. appointed a UN ambassador with so few known credentials for the job.

Bush, 46, is a New England Yankee who made his millions in Texas oil. He served two terms in the House in the 1960s and was defeated in a recent race for the Senate by Texas despite strong backing from Nixon and Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew.

Bush is reported to be an articulate Yale graduate, but there is nothing in his background to show he has any training for the touchy job of quiet diplomacy that is required at the 127-country world organization.

Yost, on the other hand, is a dull speaker. But he earned considerable prestige in the behind-the-scenes consultations that are the major work of UN ambassadors.

Nixon appeared with Yost and Bush in a Washington news conference and praised the outgoing ambassador.

But recurrent reports here and in Washington say that Nixon was disappointed with Yost, particularly on matters dealing with the Middle East.

Yost also is a Democrat, although he was appointed in 1968 by Nixon.

University of Sudbury Needs Aid to Survive

SUDBURY (CP) — The president of the University of Sudbury said Friday his Roman Catholic-supported institution will have to lower its academic standards "or disappear from the scene." If it doesn't get more financial help from the provincial government.

The comment was made by Rev. D'Auteuil Richard in submissions to the provincial commission on post secondary education in Ontario.

The University of Sudbury is a bilingual partner in the Laurentian University Federation, which also includes Huntington College supported by the United Church and Thornlee College, related to the Anglican Church.

The church-related colleges offer courses in philosophy and religion which the federation grant degrees. All three provide residences for students.

Father Richard said he finds it "a strange situation" that his college should receive only limited financial assistance from the government.

The University of Sudbury has 30 per cent of its teaching costs covered by government grants and receives no capital grants. It gets $200,000 a year from the Society of Jesus.

Father Richard said the result of this is that the college, which he described as an emerging and bilingual institution, is burdened with "a very heavy debt."

Ontario NDPs To Set Policy

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial council of the Ontario New Democratic Party meets this weekend to decide the policies it will present to the electorate in the next provincial election, discuss Quebec and hear from Stephen Lewis, provincial leader.

Mr. Lewis said in an interview Friday that by February the party will have nominated a candidate in every provincial riding.

He said the election committee will report today that it has nominated 81 candidates for the next Ontario election, has another 40 chosen or sitting members and has another 30 likely candidates. There are 117 ridings.

"By February when the house reconvenes we'll just be filling in the gaps," he said.

Mr. Lewis has said he expects an election in the spring. He says the Progressive Conservative party will not be prepared to expose its new leader—to be chosen at a convention Feb. 10-12 in Toronto—to the "crucible" of the legislature or "the summer sideshows."

Mr. Lewis was to address the council this morning.

This afternoon the council was to debate a paper on foreign control and unemployment. Speakers were to include James Laxer of Kingston, a member of the left-wing Waffle group, and Mark Ellison, federal director of research for the party.

Sunday there will be a panel discussion on Quebec, led by Roland Morin, leader of the NDP party in Quebec, and Charles Taylor, federal party vice-president.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 13

Your birthday today: What has been happening lately contributes, with normal adjustments coming as you develop skills and resources. There is new responsibility for you, perhaps as a mediator or arbiter. Emotional life is quite intense, may require occasional neglect of something else you put great value on. You usually have a knack for accurate guessing, and are often shrewd observers of people and their motives.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today opens a strenuous but prosperous period. Your energy level is up, thus your normal pastimes. You can find a fresh and delightful arrangement with them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You talk too readily, assuming that everybody knows about them they do or that they share your view. Actually, other people receive either different or confused impressions.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Trying to hold serious conversations is not quite so useful today as having fun. Sports and competitions attract interest particularly if somebody you know is involved.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Again, today's incidents indicate that not all the people you like and admire feel that way about each other. Friends are trying to sell you something you don't want.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Note who is sharing your community's traditional observances. Take along a good companion and explore unaccustomed places. A quiet evening of fare much to thank about.

Parks To Get Rest

TORONTO (CP) — A number of provincial parks in southern Ontario will be closed for two or three years to recover from over-use, Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle said Friday.

He said no decision has been made as which parks will be closed but the operation will be gradual, as new parks are opened.

The closings will provide "a moratorium on use while the parks renew themselves," Mr. Brunelle said in an interview.

He added that the use of wilderness trails and canoe routes in such large parks as Quetico and Algonquin also will be restricted.

"We are into a situation where there are simply too many canoeists in some of these routes, and we will have to say that only so many can use them at one time."

The province is constantly expanding its system of parks and the temporary closings will not reduce the total of campsites available, Mr. Brunelle said.

He said about 1,500,000 campers used the 100 provincial parks this year, an increase of 200,000 over 1969.

The total of park visitors exceeded 12 million, a 15-per-cent increase over the previous year.

Campers have turned away from at least five southern Ontario parks last summer—Ipperwash and Pinery Point on Lake Huron, Bass Lake near Orillia, Oxlee Lake near Parry Sound, and Serpent Mounds near Peterborough.

COMMERCIAL BASIS

BEAVERLODGE, Alta. (CP) — One of Canada's leading authorities on fruits and vegetables says the saskatoon berry can be produced on a commercial basis Dr. R. E. Harris of the federal research station at this northwestern Alberta community says too few Canadians are aware of the full potential of this delightful fruit which, under proper management, has yielded as much as six tons an acre.

Optimism Evident

Industrials Show Gain But Other Sectors of Market Down

By ART OSINSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Industrial issues edged higher on Canadian stock markets this week, but other sectors showed small losses.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's industrial index, a prime indicator of market activity, was up 1.27 points to 172.65.

The advance was pale in comparison to a rally of more than five points in the previous week.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up .03 to 176.75.

The Toronto stock market advanced during 13 of the last 15 sessions.

Analysts say the recent strength is due to lower interest rates in Canada and the United States, hopes for better corporate earnings in 1971 and the Nixon administration's determination to stimulate the U.S. economy.

The Toronto stock market posted its best advance of the year Thursday, rising more than one point. Observers said at least part of this advance was caused by optimistic predictions by participants at the University of Toronto school of business outlook forum Wednesday.

Douglas D. Peters, chief economist of the Toronto Dominion bank and a participant at the forum, said "1971 will show a return to a rate of real economic growth of 5 to 6 per cent ..."

At Toronto, volume was 30.69 million, down from 13.46 million last week.

On index, base metals were down .32 to 69.49, golds 4.66 to 165.37 and western oils .38 to 199.38.

Gains outnumbered losses 371 to 221 with 461 issues unchanged.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 7.45 million shares, compared with 6.23 million last week.

Gains outnumbered losses 376 to 125 with 136 issues unchanged.

Striking Workers Stage Toy Drive

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) Striking United Auto Workers and their wives, facing a bleak Christmas this year, are trying to do something to brighten up the holidays for their children.

The auto workers, on strike against General Motors of Canada for almost three months, have launched a toy collecting drive and are hard at work repairing teddy bears, tin soldiers and toy tractors.

Men who three months ago were building real cars, now are tightening the bolts on toy automobiles.

Derek Gandy, committee chairman of UAW Local 222, came up with the idea and began collecting toys on his own a few weeks ago. The idea caught on among his fellow strikers and now just about everybody is getting into the act.

The GM workers deposit the toys in a downtown garage donated by Ald. Gordon Attersley. There, another crew sets to work patching, painting and polishing.

The wives sew doll dresses, the husbands work on bicycles, sharpening ice skates or any one of a thousand things that need doing to get all the toys in shape for distribution by Christmas.

May Partridge, chairman of the women's committee, said she was pleased with the number of men who head for the makeshift toy factory after picket line duty.

"At first it was mainly women," said Mrs. Partridge. "Although we were able to take care of cleaning the dolls and making the outfits, we really didn't know very much about repairing toy trucks."

Scrooge Syndrome Really Allergy

OTTAWA (CP) — 'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the house.

Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse. . . .

Except, that is, for the sneezing, wheezing, coughing and scratching of seven per cent of allergic people whose Christmas trees — the kind that grow, not the kind that are made.

They suffer from a true allergy, not a Scrooge syndrome, Dr. Derek M. Hyse of Kitchener and Dr. David Malloch of Toronto point out in a study published in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

After considering a variety of causes such as dust or deodorations, tree pollen and fungi, they conclude tentatively that the culprits are usually the tree resins.

Symptoms affect nose, eyes, chest and skin. They include watering, itching, blockage and sneezing in the nose; watering, itching, swelling and redness of eyes; coughing, wheezing and tightness in the chest, and trashery rash of small red, itchy or burning spots on forearms and hands, and sometimes on the face, and water blisters.

More than 70 per cent noted respiratory or skin symptoms while decorating the tree or within 24 hours.

But some experienced their symptoms three or four days after the tree was set up and may have experienced something other than balsam sensitivity.

Chamber Asks Priority For Economic Expansion

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce called on the government today to give top priority to economic expansion, in order to generate new real wealth for all Canadians to share.

In its annual policy presentation to the cabinet, the chamber said: "Growth alone may not cure poverty, but poverty will most certainly not be cured without buoyant sustained growth."

A. Gordon Archibald of Halifax, chamber president, told a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau and some of his ministers that the country needs clearly-defined economic goals, stated in dollar terms, and a new agency to keep the government and the country informed on how well it is performing.

"This nation's first economic objective is prosperity for all Canadians," Mr. Archibald said. "This can be achieved only through the generation of the maximum amount of wealth and with the broadest possible equitable distribution of that wealth amongst our people."

He presented the chamber's policy statement, drawn up at its annual convention last September, supplemented by it with a 2,500-word oral statement.

The statement was given to reporters in advance of delivery.

In seeking balanced economic growth and expansion, the chamber said the government should see that its proposed revision of the Income Tax Act next year is favorable to the generation of new real wealth.

It urged the government to consider "the total structure of tax reforms with a view to giving top priority to economic expansion, investment in Canada's growth and development, and increased employment opportunities for Canadians."

There should be a new body, as part of the Economic Council of Canada or associated with it, which will keep an eye on short-term economic trends and interpret them in terms of growth.

The chamber also said the usefulness of the prices and incomes commission should be reviewed.

The chamber supported the commission's call for prices restraint in 1970, and though no agreement was reached with business and labor to set new criteria for restraints in 1971, the chamber does not believe that business will increase prices if this (1970) agreement terminates," Mr. Archibald said.

"Such assumptions ignore the reality of the various competitive forces currently at work in the domestic and international market places. Under these conditions, business is scarcely in a position to effect many price increase.

"In our view, the present voluntary restraint program should be terminated and the remaining functions of the prices and income commission should be carefully reconsidered to test their necessity."

Bandits Kill Guard

OTTAWA (CP) — Police today were questioning two suspects and searching for a third in the killing of an armored car messenger during a $30,000 robbery Saturday.

Robert Cody, 31, was shot in the neck by one of three bandits waiting for him when he left the office of a Miracle Mart store in the west end with the day's receipts.

Police said the father of three young children was shot at short range by one of the bandits, without any warning and in full view of several Christmas shoppers.

Police said the first suspects were picked up about 12 hours after the crime. No further information was given, but it is believed all suspects are in their early 20s.

Business Is Still Business

LONDON (AP) — Israel is transporting Arab oil to Eastern Europe with the blessing of the Soviet Union, The Sunday Times reports.

The newspaper says Israel also is moving oil through its pipelines to independent refineries in Italy.

It is the most remarkable fact about the Israeli operation," The Sunday Times said, "is that the Russians apparently know about it—and are suppressing ideological hostility for commercial advantage.

"The Israelis, for their part, regard it as a straightforward commercial deal to earn much needed hard currency."

The newspaper says Israel is using its 160-mile pipeline across the Negev Desert from Elath to Ashkelon as a short cut for oil supplies from the Persian Gulf to Europe—cutting out the 11,000-mile route from the tip of South Africa.

Power Crisis Eased

LONDON (CP) — Electricity workers called off a week-long, power-crippling slowdown today and expressed readiness to have their wage demands revised by a three-man tribunal.

Vic Feather, general secretary of the Trades Union Congress, told reporters that the electricity union decided to resume full work without even waiting for settlement of terms of how the review will be conducted by a so-called court of inquiry.

Feather said he sees no great difficulty in getting union-government agreement on the structure of the court "as long as it is free and independent."

To observers it appeared from the sudden change of union attitude that the 125,000-member union were forced into a compromise largely by public pressure. Resentment against the power blackouts had reached such intensity that union chief Frank Chapple required police protection.

Electricity workers found their cars sprayed with paint; their tires slashed and in some cases bricks thrown into their homes. Some pubs refused to serve them. Others demanded premium prices for service.

The Conservative government also put up a solid wall of opposition to the union's original demands of wage increases of about 25 per cent and backed the state-owned electricity council's offer of a 18-per-cent wage increase.

The big fear in the administration is the rising tide of inflation caused mainly, as some economists say, by high wage demands, far in excess of the rise in workers' productivity.

But while the union called off the shutdown, electricity officials say it may take a week or 10 days to give the country full electricity again. Power cuts may still be necessary in some areas because coal-fired power stations must remove tons of ash before striking up fires to full pressure.

The findings of the court inquiry are unlikely to be binding on either side in the dispute but are likely to be accepted as a guide to a compromise settlement.

The union figures it has a good case for a big pay boost but during all-night negotiations Sunday talked when the government insisted that the court will have to take the interests of the national economy into consider-

Father Shot at TV Station While Son Stars in Hockey Game

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The father of a National Hockey League player was shot and killed Saturday night after he forced a television station off the air because it wasn't carrying the game in which his son was playing for Toronto Maple Leafs.

Roy Edward Spencer, 58, of Fort St. James, B.C., was killed by a Mountie as he left station CKPG.

Police said Spencer fired at least two shots and possibly a third before he was struck in the chest and face by two of four shots fired by RCMP.

They said they returned fire after a constable was shot in the foot and another bullet struck a gun holster which a policeman was holding in his hand.

Spencer, father of Brian Spencer of the Leafs, had driven for two hours from Fort St. James to complain that the station was carrying an NHL game between Vancouver and Oakland rather than the game between Toronto and Chicago Black Hawks.

Official accounts said the bizarre course of events resulted from Spencer's complaint that he was being denied a chance to see his 21-year-old son play in a National Hockey League contest being shown by the CBC's television affiliates in Eastern Canada.

At the time of Spencer's appearance at the station, it was carrying the NHL's Vancouver-Oakland game while the Prairies and Ontario were being shown the Toronto-Chicago game which featured a between-periods interview with his son.

Brian Spencer had been called up earlier in the week by the Leafs from their top farm club, Tulsa Oilers of the Central League. Brian had played with the Leafs during the latter part of last season and had then returned to the Oilers.

Police said they have established that the father, a gravel-pit operator, drove from Fort St. James to complain about the TV scheduling.

Spencer was in the TV station's parking lot when a CKPG reporter arrived.

He asked reporter Tom Haertel why the Toronto game was George, then pulled a pistol and not being televised in Prince forced his way into the station premises.

"I don't like the CBC's hockey games," he told Haertel. "Why don't you broadcast more Toronto games"

He then pushed past Haertel and tore the receiver from the telephone as receptionist Carol Russell tried to call police.

He then walked to the newsroom where he told news director Stu Fawcett to take the hockey game off the air.

Program director Don Prentice was told: "I am very disturbed about the CBC's coverage. There is going to be a revolution unless it changes."

Prentice said the intruder was "cold sober, but shaking like a leaf."

A station employee had got a call through to police, and five minutes later Spencer barged out the front door of the station.

"I don't want to kill anyone," he was quoted as saying. "I've killed many times before in the commandos."

As police came around the corner of the building, police said, he fired and hit RCMP Constable Dave Pidruchny in the foot.

RCMP said Corporal R. W. Post drew his revolver and fired three shots while Constable Steve Lozinsky fired once. Two bullets struck Spencer in the chest and mouth and he was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Brian Spencer, a left winger, played in the NHL Sunday, and picked up three assists in a game between Toronto and Buffalo which Toronto won 6-4. He was named the game's third star.

Police could not say when the 21-year-old hockey player had been told of his father's death. They said their family members in British Columbia were notified shortly after the shooting and it was likely he was informed by phone late Saturday night or early Sunday.

Station newscaster Gerry Nairn said he now believes a telephone call he received during the afternoon from an "irate listener" was Spencer.

"He was angry about our not carrying the Toronto broadcast, called me names, and threatened to come down to the station later."

Old Quarry To Be Rink

Thurlow Township council held its regular monthly meeting Friday and there wasn't much business passed, thanks to the complete re-election of the reeve, deputy-reeve and council at the month's meeting.

Council business was basically tied up with routine end - of - the - year matters and the commencement of a new term for officials.

Members of council okayed a suggestion by members of the Thurlow Township Fire Department to flood the "old township quarry" and utilize it as a skating rink for people of the township.

The matter was brought forward by fireman Robert Pearce who visited the council with the suggestion. The rink will be flooded by the fire department and activities will be sponsored by them.

Council also carried a motion to pay 50 per cent of the cost of an aerial map which shows the contours of the land near Camilton where water and sewage work is to be done.

Cost of the map by the Ontario Water Resources Commission is expected to be 4,700. The Ontario Government will pay the other 50 per cent.

PICTON (Staff) — More than 60 floats colorfully decorated to depict a wide variety of themes joined in Saturday's Santa Claus parade through Main Street. This salute to St. Nick, sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce is one of the largest, organized here for several years. A trophy donated by the chamber for "best community effort" encouraged county-wide participation in he Picton parade. Decorated by the Sophiasburg Friendship Church the float featured Lucy, Charlie Brown and, of course, Snoopy perched atop his doghouse.

The Belleville Boomers, a strikingly costumed majorette corps was the trophy for best marching unit. The Buccaneers are instructed by Gail Chapman, Belleville; St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church gained the highest mark for best float entered by an organization, Rev. ation in reaching its recommendations.

However, even before this point was settled, the union announced it would resume full work while condemning the government's attitude. Further figured the remaining difficulties will be ironed out satisfactorily.

"We are making an act of faith with this nation," said Frank Chapple, the chief union negotiator. "We have taken the opportunity for everyone to have second thoughts on the situation."

Blackouts hit Britain again this morning when the union-government talks became snarled before dawn.

The power cuts last week caused chaos on the roads, caused schools to shut, kept Britons shivering and on one day even resulted in the absence of daily newspapers.

The unions wanted to recommend a wage increase based on increased productivity and rises in the cost of living. Employment Minister Robert Carr insisted that the court of inquiry also take into account the "national interest," meaning the Conservative government's contention that any increase over 39 per cent would be too inflationary to be acceptable.

There were no blackouts during the weekend as a result of mild weather, voluntary cuts by consumers and the usual weekend holiday in industrial areas and business offices. The Electricity Council said housewives had made a good response to an appeal to cook Sunday dinners early to ease the demand for current during the usual noon-2 p.m. peak period.

With the resumption of business and industry today, the current was to be switched off for as much as one-fourth of Britain at some time during the day. The blackouts are being held to several hours at a time in any one area to spread the hardship equally.

A government ban on non-essential use of power went into effect today under the state of emergency proclaimed Saturday. Electric advertising signs, store displays and street Christmas lights were turned off. Soccer teams voluntarily banned night games.

Penalties under the state of emergency include three-month jail sentences and fines of up to £100 ($250).

Students In Van

The Belleville public's lack of response to the request of the parks board for suggestions on the development of East Zwick's Island has been akin to its no-show effort in last week's election.

Fortunately some of the younger generation, in the persons of drafting and physical education students of Moira secondary school have come to the rescue with a wide range of ideas. Fourteen students met with the board but as they pointed out, many other students were involved in the project. One member of the board was so impressed he said the young people should be asked to meet with the Toronto consultants. At the same time the board would still like to have the views of the public at large.

We would hope though that the area will become something more than just a "passive" park with an elaborate garden and fountain, just because one student questionnaire (which included adults) came up with so many ideas they could not settle on what they wanted.

The city of Brockville has such a park at Blockhouse Island. The site, in Upper Canada days, of a camp for cholera victims, this is now a verdant area of lawn and trees jutting out into the St. Lawrence but linked with the waterfront by a causeway. It is a great place for watching the ships sail past, and the occasional yacht race — but little else and for the young, who might be expected to want some active sporting facilities, such a "passive" facility would hardly suffice. Besides, this East Zwick's Island property covers a much larger area than Blockhouse Island.

When one considers moreover that most of the sitting around and watching of the world going by at Blockhouse Island is done from cars, a comparable area here would serve only as further encouragement to the sedentary habits of our modern society.

No one would object to such an area for those who want it, as part of the overall complex, but the success of which, in our opinion, would be to afford a combination of facilities which would cater as much as possible to all tastes.

On Preventing Accidents

Accident statistics are just that, statistics. But how many stop to think of the physical agony, mental anguish and family disruption that come in the train of these terrible occurrences.

Some get away with little or no injuries, but in many cases the circumstances are much more harrowing. A Corning man, we recall, saw a police film some months ago. It showed auto smash-ups just after they had occurred and it spared the audience nothing as the camera ranged over trapped passengers and sound picked up the screams of the injured.

A recent Canadian Press picture pulled us up in similar fashion. It showed a 19-year-old girl trapped in the wreckage of her car after a head-on collision in the Toronto area. The caption said it took police and firemen 90 minutes to free the young woman who had suffered skull fractures, leg, pelvic and internal injuries.

There is no need to elaborate on such a situation, except to say that a fatalistic approach by the public of car accidents. Defensive driving is a continuing necessity on the highways, by each and every motorist.

From the medical point of view a German experiment in cutting down the road toll is worth noting. West Germany, with one of the highest auto accident rates in Europe and ambulance teams in Lower Saxony are planning to relay by police radio data on the patient's condition.

During the victim's transfer to hospital, trained medical personnel will radio a preliminary diagnosis to waiting doctors. This could include such data as pulse, respiration, loss of blood, even an electrocardiogram. Doctors will use the same radio wave to initiate first-aid measures in the ambulance.

Under the new plan rescue workers will also use large vehicles equipped with all necessary aids for on-the-spot emergency treatment.

Such a plan makes sense. Similar improvements could be initiated on this continent. Who knows but we might even see helicopter ambulances in use some day, like those used in Vietnam for speedy rescue of the wounded.

Industrial Revolution... Wars Have Brought Unrest

Britain's 'Social Malaise' Goes Back to Earlier Times

By CY FOX

...LONDON (CP) — Blacked-out offices, headless horses, badly-disrupted industry and masses of cars ploughed into near chaos by the failure of traffic lights have brought home to the British the critical character of their economic and social situation.

The exact impact of the crisis on the already fragile British economy has yet to be determined.

But it is certain to be grave in the extreme—hardly a comforting thought for anyone nervous about the possibility of another devaluation of the pound.

Such economic setbacks have become commonplace in Britain since the Second World War. Although earlier this year there was some optimism about the country's trade balance with the rest of the world.

In fact, Britain's troubles stem from a country the reputation of being virtually the sick man of Europe, an unenviable title previously held in the post-war period by France, before the return to power in 1958 of Gen. de Gaulle.

Now the French refer lofily to "the social malaise in Great Britain."

One Paris newspaper comments that, with the electricity blackout, the British are merely getting a foretaste of the additional privations they may have to endure in the winter months to come.

In all crises of this kind, the British are given credit by outsiders for their capacity to bear up stoically under tough circumstances.

Now, however, a number of Britons seem to be tiring of the praise they invariably receive for their "stiff upper lips."

They find it somewhat patronizing and a sort of backhanded compliment, although the British still take pride in their capacity for calmly weathering difficulties.

Indeed, many workers, released from their jobs early each day during the power crisis, have taken to carefree extra hours of candlelit indulgence in the country's "pubs."

However, most Britons are keenly aware of the problems besetting their country, physically small and congested as it is and therefore more vulnerable than other countries to social and economic ills.

The current headaches have their ultimate causes far back in time—at least as far back as the First World War, which came close to bleeding the country both financially and in human terms.

Britain never recovered from that four-year dissipation of its resources, nor from the disasters looted resulting from the Second World War.

Deep in debt, it staggered through the bleak years after 1945 and subsequently had a period of relative prosperity.

But the country's problems, as Britons themselves are quick to note, have been seriously compounded by worrisome developments common to the Western world as a whole—inflation, for instance, and extreme dissidence among young people and other elements of the population.

Thus the United States has lately been hit by a major strike and Canada recently suffered through a period of national alarm comparable in gravity, if not in physical impact, to the present British one.

Certainly, British history, which during the 19th century saw bitter grievances engendered among the working class by the harshness of the industrial revolution, has piled this century to the high with accumulated resentments, and these re-emerge in critical times such as the period now unfolding.

But the ills of British society have to be seen in a world context and any inclination by outsiders to make unflattering judgments on the subject be perhaps be tempered with a realization of similar shortcomings at home.

Present System 'Disorganized'

Store Hours in Belleville

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing this letter in response to Mr. Hitchon's letter (Seen the Record Man). First of all, let me state that I'm not a merchant but merely a concerned citizen wishing to express my views on the proposed store hours of business. I would also like to mention that I am an employee of one of downtown Belleville's larger and older establishments. Our staff is quite large and judging from their views, I think I can safely say that a great many of the sales staff of Belleville's stores would be in favor of the plan submitted by Mr. Porter. As he pointed out, this plan would provide employees with two days in a row off from work. This is not only more convenient when planning one's weekend activities but it would also provide it on a more frequent basis than making sales staff more eager in their selling. Customers would find more courteous and pleasant sales staff and employers would find more agreeable customers — and more sales.

Excepting the holiday season, Belleville's store hours and days of business are terribly disorganized. As it now stands, some stores are open all day Wednesday — some are not. Some stores are open on Thursday nights — some are not. Now I ask you — is this taking the public into consideration? I know of many cases where shoppers have come in Belleville from nearby towns only to find half the stores open. Mr. Porter's plan would greatly help to eliminate this and save shoppers a great deal of time and expense. This is one reason why people do shop elsewhere—because they know when they can shop and when they cannot.

Mr. Hitchon, who has my recently started business in Belleville, may well say that he has only the public in mind when he chooses to remain open 6 days a week. However, I think that his primary objective at this time is to make money — as much as possible. Now there is nothing wrong with that — we would all like more money, but I feel that a merchant's first interest should be his customers — to set down a positive schedule for shopping, thereby clearing up all the confusion. This step would help to increase sales — not drive them away.

His second interest should be his employees as I stated earlier I am an employee and therefore have some inkling as to what employees would like.

I also feel that Mr. Hitchon is being a very bad sport by condemning something he has not even tried, nor is he willing to do so. For what possible reason would he object to accepting the trial period — other than the fear of losing a few dollars?

Grade 8 Student Praises School Equipment But Asks: Will There Be Job For Me?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

When I read the letter from Mother of Two, I felt I should write my opinion of education today, because I am a grade eight student.

School has been made more enjoyable for students because of the "tape records, visual aids, slide projectors and a combination of other especially modern equipment." Students today, unlike students a few years before us, have the opportunity to use them and we are reading about through this equipment. This we are grateful for.

She (Mother of Two) states that she remains "unconvinced that my children are better educated today than they were 20 years ago". This I do not agree with. In that period three children and other students have learned more than our parents did during their 10 years in school. Improvements are always being made in the Hastings County Board of Education. If people did not give some of the Board members were doing their jobs, they could have absent their displeasure by voting last Monday.

Belleville seems to be failing to produce jobs for high school graduates. Because of this, many must move to a city where jobs needing their skills is available.

Parents shouldn't expect us to do the same as they did, and we should be learning from their mistakes.

Where will we end up after we have completed our education? Will there be jobs in Belleville for us?

Factor In Car Safety

Brantford Expositor

Every winter Canadians drive their cars for at least four months in conditions that often result in a fogged, frosted or snow covered rear window. This is potentially dangerous. One leading car maker seemingly agrees, since it offers as an "optional" extra: "Rear window defogger — a must for safety."

It is such. Why optional?

The responsibility for making this "must" really a must rests with our governmental authorities, but so far they have done nothing about it. They have legislated for car safety measures to be first made mandatory by the U.S. government. In doing so in this case they are ignoring the fact that winter driving conditions over most of Canada are much severe and hazardous than they are over large areas of the U.S.

The two situations differ and, with lives at stake, should be treated differently. The differences have been recognized by vehicle makers in this area (some assembled in Canada) who offer heated rear windows as standard equipment, and their cars are selling well.

The Ball Game

Yellow for Table-Tennis And Black for Soccer

German Features

BRAUNSCHWEIG — Table-tennis players in West Germany are now using yellow balls instead of the traditional white ones.

The reason: scientists say it will improve your game. Yellow can be more easily tracked by the player's eye than white as the ball hurtles back and forth across the table at speeds up to 100 mph.

The researchers say the human eye picks up light waves in the yellow-green spectral region easier than other colors. Thus this optimal color combination of green ping pong table and yellow ball.

The experts also agree a black ball is best for Germany's national sport of soccer. They say the black and white ball currently used in professional games here distorts the ball's trajectory in flight. This could be eliminated if the ball were black, they claim.

Do You Speak American?

Bilingualism And All That

Vancouver Sun

A writer in the U.S. publication Saturday Review, Herbert R. Mayes, speaks with apparent satisfaction of the way the English are catching on to the American language. He complains that there are some archaisms (if you would call them that) which linger on but, on the whole, it appears the natives are improving.

One of the archaisms is the expression "bespeak shortcakes," which puzzled Mr. Mayes until he came to the conclusion it might mean "order shortcakes." However, he says, the English accept druggist, elevator, apartment and cop as readily as they do chemist, lift, flat and bobby. Babysitter is beginning to win out over child-minder and overpass may soon catch up with flyover. The Canadian band, a dustbin is never going to become a can and most definitely suspenders will never replace braces.

All this may be so. In Canada we have succumbed to most of the Americanisms listed though at one time Canadians would recall, suspenders were something one used to hold up the socks and Canadian Pacific probably say garbage can rather than ash can, which oil and electric furnaces have made practically obsolete.

It used to be claimed by the late H. L. Mencken that Americanisms are superior to Englishisms — or Britishisms as he would call them — because the American turn of speech is more colorful. This has been disputed, of course, and it is merely a case of opinion whether druggist is superior to chemist or whether pharmacist, common in Canada doesn't beat both.

One reason why American words are driving out some, but not all, equivalent British expressions, may have the same basis as why television is changing the uniforms of their armies.

For example, when the French army was reorganized after Suez, during the Second Empire, Babytaire in imitation of the win from the British began experimenting with uniforms featuring baggy trousers and kepis, a la Lawrence of Arabia. When the Prussians smashed the French at Sedan, the interest switched to Prussian uniforms of red and trousers tucked into boot-tops.

The U.S. today still manages to overpower the rest of the world with movies, television and consumer goods, the readiness to absorb the American idiom is evidence that despite the antipathy towards the U.S. prevalent here and there, a grudging admiration of things American persists. They have made spectacular market and the hot dog. This is how the tides of empire turn.

Manpower Reports

TRENTON (Special) — To avoid wasteful competition and duplication of effort, the Public Service Commission of Canada has made provision for the co-ordination of departmental recruiting efforts.

The Canada Manpower Centres will recruit workers when needed by government departments in their respective areas.

Correctional officers at federal institutions, dishwashers, cooks, laborers, cleaning personnel, carpenters, plumbers and electricians, are only some of the occupations in the operational categories which could be required. The majority of workers recruited in the administrative support categories are stenographers, typists, clerks and key punch operators.

Many of these jobs listed by government departments are temporary, lasting from two weeks to six months, but others are of a continuing nature.

The Public Service Employment Act sets forth statutory priorities in selection procedures.

These priorities are:

— Normally the Canada Manpower Centre will consider clients residing in the area administered by that Manpower Centre.

— Veterans will receive preference in referral. Those receiving disability pension will receive veterans with overseas service would be considered next.

— A Canadian citizen would be referred before a non-Canadian.

— Non-Canadians would be referred if no Canadians are registered in a particular skill needed.

All clients being considered for referral would have to meet the minimum job specifications stated in the order and on occasions tests will be given.

Jim White, of the Canada Manpower Centre in Trenton, speaking on CJBQ radio Saturday, advised that clients responding to Public Service Commission announcements or on their own initiative express interest in employment in the public service will be considered for jobs listed by federal government departments.

Within each of the statutory priorities the clients best qualified occupationally will be referred to the hiring department in accordance with the number of referrals requested.

Anyone interested in temporary or continuing employment in the government department in the Trenton area is asked to register at their closest Canada Manpower Centre.

Frankford Headquarters For Gospel Group

A double trio plus one from Frankford have given up jobs, schooling and possessions to hit the gospel singing road.

The Switzer Brothers Gospel Quartet, living in Frankford since early this fall, began singing full time in September. Previously from Lindsay, the six young men quit their jobs and schools, sold their cars, outfitted a travelling bus and went on tour. The four brothers have been singing together for the past eight years.

This tour will take them to Trenton High School and the Salvation Army Citadel on Dec. 19 and 20. They have appeared on U.S. and Canadian TV, most recently appearing on the Denny Sullivan and Gang Show on WSYR, Syracuse.

Their first LP record will be made in Cincinnati, Ohio with Skylite Recordings a few days prior to Christmas.

The young men appear on request, and offerings are accepted as against a set fee.

On Sunday, Dec. 20, they will appear at Warkworth Institute.

Leaf singer is Dale, 14, a student who takes correspondence courses to complete his education, a government stipulation; baritone Don, 17, formerly a barber-hair stylist, and the group's musical arranger; Glen, 22, on bass, a former cloth cutter in the Chrysler plant; and manager Robert Switzer, 25, formerly a service manager at Whitby.

Pianist Jerry Andres, 21, workes at the Scripture Press in Ajax and bass guitarist Ken Johnson, 22, was an electrician, and Vic Liespki, 21,5 lead guitar.

Organizationally non - affiliated, they are inter-denominational.

The Switzer Brothers Quartet will be making appearances in Stirling on Dec. 17 and Frankford on Dec. 18.

Lot of Trees

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Government Telephones says it used 24,000 trees last year to make its directories. It used 700 tons of paper; 335 tons for alphabetical listings on white paper; 340 for Yellow Pages and 25 tons for covers. Placed in a single pile they would be almost nine miles high.

No Meeting Of Council

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council will not meet here tonight because a there is no point in having a meeting, deputy clerk Arden Boyce said this morning.

"Council has very little power after an election. It cannot pass bylaws involving contracts, money, or anything affecting next year's council," he said.

Although the retiring council will not meet tonight, it will gather for a short session December 28, however, purpose of this meeting is to pass the December cheque register — not to present new legislation.

Those elected in the council elections in Trenton December 7 will not assume their offices until the new year.

They will be sworn in at an inaugural meeting January 4 and will begin to administer the town's business at a meeting slated for January 11.

Good Money and Freedom Lure Toronto Woman Cab Driver

TORONTO (CP) — The next time you're in Toronto and want a cab, spend a few extra minutes waiting on that street corner, watching for Co-op's car 1888. It will be worth it however cold or wet you get if you've an eye for a pretty girl.

But don't worry—this isn't yet another case of women's liberation at work.

"Sure I believe in job equality and equal pay for women, but I'm not really competing with men because I've never felt inferior to them," said Andrea. "I like being a girl and having doors opened for me."

The Toronto licensing commission estimates that about 130 women in the city have licences to drive cabs, but Andrea thinks only about 80 of them are actually working.

Heading the list of reasons why Andrea, a convent school graduate, took to wheeling through downtown traffic—and one she readily admits—is the money.

She earns a minimum of $30 a day and most days it's more than that. This is split down the middle with the cab owner but still leaves her with more than she made at former jobs—insurance company clerk, assistant in a pharmacy and radio dispatcher for a taxi company.

"It's a job for you if you dig people and enjoy your freedom. There's no one standing over your shoulder telling you how to do your job."

During 14 months of cruising in her cab, Andrea has adopted a few basic rules. She works only daylight hours, avoids the rougher areas of town and never lets a drunk in her cab.

"Basically I'm afraid of being robbed or getting hit on the head by a disgruntled customer."

Her own sex tips the best, she maintains, though one man has done one gentleman who tipped her $25 for a $17 run.

Conversations too can be rewarding in the cab business, and Andrea finds herself trading opinions on a variety of topics which generally include politics, physical ailments, traffic problems and sex.

One subject she won't discuss is religion—"that's a person's own business."

To become a cab driver a woman must be good enough at driving to get a chauffeur's licence. When she finds a cab company which agrees to hire her she can apply to the licensing commission and try another test.

But one thing she doesn't have to do, Andrea insists, is give up being feminine.

"I wouldn't think of going to work in the morning without putting on my eyelashes and makeup."

Ann Landers

Reader Claims Ann's Column Is Biased

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You told "Monterey," who insisted that her sexless marriage was just fine, that it would be a lot better if she and her husband learned to enjoy sex. That's quite a statement. How do you know?

As a woman whose marriage has been full of sex and nothing else I take issue with you. Conversation is virtually nonexistent in our home. If I want to hear an adult voice I turn on the radio. When we first married 19 years ago I thought the eagerness of the young buck would diminish in time but I was wrong. Last summer my husband and I returned home from a 400 mile trip — he drove all the way. It was 3:00 a.m. when he finally turned the key in the door. Would you believe the sight of me taking off my stockings fired him up? Have you ever heard of such a thing? My entire married life has been this way. And don't tell me I'm lucky — that millions of women would give anything if their husbands found them that attractive. I don't feel lucky. I just feel tired. I wish you'd print more letters like the one from Monterey — and skip the other kind. Who cares how many times a nut in Canada had sex with his wife? Your column is so biased in favor of men you make me sick. If you print my letter I'll eat the newspaper the day it appears. — DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

DEAR DETROIT: Start nibblin', sister, and consider yourself fortunate it's not the Sunday edition.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please inform my mother that the more she keeps shoving your column down my throat the less apt I am to read it. For years I never missed a day. Now at age 17 I find myself refusing to read it (although I really want to) for the simple reason my mother keeps pressuring me.

Every column on sex, drugs, out-of-wedlock pregnancy, is presented with the usual comment: "Here — read this!" It burns me up because I get to feeling she doesn't trust me.

Several months ago you printed a letter from a 15-year-old girl who had this same problem. When my mother read that letter she accused me of writing it. I told her, "I didn't write it but I could have." For a few weeks she stopped bugging me but now she has started again and it makes me hate both you and her.

I realize this is crazy but I want to tell you and my mother and thousands of other mothers who are doing the same thing to knock it off. You are defeating your own purpose. — GRIDGED IN GEORGETOWN.

DEAR GRIDGED: Bravo for you. I'm glad you wrote. And now — all you cats who are having the same trouble — it's your turn to do a little clipping and shoving.

Parents are not helping me get across to their teenagers when they force my column on them and make it mandatory reading. How wise was the man who said, "I can defend myself against my enemies, but Lord protect me from my friends!"

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I cheered your advice to those who are concerned about an overweight friend or relative. How right you are! If humiliation and nagging and needling could force people to lose weight, everyone would be thin. Play it again, Ann. — FORMERLY FAT.

DEAR FORM: Consider it played, and thanks for the request.

IODE Chapter Holds Christmas Sale

Christmas goodies, novelties and attractive decor adorned the Kiwanis Centre when St. Julien Chapter IODE held their Christmas Sale recently, convened by Mrs. Orville Lenk. At the entrance to the hall were Mrs. W. Slade, Mrs. Richard Bailey taking admissions with Mrs. C. Whittemore, Regent, greeting all who attended.

A large variety of baked goods disappeared quickly with Mrs. P. Hammat, Mrs. M. Kerr, and Mrs. G. Hume selling from the table laden with cookies, plum puddings, pies, mincemeat, jellies and baked novel items.

Mrs. F. Carscallen displayed home made chocolates and this was the first table to be "sold out."

Among the wares on the novelty gift table were centre pieces, Christmas cards and wrappings, candles, novel crocheted items, several bath soaps attractively decorated, with Mrs. J. Parrott, Mrs. S. Honeyman and Mrs. M. Gorline displaying these.

The tea table was appointed with a red tablecloth. The centre piece was composed of an angel hair tree, an angel on top, and Christmas tree decorations. Along with this centre piece were lighted Christmas candles. Mrs. M. Lack was in charge of the tea with Mrs. J. A. Adams assisting. Tea was poured during the afternoon by Mrs. G. Watkin, Mrs. W. Gilbert, Mrs. C. Bishop and Mrs. M. Gorsline.

Working behind the scenes in the kitchen were Mrs. F. Hitchcroft, Mrs. J. Gaffin, and Mrs. H. Tischbein. Winners of the door prizes, donated by Mrs. Richard Bailey and drawn by Miss Chris Honeyman were Mrs. F. McCaffrey and Mrs. R. Silver.

Members attended Citizenship Court on Wednesday when Judge J. C. Anderson administered the oath to 20 new Canadians. A reception following the ceremony was held at the Armories when Lt.-Gov. and Mrs. Julien Chapters, IODE were hostesses.

Points for Parents

Mother: "I'm worn out with all the work of getting ready for the holidays. Sometimes I wish we could just skip Christmas. I'll never be able to finish my shopping and get the house decorated for the Christmas party."

Don't let the work of the holiday season become more important than the people involved. Budget your strength and time so everyone will have a more relaxed and happy time.

Mother: "I've finished my shopping and have the gifts all wrapped. Last week I gave the house a thorough cleaning, so I can take things a little easier during the holiday season when the children and their families will be here."

Spaghetti Sauce Keeps

By MARY MOORE

Lillian N. sent to me in September a recommended recipe for Spaghetti Sauce that "will keep a week if stored in covered jars in the refrigerator". I knew I was scheduled to mind my four grandchildren in November so I tucked that letter in my "Elephant" office box and added a note to try it, for it is Dewey's favorite dish. I did and our Sunday dinner was a great success. Lillian will find that I tampered with her recipe a little but fundamentally it is the same.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE (Courtesy Lillian: serves 8)

3 tbsps. cooking oil (or bacon fat)
1¼ lb. ground chuck beef
1 clove garlic chopped
1 onion chopped
½ cup celery tops chopped
½ tsp. chili powder
½ bay leaf finely crumbled
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar
One 19-oz. can tomatoes
One 8-oz. can tomato paste
2 cups hot water

One 25-oz. pkge. spaghetti
Grated cheese

In a large pot or frying pan heat oil or fat and saute the chopped beef, garlic, onion and celery, stirring, for 5 min., or until meat is seared and vegetables are limp. Add all remaining ingredients except spaghetti and cheese, mix well cover and simmer 1½ hrs. If, at this time, sauce is too thick you may want to add a little more water. The sauce is rich enough to stand it.

One-half hour before serving time cook the spaghetti in a very large kettle in a large amount of boiling salted water, until tender.

NOTE: The Italians would not cook spaghetti longer than 10-12 min., but Canadians; including our family, like it quite soft.

Drain spaghetti through colander and serve on preheated dinner plates in the kitchen. Cover with Spaghetti Sauce. Pass grated cheese at the dinner table to be generously sprinkled over each serving.

We had a cabbage, carrot, pineapple chunk salad with our spaghetti dinner and it seemed to be the perfect accompaniment.

TELAVIV (AP) — Children are better off after surgery if they are needled into anger and given a chance to clobber their doctor with a balloon, an expert on the psychological side effects of surgery says. Because of discomfort, Dr. T. George Bidder told a group of pediatricians recently, "the child is likely to be very angry with anybody who had anything to do with the procedure.". Parents should goad the child into expressing the anger, Bidder said. "The best way I've found to do this is to give the child a balloon and let him wallop the doctors with it."

A Poet's Philosophy of Death

By DORIS CLARK

"WHEN THY SUMMONS COMES"

So live that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one that wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.
—excerpt from "Thanatopsis",
William Cullen Bryant.

DORIS CLARK

• • •

Dear Doris: While in hospital I read a poem "Thanatopsis", by William Cullen Bryant. I wondered when on earth would get a title such as this.

I started to read it and it began to sound familiar. When I read the last stanza, I was sure I knew those lines. When I came home I found two short poems in my collection (without titles) which were actually part of this long one.

— Mrs. A. W.

Dear Mrs. A. W.: I have a few brief gems like that myself; verses I have clipped or copied out handy to read or pass on.

The word "Thanatopsis" is made up of "thanat-", a combining form meaning death, and "-opsis", meaning seeing. The poet was taking a look at the prospect of death and expressing a comforting philosophy.

Dear Doris: We moved to a farm 300 miles away from my in-laws because they interfered in our marriage. This is on the advice of our social worker, who talked to them personally and said they were to keep out of our lives.

If they come to see us can they stay with us here for days and be nasty to the kids and me?

My husband is trying to persuade me to move back and says it will be different, but I know he will still be putty in their hands.

I refuse to be completely dominated by them. My husband's father gave him one quarter section of land and now the brothers and sisters say we have no permission to sell this land to anyone else.

— Wanting Your Opinion.

Dear Wanting: The smartest thing you ever did was to get out from under. It would be a great pity to go back on that social worker, wouldn't it?

Take your deed to the land to a lawyer for his advice.

Don't for heaven's sake move back to a situation which has proved so disastrous. Perhaps putting up with a few days' visit is a small enough sacrifice, in comparison.

Economic Autonomy Big Issue

Shadow of Upcoming Election Produces NDP Policy Study

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario New Democratic Party's provincial council—gearing up for an election they expect this spring—looked at foreign investment, unemployment policy and the issue of unemployment this weekend.

About 120 delegates, representing 17 riding associations, youth groups, affiliated organizations and the party executive, also took a peek backward at their failure in last week's municipal elections.

Party Leader Stephen Lewis said the erosion of Ontario's economic autonomy promises to become one of the central focuses of the next campaign.

"Basically we have to renew faith in the people of Ontario that they are not in fact dependent on foreign investment, but fully understands were we to exercise our power."

He said 5,000 jobs went "down the drain" in this year through "the sheer irresponsibility of multi-national corporations" in lay-offs and shutdowns of subsidiaries.

In 1964, the last year for which figures were available, 73 per cent of the direct investment from the United States went into mining, petroleum, natural gas, pulp and paper, which are not big employers of labor, he said. Jobs were being exported, because much of the money goes for removal of unprocessed raw materials.

In manufacturing, the amount of direct outside foreign investment going into Canadian manufacturing was negligible—in 1964 it was two per cent of total U.S. direct investment.

"Almost all of the capital for expansion and takeover of the manufacturing industries of Ontario comes from undistributed profits and depreciation allowances, funds generated in Canada."

Mr. Lewis said to create more jobs in the manufacturing sector, "it isn't foreign capital we need so much as finding a way to direct the investment of Canadian capital presently controlled by the multi-national corporation."

He said the party is committed to an Ontario development corporation to pursue a policy to ensure jobs, expansion and full processing of resources.

The finance bill, he suggested funds from private pension plans, much of which is invested in non-Canadian stocks, a small percentage of the billions of investment capital flowing through the hands of multi-national corporations and a percentage of life insurance funds invested in U.S. stocks and bonds.

The funds would go into development in primary resources, into areas of regional inequality and into public-private consortiums, he said.

He said he would approach "with caution" the matter of buying back foreign subsidiaries.

"If we are going to have major public funds available surely they should be devoted primarily to an investment in the future, not simply an acquisition of the present."

Delegates Jackie Brown of Ottawa and John Smart of Kingston accused Mr. Lewis of playing down the party's position in a speech to the Canadian Club here last Monday.

Mr Smart said: "If the NDP is in power no business community is going to be comfortable with us. No amount of reassurance by the party leader or anyone else will change that."

Mr. Lewis said the speech was an opportunity to put party policy to businessmen and he would continue to accept such invitations.

Later Saturday, the party studied a paper on Americanization and the Ontario election by Prof. Desmond Morton of Toronto.

He said it was a 14-point paper on how the message should be put across to voters. It was important to let them know that the party did not want to protect the Canadian arts and letters, research laboratories, and universities if they were mediocre but to ensure that they meet standards of excellence.

Treasurer John Brewin of Toronto presented an election planning budget showing the party plans to spend $285,000 on the campaign. Of that $70,000 is expected from ridings, $30,000 from Toronto union locals and $25,000 from other locals and Ontario Federation of Labor.

Party standing now are: Progressive Conservative 68, Liberal 28, NDP 21 and Independent 1.

In a look at last Monday's civic elections, municipal committee chairman Jane Bigelow of London, Ont., said the results were "a great disappointment."

Len Davies of Brantford said candidates there polled only 11 per cent of the total vote, losing one-quarter of the votes for the NDP in the last federal election.

"All you fat cats in central Ontario can laugh, but until you try to pull the vote in Sydenham ward you don't know where the NDP is at in Ontario."

Reg Gisborn, NDP member of the legislature for Hamilton East, said the decision to go into municipal politics was right.

"We haven't lost anything. The people now know we are there."

He blamed the party's "militant stand" and a statement it wanted to put the NDP in power in the city.

Sunday afternoon, the council, after two hours of debate, approved a report of the policy committee that cleared up about 300 resolutions left over from the October biennial convention.

Party President Gordon Wichert said the procedural wrangling was caused because the party traditionally has prided itself on setting policy at the grassroots level, and some members felt this was being usurped by the committee."

The council endorsed federal NDP proposals that:

—All government levels institute job programs to deal with unemployment as the Manitoba government has done;

—The federal government increase weekly unemployment benefits to $100 from $55;

—The federal government call an emergency federal-provincial-municipal conference to create and finance programs for winter employment.

The party has nominated candidates in 94 ridings, designated NDP preferences in 9 others, and approached possible candidates in 23, leaving only 39 Ontario Legislature seats where the party has taken no action.

Militant Stand at Civic Level Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party's "militant stand" in the Brantford civic elections a week ago has adversely affected its chances of re-electing Mac Makarchuk in the next provincial election, the party's provincial council was told this weekend.

Len Davies of Brantford said the candidates theoretically should have been elected because the party had the support of the Brantford and District Labor Council, had been working on the campaign for 18 months and had "relatively good" candidates.

But they polled only 11 per cent of the total vote, losing one-quarter of those who voted for the NDP federally.

He blamed NDP statements that the party was running a slate to "put the NDP in power" in Brantford.

Mr. Davies said it should be a warning to cities of a conceivable population—about 60,000—in 25 other ridings that riding associations could "damage themselves" in municipal politics.

Jane Bigelow of London, chairman of the party's municipal committee, said the defeats in Brantford, Sarnia and Hamilton were "a great disappointment."

A Hamilton delegate said although the party elected only one candidate there, it built a good base of voters.

John Smart of Kingston said the local NDP president and vice-president ran in a university riding and a working-class riding. Although neither was elected, the campaign got more people involved in party work.

Too Late?

Haddock Fishing Limits Met with Good Response

HALIFAX (CP) — Restrictions placed on haddock fishing in the northwestern Atlantic, as one method to revive the rapidly-dwindling species, met with excellent response from the haddock-fishing nations.

However, some quarters, particularly in the U.S., feel the move may have been too little too late.

Fifteen member nations of the International Commission for Northwest Atlantic Fisheries (ICNAF), including Canada, agreed to a two-month ban on fishing in three major haddock areas off the East Coast.

The March and April ban in the spawning areas will be enforced in 1971 and 1972 as will haddock quotas for the 10 remaining months. These quotas limit the total catch from the George's Bank area to 12,000 metric tons while Brown's Bank, another prime haddock ground for Canadian vessels, has a limit of 18,000 tons.

Canadian fisheries officials report only "a couple of incidents" during the spring ban and say two Canadian vessels were prosecuted as a result.

Although the spring ban is the restricted areas applies only to haddock, it literally means no net fishing of any kind. Only equipment allowed to operate in the restricted zones is scallop dragging gear.

"If we have as much success this coming year in enforcing the regulations as we had last year we'll be well off," says Reg Collie, assistant chief fisheries conservation and protection officer in the Maritime provinces.

Tonnage quotas in 1970 were pretty well reached by October.

In the case of the more than 100 Canadian trawlers, draggers and other types of fishing vessels, Mr. Collie says it simply means that each vessel intending to fish for haddock must apply for a no-cost permit.

The permit must be validated for each trip, thus giving fisheries officers an exact tabulation of per-trip catches.

Overfishing and "pressure" on haddock, and the fact that the fish concentrate in more acutely definable areas of the Atlantic than do such species of cod, have seriously depleted the spawning stock in the last seven years.

Canada, Russia and the U.S. are the major haddock harvesters in the northwest Atlantic.

The U.S. national marine fisheries service announced in November that haddock off Georges Bank had not spawned sufficiently this year to maintain their own numbers. The report said that the failure of the 1970 spawning was particularly critical because few of the seven- and eight-year-old fish—the main spawning stock—will survive to spawn in 1971.

Catches taken by Canadians have dropped from about 109 million pounds in 1966 to just under 77 million pounds in 1969. About three-quarters of the catch is taken on George's and Brown's banks.

The banks are off the southwestern tip of Nova Scotia.

Bauxite Talks Called 'Imperialistic Sham'

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (Reuter) — Opposition Leader Cheddi Jagan said Saturday talks on state participation between the Guyana government and Aluminium Co. of Canada are a sham to mask a new strategy by North American imperialism.

Jagan said in a statement that Prime Minister Forbes Burnham's government and imperialism are involved in working out a deal to their mutual benefit.

The talks for government takeover of majority shareholding in Alcan's subsidiary, the Demerara Bauxite Co. (Demba), began last Monday, adjourned Thursday for Alcan's negotiators to consult with colleagues in Montreal, and will resume here Tuesday.

Jagan called for a "real anti-imperialist programme," which he said included total nationalization of the commanding heights of the economy—"bauxite, sugar, banks, cable and wireless, etc."

What is needed with regard to the bauxite industry in Guyana, he said, is not just getting some more of the profits, but a structural economic change "which will involve the generation of power, smelting of bauxite into aluminium, and fabricating industries, in other words laying the basis for a heavy industry in Guyana based on bauxite-aluminium."

In Montreal, Alcan had no comment to make on Jagan's statement.

Meanwhile, Paul Leman, president of Aluminium Co. of Canada, and Donald D. MacKay, an executive vice-president, left Sunday for Georgetown to resume negotiations Tuesday.

Rains, Landslides Sweep Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Torrential rains started landslides that blocked Colombia's second-largest river Saturday, setting off a flood that swept away houses, buses and cars.

"The mountain fell on top of us," said a bus driver who escaped being buried with his vehicle.

Officials said more than 100 persons were drowned or smothered under tons of earth in the Cauca River valley, but added they feared the toll might double. The bus driver, Leonardo Moreno, estimated the dead at 100 to 150.

Moreno said he stopped his bus behind a line of cars waiting for a small landslide to be cleared from the highway.

"It was nine o'clock in the morning and some small rocks began to fall," he said. "Then the mountain fell on top of us.

"I don't know how I escaped. Many of the passengers of my bus died. When the landslide hit we ran in all directions, but many people were buried or drowned."

Kruschev 'Memoirs' Deal with Cuban Crisis

Khrushchev is the last instalment of the reminiscences attributed to him says the Soviet government in 1961 installed enough missiles in Cuba to destroy New York, Chicago and other American industrial cities, "not to mention a little village like Washington."

But the account, Khrushchev Remembers: Part IV, in the Dec. 18 issue of Life, says the Soviet aim was to keep the United States from invading Cuba, not to start a war. It says the Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961, convinced the premier that Soviet missiles should be installed in the island.

The reminiscences also say President John F. Kennedy appealed to Khrushchev to order the missiles removed in the 1962 crisis because he feared a military takeover in the United States, and that Khrushchev complied only after obtaining assurances there were to be no U.S. attempts to invade Cuba.

The Caribbean crisis was a triumph of Soviet foreign policy and a personal triumph of my own career," Khrushchev is quoted as saying.

In another article in the magazine, an American doctor says Khrushchev told him last year that after Francis Gary Powers's U-2 plane was shot down in Soviet territory in 1960, he "was no longer in full control.

Those who felt America had imperialistic intentions and that military strength was the most important thing had the evidence they needed."

The doctor, McGehee Harvey, director of the Department of Medicine at John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, went to the Soviet Union last year for a medical consultation on a member of the Khrushchev family.

The Khrushchev remiaiscences say that President Kennedy during t he missile crisis sent his brother Robert, then the attorney-general, to see Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrinin, and Kennedy told the Ambassador: "The president is in a grave condition and he does not know how to get out of it. We are under pressure from our military to use force against Cuba. President Kennedy implores Chairman Khrushchev to take into consideration the peculiarities of the American system. Even though the president himself is very much against starting a war over Cuba, an irreversable chain of events could occur against his will. That is why the president is appealing directly to Chairman Khrushchev for his help in liquidating this conflict. If the situation continues much longer, the president is not sure that the military will not overthrow him and seize power. The American army could get out of control."

and Dean Rusk, the Kennedy administration's secretary of state, said Sunday "there was never any question of the army taking power" during the missile crisis.

Robert Kennedy in his book on the crisis, Thirteen Days, said his brother felt that if he had not acted to rid the Western Hemisphere of Soviet nuclear weapons, he would have been impeached.

President Kennedy's death "was a great loss," the reminiscences declare. "He was gifted with the ability to resolve international conflicts by negotiation, as the whole world learned during the so-called Cuban crisis. Regarless of his youth, he was a real statesman. I believe that if Kennedy had lived, relations between the Soviet Union and the United States would be much better than they are. Why do I say that. Because Kennedy never would have let his country get bogged down in Vietnam."

Adopted Child Disfigured, Woman Faces Sentence

BROCKVILLE (CP) — A Gananoque woman was convicted Saturday of beating and disfiguring her 19-month-old adopted son over a seven-month period.

Ethel Geinevere Arbuckle, 32, was found guilty by a county court jury of assault causing bodily harm with intent to disfigure or maim. A more serious charge of assault causing bodily harm with intent to endanger life was dismissed.

Leeds and Grenville County Judge W. M. Dubrule remanded her on bail to Jan. 4 for sentencing and ordered a report on her mental condition.

The same charges against her husband Donald Douglas Arbuckle, 33, were dismissed after Judge Dubrule told the jury: "Wilful blindness or passive acquiescence does not constitute a crime."

The jury deliberated five hours at the end of the week-long trial.

Dr. Barry Smith, a Kingston pediatrician, said the child, Ronald, was admitted to Kingston Hospital in March for intestinal injuries caused by a severe blow.

The child was also covered with bruises, his finger and toe nails had been "pried up" and were deformed, and he had human teeth marks on one shoulder.

He said the bruises and the near-fatal intestinal injuries, similar to injuries that would be found in the victim of a 30-mile-per-hour car accident, could not have been caused by falls, as alleged.

Mrs. Arbuckle claimed the nail injuries had been caused by finger sucking.

Mr. Arbuckle said the injuries had all taken place while he was at work and he did not know what was wrong.

Children's Aid Society workers said Ronald was adopted in August 1969, three years after the Arbuckles adopted their first child, a girl. They said the daughter is in perfect physical condition.

Marc Carbonneau Told Wife: 'Someday I Will Be Back'

MONTREAL (CP) — The wife of Marc Carbonneau, one of seven persons taken to Cuba in exchange for the safe release of kidnapped James (Jasper) Cross, says her husband promised he would return to Canada some day.

Mrs. Carbonneau says in an interview published Sunday by Le Journal de Montreal she talked to her husband by telephone Dec. 3, when the seven were flown to Cuba.

Carbonneau, separated from his wife for more than three years, called her from the Canadian pavilion where Mr. Cross was turned over temporarily to Cuban officials.

"If I participated in the kidnapping, it is because I loved you and the children," Carbonneau said. "Someday I will be back and maybe then you will understand."

The 37-year-old former cab driver did not ask Mrs. Carbonneau and their four children to join him in the trip to Cuba.

"Despite what he has done," Mrs. Carbonneau says, "I hope Marc will come back some day. But I will never allow the children to go to Cuba."

MONTREAL (CP) — Mystery surrounding the identity of one of a group of seven given safe conduct to Cuba Dec. 3 in return for the release of kidnap-victim James Cross has been cleared up.

"Pierre Seguin" was identified in Quebec Friday by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette as 23-year-old Yves Langlois, member of a respected family from which his revolutionary ideas had estranged him.

The youngster, described as high-strung, was said to have held odd jobs—$55-weekly hotel receptionist, and court stenographer—and to have tried university study of economics for two months.

Twice in recent years he was reported to have travelled abroad saying his destination was England.

Two Montreal newspapers, La Presse and Montreal-Matin, reported that Langlois is a nephew of two members of the judiciary in Montreal—Mr. Justice Paul Langlois of Quebec Superior Court and Judge Roland Langlois of municipal court.

An employee at the downtown hotel where Langlois worked remembers him once saying the only means to deal with the English is to use force and violence."

The employee said Langlois earned about $80 a week "and spent most of it on drugs and on women in night clubs."

Langlois told hotel employees he did not live with his parents because they did not agree with his ideas and way of living.

One of his former instructors during a brief stint at the University of Montreal during the 1968-69 academic year said Langlois was "always hanging around with a crowd of real trouble-makers." He dropped out of university for no apparent reason after two months.

Langlois spent the entire 48 days of Mr. Cross' captivity in the house where the British diplomat was held hostage, the justice minister told a reporter.

Known at the time as Pierre Seguin, Langlois was one of seven persons flown to Cuba Dec. 3 following the release of Mr. Cross to Cuban authorities in Montreal.

Other persons granted exile in Cuba were Marc Carbonneau, Jacques Lanctot and his wife and child and Jacques Cossette-Trudel and his wife.

Mrs. Lanctot has given birth to another child since the group arrived in Havana.

General Spencer Succumbs

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Maj.-Gen. Alexander Charles Spencer, whose varied career included service in the military, industry, business and education, died Saturday at his London home at age 83.

Gen. Spencer, who distinguished himself as a soldier in both world wars, was also a professional engineer and recognized scientist.

In the First World War, he commanded an advance cavalry screen to the 2nd Canadian Division on the march to the Rhine in 1918, completing the war at the rank of major.

During the Second World War, he assumed command of the First Hussars on active service in 1939 and was soon appointed brigadier commanding the 2nd Canadian Armoured Brigade. Because of age restrictions for field commanders he relinquished his command in 1942.

Back in Canada, he was promoted to the rank of major-general and made commander of Camp Borden where he developed the Canadian Armoured Corps Training Centre.

In recognition of his contribution to the Canadian War effort, he was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire in 1944.

Nitrites Claimed Agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two University of Nebraska scientists report laboratory findings that add new evidence to the possibility that man manufactures in his stomach a cancer-causing chemical from common components of his diet.

The researchers, Dr. Melvin Greenblatt and Dr. Sidney Mirvish of the university's Eppley Institute for Cancer Research, produced lung tumors in 65 to 90 per cent of mice fed large amounts of nitrite—a widely-used preservative and curing agent for fish and meat—and three of a number of protein-building blocks called secondary amines. Fifteen per cent of the tumors were malignant.

The experiment demonstrated that nitrites and some amines combined in the animals' stomachs to form a substance known as nitrosamine. It was then absorbed into the blood and caused lung tumors.

Nitrosamine made in test tubes produced identical tumors when fed or injected into mice, the researchers reported.

The United States Food and Drug Administratin has been informed of the Nebraska research.

Dats A Joke, Son, Just A Joke

MANSTON, England (Reuter) — A pet store owner and life-long hoarder, Ry Tutt, admitted Saturday there is no such thing as a dat.

The 59-year-old former bookmaker claimed last week he had successfully crossed a Scotch terrier with a black cat and produced two part-dog, part-cat offspring.

Newspapers carried stories and pictures of the two small black creatures with dog's head but cat's body and legs. Tutt appeared on television and reporters from around the world called to interview him at his home in this small southeast England town.

But a broadly-smiling Tutt admitted Saturday night: "The whole thing was a hoax and I hope it has given people a bit of a laugh. The animals are nothing more than mongrel puppies that I bought for five shillings (60 cents) each.

"I suppose I was born a practical joker."

Tutt said this was not his first successful hoax. He once went into his local tavern with a lot of pound notes he had soaked in water, claiming they had been washed up on the beach. In no time the bar had emptied.

Farmer Punches Worker

LONDON (Reuter) — Britons saw an angry farmer on the David Frost television show punch a power-station worker on the jaw Saturday night.

It happened during a heated debate between a representative group of union men and the studio audience, with TV interviewer David Frost as chairman.

The farmer, sitting in the audience, claimed that the power cuts this week had cost him about £30 ($125) a day on lost egg production and that 4,000 of his 16,000 birds had died.

Tempers frayed and the farmer walked on to the stage. A union man stood up and peeled off his jacket. "You're Communists," the farmer bellowed—and swung a punch at the union man who fell back.

Frost managed to calm down the shouting mobs that followed.

The farmer who threw the punch was 28-year-old John Medlicott of Cambridge, who sprayed six tons of liquid chicken manure over local electricity workers' cars Friday as a protest over the death of his chickens.

Protectionism Said Economic Suicide

PARIS (Reuter) — President Georges Pompidou warned the world's richer nations today against the renewed temptation of trade protectionism which he said would lead to economic slowdown.

Pompidou, whose warning came amid widespread concern here over a protectionist trade bill before the U.S. Congress, also questioned the U.S. dollar's prerogative as a universal reserve currency.

In a speech prepared for a ceremony marking the 10th anniversary for the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, Pompidou asked if the U.S. dollar's role is compatible with a permanent deficit in the U.S. balance of payments.

Pompidou posed a series of questions on crucial economic problems in his speech at the Paris headquarters of the OECD, which groups 22 of the world's richest industrial nations.

"How to reconcile the obligation of an active employment policy with the battle against inflation?" he asked.

"How to resist the renewed temptation of protectionism, which would first divide, then oppose and finally would lead each of us to an economic slowdown?"

Pompidou asked if OECD member states were doomed to permanent inflation for fear of unemployment, which he felt their societies would not tolerate.

"Will we cradle ourselves in the illusion that peace could be found in the shelter of newly-raised customs barriers?" he asked.

"Is it imagined that the role of universal reserve currency, which is now the prerogative of the dollar, is compatible in the long run with a permanent American balance of payments deficit?" he added.

Pompidou said it would be vain for political leaders and economic planners to rely on a day-to-day policy for the major economic issues.

He asked it would be disastrous to wait for a general crisis to find a solution to these issues and also stressed the importance of OECD's relations with the developing nations.

He said there is no more pressing need than to provide the third world with the aid it needs to cross the threshold beyond which progress would be self-supporting.

"This aid, to be effective, must be big, must be concentrated and must be adapted," he added.

Pompidou called for agreements to stabilize the prices of raw materials and to help the sale of goods produced by developing countries.

Crash Diet Can Kill Sex Interest

LONDON (AP) — Crash diets can kill a girl's interest in sex, a British doctor warned Sunday.

Prof. Ivor Mills, head of the department of investigative medicine at Cambridge University, gave the advice in the weekly newspaper G.P., which is issued to all general practioners.

"They get on a crash reducing diet," he wrote. "Some of them are actually fat to start with but a lot of them are not. Very quickly their menstrual periods stop. If they go on such a diet in a cycle before they have ovulated, they will not ovulate and no menstruate. If they have ovulated, they will have one more menstruation and then no more."

Mills told the doctors: "This situation is extremely difficult to treat, and this becomes very distressing to a girl when she has overcome the problem and established her weight at a very respectable level and got interested in boy friends again."

Press Council Start Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — A press council should be started now by those newspapers that support the idea, Senator Keith Davey (L—Ontario) said in a television interview Sunday.

"Let us begin," he said. "I suspect that more papers might be willing to participate than the critics of the proposal realize."

Senator Davey suggested the creation of a press council for Canada in the report of his special Senate committee on the mass media, released last week.

He said it should be established without government help or direction, to act as a journalistic ombudsman for people who believe they have been damaged by press coverage. It also would promote higher standards of journalism and journalistic training.

Interviewed on the CTV network program Question Period, Senator Davey said he thought newspaper publishers were split about 50-50 on the merits of forming a press council.

Duty to Report Factual Stories

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Keith Davey Sunday night mentioned "reprehensible" mistakes made by news media in their coverage of the Cross kidnaping, but rejected any form of news censorship.

The senator also said that by and large, what he saw of the Quebec news coverage was "quite responsible."

"No one has all the facts of what happened in the province of Quebec, and however," he said.

The senator, whose committee released its report on the mass media last week, was interviewed on the CBC network television program Weekend. He was shown excerpts of British diplomat James Cross' news conference in London in which Mr. Cross blasted Canadian journalists.

Mr. Cross, a prisoner for two months of Front de Liberation de Quebec terrorists in Montreal, took journalists to task for incorrectly announcing his own death the night Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte was found dead.

He also had angry words for reporters who tried to read his thoughts in interpretative stories on the letters the FLQ allowed him to send to his wife and others.

Senator Davey said both incidents were "reprehensible mistakes" that could have led to tragedy. However, if the media believed what it was saying was factual, it had a duty to report it.

The senator said Canadians must remember that it was not the news media that created the crisis in Quebec—newspapers, radio and television merely reported it.

Senator Davey said the only alternative to giving the press free rein in similar situations is censorship, and "I totally reject any form of censorship."

Stalemate Promotes Middle East Tension

NEW YORK (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan says that continued stalemate in the Middle East increases the chance of an explosion that could involve the major powers in a new world war.

Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said his country wants to resume negotiations, providing "proper conditions" prevail.

Both men appeared a television interviews recorded before their return home from American visits, but screened Sunday.

"We are not making progress and there is urgency," said Hussein in an interview taped Friday.

He appeared on ABC's Issues and Answers show.

Dayan said in an interview taped Saturday: "The United Nations Security Council resolution of 1967 is not our bible; we have our own views of where the secure borders should be."

He appeared on NBC's Meet the Press.

Ian Smith's Son Denied UK Entry

LONDON (AP) — Britain refused to grant Sunday to the 21-year-old son of Ian Smith, Rhodesian prime minister, whom the British regard as a rebel.

Alec Smith, a law student, had applied for a short-term passport at the British consulate in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, on Nov. 14 and said: "I think Britain is a great country.

The British foreign office said young Smith's application was rejected as he "does not meet the criteria laid down by Parliament in June, 1969, for issuing of passports to Rhodesians who are not United Kingdom citizens."

U.S. Cracks Down On Illegal Betting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice department, in what it called the largest co-ordinated anti-gambling raids ever, has arrested 37 persons in an effort to crack down on illegal sports operations.

A department spokesman said more than half the raids involved illegal professional football betting operations. Agents confiscated $184,000 in currency during the raids, which occurred in 26 cities around the United States.

A prime target was Las Vegas, Nev., where two top executives of Caesars Palace, a gambling casino, were charged with using telephones to aid gambling. Three Las Vegas betting houses also were raided on a charge of "in effect acting as illegal underwriters to the nation's top bookmakers," the department said.

Attorney-General John Mitchell said FBI and Internal Revenue Service agents served 180 search warrants during the raids. The justice department

Associated Press Sports Writer

"The first step to the Super Bowl."

That's how Coach Don McCafferty described the 20-14 victory his Baltimore Colts registered over Buffalo Bills Sunday in National Football League action.

The triumph gave the Colts, 1969 Super Bowl losers to New York Jets, the championship of the American Conference East and one of the eight NFL playoff berths.

The Colts joined Oakland Raiders and Minnesota Vikings, on the list of division champions. The Raiders wrapped up the AFC West Saturday with a 28-7 decision over Kansas City Chiefs, defending Super Bowl titlists. Minnesota won the National Conference Central Division crown a week ago Saturday.

With only one more weekend of regular season action left, the NFC East and West and the AFC's Central Division races will go down to the wire.

New York Giants, behind Fran Tarkenton's three touchdown passes, joined Dallas Cowboys as NFC East co-leader by thumping St. Louis Cards 34-17 in one of Sunday's ivy games. Dallas was a 6-3 victim over Cleveland Browns Saturday.

St. Louis isn't out of the title picture, however, although the Cards dropped to third place in the NFC East.

In Sunday's other games, Cincinnati Bengals claimed sole possession of the AFC Central lead with a 30-28 beating of Houston Oilers; the Vikings crushed Boston Patriots 35-14; San Francisco 49ers remained on top of the NFC West with a 38-37 decision over New Orleans Saints; Washington Redskins, with Larry Brown cracking the 1,000-yard rushing barrier, defeated Philadelphia Eagles 24-6; Atlanta Falcons clobbed Pittsburgh Steelers' AFC Central title hopes, 27-16; Chicago Bears blasted Green Bay Packers 35-17; Miami Dolphins remained in the playoff picture despite Baltimore's title-clinching triumph by downing the Jets 16-16 and Denver Broncos and San Diego Chargers played to a 17-17 deadlock.

Los Angeles Rams, only a half-game back of the 49ers in the NFC West, are host to Detroit Lions, second-place team in the NFC Central Division but still playoff hopefuls, in tonight's NFL televised game.

The division winners in each conference plus a fourth team from each conference the division runners-up with the best record—qualify for the playoffs and a possible trip to next month's world championship game in Miami.

Here's how it went Sunday:

Norm Bulaich's three-yard scoring run after a 29-yard Johnny Unitas pass to Roy Jefferson brought Baltimore back from a 14-7 second-quarter deficit. The Bills were assessed 107 yards in penalties.

Tarkenton, scoring once on a referee himself, completed 14 of 21 passes for 242 yards plus his three TD tosses for the Giants. One, however, was with the aid of a lateral by Bob Tucker to Don Herrman. Tucker was the first 13 yards, Herrman the final 30 on the scoring play.

Houston had to rally in the second half and Ensor Johnson was the sparkplug. He ran 15 for one touchdown and hauled in a 49-yard pass from Virgil Carter for another score.

Reserve Minnesota quarterback Bob Lee threw twice for touchdowns and ran for a third as the Vikings crushed Boston and former team-mate Joe Kapp, now the Pats' signal caller; Lee, plunk-blushing for injured Gary Cuozzo, passed for 278 yards, hitting on 18 of 25.

Brown of the Redskins, who wound up with 1,081 yards, joins Gale Sayers and Leroy Kelly as the NFC's only active rusher with more than 1,000 season yards. He scored one of the Washington touchdowns.

The Saints took a 21-10 halftime lead before San Francisco's John Brodie pricks his offence, passing for three touchdowns.

Hawley Hopes Dimmer

MIAMI (CP) — Sandy Hawley's hopes for a North American riding record dimmed further Saturday when he completed his 12th straight day without riding a winner at Tropical Park racetrack.

Hawley, from Whitby, Ont., started riding here Monday when he brought in his 42nd winner, but he hasn't scored since and remains 33 wins behind the season record of 485 set in 1953 by Willie Shoemaker.

Races resume at Tropical Park today with only 16 days remaining on the track's schedule this year.

Bowled Over

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tulane turned a chilly mid-December night into a New Year's Eve celebration Saturday with a 17-3 Liberty Bowl triumph over heavily favored Colorado.

Tulane's first bowl victory since 1935—and its first bowl appearance since 1949—was no fluke.

In six games featuring the top small college teams in the U.S., Arkansas State, North Dakota State, Tennessee State and Delaware won National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division regional titles while Texas A. and I. captured the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship and Jacksonville, Ala., State defeated Florida A. and M. in the annual Orange Blossom Classic.

for Dayan and Billy Myer to edge Fresh Yankee and Joe O'Brien by a neck in the 10th running of the $100,000 American Trotting Classic at Hollywood Park.

Dayan, Adonis Stable's four-year-old Hickory Smoke stallion, was clocked in 2:13 2-5 over the 1¼-mile course, tying the 1968 effort of Earl Laird in this same race.

"Boy, it's sure nice to beat her," said Myer, referring to Fresh Yankee, the 1970 Harness Horse of the Year and career winner of $856,063.

Eleven times in 1970 the two have raced and the head-to-head results are even—five victories apiece. They finished 3-3 in the 11th race behind Grandpa Jim.

It was Dayan's second upset of Fresh Yankee, the 4-5 favorite Saturday, in as many weeks. The finish was about as close in the Pacific, a mile-long stepping stone to the Classic.

Dayan paced Saturday's race from start to finish but never led by much more than three lengths.

Then Fresh Yankee, the seven-year-old daughter of Hickory Pride and defending Classic champion, began her bid in the last turn.

"When Joe came to me in the middle of the turn, he saw I had plenty of horse left," said Myer. "Coming to the finish I was confident all the way that my horse would make it."

"She's a great mare, that's her sire," said O'Brien of his horse, winner of $259,985 this season, including $30,000 in the Classic.

Dayan's win was worth $46,000 and boosted his career earnings to $177,546.

Fresh Yankee, starting from the No. 7 position as the 4-5 favorite, would have won if had she been able to start inside Dayan, said O'Brien.

She lost but 8½ lengths behind Fresh Yankee in the field of eight was Ulysse Mob. Terrific was fourth and Grandpa Jim, fifth.

Teacher Joe Outclassed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Bob Lee of Minnesota Vikings met up with the old pro, Joe Kapp. The student, with a far superior team, turned master in far outclassing the teacher.

Lee, making the most of a starting opportunity as gimpy Gary Cuozzo, sat out a second straight week, went to the air on ice-patch field and passed the Vikings to a 35-14 National Football League victory over Boston's hapless Patriots Sunday on Harvard Stadium's frozen turf.

A third-year pro who moved up one notch after Kapp played out his option with the Vikings last year and elected to sign with the Patriots this season, Lee hit on 18 of 25 passes for 278 yards and two touchdowns and then scored himself on a neat bootleg job in the third period before taking a well-deserved rest.

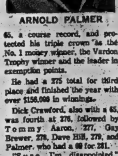
Doug's Famine Over, Arnie Takes A Turn

FREEPORT, Grand Bahama (AP) — Doug Sanders broke a long victory famine And Arnold Palmer broke a long victory string.

"It's important to know I'm not finished," the 37-year-old Sanders said Sunday after a two-hole sudden-death playoff victory over Chris Blocker for the $36,000 first-place money in the Bahama Islands open golf tournament.

"Well, we'll have to try it again next year," the bitterly disappointed Palmer said after his drive failed in this, the last tournament of the year. For the first year since 1955 he doesn't have an individual title to call his own.



Sanders abandoned his happy-go-lucky playboy role for one of sturdy determination in the final round as he sought his first victory in almost four years.

He watched in stricken fascination as the husky, hard-hitting Blocker nibbled away at his lead, passed him and finished with a sparkling six-under-par 66 for 272.

Sanders, winner of 17 previous events but champ-ridden for five years, came to the finishing hole, a long par-five with water in the front, needing a birdie to tie. He put his second in a trap to the right of the green, blasted out some 45 yards to about seven feet and knocked in the putt that forced the 12th playoff on the circuit this season. He finished with a 68.

Both Sanders and Blocker made par on the first playoff hole. Blocker, went over par on the second from a trap and Sanders had a two-putt par for his first victory since the 1967 Doral Open.

Lee Trevino had a final round

ARNOLD PALMER

He had a 275 total for third place and finished the year with over $156,000 in winnings.

Dick Crawford, also with a 65, was fourth at 276, followed by Tommy Aaron, 277, Dave Brewer, 278, Dave Hill, 279, and Palmer, who had a 69 for 281.

"I'm sure I'm disappointed," said Palmer, who had entered this event only in an effort to keep alive his victory string.

Leafs' Forgotten Man Slams Door for Second Time

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The forgotten man on the Toronto Maple Leaf roster this season has been instrumental in their current bid for a National Hockey League playoff berth.

Goalie Bruce Gamble registered his second straight shutout for the Leafs Sunday night, 4-0 over Buffalo Sabres, as Toronto put together its longest winning streak of the season—three games.

Gamble helped start the string by shutting the door on Montreal Canadiens last Wednesday, also 4-0, and was ready in reserve at home Saturday as the Leafs tripped Chicago Black Hawks 3-1.

With Jacques Plante joining the Leafs this season, Gamble has been somewhat of a forgotten man he has been doing his share of work for the club, still sixth in the NHL's East Division but now only six points behind fourth-place Vancouver Canucks.

In other Sunday games, the East Division-leading Boston Bruins ripped Detroit Red Wings apart with a 8-2 victory following a second-period blitz of four goals in 3½ minutes. New York Rangers stayed within two points of the Bruins with a 4-0 win over Los Angeles Kings. Wayne Hillman's shot from the point with less than five minutes remaining gave Philadelphia Flyers a 2-1 tie with St. Louis Blues and Chicago Black Hawks, leaders in the West, dumped Minnesota North Stars 5-3.

The other Saturday games saw Boston blank Philadelphia 1-0 in the afternoon, the Red Wings bump Buffalo 5-3, Montreal Canadiens blast Los Angeles 8-1 with a six-goal outburst in the second period, Vancouver upend California Golden Seals as captain Orland Kurtenbach to fill the breach while bearing his share of the Leafs' grief to date.

He got all the help he needed from Norm Ullman Sunday night when the veteran centre scored the first of his two goals in the first period and Toronto's defensive play made it easy the rest of the way, limiting Sabres to just 17 shots on goal.

Boston's Phil Esposito had his fourth three-goal night of the year in leading the Bruin victory with two of his goals coming during the second-period outburst against Detroit's rookie goaltender, Don McLeod, in Boston Garden.

Jean Ratelle had a big night at New York's Madison Square Garden, notching a goal and assisting on two others as the Rangers extended their unbeaten string on home ice to 14 games.

The tie at Philadelphia prevented the Blues from closing the gap in the West Division and they now trail the Black Hawks by seven points with the Flyers another eight points back in third spot.

The Hawks broke their game at home open with four second-period goals after Minnesota's Danny Grant had given the North Stars a 1-0 first-period lead behind the expert netminding of Gump Worsley. Goals by Bill White, Lou Angotti, Dennis Hull and Stan Mikita wrapped up Chicago's 19th win of the season.

Ken Hodge's power-play goal in the first period was all the firepower Boston needed Saturday but most of the fireworks took place in the second period when Bruins' Derek Sanderson became embroiled with two Philadelphia spectators behind the penalty bench.

As Sanderson went over the glass after his tormentors, the entire Boston bench skated across the ice and followed their mod centre into the stands among the fans.

The Red Wings cut the lopsided Sabres down despite Buffalo's domination of the game at Detroit as they peppered McLeod with 41 shots, including 18 in the first period when the winners took a 1-0 lead on Frank Mahovlich's 11th goal of the season.

Petes Run Out of Scoring Steam

Ottawa's surprising 67s flattened all comers during weekend action in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series to stay in contention while Peterborough Petes ran out of scoring steam.

The Petes lead the 16-team circuit standings with 38 points, but the 67s and St. Catharines Black Hawks are coming up fast with 33 points each. The Petes were stomped 5-1 Friday night by Ottawa, then lost 3-2 to the unpredictable London Knights Sunday.

In the meantime, St. Catharines kept up with Ottawa by blasting Oshawa Generals 5-3 Saturday. And then along came the 67s Sunday night, reviling the Black Hawks' chances for sole possession of second place with a 4-3 win in St. Catharines.

Oaks Going Places After Adding New Faces

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seventh-place Oakville Oaks, their roster studded with new faces, have started a climb up the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

They whipped sixth-place Owen Sound Crescents 8-5 Saturday in Owen Sound then shut them out 4-0 in Oakville Sunday —giving the Oaks a total of 24 goals in their last three games and a three-game winning streak.

In other weekend action, Orillia Terriers beat Barrie Flyers 3-1 Sunday to stay in the league lead, two points ahead of Galt Hornets. The Hornets whipped Kingston Aces 7-3 Saturday for a four-point lead on third-place Barrie.

Kingston won its other weekend game, edging Woodstock A's 5-4 Sunday for a three-point hold on the fourth spot, ahead of Belleville McFarlands, who may team idle during the weekend.

The Oaks won only two of their first 13 games but now have a six wins, 12 losses, and one tie.

Their surge follows the acquisition in recent weeks of a solid core of talent, headed by goalie Ken Broderick—veteran of five years with Canada's national team and 30 games last season with Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League.

The new Oaks manager, Burlington salesman Earl Were, has also picked up Bobby Taylor of the Eastern Football Conference's Toronto Argonauts. Ken Knapton who played with Columbus Jets of the International Hockey League last year and Fraser Rice, formerly with Long Island Ducks of the Eastern Hockey League.

* * *

On Sunday, Dick Smith led the way with a two-goal performance. The others went to Robinson, Knapton, Hincks, Corbett, Bryle Klinck and Dunc MacDonald.

Orillia's Grant Moore and Clare Alexander each scored in the final two minutes of the game at Barrie Sunday to break a 1-1 deadlock on goals by Tom McCarthy and Barrie's Corby Adams.

The Hornets' win Saturday was set up by Bruce Reier with three goals. Ron Smith, Howie Dietrich, Mike Doersam and Vance Miller scored the rest.

Bob Rawson, Tom Thurlby and Bob Clayton scored for the Aces.

At Woodstock Sunday, Thurlby scored at 18:10 of the third period to break a 4-4 tie established in the second period.

All Downhill For France?

SESTRIERE, Italy (CP) — The French Alpine skiing team has taken a firm grip on the 1971 World Cup from the start by dominating both the men's and women's downhill events as the new season opened during the weekend.

Francois Macchi Saturday and Henri Duvillard Sunday were the winners for France in the downhill. But it was the French team as a whole that impressed with class, cohesion and determination.

The French girls dominated the 1970 World Cup in both individual and team standings. Frenchmen won the team competition but arch-rival Karl Schranz of Austria took the individual title.

Duvillard and Bernard Orcel, however, Sunday finished ahead of Schranz, who was third in the men's downhill at Sestriere. For the French aces it was a double-revenge over Austrians and Swiss.

Duvillard and Orcel, France's downhill stars, had an off-season last year. They won nothing of major importance, performed poorly at the Val Gardena world championships and never were in the race for the World Cup.

Duvillard, 23, now leads the World Cup with 25 points, ahead of Orcel who has 20 and Schranz with 15. Bernard Russi of Switzerland, the world champion, placed fourth Sunday. Ezri Cordic of Austria, second at Val Gardena and in the 1970 World Cup downhill standing, was knocked out of Sunday's race by a bad spill.

Canada's team's best performance was by Keith Shepherd of Lake Louise, Alta., turning in the best performance—30th. Glen Hunter of Calgary was 39th; Dan Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., 46th; Bert Irwin of Kamloops, B.C., 65th; and Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant, Que., 68th.

The French women's team placed five finishers in the top 10 Saturday in the Moderne downhill race at nearby Bardonecchia.

Miss Macchi, 19, took the lead in the women's world cup, collecting 25 points for Saturday's victory.

HEY FELLOWS

BEFORE YOU BUY THAT SO-CALLED SPORT CAR, CONSIDER THESE FACTS ON CONVERTIBLE TOPS

One of the low and costly ways in the world of the automobile body repairs is the convertible top. Not only is it costly, but the time consuming part is the fact that the convertible top is the last to be fixed, and you have to wait for it. Now, if you have a convertible top, we will look and perform exactly the same as you would if you had a hard top. Save time, money & aggravation.

Loose Rules Tightened

Heath Government Determined to Intervene in Public Interest

LONDON (CP) — The British government's new Industrial Relations Bill and its proclaiming Saturday of emergency powers in an electricity workers' slowdown underline the Heath administration's resolve to deal with labor-management fights that affect the public interest.

The long, 139-page Industrial Relations Bill, introduced to Parliament Dec. 3, also has the intention of bringing order into Britain's notoriously loose rules for dealings between management and unions.

Both are due to come before the Commons today. The proclamation has been tabled by statute, while a two-day debate on the bill also has been scheduled for today and Tuesday.

Expectations were that the Labor opposition would not object strongly to the emergency powers measure but that it would open a long and tough fight against the Industrial Relations bill.

The Opposition has been attacking the measure on the ground that the government's overcoming industrial strife is to rely on the use of union leaders, Harold Wilson's administration did bring in a measure to ban unofficial and often infuriating wildcat strikes but withdrew it under pressure of its own left wing and got an anti-wildcat agreement from unions instead.

So far as the emergency powers are concerned, the proclamation signed by the Queen under legislation of 1939 and 1964 gives the cabinet wide authority to combat the effects of a work-to-rule slowdown by 125,000 employees of the state-run electricity system.

A week-long series of voltage reductions and revolving blackouts has resulted, though these passed off during the weekend.

The emergency powers would allow the government to go so far as to send troops into the power stations, but all indications so far are that it intends to wield a softer hand. The first order was merely to ban the use of illuminated advertising signs and window displays and Christmas illuminations in stores.

Government spokesmen considered it might be necessary later—especially if a cold spell hit—to shut off electricity from some industrial plants. Britons apparently were complying well with official requests to conserve the use of power in the homes.

Meanwhile, some Conservatives were citing the slowness of Vic Feather, chief of the Trades Union Congress, to get unions together on the electricity wage issue as a justification for his big Industrial Relations Bill with many revolutionary provisions.

This measure, while setting out penalties upon both unions and employers in certain cases, also gets a long way to straighten out collective bargaining practices.

Some of its provisions parallel Canadian procedures.

One provides for the certification of a union in a plant by a majority vote of employees—something that could rule out down the chronic jurisdictional strikes that bedevil British industry. At present, it's every union for itself.

Another is a variation of Canada's Rand Formula whereby a worker in a plant not wanting to join a union could either pay dues to it or the equivalent amount to a charity of his choice.

No worker would be barred from employment for not being a member of the union.

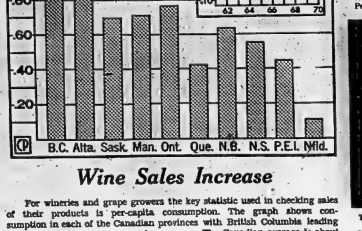
A further provision is that a secret ballot of workers could be ordered by an industrial court before a strike is called. However, the law does not specify—in its present stage—that the union leadership would have to obey the result of the ballot.

A main clause of the bill is that, if the national economy would be imperilled by a strike, the government can apply for a 60-day cooling-off period from a proposed national industrial relations court to be set up with the status of a superior court.

Both employers and unions would be made liable for "compensation" in the event of unfair labor practices.

An ill-treated worker would be able to get from a company up to two years' pay or $4,163 ($10,000)—which ever is the lesser—for wrongful dismissal.

A union breaching a legally-binding contract, with an employer could be liable for between £5,000 and £100,000, depending on the size of its membership.



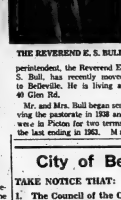
The escape clause here is this: While all collective contracts would be presumed to be legally enforceable—which they are not now—the signatories could declare all or any part of one not enforceable. This would nullify the presumption. And obviously unions would be wary of signing binding contracts under the new law.

Government spokesmen say the intention is to fix a scale of awards big enough to be painful but not to break a union financially. Most of them are well heeled. For instance, the Transport and General Workers' Union has a war chest of £21 million. It could afford to pay out £250,000 a week in strike benefits during a pickworkers' dispute last summer.

In any case, the government's view is that claims by employers against unions under the proposed law would be extremely rare.

Firms also would be able to seek unlimited damages against wildcat strikers, who normally operate without union sanction. Should they defy court orders against inciting or prolonging strikes, under present law, they could go to prison for contempt of court.

The government has no intention of rushing its measure through Parliament. After a second reading debate this week, it is due to be considered clause-by-clause by the whole Commons—rather than in committee—over some months. Passage is expected by the summer recess with the measure going into effect next fall.



Wine Sales Increase

For wineries and grape growers the key statistic used in checking sales of their products is per-capita consumption. The graph shows consumption in each of the Canadian provinces with British Columbia leading with 1.1 gallons a year consumed per person. Canadian average is about three-quarters of a gallon a year. The inset graph shows per-capita wine sales in Canada since 1960. (CP Newsmap)

Free Methodist Leader Here

As part of the plan to make Belleville the headquarters for the Free Methodist Church for the Muskoka, Toronto and Peterborough districts, its superintendent, the Reverend E. S. Bull, has recently moved to Belleville. He is living at 49 Glen Rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Bull began serving the pastorate in 1938 and were in Picton for two terms, the last ending in 1963. Mr. Bull was in charge of the Ottawa and Kingston districts for six years, then transferred to the western area of the conference and moved to Agincourt.

THE REVEREND E. S. BULL

Mrs. Bull's father, the Reverend N. F. Perry, a retired minister lives with them and her brother Arthur is a minister of the Free Methodist Church at Harrowsmith. The couple has three children: the Reverend Carl Bull, minister of the Free Methodist Church at Barrie; Norman, employed at the head office of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Toronto and a daughter Erla, a student at Roberts Wesleyan College North Chil, N.Y.

Relaxing Exam

LONDON (CP) — David Panini's hospital visitors didn't bring him flowers and grapes when they called. They sat bent-faced for three hours without uttering a word, because they were invigilating Panini's vital school examination. He had to take it in hospital after a heart attack. "It was a bit more comfortable than sitting at a desk," he joked afterwards.

Benefits Raised

Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced in his pre-Christmas minibudget that unemployment insurance benefits would be raised by 10 per cent. The raise is to become effective Jan. 1, 1971. Graph shows weekly benefits to unemployed people in various salary brackets. For example, a single person who had been earning under $20 a week will collect $14.30 unemployment benefit. However, anyone earning $150 or more is ineligible for benefits if they find themselves out of work. (CP Newsmap)

New Device Is Marketed To Prevent Auto Thefts

By RAY STAPLEY

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 30,568 motor vehicles were stolen in Canada during 1968, 7.2 per cent of which were not recovered. In the past 10 years, auto thefts have risen at an alarming rate and about 24 per cent of those are involved in accidents or maliciously abused.

Unfortunately, an astonishing number of these vehicles are stolen by kick-seeking boys, many of whom either have no driver's license or are too young to apply for one. Apart from being inexperienced, these boys are usually reckless and some are under the influence of alcohol or drugs. At the sight of a police car they will floor the gas pedal and tear through traffic at break-neck speed which can lead to injury or death as the vehicle goes out of control. Those that are arrested frequently wind up with a criminal record for life.

Leaving the keys in the ignition is the prime cause of auto theft. Motorists who forget to remove the keys from the car or flatly refuse to lock it are to blame for much of this juvenile delinquency. With these youngsters, car theft is often their first serious offence but it can lead to a career in crime.

The problem is even worse in the USA where it is estimated that a car is stolen every 57 seconds. Originally, the ignition switch functioned much like a light switch in our homes. When shut off, it simply stopped the flow of current to the ignition, preventing the engine from rushing. But once shown the simple procedure, within minutes practically anyone could get the car going by bridging the ignition with a length of wire.

To help combat theft, many 1969 models were fitted with a more positive locking mechanism. As well as stopping the engine, this new device also locks the transmission, making the car immovable. All the 1970 cars were so equipped, as will be all future models. While this will do much to minimize theft of the newer models, there are still millions of vehicles on the road with the old style ignition switch which offers little protection.

However, a unique anti-theft device was demonstrated to me a few weeks ago that can be fitted to all cars equipped with automatic transmissions where the gearshift handle is attached to the steering column.

Known as Translok, this compact unit can be installed on the steering column in about 15 minutes. Here is how it functions — when the car is not in use the driver places the gearshift lever in "park" and then engages a spring-loaded button which is built into the Translok assembly. This action locks the gearshift in the "park" position making it impossible to shift gears. A key is provided to unlock the mechanism.

As well as preventing theft, it guards against the danger of amateur mechanics placing the transmission in gear and getting the car into motion.

It also assures that the vehicle is securely held in the "park" position when the car is at rest.

Mr. N. Lazar, 42 Allview Crescent, Willowdale, Ont., is the Canadian distributor for Translok. The unit costs $13.50 plus a few dollars for installation.

The death and destruction triggered by auto theft's would likely be halved if all vehicles were equipped with this excellent device.

Explosion Blasts GE Building

NEW YORK (Reuter) — An explosion blew out the front door of the General Electric headquarters building early today, injuring at least one person.

Police said the blast apparently resulted from an explosive device placed at the doorway of the building on Lexington Avenue near East 51st St. The building is only a block away from the UN police precinct.

The injured person was a woman passerby. She was taken to hospital for treatment.

Besides blowing out the huge plate glass door, the explosion also shattered a window across the street.

New York radio station WINS reported that it received a call about five minutes before the blast at about 1:15 a.m. EST warning that an explosion was about to occur.

The station quoted the caller as having said: "General Electric is going to be blown up. This is Mira." Mira is a militant Puerto Rican organization which is seeking independence for the island.

UNICEF Fund Goal Criticized

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Claiming UNICEF Christmas cards give aid and comfort to the enemy by sending money to North Vietnam, anti-Communist groups have halted the sale of the cards in St. Petersburg's post office.

UNICEF, the United Nations International Children's Emergency Relief Fund, sells the cards to benefit children in underdeveloped countries.

"I can't accept the idea of people denying children, especially children who have nothing," said Marilyn Tingzi, who for five years has set up a UNICEF card booth in the post office.

She said she had been told by St. Petersburg Postmaster Robert K. Harwood that he "had received telephoned threats that pickets would come to the building and he wouldn't let us have space this year unless specifically authorized by igher authority."

Two weeks ago in Lakeland, 40 miles to the east, a minister led a group of 18 pickets in front of the federal building to protest the sale of UNICEF cards.

Rev. Morris McDonald, pastor of Faith Bible Presbyterian Church, said he organized the picketing to protest sending aid to North Vietnam.

"The UNICEF folder says aid goes to North Vietnam, and although it says American dollars aren't directed there I feel such donations open a way to give aid or comfort to an enemy."

Ireland's Best Not Good in Referee's Eyes

LONDON (CP) — Irish soccer star George Best had his name taken, by a referee for the fourth time in a year during one of the most explosive English League soccer games this season in Manchester Saturday.

Even a three-goal effort by England's World Cup ace, Francis Lee, was pushed well down the list of highlights in a stunning clash in which Manchester City won 4-1 over Manchester United.

The volatile Best, who plays for United, was booked by referee John Homewood after a crunching tackle on City full-back Glyn Pardoe, who was taken from the field on a stretcher. Pardoe suffered a broken right leg.

Bob Lee and John Fitzpatrick of Manchester United had their names taken, after an incident in the 41st minute. With the antagonists reacting fiercely, a score of fighting teen-agers were hauled out of the stadium by police.

A player is subject to fines, banning and even suspension if he is booked three times in a season. Best has been booked four times over the space of two seasons. When a player is booked, a report goes to the soccer authorities on the incident.

Best will face a disciplinary hearing over Saturday's incident, officials said.

Leeds United, leading the First Division had its margin trimmed to two points—35 to 33 as Arsenal edged a 1-0 win in a goalless draw at home to lowly Ipswich Town. Arsenal jumped up the London title challenge with a 2-1 win at home in faltering Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Tottenham Hotspur was joined by London rival Chelsea in third place at 27 points. Tottenham was beaten 3-1 away to West Bromwich Albion while Chelsea played a 1-1 tie at Nottingham Forest.

Ian Robertson and Peter Osgood of Chelsea and Barry Lyons and Bob Chapman of Forest also had their names taken.

A second half three-goal effort by West Bromwich Albion forward Tony Brown sent the Spurs down to defeat after they had led 1-0 at halftime.

In the Second Division Leicester City preserved its one-point lead over Aston Town—31 to 30 from 21 games—with a 2-1 home win over Millwall in yesterday's stormy clash in which Millwall's Dennis Burnett was ordered off by the referee in the last minute.

In the second round of the English Football Associated Cup, only three of the 11 non-League clubs made sure of third round clashes against the glamor teams from the First and Second Division.

Part-time professionals Barnet matched a 1-0 win away to the all-amateur Slough town team; Wigan Athletic won 2-1 at home to Fourth Division Peterborough, and Yeovil Town clinched a 1-0 triumph away to Bournemouth, another Fourth Division team.

A fourth non-League team, Rhyl, maintained its chance of a lucrative third-round match next month when it held Third Division Barnsley to a 1-0 draw.

Joe Harper, the leading scorer in the Scottish League's First Division, netted the goal that gave Aberdeen an upset 1-0 triumph away in mighty Glasgow Celtic. Harper's goal was his 20th this season and gave Aberdeen a one-point lead over Celtic.

Warriors Capitalize On Knickerbocker Mistakes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

One mistake is one too many against New York Knicks, says Nate Thurmond.

"I haven't seen a team play as well as a team since the old Boston Celtics," says San Francisco's super centre, "you just can't make any mistakes."

So the Warriors didn't make too many mistakes—and the Knicks "did—Sunday night. The result was a 101-94 San Francisco victory.

San Francisco beat New York at its own game—defence—and Thurmond helped control the backboards with 17 rebounds although playing only part way on ailing knees.

Elsewhere Atlanta Hawks beat Buffalo Braves 119-91; San Diego Rockets defeated Cleveland Cavaliers 113-95; Milwaukee Bucks trampled Seattle Super Sonics 134-107 and Detroit Pistons tripped Los Angeles Lakers 103-101.

In the NBA Saturday night it was New York 118-Philadelphia 101, Phoenix 113-Milwaukee 111, Buffalo 93-Detroit 92, Baltimore 119-San Francisco 98, Cincinnati 14-Cleveland 95, Atlanta 107-Portland 101 and Chicago 103-

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is reasonable about practically everything except that he is careless when he catches cold(s). I have never seen him hold a tissue or handerchief — or even his hard hand — in front of his mouth when he coughs. And he will sneeze so hard you can actually see the spray.

If you add it all up, in the past three years we've had pneumonia in one of our children and a bad ear infection in the other. As for myself, I've had two attacks of severe acute bronchitis.

I've begged him to get into the habit of covering up when he sneezes or coughs, but he says it's a lot of nonsense. "If one member of the family catches cold," he says, "everyone else is bound to get it, no matter what precautions anyone takes." May I have your opinion? — Mrs. A.

Comment: Ask him why surgeons wear masks? Why do nurses cover up while taking care of the newborn in nurseries? Why do we advise people to stay away from crowds during flu epidemics?

The answer is evident. Disease can be spread by coughing and sneezing. And when you can't find at least some sensible protection within the confines of your own home, I can understand, Mrs. A., how frustrating it can be.

Tell your husband that coughing and sneezing are simply bursts of spray that carry droplets out into the air. When these contain infective agents such as viruses and bacteria, it's evident that the innocent bystander has a good chance of getting infected.

Many people, like your husband, take the fatalistic attitude that a cold or the flu will spread "anyway." It's not inevitable. In many instances other members of the family — especially young children — can be spared from catching infection.

I recall one young mother who was as careless as your husband. She had an attack of flu that left her with a severe cough. She refused to wear a mask as protection for her infant. "I'm not going to walk around the house like a nurse," she said. The youngster came down with a threatening case of pneumonia, but was saved by antibiotics after a long siege. Thereafter, she "kept her cough to herself."

For Mrs. O.: In the sense that trichomoniasis is a vaginal infection, sometimes spread by sexual intercourse, you might call it a venereal disease. But it is not at all related in the "common" venereal disease called gonorrhea or syphilis.

Trichomoniasis does not necessarily result from contact with another. It may arise in an otherwise healthy woman due to infection with trichomona, a protozoal parasite. There are other yeast-like molds that may cause vaginitis, too.

The reason I say that the infection may be spread by sexual intercourse is this: the woman may communicate it to her husband. Because of her local vaginal irritation she goes to her doctor who gives her medication and clears up her infection. The husband, even though he has no symptoms, harbors the infection. She gets a recurrence of the vaginitis because he, unknowingly, gives it back!

If your case is a stubborn one, Mrs. O., I suggest that you take your gynecologist's advice and have your husband examined — and treated, if necessary.

For Mr. B.: There may be other reasons, but frequent urination that disturbs sleep is likely due to an enlarged prostate. Better see a urologist.

Quebec NDPers See Ray of Hope

TORONTO (CP) — For the first time in years Quebecers are not secretary at the NDP because the 16 members of the federal New Democratic Party opposed the Emergency War Measures Act, Quebec NDP Leader Roland Morin said Sunday.

He told the Ontario party's provincial council he sees a "ray of hope" for the party in Quebec because the federal NDP "has appeared as the only official opposition to forces of repression in Quebec."

The party holds no seats in Quebec's national assembly and two Quebec seats in the House of Commons.

A woman delegate said the NDP policy on the War Measures Act and the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act 1970 that followed has had the opposite effect in Ontario.

"People are sneering as they have not sneered in years at the NDP."

"I don't think these people are uncaring about civil rights. They have the supreme arrogance to believe that the acts will not be used against the good guys and the innocent."

Saturday, Ontario Leader Stephen Lewis said the stand has been vindicated and the public is learning to realize it more and more.

Mr. Morin said intellectuals are turning away from Prime Minister Trudeau, but "the ordinary guy who carries a lunch box" is more afraid of unknown dangers, such as bombs in mailboxes, than he is of the soldier sent to Quebec under the War

Sydney J. Harris Says

You Can't Love on Order

"How can you command people to love?" the college student asked me. "The Bible commands us to love our neighbors, or love our enemies, but everybody knows that you can't love on order — it has to originate on the inside, as a feeling."

"It comes from a poor translation," I said. "Do you regard the wise men who wrote the Bible were so psychologically naive that they imagined anyone could be commanded to love, even if God orders it?

"There is a Hebrew construction that can only be rendered archaically in English as 'love to your neighbor,' and which means 'act lovingly toward him.' And that is the commandment."

Obviously, it is not within our power to love or not love; but it is within our power to be kind or not kind, to act charitably or uncharitably. Love, as we commonly understand it, is an emotion, and emotions cannot be legislated; but loving acts proceed from will, and we can will ourselves to behave kindly toward those we do not love — even toward those we do not like, which is the real merit.

Not only were the authors of the Bible not psychologically naive, they even anticipated the sages and philosophers of today. Many of the precepts they handed down to us, which we misunderstand.

Why, for instance, are we commanded to act lovingly toward our neighbors and our God wants us to, or because it will help us "enter Heaven," but that may mean, but because it will benefit us as well as them, and because it teaches us what love is.

Virtue, as Aristotle wrote long after the Bible, is a habit of the will. Just as, when we exercise physically, our muscles get stronger, so when we exercise our will in virtuous ways, we strengthen our character. And if we act lovingly long enough, we begin to feel lovingly. Just try taking care of goodish for a couple of months, much less a person, and you will recognize the emotional truth of this.

As long as "love your neighbor" is regarded as some pious injunction, or as some impossibly Utopian prescription for the future, it remains an inert truth mumbled by people on Sundays and forgotten the rest of the week. Once it is understood as a dynamic psychological axiom that can open up a life as the closing of a summer opens up a flower, then it becomes a living force that can be stronger than any others element in our social life.

The Bible has for too long been captured by the wrong people, for their own narrow or self - righteous purposes. If today's young people were equipped to read it as it was written, it would prove more "liberating" to their spirits than any of the "modern" slogans they cling to so desperately. If you want to learn what love is, that's where to go.

HEAVILY TAXED

Your birthday today: An energetic year opens for collecting the rewards of your past seven years of work and study. Your viewpoint and values become more pragmatic. You are inclined to discard anything that no longer produces tangible results. In your emotional life you now tend to become more possessive, more demonstrative. Today's natives are endowed with faith, hope, and charity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Get right out, go after important contacts, particularly those which lead to other prospects. Then seek expert advice. Attend to maintenance of your home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Show your finest smile, stay in a good humor. Co-operation is available, including some you haven't asked for. Find some creative project for the pleasure of your loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Schedules, budgets, accounts, practical features of your career effort are all amenable to easy settlement this morning. Pursue fresh contacts vigorously.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get family and group ventures rolling. You can purchase needed items with more economy and effectiveness now, perhaps even find a major bargain.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your day is beyond prediction. Things that go awry are all subtle issues which do not concern others, or escape the attention of people who should know better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): To keep up with the others, you have to get up early and try again, with new factors to consider. Relatives spring a surprise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Ask for a raise if you've earned one; apply for improvements if working conditions. Arrange interviews. Your energy level will stay up if you enjoy what you're doing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Present your serious concerns to people and in places where positive reactions can be expected. Travels related to group or community activities are well favored.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Get directly to the issues. You have several choices open; select a definite pathway and move. A search turns up mislaid items.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Share the leadership now, listen to others' ideas. You can pool resources and save on necessary purchases. Circumstances require adjustment of home schedules.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you have special information, use it for all it's worth — just think it through before you start. Don't make a to-do about trifles. Shop for items in short supply.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You can do something to alter the direction of your career. Review the possibilities, get to work. You may be encouraged to do more for your community.

Abuse Brings Complaints

City Snowmobilers Face Stiffer Restrictions on Use

A bylaw restricting the operation of snowmobiles within the city of Belleville will be up for approval by city council at its regular meeting next week.

The bylaw will prohibit the operation of snowmobiles on city sidewalks and boulevards and other pathways used by pedestrians.

It will set out certain city parks from which the machines will be banned and could also list certain city streets on which the operation of snowmobiles would be illegal.

And there also could be a curfew which would permit operation of the machines only until a given hour at night. The bylaw will also call for machines to be fitted with mufflers.

The law, with recommendations from the city parks board and from the traffic and light committee, will be prepared by City Solicitor John Miller in time for next Monday's council meeting.

The operation of snowmobiles — the source of numerous complaints since the first snowfall — was the main topic of discussion at yesterday's city traffic and light committee meeting.

Complaints were read of pedestrians being forced off sidewalks by the speeding machines and of noise containing into the early morning hours.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said

Tax-Free $s to Go In MP Pay Raise

Jan Rubenstein

'Maybe Elephants!'

Quinte Santa Claus parade committee secretary Peter Richardson last night presented OSD students Claudette Weil, 9, of Toronto, and Phillip Gaudreau, 7, of Sturgeon Falls with the LaSalle Trophy for best school float. Chairman Frank Foley, in response to questions as to how to improve the parade, quipped, "I don't know how we're going to top it next year . . . maybe elephants." A total of 13 trophies were presented at the wrap-up meeting.

Start May Be In '71

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-man committee of outsiders has recommended a whopping salary increase for members of Parliament.

But the impact would be diluted drastically by the elimination of the current tax-free expense allowance.

The committee's report was tabled, without comment, in the Commons Monday and suggested that salaries of MPs be increased in two stages to $35,000 a year from the present basic $12,000.

But the $8,000 tax-free allowance, now tacked on the basic salary, would be eliminated in favor of an expense system more tuned to actual expenditures.

In many cases, MPs would not receive a hefty raise. On the other hand, explained committee chairman T. N. Beaupre, president of Dunbar Ltd. of Montreal, MPs who travel long distances and have heavy expenses would be far better off.

The report recommended that basic salaries be increased immediately to $23,000 and that a further $2,500 be added in the next Parliament, probably beginning in 1972.

Salaries of senators should be increased now to $17,000 from the basic $12,000, and the additional tax-free $3,000 expense allowance should be dropped. Senate salaries should go up to $20,000 in the next Parliament.

There would be increases for the prime minister, cabinet ministers and others in senior positions in the Commons and Senate such as Speakers, whips and parliamentary secretaries.

For instance, Prime Minister Trudeau would, in the next Parliament, receive a salary of $45,000 on top of his $23,000 MP's salary. But none of it would be tax free.

He now receives $13,000 as an MP; a $6,000 tax-free expense allowance, a $25,000 salary as prime minister and a $2,000 annual car allowance, also tax-free.

While salaries represented the overriding issue in the report — and the issue watched most closely by MPs — there were other important suggestions included.

For instance, MPs would be

Spain Enacts Tough Measure

MADRID (Reuter) — The Spanish cabinet, in an unexpected display of toughness amid unrest over the trial of 16 Basque nationalists, has given the country's police unlimited powers of arrest and detention for at least six months.

The measure was approved Monday night at an emergency meeting of the cabinet, summoned and presided over by Francisco Franco, head of state.

Sources said police all over the country were rounding up opponents of the Franco regime. In raids in Madrid, police ar-

The decree suspended a constitutional right under which Spaniards can only be detained in legal fashion, and must be released within 72 hours if they are not charged.

A government announcement said the decree was passed because of the subversive activities of minority groups and the need "to assure all Spaniards the legitimate benefit of order and internal peace."

But the reason for the special police powers appeared more complex though some sources had feared stricter measures such as a national state of emergency or even the imposition of martial law.

The Burgos trial has been an unprecedented focus of opposition to Franco's rule. When it began 12 days ago, more than 80,000 workers staged protest strikes in the Basque areas of north Spain on a scale which has not been known since the 1936-39 civil war.

Those on trial were not ordinary Basque nationalists, most of whom do not favor violence and would be content with a measure of local autonomy.

Five army judges have been deliberating on the verdicts in Burgos divisional military headquarters since the trial ended last Wednesday.

Montreal Economy Sagging

OTTAWA (CP) — The economy of Quebec is likely to collapse if investment in Montreal does not pick up dramatically in the next three years, Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand warned Monday.

"If we are to get the economy of Quebec back to normal, we must restore the situation in Montreal," Mr. Marchand told the Commons regional expansion committee, which is examining proposed amendments to the Regional Development Incentives Act.

OTTAWA (CP) — Nova Scotia has formally proposed that its troubled heavy water plant at Glace Bay, N.S., be taken over for a period and rehabilitated by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., reliable sources said Monday. Premier Gerald Regan is reported to have put the proposal in writing in a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Gomme Declines To Run

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — George Gomme, Ontario highways minister, said Monday he will not seek re-election in the next provincial election.

Mr. Gomme told the executive of the Lanark County Progressive Conservative Association he has sacrificed his family life in his ministerial position and now wishes to return to private business.

The decision to leave the government was made in October, he said, and he informed Premier John Robarts of his decision Oct. 14.

He Should Have Read His Horoscope

TORONTO (CP) — The only element missing in a Keystone Kops-like bank robbery in Toronto's east end Monday was a pie in the face for the man with the gun.

It all started when a young man walked into a Bank of Nova Scotia branch and pulled out a pistol. He ordered about 25 customers lined up in front of tellers' cages to move back.

The patrons doggedly refused to budge an inch.

The bandit stood with amazement, then shouldered his way through the crowd and up to one of the cages, amid grumbling from those who were there first.

He ordered the woman teller to hand over all her cash. The teller froze and nearly fainted. The robber didn't get a cent.

So he pushed his way through the customers to the cage of teller Patricia Morris and ordered her to give him all her cash. She handed him about $2,100 in small bills and the bandit ran out of the bank.

On the street, he tried to flag down two passing taxis. They refused to stop. Then he tried to hitch-hike. He couldn't get a ride.

In desperation, the gunman ran down an alley trailing $20 bills in his wake.

By this time, bank employees and two Toronto police detectives were in hot pursuit.

The bandit tried to scale a fence. The fence collapsed.

More police spent the next few minutes chasing errant $20 bills.

In addition to $2,100, police recovered a nickel-plated stiffer's pistol.

Wayne Tanagichuk, 25, of Montreal and Vancouver, was charged with robbery. He was also charged with a Nov. 3 bank holdup here.

Consultation Said Essential In Industry

Close — and consistent — consultation between labor and management is held to be helping any modern industry crisp by competitive, the Quinte District Labor Council was told last night.

And the machinery which best produces such needed communication is labor-management committees, said J. A. Kellythorne, industrial relations officer of the federal labor department's labor-management consultation branch.

Such groups — composed of workers and management representatives — meeting regularly on common problems, make sound business sense, the plant's ability to compete is shown by its very existence and all depending on it for livelihood, reasoned Mr. Kellythorne.

A sensible management accepts that workers directly involved in an industry's production system are the logical consultants on any plant problems.

The modern industrial worker — through schooling, the media, night schools — qualifies for such recognition since he is better educated, well informed on his social and economic environment.

"In other words, the old days when the boss knew it all and the workers knew nothing are gone," said Mr. Kellythorne.

Many managements already recognize such logic, statistics indicate, he said.

Some 2,700 Canadian plants already have such committees — an increase of 900 in the past decade.

The committee system also is at work in the Quinte area where many major industries have formed such in-plant communication units, Mr. Kellythorne said later.

Such a system — of regular consultation in mutual trust — is far superior to even the open-door policy of some managements, in which the boss is always available to the workers.

The problem with such a policy is that problems may not be discussed immediately they arise since a worker may consider them insignificant at the time. Consultation doesn't begin until the problem has mushroomed. Such a policy can also hill management into a false sense of plant security.

"The greatest problem with communication," warned Mr. Kellythorne, is the illusion that it has already been achieved."

Who Has Lights?

Jurisdiction of the city traffic and light committee doesn't include regular street lighting.

This was pointed out at yesterday's committee meeting following a request from Roger Porter, chairman of the city's Downtown Association, for replacement of the burned out street lights in the city's downtown Front Street area.

Mr. Porter requested that consideration be given to the installation of new street lights and also for the provision of "plug-ins" to hook up Christmas lighting.

Public Utilities Manager E. J. Burnham said the utilities commission was well aware of the need for new lights on Front Street but said the commission was waiting for the urban renewal report before making any recommendations.

Mr. Burnham said that if Front Street was to be turned into a mall with vehicular traffic barred, the type of lighting required would be different from if it remained a vehicular artery.

He agreed that the present lighting was inadequate and said the commission would like to see a change.

It was Alderman Paul Russell who noted that the traffic and light committee didn't have jurisdiction over street lighting.

The "light" referred to in the committee name was traffic lights and the lighting of intersections, he said.

The request of the Downtown Association for new lights on Front Street was referred to the public utilities commission.

L'Amable School Issue Now Faces New Board

Contention over the proposed closing of another school house ahead for trustees' newly elected for their second term on Hastings county board of education.

Closing of Tweed-Hungerford High School included most of the board's first two items of business. Now the issue is L'Amable secondary school.

A three-man delegation appeared before trustees at their meeting Monday night with a brief objecting to closing of the school.

George Tenthorey, spokesman for the group told the board that "we were led to believe at the Dec. 2 Home and School Association meeting that our school was to be closed due to its poor condition".

He outlined seven reasons for the delegation's opposition for kindergarten through grade 8 pupils. The delegation made it clear it was not opposed to senior elementary school pupils being bused to the Tweed high school.

In its capital works plan for the next five years, closing of the school was suggested by the board, but as yet no indication has been given by the Ontario department of education.

At present 285 pupils are enrolled in the school. Plans were to close the older of the two buildings and use the newer building at the school for retarded children.

However, all decisions are dependent upon department of education approval.

Mr. Tenthorey, in his brief told L'Amable that the only active Home and School Association in North Hastings, the group was trying to preserve this close association with school and teachers.

With the removal of senior pupils to Tweed, increased space would be available for extra activities for pupils and the community, such as library or auditorium suggested as possible uses for the extra space.

The delegation said that L'Amable has a good outdoor playground, but the one at Pancroft is unsatisfactory.

The brief noted the facilities available for outdoor education at L'Amable with access to a nearby lake for water sports instruction and to a forest for science courses.

Finally, the brief added that "we have at L'Amable a Middlemost national environment removed from the bad influences of an urban setting, for example, drugs, sales and traffic".

The board assured the delegation that no action had been taken yet on the closing of the school and it will discuss compromises with the department of education.

School Bus Report Heard by Board

County school bus operators want the public informed about the regulations governing school buses in Ontario.

As the result of meetings held by county board officials for bus drivers and operators the board agreed to support the operators in asking the Department of Transport to run spot announcements on radio and television explaining the regulations.

Most people don't understand the procedure to follow when approaching a stopped school bus with its lights flashing.

All vehicles in both lanes of a highway must come to a complete stop and not move on. But a stopped school bus can only flash its lights in over 35-mile-an-hour zones. On roads where speeds are restricted to less than 35-miles-an-hour, the bus cannot flash their lights and traffic in the opposite lane may continue to move.

The board has adopted a formal policy concerning decisions to cancel buses because of hazardous driving conditions.

From one to five times a year, transportation officer John Bancroft told the board, storm conditions necessitate late morning starts or cancellations and early afternoon departures of school buses.

In the past the drivers have had the responsibility whether or not to operate their buses under these conditions. The board confirmed that policy, stating that "in emergency cases the decision for operating should be left to the driver, the only one who can make an accurate assessment."

Principals of schools affected are to be consulted when they can be reached — in practice when a decision must be made concerning early departures from schools.

Mr. Bancroft told the board that operators' contracts in the north of the county are on a monthly basis, in the county and south of the county, operators are paid on a daily basis, and therefore would not be paid if runs are cancelled due to bad weather.

Mr. Bancroft also gave an interim report on the 14 school buses being run from secondary schools to allow students to remain after school hours to take part in extra-curricular activities.

Two routes, one from Quinte and one from Centennial, have been established, because participation by students has been light, he said.

At Moira Secondary School during the second week of December, the largest number transported on the late bus was eight, and this dropped to only one on one day. A review of late buses will be given to the board in January, and the Moira bus can be cussed by lawyer Rod Cameron, accountant M. J. Sinclair-bury and tax consultant Oscar Wagar.

Mr. Cameron, who noted jocularity that many members of his profession remained active long past normal retirement age, stressed the importance of making a will. It was surprising, he said, how many died intestate without drawing up a will. The figure was about one in four.

Oscar Wagar said that anyone planning on retirement or winding up a family company could save thousands of dollars if they acquaint themselves with the provisions of Sections 81 and 165 of the Income Tax Act.

Rotarians Are Told Plan for Retirement

With male life expectancy now averaging 73 years and the comparable figure for women 76 to 77, preparation for retirement years is more and more vital, Belleville Rotarians were told during a panel discussion spearheaded by club members yesterday.

Terming the subject an important one, chairman J. C. (Pat) Hanson, who recently took on the job of secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, admitted that the "problem of active executive responsibilities, on his retirement a year ago, had been a severe shock.

Physically, he said, "most people keep themselves busy, but they permit themselves to become mentally inactive and reach a stage where they look forward only to television in the evening or even the afternoon."

The advice of retired educationist Pete Maguire was that one should do everything possible to maintain good health as well as save consistently for retirement.

"I think it is important to raise one's sights in this respect in view of continuing inflation. Present pension benefits will not suffice 20 years from now."

He also stressed the important point that one should need that he was now so busy in this regard he wondered how he once had time to get to work. A youthful attitude to life and interest in the current affairs were also important.

"Look to the future and don't dwell on the past," he counselled.

The legal and financial aspects of retirement were discussed by lawyer Rod Cameron, accountant M. J. Sinclair-bury and tax consultant Oscar Wagar.

Government Withdrawal Leaves Advice Vacuum

There is no government labor department representative in the Belleville area to process individual problems.

As a result, the Quinte District Labor Council is being pressed into the vacuum by persons needing advice on a multitude of situations, its president, Robert Andrus, said last night.

Some time ago the provincial labor department withdrew its field man in the area, Mr. Andrus told the QDLC's monthly meeting at the Canadian Legion Hall.

"This causes this labor council untold problems every month," he said.

Mr. Andrus estimated he received 15-20 phone calls monthly requesting help from individuals seeking advice on various work problems. Often this means long-distance calls to federal and provincial labor departments.

Such a service was part of the QDLC's function, he acknowledged, but it emphasized the need created by the absence of a government district representative.

His remarks came as the council voted Mr. Andrus expenses for a trip to Toronto with a worker seeking assistance with a problem involving the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Dual Trustee Asks Co-operation

Paul Fleming, separate school representative on the Hastings county board was introduction for 1959-79 and newly elected trustee on the Hastings Prince Edward separate school board, left the county board Monday night with a record on his books calling for greater co-operation between the two systems.

He asked for a committee to be established to study the "possible savings resulting from extension of provincial grants to include all three grades in separate secondary schools" and to study co-operation between boards. The second part of his motion called for the separate school board to be asked to appoint members to sit on the committee.

Before making his motion, he read a rebuttal to objections raised by the Ontario Public School Trustees Association to extension of grants.

The rebuttal, prepared by a Peterborough trustee for her board, said the term "a new separatism", used in the trustees' Association circular was "an unethical description of a system that has produced so many leaders over the years".

She challenged anyone to prove that the separate school system had "contributed to disunity in Canada at any time".

McDonald Smith noted that the Hastings county board had a liaison committee to meet with other boards to discuss co-operative efforts.

"But because of a certain situation there, we never met with the Hastings-Prince Edward board," he said.

He agreed to second Mr. Fleming's motion if it were changed to recommend that the incoming board set up a committee to study all aspects of the extension of grants to the separate school system.

The board passed the motion in its modified form.

Conservation Authority Report Is Completed

PICTON (Staff) — The final chapter in the Prince Edward Region Conservation report titled Recreation was presented to local conservation authority members recently by Shire Hall.

G. D. Suggs, recreation section head of the conservation authorities branch technical staff, termed the report an inventory of existing recreation facilities the local authority in 1968. He pointed out that existing cottage and urban development had been mapped and the distribution of housing noted. A detailed description of sites recommended for acquisition by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority also was included in the study.

Chairman of the local authority's land use advisory board, Donald Bond told the meeting that he believed the Macaulay Mountain property recently purchased by the authority will become one of the greatest assets the county has developed recreationally for residents and visitors in a number of years. He referred to "hundreds of hours of free labor" at the land title office of by county old settlement eager to organize a local old club.

Prior to an afternoon meeting at Shire Hall, members of the authority enjoyed a luncheon at Prince Edward Yacht Club attended by Norman Whitney, MPP, Prince Edward-Lennox and county warden Gordon Lloyd. Also attending the luncheon was A. S. L. Barnes, director of the conservation authorities branch technical staff. Mr. Barnes was accompanied by Norman Patrick who will succeed him in his position following his retirement this month.

At the afternoon meeting in Shire Hall, authority members considered a motion forwarded by David Taylor, Hallowell, asking how government departments to begin studies of possible future effects of the proposed $25 million Canadian International pulp mill. The motion requested studies of the effect of "all possible pollution" under Ontario Water Resources Commission regulations and upon the area's ecology. He inspect of locating such an industry among existing recreational facilities and on the planned future developments of the region and how such an industry will affect conservation plans for the region.

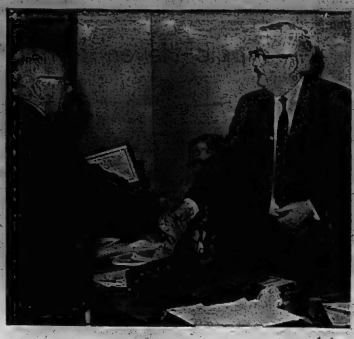
The motion was made to inform the minister of lands and forests, energy and resources, municipal affairs and economic development and the authority is "opposed unanimously" to placing a pulp mill in this region.

Members of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority were to participate a vote on the motion until their January meeting, since several felt they should confer with their municipal councils first.

PE Ski Runs Nearly Ready

PICTON (Staff) — The directorate of the Macaulay Mountain Ski Club is completing plans to open ski runs to Prince Edward County residents in early January. The ski hill is on the outskirts of Picton on the way to Milford.

Club director Dr. Earl Euler reported yesterday that two ski runs have been cleared for use and poles now are being installed for a ski lift. He added that the slopes will be lighted for night skiing. The ski organization is now investigating the possibility of purchasing equipment required to make snow. Dr. Euler explained that a snow - making nozzle can be bought for approximately $1,300 if enough people join the club to encourage the investment.



Negotiations to buy water from the town of Picton are under consideration in connection with the snow machine project.

A membership drive was began last week by club directors with good results. The fee for a family membership of four persons is $40, with a $5 charge for each additional member. Junior Skiers, 18 and over, can become members for $20, while intermediates between 13 and 18 years of age must pay $15. Junior skiers 12 and under can join for a $10 fee. Tow fees for the season are included with the membership rates as well as a free lesson for beginners. Club instructor will be Donald MacNaughton who was an instructor at St. Moritz, Switzerland, for six years. He will be assisted by club members who have earned instructor ratings.

Skiers enjoying club facilities for a weekend of winter sport will be required to pay a ski tow fee. A full time tow operator will be hired by the club when the slopes are opened next month.

Although no hours have been set by the club directorate for skiing on Macaulay Mountain, Dr. Euler suggested that the ski runs probably will be open every evening from 7.30 p.m. until 10.30 p.m. He pointed out that the slopes might be closed for an evening on occasion to allow preparation of the runs for further skiing. He described the directorate as "a positive group" who have worked willingly in clearing the ski runs at Macaulay's Mountain, owned by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

Club president is Wally Evans and vice-president Dr. Earl Taylor. Secretary is Carl Boyd and treasurer V. Allen. Directors are John Silzbarge, Dr. Karl Euler and John Clark. An executive meeting will be held tonight to consider further plans for the development of club facilities. One of the topics for discussion will be whether to open club membership to skiers outside Prince Edward County.

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward County Board of Education have received notification in a letter from the Hastings County Board that no late bus services will be extended to Ameliasburg students attending classes in Hastings County.

but felt that the cost of this extra facility was already located in tuition fees paid by the Hastings Board for Ameliasburg students.

At the Prince Edward County board meeting in Bloomfield last night, trustees agreed to seek a ruling from the Department of Education on whether the cost of bus bus system for Hastings pupils be given. Prince Edward school trustees were informed of the plan and asked if they would like to put on an extra bus.

Trustees agreed that the late bus runs were a very good idea but felt that the cost of this extra facility was already located in tuition fees paid by the Hastings Board for Ameliasburg students.

Dealership Expanding

TRENTON (Staff) — "We are going to double our facilities here," Trenton car dealer Van Lange said this morning.

The co-owner of Lange and Fetzer Motors explained that the firm has begun an extensive building program. It is in a sense, a pledge of "faith in the town's east side.

"Everybody seems to have lost faith in the east side" he contended, adding that his company certainly has not and wants to aid its development.

A new five-car showroom, extensive offices and service facilities are incorporated in the plans.

The present service station on the Dundas Street property is being torn down. "It should be down tomorrow," he said.

All new facilities will be incorporated under one roof with glass-sided showroom facing Dundas.

The 10-year car salesman anticipates that the revamped building will open in February.

Not the Whole Story

Presentation by the CBC Weekend news program of a film on South Africa Sunday night dealt with the inequities of life in the republic for the black population as compared with the dominant whites.

The film depicted the blacks as an underprivileged group which provides the ill-paid labor force for the gold mines, which in turn are the bulwark of the western world's currency and business stability. It told of the toll of human health exacted by working in the mines and it showed rat-infested camp quarters where the workers allegedly are obliged to live. It indicated further that mine workers may be separated from their womenfolk for long periods while on the job and it showed Africans in Johannesburg with nowhere to go but the streets where they hang around, playing cards, or otherwise passing the time.

There were other scenes through which the film sought to demonstrate the system of apartheid or separation of the races (the government regards it as separate parallel development) in South Africa, as well as the inferior lot of the African.

But whatever the authenticity of the film and its contents, its bias was quite obvious, as one might expect from one made illegally (according to the introductory preamble) by the Pan Africanist Congress of South Africa.

The critical viewer might have wondered also at the evident staging or posing of some scenes. The young white playing tennis, for instance, while on another part of the courts a glum looking group of Africans tended the turf. But it does not take two able-bodied men to operate such a roller, as was the case here; and what were the four others (one with the trace of a smile on his face) doing following the two operators, for all the world like a funeral procession?

So there was this aspect of the film. Its bias. Its loud disregard for the more positive aspects of life for both whites and blacks in South Africa, including educational and medical facilities for the black population. Inequalities and hardships there are in South African society, but then there are conditions of a sort in Canada too. You could roam a city like Toronto or Vancouver, or the Indian reserves of this nation, and find similar harsh inequities and similar disparities of affluence and despair on the faces of the citizens who happen to live on opposite sides of the tracks or economic scale of values.

Really, what it boils down to is the fact that the world at large offers a multitude of social wrongs that should be righted, and they are not exclusive to any one country. In Canada at this Christmas period some half-a-million are unemployed. Let us start by putting our own backyard in order. Let the governments of other countries look also to the similar betterment of their populations.

Arena's Needs

Belleville's arena and recreation committee is in possession of a valuable report on the improvement needs of that community's arena. Although this building is still very much in use it has to a large extent been bypassed by time.

A generation now in middle age has been successful by another down the arena's construction 40 years ago, and the building's inadequacies are all the more apparent when set against the recreational needs of our own day.

The architect's report is specific on many vital matters such as structural inadequacy and fire safety and these have been outlined already in this newspaper. They are the fundamental which quite properly will be in the forefront of any improvement measures the committee ultimately recommends. The rest meanwhile will form the basis of committee discussion for what, hopefully, is to be done to bring the arena up to latter-day standards.

December Scene

It is strange these days to see open water still coursing around the bay and ducks paddling about in the same expanse. Seagulls are active too, but what surprised us most was the sight one day recently of a ship heading up channel to berth at the docks here. A cargo vessel, no doubt, and as they are rare enough even in the summer months; it made one feel akin to the inhabitants of remote islands on the appearance of a supply vessel from some distant mainland.

In the Shadow of Gaspe

A 'Hippie Haven' Which Spawned the FLQ Terror

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Try to remember — or tell — you ever forgot, if there happened to have been one in sight, round or small of your consciousness, last summer—these hippie havens?

If the welfare professionals and the do-gooders in your region did not get around to providing free bed, board and a place for a quiet joint of pot, then in many places the federal government obliged turning over the Defence Department's armories for the comfort and convenience of the itinerants.

Sure, there were probably a great many genuine young hitchhikers among the footloose summer hordes, out only for a look at their land.

But there were others, not always so young, and anything but gentle.

Such a hippie haven was the now-fat-famed Maison du Pecheur at the tip of Gaspe where Pierre Reck becomes Quebec's "Land's End."

For two successive controversial summers, the farmers, businessmen and tourist operators of the region complained to provincial police — and taking it to the highest court of politics! appeal, the Quebec Government — that the hippies were ruining the holiday fun for everyone.

There were confrontations and often violence, but the complaints in the name of charity persisted, and Maison du Pecheur resisted all efforts to shut it down and leave the peace and quiet of Perce Rock for the visiting tourists to enjoy.

The Hippies of Perce were even more stubborn than the Hippies of Vancouver who eventually did move out of the federal armories they had converted into a commune.

It took fire — accidental not incendiary, investigation has established officially — to evict the Hippies of Perce.

But the Maison du Pecheur had done its job as vacation centre, lecture hall and training ground for FLQ terrorists.

It has all come out in the setal-story layout into the kidnap - death of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte and the continuing digging by all manner Canadian police forces for the deep-buried roots of the FLQ terror.

More will be coming to light as those accused in the crimes against Pierre Laporte go to trial.

The first of the key suspects arrested, the gentle Jacques Lortie who confessed to the kidnapping — but denied any part in the killing — of Pierre Laporte, called the roll of the summer residents of Maison du Pecheur.

They included Paul and Jacques Rose, Clement Roy and Pierre Marc Beaudoin, Pierre Louis Simard and Norman Turgeon, all names now familiar in the blood-letting title of the Maison du Pecheur and the FLQ.

Then there was beautiful, young Lise Balcer, niece of Leah Balcer, now a leading industrial representative in Ottawa and formerly a member of the Cabinet of Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

Her family, background, education, in fact, the very appearance quality of the girl gave the whole horror a touch of even more unreality and unrespectability.

The slim, pixie-looking brown-haired girl told the commission court, hearing evidence on the death of Pierre Laporte, that she had lived for five months with Paul Rose earlier this year in the same house of death on Montreal's south shore where the captive Quebec Labor Minister was strangled.

Then she went to Maison du Pecheur for a month with the hippies.

It was there, a year before, she had met, later to become involved with Paul Rose.

Reading the registration book — if hippies bother with such conventional formalities of signing in the guests of the house — would have been an exercise in FLQ name-dropping.

What, exactly, was the Maison du Pecheur that had the whole Gaspe vacation region in such an uproar of protest — both of dissent of revolutionaries, and the concern of a justifiably alarmed community?

Just two troubled summers?

Not the two-storey, white frame farmhouse with attached barn in the style of deep rural Quebec.

But a hippie haven, a revolutionary commune, a rustic headquarters and "vacation resort for" terrorists - in - training.

And just imagine, the people who lived in Perce and near Percha and what the place was like and what might be going on inside its grubby walls among the long - haired unwashed and stinking residents, wanted it closed!

Such intolerance, scolded the welfare professionals and young permissives, who, hundreds of miles removed from the scene, were able to stand off the demands of the hippie-haunted and harassed community, and save the establishment for the greater glory of the FLQ.

"That should hold him for a while!"

Leeds and Grenville's 30 Per Cent Turnout

Brockville Recorder and Times

Between 25 and 30 percent of the electorate was sufficiently interested to cast, or attempt to cast ballots in Monday's election for the school board. Such a result doesn't exactly add up to the voice of the people but it does represent the voice of people who really care about public affairs. Thank God for that 25 to 30 percent. They're the backbone of the city. Although they are a minority of the population, by voting they keep the democratic process working and the candidates mindful of the fact that not all taxpayers are dead from the neck up.

In Brockville all three newcandidates for school board seats were swept into office. Only one of the four incumbents was returned. His platform and concern were similar to those of the newcomers.

It is a matter of interest that the four people elected to the school board expressed concern about the finances of the board and the philosophy of education. They found fault with the Board's operation over the first two years of existence and permissiveness in schools. It is equally interesting that the three defeated supported the actions of the Board and had the confidence of the people who really care about public affairs. Thank God for that 25 to 30 percent. They're the backbone of the city. Although they are a minority of the population, by voting they keep the democratic process working and

Sir Oliver Mowat Memorial

Kingston Whig-Standard

During its history Kingston has been the birthplace and home of some illustrious Canadian public servants. The memory of one of these Kingstonians, Sir Oliver Mowat (1820 to 1903), was honored recently.

The Sir Oliver Mowat colloquium at Queen's University was a fitting salute to the former Liberal premier and lieutenant - governor of Ontario. Sir Oliver Mowat, a Kingston - born lawyer who articled in the legal office of Sir John A. Macdonald, also served as a member of the Senate and Minister of Justice.

Among those attending the colloquium was Premier John Robarts. We note with interest that during his remarks Premier Robarts said one of the lower buildings of a new complex being constructed on Queen's Park will be named the Sir Oliver Mowat Building. The Department of Education and the Department of University Affairs will be housed in the new structure, he said.

Professor Donald Swainson and Professor Gerald Craig, both of the Queen's Department of History, co-sponsors of the colloquium, also arranged lectures and discussions on Sir Oliver Mowat and his times. In addition to special displays at Queen's dealing with various aspects of Mowat's career, a book, Oliver Mowat's Ontario, to be edited by Professor Swainson, will be published in 1971.

We commend all those associated with the colloquium and related projects for their efforts. They have provided a valuable service not only to students but to other Kingstonians as well.

The Tragedy in Active Pass

Vancouver Sun

. . . the short reason for this collision was faulty seamanship, inexplicable on the part of Captain Crabbe, understandable but inexcusable on the part of Captain Pollock; neither was able to rise to the emergency which together they had created. — report of the inquiry into the collision between the Queen of Victoria and the Sergey Yesenin.

Thus has blame been apportioned for the mid-manner marine tragedy in Active Pass — a tragedy which, this federal investigation concludes, avoided being a catastrophe only by these blind luck.

The finding go blameless, and an apology is due them by three whose hasty rashness compelled them to apply their otherwise. Crabbe, the Canadian pilot on the Russian ship, is — there is no more apt word for it — demolished for his "casual, arrogant," and "disrespectful" approach to his duties. Pollock, skipper of the provincial ferry, is left to live with a two-year black mark on his record.

In terms of lives lost, collision damage, careers ruined, civil suits yet to be heard and enquiry cous yet to be assessed, the collision between the B.C. government ferry and the 322-foot-long Russian freighter will prove an expensive lesson before all is said and done. And because the burden of blame falls on servants of the federal and provincial governments, it is the federal and provincial taxpayer who will bear the brunt of that expense.

Yet it has, it seems, been a lesson.

"As long as large vessels are unrestricted in the use of Active Pass there will be a danger of recurrence," said Mr. Justice E. J. C. Stewart, the commissioner.

To lessen this danger he recommends: that a mid-channel buoy be established in Active Pass and indicated appropriately on all charts covering the area (something inexplicably lacking now); that it be made a condition for the use of Active Pass by all ships of a size to be established by the Department of Transport that such ships must broadcast security messages and maintain a listening watch on a given frequency which will ensure radio contact between them (there was a farcical failure of communications between the freighter and the ferry); that the pilot's navigational manual describe emphatically the nature and amount of traffic likely to be encountered in Active Pass.

There can be little doubt that the federal minister of transport, Don Jamieson, will speedily apply these recommendations, or something stronger still, to marine traffic in this likely waterway. As far back as August Mr. Jamieson "hoped" that the collision enquiry would produce "some direction" for the government on changing present navigational routes in Port of Vancouver. Whether large vessels, whatever their precise size and speed, wherever it is the placement with regard to an imaginary line, have any business at all being inside a narrow and tortuous pass remains the pressing question.

To see it all for human — and to remove all possibility of error as far as humanly possible is the challenge facing both the transport department and the provincial ferry authority.

They include statements of the right to bear arms and the prohibition of an established religion. Probably the most famous of the amendments is the fifth, disallowing self - incrimination, and the most important now is the 10th, reserving to the states all powers not specifically transferred to the United States government.

William A. Watson, local architect, spoke to the monthly meeting of the Belleville and district Builders' Exchange in Lattimer's Town Room last night, and traced the history of architecture throughout the ages, and told an architect is and does. "The term 'architect' has been used to describe the master builder since (L.) dawn of history," he said. "Throughout the early civilizations of Egypt, Greece and Rome, architecture was held in honor as the 'mother of the arts'."

given a shelter allowance of up to $300 a month to cover housing costs in the Ottawa area. Many MPs now must maintain two homes—in Ottawa and in their home constituency.

MPs would also receive up to $1,200 for rent and $1,500 for staff in constituency offices. There would be higher allowances for travel, unlimited free telephone calls, and an extension of free mailing privileges.

"We have not defeated the problem entirely, but we have attacked it."

The committee also included Arthur Maloney, former Conservative MP from Toronto, and Marc Lagoutte, a Montreal labor lawyer.

The position of an MP, said the report, is "one of extreme importance."

"The future of our country depends largely upon our ability to secure the services of the best possible people to serve in this role." It said salaries should be high enough to attract people of proven ability.

The report recommends that all car allowances be dropped, and those entitled to a car be supplied one by the government.

Mr. Beaupre told a news conference that by rough calculation a prime minister, with no dependents or outside income would have a take-home pay of about $36,285 from a salary of $70,000. The take-home pay from the current total of $45,000 is about $30,220.

Cabinet ministers, now receiving $35,000, including an $8,000 tax-free allowance, would receive $50,000, all of it taxable. The leader of the Opposition would also go up to $50,000 from $35,000, while cabinet ministers without portfolio would go to $45,000 from $25,000.

The Commons Speaker would be paid $45,000, instead of the current $31,000, while the Deputy Speaker would rise to $35,000 from $25,500. Another group, which includes the deputy chairmen of committees, the chief government and opposition whips, leaders of other parties and parliamentary secretaries, would receive $33,000 instead of $22,000.

The Opposition House leader would go to $31,000 from $18,000.

The Senate Speaker would receive $75,000 instead of $38,000, and the Senate Opposition leader would be paid $38,000 instead of $21,000. The Senate Deputy Speaker and the deputy house leader would receive $25,000 instead of $15,000, and the Senate deputy opposition leader would receive $24,000 instead of $15,000.

In recommending the elimination of various tax-free allowances, along with car and some residence allowances, the committee also recommended that the prime minister stop paying this $5,000 annual rent he now contributes toward the upkeep of 24 Sussex Drive, his home in Ottawa.

Mr. Beaupre said the committee had examined the entire question of remuneration very seriously and the recommendations were made after a thorough study. "We basically felt this was a job left undone too long."

Mr. Beaupre said the net cost of the increased salaries—taking account of the taxes that would be returned—would be about $7.5 million. He estimated that the amount claimed in expense would be just fractionally higher than the current $1.9 million paid out in non-taxable allowances.

Snowmobiles Face Restrictions

the complainants had his sympathy but noted that people must accept the "act that snowmobiles are licensed.

Under provincial regulations, no one under 16 is allowed to operate a snowmobile on a public street and operators must be licensed.

Mayor Scott suggested that 98 per cent of the complainants would be satisfied if snowmobiles were kept off the sidewalks and boulevards and operation was restricted to not later than 10 p.m. and not after 1 p.m. on Sundays.

Alderman Paul Russell agreed with the mayor but suggested that street operation of snowmobiles be restricted to the travelled portion of the road.

Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie noted that under new provincial regulations, underage snowmobile drivers could be charged for operation of the machines on roadways and that owners could also be held responsible.

He said that already his department was making checks.

The police chief agreed that restrictions were necessary but said he would not like to see a bylaw that would restrict the enjoyment of cooperative citizens in order to get at relatively few offenders.

Gotta also made it plain that Riders won't give up contract rights to Jackson without something in return.

"I'm not going to play Santa Claus. I'd want a premium player or players in return," Gotta said.

Riders themselves are out of the running if Jackson decides to return to action after sitting out the 1970 season.

Now 34, Jackson is firm in saying he won't play for Ottawa. It would mean giving up his scholastic career.

Gotta also says that Riders are in no position "to make the kind of super deal Lions can make."

"They can put 14,000 more people in their park than we can and they play two more games than we do," Gotta said.

Sports writer Eddie MacCabe of the Ottawa Journal broke the story last week that Lions would be willing to give Jackson $100,000 a season if he came out of retirement.

Jackson said then he would be silly not to at least listen to Lions if they get the right to talk to him.

Apple Tapioca with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce

By MARY MOORE

Danny (7) called from upstairs, "Gram, what's for dessert tonight?" When I answered "Apple Tapioca" I did not understand the whoops and hollers of delight until it dawned on me that they all love the brown sugar hard sauce that goes on it.

For two weeks I am minding my four grandchildren in Kingston and they are conscientious and vociferous tasters of my cooking tests.

APPLE TAPIOCA with BROWN SUGAR HARD SAUCE (Serves 6)

Pudding:
3½ cups boiling water
1-3 tsp. salt
¾ cup minute tapioca
1 med.-large cooking apples
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
Sauce:
½ cup butter (or margarine)
2 cups light brown sugar (packed)
¼ tsp. salt
3 tbsps. brandy or rum (or 1 tsp. vanilla and 3 tbsps. apple or orange juice)

Measure salted boiling water into top of double boiler and over direct heat. Stir in tapioca until boiling. Transfer to over bottom of double boiler containing boiling water, cover and cook ½ hr.

Meanwhile, wash, pare, core and cut apples into ¼s into large baking dish. Sprinkle with mixture of white sugar and spices. When cooking time is up pour cooked tapioca evenly over apples and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until apples are tender — about 1 hr.

Serve with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce made by combining all sauce ingredients in heater bowl and beating until perfectly blended, scraping down sides of bowl several times during beating period. Pile in fancy serving dish and chill until hard.

This is a never-fail and popular dessert that should be added to your "Apple Dessert" file.

Ann Landers

Widow Complains Of Many Intruders

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What kind of world are we living in anyway? Almost everybody I know has been mugged, shagged, burglarized, had a purse snatched or a wallet lifted.

ANN LANDERS

Twenty years ago we locked our doors at night. Today I wouldn't dare walk after dark from the bus stop to my apartment, even though it's less than two blocks.

I am a widow who lives alone. In the last three months four tenants in this building have had their apartments broken into. Please tell me (and millions of others) what a woman should do if she accidently finds herself face to face with an intruder. (My next door neighbor opened the door at noon for a man who said he was a building inspector. She was bound, gagged and robbed. Another woman's apartment was entered at 4:00 a.m. by a man who had a pansley. She was robbed and raped. What is the answer? Should I buy a gun? — JUST IN CASE.

DEAR JUST: Don't buy a gun. Too many people have guns already — this is part of the problem. Furthermore, if the intruder sees you have a gun he might use his gun, even though he didn't plan to. A woman alone, if she is in bed, should stay there and feign sleep until the intruder leaves. Then she should call the police. If she is up and around she should hand over the money and jewelry without a word. It is impossible to know if the intruder is on drugs, a fugitive from a mental hospital, or an inexperienced kid pulling his first job. No possession is worth a bullet in the head or a knife in the heart.

Here are some preventive measures: Have double locks and chain-slotted protection on front and back doors. If you live on the ground floor, iron window bars will serve to discourage prowlers. Never open the door for an unexpected caller. Do not, repeat do not leave money or jewelry lying around. It can tempt a delivery or maintenance person to return later and make a killing — both literally and figuratively.

Make sure your valuable are insured. You will then not feel inclined to risk your life to save them. And don't forget one of the best detergents of all — the watchdog.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please give me a professional answer. Sometimes old-fashioned horse sense is not enough. Here's the problem: When my husband and I visit the homes of friends, the hostess usually says (after about half an hour) "Do you want a cup of coffee or a soft drink?" We invariably reply, "No thank you. Don't bother." Most hostesses then say, "O.K." and they never mention it again. They feel as if they've performed their duty.

When my husband and I have guests I always ask, "What would you prefer coffee, tea, or a soft drink?" Usually the guests specify a preference.

I have always felt it is rude not to encourage a guest to have some refreshment. My husband says I am wrong and that I shouldn't push it. Do you agree with him or with me? — FENCE-SITTER.

DEAR F.S.: I'm with you. Most visitors enjoy refreshments. The gracious hostess makes the suggestion in a way that encourages an affirmative answer. Stay with your old-fashioned horse sense, honey. It's better than any professional opinion.

Successful Living

Home Exchange New Way of Seeing Country

By DORIS CLARK

Did you know that there is such a thing as taking over someone else's home on the other side of Canada and living in it for two or three weeks, while its owners move into yours? This is an exciting and inexpensive way to get to see a new part of our country.

The organization doing it is called Holiday Home Exchange.

What they do is invite people who want to exchange homes, apartments, or summer cottages to list their names in the Holiday Home Exchange Directory. The directory will be ready in March. Yes, pay $8 for this listing. Last year there were listings in Canada from Quebec City to Victoria, as well as many from California.

This year not only will they list homes but they will also list boats for exchange between owners who want a change of nautical scenery.

Sounds like an intriguing way to...strengthen national ties between East and West. Want to know more? Write me for particulars.

Dear Aunt Doris: I am now getting used to the braces on my teeth. I have had them on about two weeks. I keep telling myself how nice my teeth will look when I'm older. Not eating candy doesn't bother me very much.

My braces did hurt a little but the dentist was very careful in putting them on. When I got home they only bother, me for two days!

Now I can eat supper as I used to. The people in my class were very nice and one girl said, "People won't laugh at you because they know you care enough about your teeth to help them." This helped me a lot. — Susan, Age Eleven.

My Dear Nice Susan: Good for you. Braces on the teeth take some getting used to and I admire you for being a plucky optimist about them. Believe me, the whole business is well worth while, as you will find out when you get a little older and discover just how wonderfully your nice even teeth improve your appearance. I'll be proud of you too.

You are the lucky one; and your school friends are really sweeties to understand and encourage you.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband has a lot of ambition but unfortunately he also likes to drink a lot, and he is a bender part of the time.

He is only home long enough to sleep and eat, but if I say anything about it he just storms out. Nothing works.

I suggested a marriage counsellor but he said no. There is a lot more to tell; and he must have his own complaints. The only thing I can think of is to wait until my second baby is born and then leave him. — Unhappy and Afraid.

Dear Unhappy: Sure he has complaints. The trick is to get you two really talking to each other. So often when a couple gets married each expects perfection of the other, and there are just no efforts made to talk things over. When one begins acting a little bit human, the other is disappointed.

A counsellor would be a fine idea and I'd suggest you get to one anyway. There might be a way of bringing him along later. Get in touch with the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 211 Front Street, Belleville. (Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.)

Doctor Advocates Early Routine Urine Analyses

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Montreal doctors have advocated routine urine analyses for school-age children, saying kidney disease is often discovered too late for curative treatment.

Dr. Keith Drummond of the Montreal Children's Hospital told a conference of urologists and nephrologists here that "kidney disease is a silent killer."

"Its symptoms too often go unchecked until the disease has reached the irreversible stage.

"Early detection is the best prevention. Every patient should have a routine urine study and testing should also be done in the schools on a regular basis."

Dr. Drummond explained that most kidney diseases are due to bacterial infections or are congenital and will show up in a urine sample.

Dr. Jean-Guy Mongeau of St. Justine Children's Hospital told the conference, sponsored by the Kidney Foundation of Canada, that he screened 100 school girls, aged seven to 13, last spring.

Of the 982, a total of 118 showed something positive on the first test.

"Careful testing in the hospital," he said, "revealed that two per cent of the young girls had something wrong with their kidneys.

"If we went into all the schools in Montreal, we might find thousands of children with kidney ailments."

Dr. Drummond said women are 14 times more likely to have kidney diseases than men, perhaps because they are biologically more exposed to infection.

H. W. Ashenmil, president of the kidney foundation, said "various kidney ailments claim 4,000 lives in Canada yearly."

If the disease is not discovered soon enough for drug treatment to be effective, a transplant operation or dialysis (cleansing of the blood) on an artificial kidney machine may be used to prolong life.

Change in Makeup Is the Misty-eyed Look

EDMONTON (CP) — "This winter, women's eyes will look different—softer, misty, more romantic," says beauty expert Kathleyn Whilton.

She's talking about fashions in eye makeup. And she adds that yesterday's looks in makeup are just as obvious as needle-thin heels and pointed toes.

"And a change in makeup can put you in the fashion picture and brighten your outlook even more than a new outfit can—and at a fraction of the cost."

Miss Whilton owns The Third Face, a cosmetic boutique where she teaches women how to apply makeup. A former model and a fashion co-ordinator, she prefers to describe a makeup routine for a woman individually, but offered some general comments on the new looks.

"The most important change in makeup this year is the misty-eyed look. There's more color, too, with clearer reds for the lips and a hint of rouge on the cheeks.

"But the big change is in the eye area. It's lighter and brighter and more beautiful. It's a more womanly look."

NATURAL LOOK IN

In the '60s, it was a little-girl look, accentuated by the short skirts, she said. The eye was long and narrow, drawn even bigger with eyeliner.

For the womanly look of the 1970s, she suggests using layers of color around the eye for a soft, natural, open-eye look.

Miss Whilton suggests that women invest in one of the eye-shadow paint boxes now on the market, those that have several shades in one box.

"All the shades are lighter this year," she said. "Look for ones that have very light shades, such as pink or yellow tones. These are used for highlights and give a fresh, clear-eyed effect."

Certain basic principles apply. Darker colors make an area seem deeper; light tones or white make it more prominent. For example, a girl with prominent lids shouldn't wear white shadow on them, but the girl with small, deep-set eyes could use white shadow on the lid.

Last year, eye liner was used "extensively. This year, liner—if used at all—is thin and used only at the base of the lash. It doesn't extend out from the corner of the eye at all.

Eye shadow is brushed on in a circular pattern, going under the eye, but delicately, as well as on the lid. The deepest color tones are right along the lashline, both top and bottom.

Each woman should experiment with the shading on the lid, using a combination of the colors, Usually, it is best to soften and lighten the color gradually toward the brow, but many women like to use a slightly deeper tone in the inner corner of the lid and along the bottom of the bone.

If the eyes are close-set, then keep the shadow to the outside; if they are wide and you have a broad nose, bring the shadow in closer."

The lightest shade—pink, yello'or even white—should be used to accentuate the space between the eye and the outr brow.

"This gives a wide-awake, happy look."

The brow is slender, with a natural arch—and lighter. Throw away the black eye brow pencils, she said.

But mascara is a must, both on the top and bottom lashes.

"Try false eyelashes, too. They make you feel wonderful. But even if you don't, mascara is a must.

"If you haven't been wearing makeup, you'll probably feel awkward about putting it on. You need to practise. Practise on your family—they'll appreciate it."

B and P Women Enjoy Yule Party

A visit from Mrs. Santa Claus highlighted the combined regular meeting and Christmas party of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on Monday evening.

A smorgasbord meal was enjoyed and members received many little favors for the occasion as they sat down at the dinner tables attractively arranged with Christmas decor.

President Jeane Stephenson conducted a short business period at which time corresponding secretary Allison Sickle read Christmas greetings from the Federation and the Provincial president Mary Hesser. An executive meeting will be held Jan. 4 at the O.B.C.

A number of interesting contests and games prepared by Peggy Wood program chairman and her committee were enjoyed, along with the singing of favorite Christmas carols.

With so many commitments for Santa Claus at this time of year, Mrs. Santa Claus (Florence Fitzgerald) distributed a number of exchange gifts.

ALBERT COLLEGE GUILD

Captain Gurney, wife of Captain Edwin Gurney of the Belleville Salvation Army was the guest speaker at the Christmas meeting of Albert College Guild. Mrs. Gurney is a captain in her own right and she trained in the Salvation Army College. She has also had nurses' training. She was introduced by Mrs. J. E. Marsh.

Remarking that the Salvation Army work speaks for itself, she centred her message on the scripture passage "thanks to God for His unspeakable gift." She stressed God's motive for the gift — love.

Earlier, the president Mrs. Earl Fleming conducted a brief business meeting. The convener of the nominating committee Mrs. C. W. Smith presented the slate of officers.

The headmaster Mr. Lorne Shewfelt invited the members to attend a candlelight service in the chapel on Sunday, December 13 at 7.15 p.m. The chaplain Rev. F. J. Condon will conduct the service and the College choir will contribute Christmas music.

Mr. Shewfelt recently attended a meeting of the Canadian Headmasters' Association. At this meeting the constitution was changed to include membership of headmasters of co-educational schools. Albert College was the first to join under the new ruling.

The program at the meeting was arranged by Mrs. G. Moore. She set the theme for the meeting, speaking of Christmas as a time when childhood and age meet, both moved by the spirit of giving.

Mrs. Shewfelt and Mrs. R. Christensen, the dean of women at the College sang two Christmas numbers with Mrs. Taylor Franklin providing the accompaniment. She also played the accompaniment for the carol singing.

Mrs. Earl Hickey thanked the speaker, Mrs. Shewfelt, Mrs. Christensen and Mrs. Franklin. A social hour and special Christmas refreshments were enjoyed by all. Mrs. E. Hickey and Mrs. C. Hyde presided at the tea table.

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

On Wednesday, December 9 Gamma Mu members and their husbands enjoyed a Christmas party and buffet dinner at the officers' mess in the armories. There was dancing to records and tapes from 8.30 to 12.00, followed by a delicious buffet supper of Chinese food.

Several prizes were won for spot dances and a very good time was had by all the 17 couples who attended. Mrs R. Owen, social committee head was responsible for the well planned evening.

British Tories Buoyed by Strike Collapse

LONDON (CP) — The Conservative government, buoyed by the collapse of the electrical workers' slowdown, looked forward to another victory today when the House of Commons considers Britain's first omnibus strike-control law.

With Prime Minister Heath's forces commanding a 39-vote majority in the 630-member Commons, the opposition Labor-Reds conceded in advance that the bill would be approved in principle in the vote on second reading. But unions hoped their partisans could amend it in the next stage of consideration by joint parliamentary committee for possible changes.

Debate began Monday on the legislation, which will bring legally enforceable contracts into the British labor picture for the first time.

Employment Minister Robert Carr called it "the most comprehensive code of workers' rights in the history of our country," but Labor member Barbara Castle attacked it as a mass of restraints that will put the unions' backs up.

Heath decided to end debate tonight before he leaves for official visits to Canada and the United States. The prime minister said the bill will become law by next summer.

Waste Disposal Proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should carry out research into solid waste disposal so that waste can be reduced and converted into useful products, Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) said Monday.

He said in the Commons that the United States is carrying out research in Madison, Wis., into converting solid wastes into useful materials. He could not understand why Canada did not undertake a similar program.

Mr. Alexander was presenting a private member's motion calling for government research into solid waste disposal and urging financial assistance to provincial and municipal governments to conduct waste-disposal programs.

The motion failed to come to a vote during the hour set aside for private members' bills and motions.

The British government traditionally has stayed out of labor disputes, but in the first three quarters of 1970 there were 3,198 strikes in the country, 885 more than the record total in all of 1969. States of emergency have been declared twice, during a dock strike in July and during the work-to-rule slowdown by the 120,000 power plant workers.

In addition to fines for breaking contracts, the bill provides 60-day cooling-off periods in major strikes and secret strike ballots; streamlines bargaining procedures; prohibits closed shops, and protects workers against unfair dismissal.

Leaders of the week-old electrical slowdown bowed Monday to pressure from the public, and Heath's Conservatives viewed the government's victory there as a milestone in its fight against inflation.

Canada Snubbed?

LONDON (CP) — The British government should pay more attention to Canadian "policies and attitudes," The Daily Telegraph says in an editorial.

The newspaper was commenting on Prime Minister Heath's call on Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday, to be followed by a two-day visit to Washington. Heath leaves London tonight.

The Telegraph says the importance of the talks at Ottawa should not be underrated, "as such occasions have tended to be in the past."

"The call at Ottawa," the paper adds, "has unfortunately been all too often regarded by visiting prime ministers, of both parties, as an obligatory chore tacked on to the headline-catching Washington visit.

"Canada is emerging all the time with a more distinct character and influence. Canadian policies and attitudes now demand more serious attention from 10 Downing Street than they have been getting in the recent past.

"The close relations established between Mr. Heath and Mr. Trudeau over the Jacques Cross kidnapping provide a good foundation for this."

On the Heath visit to Ottawa, several major items appear due for discussion.

Most important from the British standpoint, perhaps, is the vexed question of the Conservative government resuming sale of naval armament to apartheid South Africa, which had been banned by the Labor administration that went out of office in June.

The new government let it be known soon after the election that it was considering this, and Trudeau immediately expressed displeasure and concern that it could lead to the break-up of the Commonwealth through the defection of many black states.

External Affairs Minister Sharp reiterated this concern in a talk here last month with Sir Alec Douglas-Home, foreign and Commonwealth secretary.

Britain's possible entry into the European Common Market undoubtedly will be discussed.

The Canadian government does not oppose this but is worried lest Britain's trade outlook take an inward turn should it join the European alignment, possibly freezing out some Canadian exports.

A more immediate issue is Britain's recent imposition of a levy on grain imports. The idea is to bust domestic prices to provide a better return for British growers rather than subsidize them at the farm as was done under Labor. Canada has expressed concern at this, though British trade officials like it should not cut down imports from that country.

Negro Jews To Israel

ELWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Fifty Negro Jews have decided to move to Israel, which they consider their homeland and where they expect to be free of racial prejudice they have encountered in the United States.

Those hoping to make the journey worship at a small synagogue headed by Rabbi Abel Respes in this community near Atlantic City. Rabbi Respes said the members of his all-black congregation view Israel as their true home.

Rabbi Respes said the members of Temple Adai Beyt Moshoh made the decision to emigrate to Israel after several visited there last month.

"I wasn't conscious, in Israel, that I was colored," he said.

The 56-year-old rabbi said he had met Jews of his race from Morocco and Yemen who treated him as a brother.

Princely Pay Reinstated For Maharajahs

NEW DELHI (CP) — The Supreme Court of India ruled today that Prime Minister Gandhi acted unconstitutionally in abolishing princely rank, pay and privileges for 280 princes and maharajahs and ordered them reinstated.

Mrs. Gandhi told Parliament her government will continue the fight to end the institution of royalty "by an appropriate constitutional means."

The high court by a vote of 8 to 3 restored $6.4 million a year in privy purses, royal titles, and such other perquisites as exemption from many taxes, free utilities, free medical allowances and duty-free imports.

Calling the abolition decree by President V. V. Giri "inoperative," the court issued a writ of mandamus forbidding further executive action against the princes and maharajahs. The decision also ordered the government to pay the costs of litigation.

The court's ruling is the clean action ask filed by eight maharajahs rejected the government's claim that the president had the power to abolish the privileged class without parliamentary assent. The decision held that Giri has no "political power transcending the constitution which he may exercise to the prejudice of the citizens."

The decision threw Parliament into near pandemonium. Rightist opposition leaders demanded that Mrs. Gandhi's government resign, and leftists and members of her Congress party urged that the legislative session be extended past Friday's scheduled adjournment for consideration of a constitutional amendment to overrule the court.

Mrs. Gandhi appeared within an hour after the decision was announced and said:

"I assure the House that the government is committed to its policy of abolition of privy purses by an appropriate constitutional means. When the entire judgment is available, I am sure it may raise many important questions."

She did not spell out her next moves, but since political observers speculated that she might call a new general election with abolition of the former rulers' special status as her chief campaign plank.

The maharajahs were given their annual stipends and other privileges in an agreement with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, Mrs. Gandhi's father, when India gained independence from Britain in 1947.

In return, the rulers of the princely states surrendered 587,949 square miles of territory and 89 million subjects—82 per cent of India's area and 28 per cent of its population—to the central government.

Since then the government has paid the former rulers and their descendants nearly 1,000 million rupees, or more than $130 million at the current rate of exchange. When the decree of abolition was signed three months ago, the biggest annual privy purse was $342,000 for the Maharajah of Mysore and the smallest $26.50, for the former ruler of Katodia.

This was the second time this year the high court has delivered a judgment embarrassing the government on a major policy issue.

In February, it struck down government legislation taking over 14 major Indian banks. But the banks were renationalized within days by an amended order which was later approved by the legislature.

Ontario to Sell Credit Information

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government began advertising a new computer service Monday that will eventually make available large amount of credit information on Ontario residents.

The information will include all registered chattel mortgages, assignments of book debts by businesses, and conditional sales contracts for manufactured goods at more than $300 which are not household or family goods such as furniture.

Such information now is available from the 48 county and district registry offices in the province, but credit granters must go through the records in each office by hand to obtain the information.

The new service, called the Personal Property Security Registration System, will provide the information within minutes by telephone to anyone with an account number with the system.

The account numbers will be granted by the Ontario department of justice, which oversees the system, and a fee—expected to be $2—will be charged for each search.

A justice department advertisement in a Toronto newspaper Monday said the new system will be started in March but will not be fully operational until March, 1974.

The delay is due to the three-year limit on registrations. As new credit registrations are made out and old ones are renewed they will be added to the information banks.

The system will function through the department of highways IBM 360-40 computer which now keeps track of Ontario drivers' permits and vehicle registrations, among other things.

Democrats Upset

Nixon's Choice of Connally Shrewd Move

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon's success in getting a top conservative Democrat, former Texas Gov. John Connally as new treasury secretary is interpreted by most observers here as a major political coup that could ensure fresh thinking on U.S. economic problems.

The nomination of Connally Monday to replace 65-year-old David M. Kennedy next February is likely to undercut the opposition Democrats on the issue that has been the most helpful to them politically—the lagging economy, with its high unemployment and steady inflation.

It also forges a new link between the Republican president and a leader of the conservative wing of the Democratic party in Texas, probably broadening the president's political appeal especially in the South.

Most observers expected the Connally appointment to give a considerable boost to Nixon's chances of re-election in 1972, and they felt there was more politics behind the move than economics.

Nixon himself appeared to acknowledge this when he said that Connally will render great service in helping to ensure in this critical period that there is a bipartisan approach to the country's problems.

Administration sources said Connally, navy secretary under former president John F. Kennedy, will be counted on to use his political talents in selling Nixon's economic policies to the public and improving the president's relations with a Democratic Congress.

Both were acknowledged weaknesses of Kennedy, who was in disfavor with the administration's economic policymakers and wanted a less demanding job.

Connally is a political protege of former president Lyndon Johnson, who never has been known as particularly friendly to Nixon.

The news was welcomed in some Republican quarters as a sign of more bipartisanship by the administration and a step away from the alleged divisive tactics employed in the 1970 election campaign.

However, at Sun Valley, Idaho, where Republican governors are meeting, some governors expressed dismay at the appointment.

"It was just incredible," Gov. Francis Sargent of Massachusetts said. "I don't quibble with appointing a Democrat—but Connally?"

Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.) summed up the general Democratic reaction when he said: "The only thing that could surprise the score would be President Nixon appointing Lyndon Johnson as secretary of state."

Connally's acceptance of the treasury post is unlikely to be popular with moderate or liberal Democrats.

They thought the economic issue proved itself in November and was a potential winner in 1972, and will therefore not thank Connally for blurring the issue in the two years leading up to the presidential election.

NASA Developing New Wing Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Development of a new-type aircraft wing by U.S. space scientists could lead, they say, to quick creation of a cheaper, non-polluting alternative to the controversial supersonic transport.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientists say the wing that one day may lift the new plane—called the advanced technology supersonic transport—also may help the United States retain supremacy in the world's aircraft market.

NASA has made no public disclosure of its work, and the plane is still in the project stages, but news of the new wing came as Congress began final debate on continuing federal subsidies to develop the SST.

The new wing was developed over the last five years by Dr. Richard T. Whitcomb at NASA's Langley Research Centre in Hampton, Va.

Called the supercritical wing, it is a design advance that permits smooth-as-silk flight near the sound barrier, eliminating the buffeting and pitching present airliners now encounter when they fly that fast.

Spokesmen for Whitcomb reported the new wing has a flattened top surface and a curved bottom, a combination said to eliminate most of the shock waves encountered by conventional wings.

Development of the new plane would be "nowhere near the cost of the SST," a NASA spokesman said, explaining the SST required multiple technological breakthroughs and the new, slower plane would not.

The SST has been criticized as a noisy pollution producer that may never pay its own way. The SST's defenders say the faster-than-sound plane is a vital technological advance that will help the United States retain its lead in aviation.

Either plane could be in production by 1980.

NASA spokesman said there can be no direct comparison between the two planes, mostly because one would fly faster than sound at high altitude and the other would not.

But they see the project as filling the vacuum between the SST and present commercial planes. The proposed craft would fly at 35,000 feet at a speed of about 600 miles an hour, just under the speed of sound.

But NASA scientists say their plane—while faster than existing commercial aircraft—would use quieter jet engines, the latest advances to restrict pollution, and eat up fast at a far slower rate.

And, because it would produce no sonic booms, it would not be restricted from flying over the United States and would still reach its destination faster than anything now flying.

Experts Differ on Validity Of Hughes Proxy Signature

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — One of the few men admitted to Howard Hughes's presence in recent years says he saw the billionaire recluse sign a paper later used to authorize firing of the man who ran the vast Hughes holdings in Nevada.

One handwriting expert told a Judge Monday the signature is genuine. A second described it as a fake.

The man who said he watched while Hughes wielded the pen was LeVar Myler. He said he was one of five assistants working in Hughes's office, had known his boss for 20 years and had seen him daily for the last five.

Myler testified he saw Hughes sign the document Nov. 14 in a bedroom of the three-room penthouse apartment where he lived atop a hotel on the Las Vegas Strip. The document was a proxy granting the general counsel and two directors of the Hughes Tool Co." power to act for their boss.

Myler told reporters after his court appearance he was with Hughes at the Britannia Hotel in the Bahamas until a week ago and that his chief is well. Maheu has been considered Hughes's visible aider ago in Nevada since Hughes moved to the state four years ago and bought casinos, hotels, mining property and real estate worth $300 million.

The tool company forces moved in Dec. 4—after Hughes left town—and fired Maheu, saying the proxy gave them the necessary authority. Maheu resisted, and obtained a court order blocking their takeover.

The signature on the proxy statement was the subject of lengthy and contradictory testimony Monday.

Charles Appel, a Washington, D.C., handwriting expert called in by Maheu, said the person who signed the proxy was not the person who wrote numerous notes which Maheu gave him as examples of Hughes's handwriting.

But a document analyst hired by the tool company, George Bradford, later said from the stand that the signature on the proxy was the real thing.

'Kill All' Said Order At My Lai

FORT BENNING, Ga. (Reuter) — An army career sergeant, called by the defence for Lieut. William Calley, faced cross-examination today on his statement that a superior officer gave the order to kill everyone in My Lai hamlet.

Sgt. Martin Fagan, 24, is the fifth defence witness to testify that Capt. Ernest Medina ordered the obliteration of the South Vietnamese village and its occupants March 16, 1968. Calley is charged with murdering 102 civilians there, and he could be sentenced to death.

Fagan, like the four other witnesses, said Medina gave him orders to destroy the village during a briefing the night before the raid on My Lai. Medina's entire company, of which Fagan and Calley were members, attended the briefing, the sergeant testified.

"It was my impression that anybody remaining in the village, regardless of whether they were men, women or children, would be killed."

The court recessed Monday after Fagan finished telling his story for the defence. He returns to the stand today to face cross-examination by the army prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey Daniel.

FOLLOWED ORDERS

Fagan's testimony was in line with the defence strategy that Calley should not be held accountable for following orders from a superior officer. Fagan also testified that some dead women and children were in parts of the village where Calley had not been. This supported the defence contention that killing was widespread and sanctioned by Calley's commanders.

Medina has been charged with over-all responsibility for civilian deaths at My Lai and is undergoing army investigation to determine if he should be tried.

"He (Medina) said we were going to Pinkville," said S. Sgt. L. G. Bacon, one of Calley's former squad leaders. "He said we were going in where the 48th Viet Cong battalion was and we were to kill all Viet Cong, all Viet Cong suspects, all NVA (North Vietnamese army) and all NVA suspects, destroy all food sources, kill all animals and burn the village."

Pinkville, a name born from its shade on military maps, was the My Lai area.

"To me that meant women and children and everything else," said Elmer Haywood of Baytown, Tex. "Viet Cong sympathizers can be any of these . . . my impression was they were all to be be killed."

Belleville Fairways found the going rough in Cobourg last night but managed to come up with a 3-3 win over the fourth place Cougars. Fairways in Tune Following 3-2 Comeback in Cobourg

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

COBOURG — There's been a change on the Belleville Fairways' bit parade and the team members couldn't be happier.

Sunday night the Junior B's stumbled through a sorry rendition of "the Skaters' Waltz" in a 9-3 loss to Kingston which left coach Floyd Crawford humming "Don't You Know I Can't Sleep at Night".

"Happy Days Are Here Again", however, as the Fairways emerged Monday from Cobourg's split-lip alley with a 3-2 Eastern Ontario Junior B victory.

Things looked anything but happy for Belleville going into the contest minus four regular players. Team captain John Mulvihill was out with a stiff neck, scrappy right winger Doug James was recovering from illness, centre Pat Kirby was performing with the Moira basketball team and portsider Cliff Jasiluch had a one-game suspension.

Matters looked even worse when team scoring leader Danny Lagerstrom was forced to retire after only one shift with a slight leg dislocation, leaving the visitors with only 12 players.

The Juniors responded with what Crawford called "our best game of the season", to pull out a come-from-behind victory.

Centre Joe Clarke, benched for most of Sunday's contest, scored the winning goal at 18.30 of the third period as defenceman Rick Holmes carried the puck to the Cobourg goalmouth, where he was pulled down from behind by a defenceman. Clarke, following up the play, lifted the puck over a prostrate Mike J. Caine, who had been levelled in a collision with Holmes.

The biggest single factor in the Belleville win was a strong back-checking effort from their wingers, allowing their three-man defence to stand their ground against the fourth-place Cobourg squad.

Peter Ackerman performed brilliantly in a defensive role for the winners. The rookie rearguard was on the ice for a good 40 minutes, blocking shots and making key checks despite some rough punishment handed out by the hefty Cobourg front lines.

Rick Holmes and Kevin Dockrill also performed well as the team was forced to go with three defencemen for most of the game.

Belleville goalie Ron Jury showed signs of returning to his previous standout play facing 29 shots, while Caine was tested 25 times in the Cobourg net.

Jury was both good and lucky in the early going, aiding out to stop Dale Loucks, who was in the clear, and later watching Loucks bounce a shot off the goal post after he had dekked the goalie on a clear-cut scoring chance.

Tim Yohn opened the scoring in a well-played first period on passes after rattling a shot off the Cobourg post. The converted rearguard circled the Cougars defence and picked the corner to make it 1-0.

The home team retaliated just nine seconds later with Dave Peers rolling a shot in the corner after being left uncovered in front of Jury.

Play (if it could be called that) in the second period bore a much closer resemblance to a saloon brawl than a hockey game as Belleville referee Ted Hurst appeared to lose control of the contest. A total of 19 penalties was assessed and at least equal that number of infractions went unnoticed.

Speedy centre Bruce Sherwin, a standout for Cobourg, gave his team the lead early in the period, beating Jury with a high shot to his glove side from directly in front of the net.

Right winger Brian O'Coin missed a good scoring chance near the mid-point of the game — dusting a pass from Clarke on a two-on-one break. The fireplug forward went Belleville-bound to get knocked down and cold and was forced to leave the game on a stretcher.

O'Coin returned before the period was over and resumed his hard hitting style of play that was a vital factor in the Belleville win.

Jury and Caine shared goaltending honors late in the frame as the Belleville goalie stopped Steve Bradford on a breakaway attempt, while Caine returned the favor against Dick Holmes.

Yohn counted his third goal in two games since being shifted to left wing banging Dave Smith's pass into the Cobourg net after the lucky right winger had done some nifty stickhandling to work in front.

With Cobourg pressing for the go-ahead goal, the Fairways started to get breakaway attempts and finally connected with Clarke's score.

Jury came up with a key save at 19.54 of the last period, juggling the puck in a goalmouth scramble, but keeping it out of his net.

The win was the third of the season for Belleville, whose next game is home Sunday night against the Oshawa Crushmen.

Junior A: Men Deal with Boys

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

By the time he approaches the advanced age of 15, any red-blooded hockey-playing Ontario youth usually develops an acute case of B.D.

For the privileged few, that first invitation to the September scrimmages of the Pee-wee, Peiod, or Generals is the reward for all those 5 a.m. practices and cramped kitchen corner bouts that school hockey is all about. A shot at Junior A becomes only slightly less important than, say, breathing.

Imagine: being fed, bedded, and Colonel-coached all over southern Ontario just for playing hockey!

But what, in turn, does Junior A hockey mean to the men who deal with these high-keyed boys they have from every tin-roofed community centre in the province?

First and foremost, it means investment — $7,500 a season to coach, school, room and board and provide each player with pocket money, in the estimation of London Knights' general manager Doug Frost. It's not disputed that running one of Canada's top "Major" Junior A entries is a multi-million $200,000-a-year enterprise.

And there isn't a more astute investor in junior hockey than Thomas Smythe. Third in the line of Maple Leaf Gardens chairmanships, Tom's private look is to make the Marlboros help every Hogtown hockey buff forget the Maple Leafs, who already occupy the building in dire straits.

The Marlies' GM has won the most active set of his breed to date this season, engineering five trades for seven players with the Dec. 31 league trading deadline still two weeks away. One Toronto-area newspaper, working closer with coach Frank Mahovlich, who's employed as a host-trader for a meat-packing house, has rubbed off on Smythe.

"I would prefer it if we didn't have to make trades to produce a winner, team," Smythe insists. "I prefer to see players from team to team isn't a great thing because it can disrupt their education in the middle of a school term. But it was obvious that we had to make changes to improve our club . . ."

One of these "disruptions" hit close to home and left junior hockey hotsters practice open to criticism. Belleville Junior B goaltending standout Ron Jury had the "A" plum dangled in front of his unsuspecting nose three weeks ago by Smythe and there are still some aspects of the episode that leave a bad after-taste.

First, Jury, in his final year of junior hockey eligibility, was courted by the area Marlboro representative in secret-service fashion. He was advised not to mention the contact to the local Fairways' management, who first heard of the prospect of losing their 1969-70 most valuable player via the grapevine.

Smythe later apologized profusely for the sneakie tactics and assured by telephone Monday that he would personally handle any future Marlboro transactions in this area.

Then Jury was ordered off to Toronto with the Fairways under the impression they would be receiving $500 and Jury under the impression he would be by the number one goaltender or for the slumping Dukes.

Two games — and 7½ goals-against later — a dejected Ron Jury was on a Belleville-bound train, out transportation and meal costs for a five-day stay in Toronto.

"It was always understood that Ron was with us strictly on a trial basis," Smythe stressed Monday. "I told him we'd get him in two weekend games. He allowed 17 goals but the team wasn't playing well. We felt Ron was painfully as good as the other two goalies we had. But since he was in his last junior year we thought it was only fair to the Belleville team that he finish the year with them."

Smythe was abrupt about the lack of expense funds for his Belleville "tryout." "Maple Leaf Gardens is not a country grocery store. We didn't have a signing affair here to sign cheques — they were both in Moscow booking dinners. But the day they returned we had them until Hell to choose for $75, and his actual expenses were only fifteen or twenty dollars."

As for the $500 for Jury's release, Fairways' manager Jim Matthews didn't press the matter after his goalkeeper's return and, coincidentally, it never arrived although a Smythe letter had said it was in the mail. Smythe simply agrees, "No money changed hands."

Fairways' coach Floyd Crawford was belligerent about what appeared to be the quick-shuffle given Jury which he felt has shaken the young goaltender's confidence. Although he couldn't be blamed for them, Jury wasn't the most sharp self in the losses the Belleville B's suffered his first three games back.

The question now seems to be whether the Marlboros had Jury's, as well as their own best interests at heart. Or was he an unfortunate pawn in a team-building designed to bring the Marlies out of an early-season slump?

Was the move merely a ploy to improve regular goalkeeper Mike Ralph's net performance? If so, it worked. Ralph's goals-against average was over 5.00 per game before Jury's brief visit. Since, Ralph has been unusually unbeatable, allowing only 14 goals in six games while recording two shutouts.

Smythe says any Belleville misunderstanding must have stemmed from the incident's "bad start" — the secretive scouting techniques. "Just a lack of communications," he concluded.

No-one likes to think that a presumably reputable organization like the Toronto Marlboros walks on the shady side of the street. Particularly when so many young hockey players have their hearts set on joining Junior hockey ranks.

But a report out of Peterborough this week would be enough to tip the scales against a federal weights and measures inspector, let alone the Toronto Marlboros' general manager.

Peterborough Petes' president Herb Warr says Smythe had offered goalie Mike Ralph, $10,000 "and more" in exchange for stingy puck-chopper John Garrett, a Preston native.

Noting the league rule that forbids selling players for more than $500, Warr snorted at Smythe: "I am amazed he would allow himself to be quoted. It does not speak well for us as a league. Junior A hockey cannot afford such deals."

It would appear that nobody can, except Tom Smythe.

Detroit Dims Ram Title Hopes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We'll just have to get ready for the New York Giants Sunday—and hope Oakland defeats the San Francisco 49ers."

Coach George Allen of Los Angeles had this observation today following the Rams 30-23 loss to Detroit Lions Monday night.

The Rams are at New York Sunday and the 49ers are at Oakland as the NFL regular season campaign goes down to the wire.

The Lions, having beaten successively San Francisco, Oakland, St. Louis Cardinals and now the Rams, dropped Los Angeles a game behind San Francisco—9-4-1 to the 49ers 9-3-1—in the National Conference West.

Coach Joe Schmidt's Lions kept themselves alive in the National Conference Central with 9-4-0 and a chance to make the playoffs. They are at home to Green Bay Parkers Sunday.

It wasn't as close as the score indicates. Quarterback Greg Landry skillfully directed a well-balanced offence and the defence checked Los Angeles on two field goals through three quarters.

Roman Gabriel and the Rams came to life in the final period and threatened with 17 points.

With 2:07 remaining and trailing 21-16, Los Angeles launched a rally from its own 17. It ended abruptly when middle linebacker Mike Lucci intercepted a Gabriel pass and ran it back 12 yards.

Three plays later, following a 22-yard keeper passage by Landry, Steve Owens, the 1969 Heisman Trophy winner, went in from the four to give Detroit a 28-16 lead.

The Ram coach blamed a tripping penalty midway in the final quarter against the Rams as the key mishap. The penalty not only advanced the ball to the Lion 49 but cost like Rams badly needed possession of the ball.

Owens got his chance when regular running back Mel Farr suffered a shoulder separation on his second carry of the game.

Schmidt said later he didn't know how long Farr would be sidelined.

Owens scored two touchdowns and gained 66 yards—which was 19 yards more than the entire Ram rushing output.

Gabriel gained 323 yards via the air and threw two touchdown passes. It was the most yards he had ever gained but it went for nothing.

Eagle Star Shot

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police spokesmen say they are following "some pretty firm leads" in connection with the shooting of Nate Ramsey, star defensive back for Philadelphia Eagles.

Ramsey, 23, the National League football team's defensive captain, was shot Monday afternoon as he walked toward a West Philadelphia tavern to meet a friend.

Police said there was no connection between the unidentified friend and the leads they were following.

Doctors said the bullet grazed a rib but apparently caused no serious internal damage. However, the player's condition was described as serious by a hospital spokesman.

Ramsey's wife, Desiree, weeping on a bench in the hospital emergency room, told reporters the assailant "was an acquaintance, but I don't know why he did it."

Mrs. Ramsey said her husband had left their West Philadelphia home to have a beer with a former Eagles player.

Police Lieut. James Lavin said detectives believe Ramsey "might know" the assailant "from seeing him around."

Lavin said Ramsey had not been interviewed by police, but that he didn't know why he had been shot.

Lavin said there were many witnesses to the shooting, which occurred on a busy street, but that police had not talked to all of them yet.

"There is no indication this was involved with football," Lavin said.

Police were looking for a man in his 30s who ran to a late model gold Cadillac after firing at Ramsey and drove off.

The 6-foot-1 Indiana University graduate, drafted 14th by the Eagles in 1963, led the team in pass interceptions in 1964 and 1965 and had a career total of 18. He is a native of Neptune, N.J.

Game Plan Ruined

MIAMI (AP) — The lawyer's game plan called for out-flanking the National Football League's Super Bowl television blackout for the Miami area in federal court. But it was a busted play.

The ref charged the offence with illegal motion.

Judge Ted Cabot ruled the right of South Florida's 2.5 million inhabitants to watch a live broadcast of a football game did not come within the area of constitutional guarantees.

Cabot Monday upheld a motion by the National Football League and the City of Miami to dismiss a suit brought by Miami Beach lawyer Ellis Rubin, who had charged the NFL with violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Rubin claimed $115,000 of taxpayers' money spent to promote the game made Dade County and the state of Florida co-sponsors of a private enterprise.

This violates the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which bars discrimination against any segment of the population, he said.

Rubin also argued the Sherman Anti-Trust Act allowed professional sports teams to black out television broadcasting only in their home areas to protect gate receipts.

The Super Bowl could not have a home team, he said, because the site was selected before the season began and before it was known which teams would play.

Rubin said the dismissal of his suit did not mean he had given up efforts to lift the blackout.

He said he would go into a state court to ask that spending tax dollars to promote the game be stopped.

After that, he said, he would lay before NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle a petition bearing the signatures of 40,000 people who asked that the blackout be relaxed.

NFL Discrimination Charged

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal grand jury investigation into possible anti-trust violations in the National Football League continues today following testimony from retired all-pro defensive back John Sample.

Sample told reporters after appearing before the jury Monday that if anyone is indicted, it should be NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle. He said he told the jury of alleged blackballing practices, racial discrimination and the league's "stranglehold" on players.

Sample said he thought New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath should be called before the jury in regard to the selling of his Bachelor's Three night spot last year, saying, "I think he (Namath) will be very helpful if he is called in."

Sample said he "talked a little" to the jury about the sale and said: "He (Namath) didn't do anything wrong and they didn't have evidence he did anything wrong." Sample charged that Rozelle told Namath to "sell out or not play football any more."

"The control they (Rozelle and owners) think they have over them (players) puts fear in the ball players," Sample said.

He said Rozelle was "90 per cent for the owners and 10 per cent for the ball players" and "the greatest thing that could happen" would be for players to "have someone in the commissioner's office with equal ability, equal power with Rozelle."

Sample, who retired from the Jets after the 1968 college all-star game because of a back injury, said "blackballing was 50 per cent" of the subject of the jury's questions to him and that he thought the jury's investigation was headed in the direction of blackballing.

Sample called blackballing "a violation" of a player's constitutional rights. He said he knows he was blackballed from the NFL after the 1965 season with Washington Redskins "cause I was told." He said he thought the main reason he was blackballed was because "I disagreed with them and I let them know."

Sample charged that the owners maintain control over a player who becomes a free agent after his contract runs out, saying: "You're supposed to be able to negotiate with any team you choose," but "you only play with the last team you play for or don't play at all."

Alleged Bank Robber Little All-American

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Leon Burns stands in the shoes of a two-year little all-American today, trying to forget the years of shovelling manure, fighting forest fires and cutting down trees while serving a jail term.

The tailback for Long Beach State College stands on the threshold of a final career in pro football and law. Those who know the soft-spoken giant hardly believe he was once convicted of armed robbery.

The incredible tale began eight years ago in Oakland when Leon, now 27, consented to give two guys a ride in his car. The two were connected to a pawn shop robbery and when they were arrested, so was Leon.

"He took no part in the actual robbery," says his college coach, Jim Stanglehand.

But Burns was a marked man. He had had a misunderstanding with law enforcement officials in the past and at his trial, despite two bung juries, he was convicted by aiding and abetting an armed robbery.

Then began the four years behind various prison walls.

When 1970 is over, so will Leon's probation and an illustrious, almost unbelievable college career.

In two years at Long Beach, Leon, a 6-foot-2, 228-pound runner, has gained 2,772 yards in 625 carries, scored 47 touchdowns and blocked with the ferocity of a man trying to break out, of a "bum rap" part.

He has maintained a B average in his political science major and heads next for pro football and a law degree, its touches all he meets with hospitality.

"I can see where a black might get convicted in a case like that, but where a white boy from Beverly Hills might get acquitted," says Spurgeon Avakian, a good friend of Leon and a superior court judge in Alameda County near Leon's teen-age home.

"I've always felt that if I had money, I never would have gone," says Burns.

"The prison years were tough. Burns believed he was innocent and Leon took out his utter frustration.

"The two major sports they have are boxing and weightlifting. I won the heavyweight championship as a boxer but after you whip three or four people, there isn't anybody else who wants to fight you," he says grimly. "So I started lifting weights."

Meanwhile, despite the manure shovelling and the tree cutting, he filed writs for fellow prisoners and built the beginnings of a law career.

"It's kind of hard to get legal books but I spent a lot of time in the library. I must have read about a million cases. I filed writs, appeals, everything else."

Spencer Attends Funeral

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Spencer, 21-year-old Toronto Maple Leaf rookie, returned to his Fort St. James, B.C., home Monday to attend the funeral of his father, [illegible]

Roy Spencer, 58, shot to death by RCMP officers Saturday night after a man forced the Prince George, B.C., television station off the air because it was not showing the National Hockey League game between Toronto and Chicago Black Hawks, is to be buried Thursday.

The elder Spencer was killed after wounding one of three RCMP called to the station when personnel in the building were held at gunpoint.

The elder Spencer, suffering from severe uremic poisoning and in ill health for some time, apparently made the 85-mile trip to Prince George to lodge a complaint with the station which was carrying the Vancouver-Canuck-California Golden Seals game.

Young Spencer heard of the shooting early Sunday. He decided to play the Toronto game in Buffalo against the Sabres Sunday night and drew three assists in a 4-0 Leaf victory.

"He thought his father would have wanted him to play," said Doug Brindley, another Leaf rookie and Spencer's roommate. "He and his father seemed very close."

Spencer had considered flying home immediately but thought that missing so many days might jeopardize his chances of remaining with the NHL team. He was called up from Tulsa of the Central League and played last Wednesday against Montreal Canadiens and Saturday against Chicago.

Those near Spencer say it was his father's ambition that the youngster play in the NHL and that Brian now, more than ever, wants to fulfil that ambition.

Spencer is expected to be back in a Leaf uniform Friday for a weekend home-and-home series with Buffalo.

Sports On All Fronts

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Herman Hill, 23, of St. Louis Cardinals, drowned Monday while swimming at a beach in Valencia, 109 miles east of here, police reported. Hill, an outfielder, played with Minnesota Twins last year and was traded during the off season along with outfielder Chuck Whisler to the Cards for pitcher Sal Campisi and infielder Jim Kennedy. Hill had been playing with the Valencia Magallanes in the Venezuelan winter league. Police said he was pulled out to sea by a large wave. The body was recovered several hours later.

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, said Monday he has acknowledged an offer by the New Brunswick tourism minister to replace the Stanley Cup, recently stolen from the Hockey Hall of Fame at Toronto. J. V. Van Horne made the offer "on behalf of the sportsminded people" of New Brunswick in a telegram to Campbell. "I replied to his telegram and thanked him," Campbell said. "I told him we are currently contemplating the recovery of the trophy, rather than replacing it." he added. "I did tell Mr. Van Horne we will keep his kind offer in mind." Also stolen in the Toronto break-in were the Conn Smythe Trophy and the Masterton Trophy.

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (CP) — Sandy Hawley, North America's leading jockey, is seeing his bid to break the season's record for winners slip away. The 21-year-old Whitby, Ont., rider went winless again Monday, extending his streak to 27 in a row. He's won only seven in 53 mounts since arriving here Dec. 7. His 453 victories is tops in North America but he's well off the record 485 set by Willie Shoemaker in 1953. Hawley's only mount Monday was a distant third and he is not listed to ride today.

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The fight between heavyweight Jose Garcia of Venezuela and Puero's Robert Davila Monday night in the Nuevo Circo sports stadium was ruled no decision by the Venezuelan Boxing Commission. During the second round, while the referee was giving instructions to both boxers, Garcia landed a terrific punch to Davila, who landed on the canvas for a ten count. The referee raised Davila's hand and declared him the winner. He charged the Venezuelan with a foul. However, after a conference, the boxing commission decided to rule the fight no decision. It will be rescheduled for a later date.

BOBBY ORR
Keeping goalie in shadow

No one in recent NHL history has had more than four three-goal games in one season. The last player to do so was left winger Frank Mahovlich of Detroit in 1968-69.

Big Frank, incidentally, is waging his own private battle with younger brother Pete of Montreal Canadiens. The brothers are only one point apart, with Frank having scored 11 goals and assisted on 14 others for 25 points in 24 games, while Pete has scored 14 goals and counted 10 assists in 22 contests.

Lost in the general hurrahs surrounding Espisito's frequent scoring outbursts, is one of the closest goaltending races in recent seasons.

The goaltending lead changed hands last week with Gilles Villemure and Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers moving to

Hartack Reaches 4,000 Win Mark

MIAMI (AP) — Bill Hartack, a five-time winner of the Kentucky Derby, reached another milestone Monday when he rode his 4,000th winner, coming on from last place aboard Roart to win the seventh race at Tropical Park.

Hartack was injured at the start of the race when Roart hit the side of the gate and the rider was unable to pose for the winner's circle picture and partake in a special presentation.

Hartack was limping and complaining of a hip injury, which proved minor.

Hartack, 38, thus becomes the fifth American rider to have won 4,000 races. Bill Shoemaker leads the list with 8,067 winners, followed by Johnny Longden at 6,836, Eddie Arcaro with 4,779, and Steve Brooks with 4,447.

Sir Gordon Richards won more than 4,000 in Europe.

Seaver Strike King

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Although New York Mets dropped in the standings in 1970, pitcher Tom Seaver led the National League in both strikeouts and earned-run averages, official league statistics showed today.

Seaver's 2.81 ERA beat a mark of 2.82 by Wayne Simpson of the league champion Cincinnati Redlegs.

Seaver's 283 strikeouts topped Ferguson Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., native with 0OOK-ps Cubs and Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals, who had 274 each.

The New Yorker tied a major league record with 19 strikeouts in one game against San Diego Padres April 22. He set another record in the same game by fanning 10 consecutive men.

The Mets, world champions in 1969, were third in the National League East last season.

Tying for the most victories in official pitching statistics released today were Gibson, 23-7 and Gaylord Perry of San Francisco Giants, 23-13.

Perry hurled the most shutouts, five; had the most starts, 41; the most innings pitched, 329; allowed the most hits, 282, and yielded the most runs, 138.

Jenkins pitched the most complete games, 24, and tied with Don Sutton of Los Angeles Dodgers for the most earned runs allowed, 115.

Other pitching leaders were Wayne Granger, Cincinnati most saves, 35; Steve Carlton, St. Louis, most losses, 19; Carl Morton, Montreal Expos' rookie, most walks yielded, 125; Phil Niekro, Atlanta Braves, most home runs yielded, 30, and Ron Herbel of San Diego and New York; most appearances, 76.

Gibson and Simpson each had 16-game winning streaks, the longest in the league.

Leafs Add More Muscle

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Red Kelly and general manager Jim Gregory of the Toronto Maple Leafs, who in recent games, have discarded their lethargic ways for the rough-and-tumble that made them a National Hockey League power house for so many years.

In the three games since Spencer's arrival, the Leafs have won all three—their longest winning streak in two years—and allowed only one goal while belting the opposition about in a manner reminiscent of their Stanley Cup years.

Spencer, Jim Dorey, Darryl Sittler, Bill MacMillan, Bob Baun and Jim Harrison are the players McClellan mentions in his latest assessment of the team.

"We've been more aggressive in the past few days. . . No-body is bumping us around now."

MacMillan and Baun haven't changed.

Baun has never been an aspirant to Hart or Norris trophy and MacMillan, a 27-year-old rookie from Charlottetown, was once considered too rough for Canada's national team.

He was also considered too slow for the NHL but in both cases he's stymied the experts. MacMillan had five memorable years with the Nats while going to university, and since joining the Leafs this year has filled in well on Toronto's No. 1 line alongside Dave Keon, the veteran centre and captain.

"He seems to be picking up speed all the time," McClellan said.

But Spencer, 21, has been providing the impetus in Toronto's resurgence, playing on a line with Norm Ullman and Ron Ellis. He has been a delight to Leaf management, not only with his aggressive play but his stickhandling.

"We knew Spencer could play like this," said McLellan. "He would have been with the club from the start except for the knee injury suffered at a hockey school. . . ."

He feels that Harrison, Spencer and MacMillan give Toronto aggressiveness on all lines.

"If you look at the successful clubs, you'll see they all have tough wingers. Look at Boston with (Ken) Hodge, (Wayne) Cashman and (John) McKenzie. Now, I think we can hold our own with any team."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was sharply lower in light mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials dropped .28 to 170.99, base metals .35 to 89.08 and western oils .40 to 187.89. Golds rose .45 to 166.99.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 661,000 shares, compared with 457,000 at the same time Monday.

Losses outnumbered gains 116 to 72 with 183 issues unchanged.

Weakest sectors were banks, communication, merchandising and steels.

Fourteen of the exchange's 17 sub-groups were lower.

Among declining stocks, Bell was down ¾ to $43¼, Royal Trust ¼ to 25¾, Canada and Dominion Sugar ¼ to 32¼, Petrofina ¼ to $16¾, Sicloo ¼ to $25¾, Rio Algom ¼ to $16¼, Northgate 15 cents to $8.25 and Total Petr 10 cents to $675.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: To put it crudely, my husband's battery has run down. Is there any way of recharging it? He is only 62, yet he has been impotent for the past six months.

As I am a normal, healthy woman who feels it is natural that man and wife consummate their love by normal sexual activity, I am more than disturbed.

The trouble is that my husband passes it off as a temporary thing. He won't even see a doctor about it. Isn't it likely that the battery will get so run down with disuse that no doctor will be able to help? I'm sorry if I have appeared to be impatient, but I think you will agree it is an important problem — Mrs. B.

Comment: I see what you mean. But let us call it impotence rather than battery trouble — because the problem isn't as simple as a run-down battery. There's not only the physical to consider — but the psychological as well.

We don't really know why some men are undersexed while others are overrated (a problem, too). Why some become impotent in their early years, while others are sexually active in their 70s and 80s.

I believe, as you do, that your husband should take his problem to a doctor, in fairness to himself and to you. Sometimes a man becomes impotent because he has worked so hard he has tired himself completely without the powers of regeneration.

The reason may be so entirely psychological that only a psychiatrist can unravel, but not invariably cure.

Occasionally, administration of testosterone (male sex hormone) will help. Whatever the reason, I believe your husband — for your sake as well as his — should allow a good doctor to investigate. To come back to your description, run-down batteries don't recharge themselves.

• • •

For Miss R.: I do not understand. You say your doctor has given you a "clear bill of health" yet has told you to avoid foods high in cholesterol. He says you "have some cholesterol in your blood."

I suggest that you ask him if your cholesterol is "abnormally high. (Everyone has cholesterol in the blood.) If your cholesterol level is normal, and there is no other evidence of illness, then most doctors would agree that such a person should be entitled to a normal diet without fear of cholesterol.

Double - check on your "clear bill of health."

• • •

For Mrs. U.: Just reached 65 and depressed about it? Shame on you. Consider the following note:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been losing my appetite. I feel fine otherwise. As I am only 81, I can't understand why I don't enjoy eating. Do I need a tonic? — Mr. Y.

He writes "only 81." Are you still depressed at reaching 65, Mrs. U?

• • •

For Mrs. T.: It's not uncommon for young girls to be pale and suffer from a low grade of secondary anemia. Taking iron pills usually solves the problem. But it's possible for boys to be anemic, too. I suggest you have your family doctor take a look at your son.

For Mr. T.: Yes, it's possible to have a high uric acid level in the blood and still not have had any attacks of gout. But your recent attack of kidney stones may tie in with a high uric acid content.

Has your doctor considered putting you on special drugs which are effective in "high uric acid states," and giving you a diet to control your uric acid metabolism?

France's 'Debt' To Be Paid Off By Teaching Team

QUEBEC (CP)—France will pay $500,000 for a plan which will bring about 12 of its language specialists to Quebec to teach employees in industry, finance and commerce how to speak and write better French, a Quebec government official said Monday.

Yves Michaud, provincial commissioner-general in charge of co-operation, said the use of French experts is part of a "crash program" to make French the working language in Quebec.

Mr. Michaud said the cost for the specialists will be about $100 a day but France will pay for their salaries and living expenses.

"France recognizes she has a debt to us," he said in an interview.

"It's time to translate that debt into dollars and cents."

The language experts will visit factories and businesses and prepare vocabularies of business and technical terms, especially in the clothing, electronics and petroleum industries, Mr. Michaud said.

The former Liberal member of the national assembly said the plan represents a move to "less lyrical and more technical and operational" relations between France and Quebec.

About 25 Quebecers, working in teams, have already been sent across the province to lay the groundwork for the experts' visits.

Mr. Michaud said France will ultimately gain if French becomes the working language in Quebec.

"If we fail and end up speaking English here in 50 years, France will also be the loser. ...In a letter sent recently to French President Georges Pompidou, Premier Robert Bourassa thanked France for its "contribution" to Quebec's language program.

"You will have noted the determination of our government to implant French as the working language," the letter said.

"We appreciate the intellectual and financial efforts France brings towards the realization of one of the major objectives of our policy."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

"For December 16

Your birthday today: Adventure, either in person or vicarious, lends excitement this year. Try to keep open spaces around you, choose larger rooms, less populated areas. Relocations achieved now should involve leaving behind (converted to cash, if possible) most of your possessions. Life now is simpler, with fewer but more important issues. Escapist urges have less luck than ever. Today's natives are imaginative, quick-witted long of memory.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Intuition comes in clearly. Start optimistically, accept help gracefully. Purchasing becomes an adventure; begin with long-deferred personal needs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your temptation is to rush out and buy what's handy. Make up your list, think about it. Do not let the day's chores run into the evening as there is something extra then.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): A small windfall for you or somebody you know is indicated. Be in position for luck: make things happen. Early hours are good. Your persuasive powers will be much needed later.

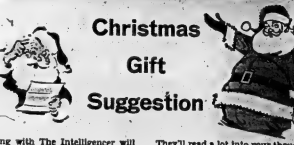
CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Use your mind, pursue business deals seriously. Don't spoil relationships with a crabby mood be nicer than you really feel. Anxious people are abrasive — give them a soft answer.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Buy new clothing, small items for the home. Imagination runs you in a collision course with associates: think twice about what you're doing. Romantic ventures encounter snags.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 — Sept. 23): This should be a rather normal, enjoyable day. Deal with regular work in good humor, co-operate without quibbling. Enlist friends for a lively evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 — Oct. 23): Be alert: a timely word from an old friend can get you back on the track. An open money question can be turned to your advantage with diplomacy and persistence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24—Nov. 21): Your progress is steadier but still somewhat uphill. Quiet determination to excel does succeed eventually. Don't wear out your friends on the way up. Deal gently with loved ones.



SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Give yourself a one-day vacation if feasible. If you must work, start early but quit as soon as you can. Make it a picnic sort of a day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Material matters in a w guide you more surely than ig- ures on paper. You are faced with serious business. Even petty deals set a pattern for the future: think large.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Nobody is going to be easily pleased today, so go ahead with what seems right for you. The more discreet your work, the better for your career. Relax early.

Hey! the Bridge Is Opening

By HARRY MULRALL
Staff Reporter

A bumpy ride through city history reaches the end of the road in Belleville this weekend.

Saturday at 9 a.m., the Dundas Street Bridge spanning the Moira River will be officially opened — a streamlined finish for what has likely been Belleville's longest-delayed civic project.

Drinking and driving may not mix. But Bellevillians are entitled to absolutely insist the new traffic route, They've waited generations for it to become reality.

Unfortunately, while they may blow their horn Saturday morning, they may have to wait a little longer before testing the bridge for themselves.

City hall officials say the bridge — the most crucial phase in an estimated $2,000,000 streamlining of cross-town traffic flows — will not be open to vehicles until next week.

"Such a bridge has been an obvious civic necessity for decades. The automobile made it an imperative of city planning." Cost factors dissuaded city hall from action but inflation only aggravated the problem, finally met head-on in the late 1960s.

A three-phase project linking the bridge to a four-lane overpass at the junction of Highways 2 and 14 was finally approved.

The entire project — its cost to the city set around $543,000, although these figures are still only works estimates — will be finished sometime next spring, when a four-lane roadway ties bridge and overpass.

Until that time, motorists will drive a two-lane strip.

Saturday's ceremonies call for unveiling of a memorial plaque and a brief cavalcade to cross the new bridge.

Curfews Black Out Three Polish Cities

Venus Probe Faulty

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Russia's seventh Venus probe has reached its destination but indications today suggested it had a less successful arrival than its two predecessors of 19 months ago.

Compared with official news coverage of the Venus V and VI, which reached the mystery planet within a day of each other in May, 1969, the reporting here of Tuesday's arrival by Venus VII was in low key.

In a relatively brief message, the official news agency Tass said the ship had reached Venus after a one-month voyage. A descent craft had detached itself and parachuted down towards the planet's scorchingly hot surface, it added.

But Tass did not say the craft had actually landed on the surface, as it did with Venus V and VI. It appeared likely the scientists lost contact with Venus VII during descent and do not know what eventually happened to it.

The factual, scientific information and tone of the Venus VII report also contrasted with details the agency proudly gave last year of how the two previous craft bore pennants with pictures of Lenin to the surface of the closely-shrouded planet.

This did not mean the Soviet Union was claiming soft landings on Venus. Official Soviet reports at the time claimed only that the two craft had made a smooth parachuted descent and without spelling out what happened when they reached the surface.

It also was made clear later that neither succeeded in transmitting information about Venus from the planet's surface.

Today's Chuckle

There must be something feminine about a tree. It does a striptease in the fall, goes with bare limbs all winter, gets a new outfit in the spring, and lives off the sap all summer.

Price Hikes Bring Riots

WARSAW (CP) — Protests against big price increases touched off street battles, arson and looting Monday and Tuesday in the Baltic cities of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot, and it was not known whether order had been restored today.

At least one person was reported killed and more than 150 wounded.

Militiamen were patrolling the cities' streets and the governor of Gdansk broadcast appeals for calm.

All flights from Warsaw to Gdansk were cancelled. Telephone operators refused calls to the area.

The government radio in the northwest Polish city of Szczecin said 150 militiamen had been injured, some seriously, in the fighting that began Monday, and that public buildings had been set afire.

The Swedish consulate in Gdansk reported at least one death.

A nightly curfew between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m. was ordered for the three cities on the west coast of the Bay of Danzig. Public meetings were prohibited at all hours.

In Warsaw, the situation was quiet and there were no more militia about in the streets than usual.

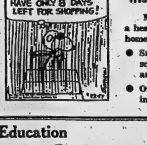
A West German ship captain reported seeing buildings and vehicles on fire in Gdansk and said his ship and all other craft in port were ordered to leave.

Last weekend the Polish government jacked up sharply the price of food and fuel.

The main increases were on meat and meat products, averaging 17.5 per cent. Flour went up 16 per cent, fish 11.7, sugar 14.2 and milk eight per cent.

The price of coke went up 20 per cent and coal between 10 and 14 per cent.

Now Loosen Up There, Barney!



Celia Franca, artistic director of the National Ballet, helps Barney Danson (L-York-North) shape up for his role in the ballet troupe's production of The Nutcracker, opening Wednesday at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa. Mr. Danson, other politicians and Ottawa journalists will perform as extras in the Christmas production. Have You Got Your Card Yet?

OTTAWA (CP) — About one million Christmas cards so far this year have being mailed free by members of parliament, officials estimated Tuesday.

Another million are being sent out, postage paid, by MPs.

The total from Parliament Hill is easily a record. The previous high, last year, was 1.5 million.

MPs are entitled to send mail free. About half of them use this privilege to mail Christmas cards free. But the other half would rather put postage on their cards. The latter group has been growing steadily in number in recent years.

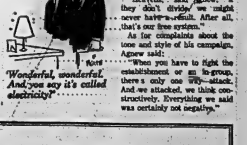
Agnew Defends Campaign Plan

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew defied his Republican critics and said Tuesday night the only way to win an election is to divide the voters, and the only way to campaign against entrenched politicians is to attack.

A Republican governor, Tom McCall of Oregon, who has called Agnew a "hatchet man," termed the vice-president's remarks "that rotten, bigoted little speech."

Agnew invited Republican governors to debate politics with him today at a private breakfast session, and to persuade him. If they can, that the administration erred in its 1970 election campaign strategy.

But the vice-president said he is convinced there was no mistake in his campaign course.



At a dinner Tuesday night which was to have ended the Republican governors' conference, Agnew made a heated defence of his campaigning.

"During Campaign '70 we divided along traditional adversary lines, and that's our free system," Agnew said. "You know, nothing was more unreasonable to me than the cries of 'Mr. Vice President, you're dividing the country.' What is an election if it's not an attempt to divide the voters of the country between two or three candidates who may be seeking an office"

"Heavens," said Agnew, "if they don't divide, we might never have a result. After all, that's our free system."

As for complaints about the tone and style of his campaign, Agnew said:

"When you have to fight the establishment, or an in-group, there's only one way—attack. And we attacked, we think constructively. Everything we said was certainly not negative."

Research Before Education

Population Growth Control Must Start with A Better Pill

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The key to solving the problem of over - population and pollution will be found in the hands of medical researchers — when they find a "good, reliable, innocuous method of birth control".

Belleville obstetrician Dr. James R. Birchard told an audience at Centennial Secondary School last night that no field of medicine has advanced less than birth control.

"Solve this problem and population growth will solve itself," he said at the symposium called by, Zero Population Growth, an organization devoted to halting the accelerating increase in world population.

About 125 people filled the lecture room at Centennial for the first public meeting of the new organization. Its president, Dr. R. E. Bellamy, told them that Zero Population Growth may be a way to avoid zero population.

As a preliminary to the discussion, Dr. Paul Erlich, founder of ZPG, was heard on a tape recording presenting his thesis that if the world population explosion continues unabated, mankind will shortly consume all the world's natural resources, and so pollute the environment that this planet will be unable to support human life.

Speaking three years ago, he estimated that man has 900 years left, but recent revision in statistics predict that the world's supply of coal, oil and gas will be exhausted in about 30 years, and the pressure of overpopulation will be felt in catastrophic events about the year 2,000.

A panel of four local men and moderator Dr. P. S. Corbet, director of the Research Institute here, discussed the implications of the population explosion and the means of halting it.

Members of the panel were Donald M. Soutter, managing editor of The Intelligencer and city alderman, Dr. Birchard, Dr. John R. Coleman, biologist at the Glenora Fisheries Research Station and James Clarke, vice - president of Wilson Concrete products and chairman of Hastings county board of education.

Dr. Birchard told his listeners that "there is no doubt The Pill is losing its popularity". He noted that intra - uterine devices have a failure rate of 1 in 20 and sterilization is still not widely accepted, although 10 times more female sterilizations will be done this year than last in Belleville.

Abortion, he said, poses a moral problem for doctors, who are dedicated to the preservation of life. Although Belleville General Hospital has an abortion committee, composed of three general practitioners, abortion on demand is not available here.

The reasons are medical reluctance and the fear that abortion on demand here would "swamp the hospital beds".

"The ideal contraceptive would be a drug, inexpensive, with no side effects that could be put into salt, instead of iodine," Dr. Birchard said.

"People would have to apply for permission to use an antidote when they wanted children. This is the type of birth control that underdeveloped countries will buy."

But Mr. Soutter disagreed. "A dictatorial government will buy this, but the people won't," he said. "The spine-

Snowmobilers Propose Their Own Restrictions

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Bay Snow Riders Club organized recently by a local group of snowmobilers has forwarded a code of ethics in effort to curb town residents' complaints of noise and property damage.

More than 30 families or approximately 100 persons have joined the new club which sprang from the Picton Snowmobile Association organized informally last winter.

Club members met earlier this week to discuss recent complaints against snowmobilers operating their machines on town streets.

Councillor Harry Abram, who is a member of the Snow Riders, reported yesterday that the club agreed to set a 20 - mile - an - hour speed limit for snowmobiles being operated in Picton. It was decided that each club member should always follow the most direct route from his home to the town limits each time he plans a snowmobile trip. All members were urged to return home before 11 p.m., if possible, to avoid disturbing town residents. It was also pointed out that snowmobilers should operate their machines with consideration and stay off neighborhood lawns.

Mr. Abram noted that the Snow Riders hope to discourage snowmobiling at Picton fairgrounds except during scheduled meets when the track is patrolled for public safety. He mentioned also that the fairgrounds is located near Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital and the sound of snowmobiles in operation could become a noise nuisance. Mr. Abram added that most snowmobilers ride in town in the early part of the winter season before enough snow for good riding has covered country trails.

One of the Snow Riders' main objectives is to encourage group outings over cross-country trails ridden with permission from property owners. Club membership is open to all snowmobile enthusiasts agreeing to follow the Snow Riders' code of ethics. All snowmobilers in the club have decided to co-operate in taking the licence numbers of snow machines being improperly operated in town and reporting them.

Mr. Abram commented that snowmobiling is "a lot of fun" and observed that it would be unfortunate if a minority group of thoughtless persons spoiled the sport for others. He remarked that many snowmobilers who have not invested in trailers for their machines would be unable to ride them if a town bylaw banning their use in Picton should be passed.

Although he is a member of the Snow Riders Club and a strong supporter of snowmobiling Mr. Abram said that he would not oppose a prohibitive bylaw if snowmobilers persisted in annoying town residents needlessly this winter. "If council sets that people are trying to organize their sport I think they (council) will go along with it," remarked the councillor.

President of the Picton Bay Snow Riders Club Vincent Gentile stated, "Proper governing of snowmobiles, preferably on a voluntary basis, will allow us to continue to enjoy this sport. There are ample trails and fields to run snowmobiles without creating a nuisance on town streets or disturbing the peace at late hours."

PUC Farewell

Hydro Offer Unacceptable

TRENTON (Staff) — Ontario Hydro proposes to make use of the power lines and meters currently used by the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to feed the Domtar Paper plant with power.

However, the PUC is not ready to accept the terms offered by Hydro that include a payment of $473 a month for use of the line and $3,681 for purchase of the metering system.

It was announced at the commission meeting Nov. 18 that Domtar had been lost as one of the Trenton PUC's largest customers because Ontario Hydro would give the firm cheaper rates. Domtar will be buying power from Ontario Hydro at a rate lower than the PUC can purchase it.

At yesterday's meeting of the commission, Doug Manlowe, the PUC secretary-treasurer estimated that "it would cost Ontario Hydro $60,000 to build a new line" to replace the one owned by the PUC and serving Domtar.

He explained that the bid of $473 a month for using the PUC line represents a profit of $183 monthly to the commission. The balance represents compensation to the Trenton Utilities for losses incurred through serving the plant.

(To give Domtar the rate offered by Hydro the PUC would be operating at a loss.)

Commissioners discussed the possibility of removing their metering system from the Domtar buildings rather than selling it to Ontario Hydro. However, it was pointed out that there is nowhere else it could be used.

Furthermore, PUC manager Jim Page said the 40,000-volt line and the Domtar plant would have to be closed down for a couple of days to take out the meters.

"We are not ready to accept the price for the line or for the meters," PUC chairman a n Cliff Baker concluded.

Flyer Caught in Middle

A Peterborough tourist operator who has had something of a monopoly in ferrying fishermen into an isolated lake on Crown property in Grimsthorpe township is n o w have his privileges curtailed.

Moira River Conservation Authority Chairman Graham Bell told a general meeting of his body yesterday that the Peterborough man flew fishermen into Lingham Lake which is situated on Crown property leased to the Authority.

He said Kenneth Wyatt flew fishermen, many of them American, into the lake at $40 a head and then charged $10 per day for the use of a camp set up on one of the islands in the lake.

Bass fishing on the lake is considered among the best in the province but no roads lead to the lake and the only way to get in is by air.

The authority chairman said the Department of Lands and Forests was checking on the legality of the fishing camp operation.

Discussion on the Lingham Lake operation arose with the reading of a letter from lands and forests at Tweed referring to the current low level of the lake which it was said could endanger fish and wildlife.

Lingham Lake is a man-made body of water formed by the construction of a dam on the upper reaches of Black River, which flows into the Moira.

The dam was originally built by the Ontario public works department in the mid-twenties, but was taken over by the authority about 12 years ago as a measure to improve summer flow.

At that time the lake, of more than 2,000 acres extent, was drained to allow installation of a gate valve and during the past summer was again lowered to allow installation of new stop logs.

With the draining of the lake 18 years ago, the fish kill was severe and the recent letter from lands and forests at Tweed suggests beaver, muskrat and other wildlife could be endangered by this year's lowering of the lake.

But Mr. Bell said there was no reason for alarm about the safety of fish and wildlife in the lake.

Under agreement with lands and forests, the authority has permission to lower the lake to the 11-foot level and, according to Mr. Bell, the lake has never been allowed to go below this level.

Authority secretary James McLeod emphasized that the purpose of the authority was to conserve wildlife, not destroy it.

Repairs to the dam had been necessary to maintain the lake and these could not be carried out without lowering the lake level.

Several youths last night foiled an unidentified man in his attempt to snatch a purse belonging to Mrs. Florence Fry of 130 George Street.

The incident occurred on Victoria Ave., east of William St., shortly before 8 p.m.

Her firm grip on the purse, plus the appearance of the young people, scared off the would-be snatch-er.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie this morning released a description of a five foot white male, 125-150 pounds, medium-dark, short hair, at the time wearing a dark windbreaker and park pants.

Retirement Requested

TRENTON (Staff) — Jim Page, manager of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, requested at yesterday's commission meeting that he be granted an early retirement "for health reasons".

Mr. Page, who has served the PUC since 1958, asked that he be allowed to retire by December 31. He was due to retire March 31, 1977. Commissioners gave tentative approval to the retirement bid. However, the terms and conditions of his retirement were not defined because a precedent will be set in the agreement.

"It has never happened before" Mayor Duncan McDonald said, adding that all town employees must be treated the same. The town and commission will determine the settlement within the next two weeks.

Population Panel

Research Must Be First

shilling connotation that the race is heading for extinction frightens people. The biologists' hard line view of the matter is not getting the idea across — that people are propagating at a rate that is suicidal."

He suggested that political action is the only method of approaching the goal of zero population growth.

Dr. Coleman said the problem is dual — a high population density and an advanced technology.

"We are responsible for every bit of muck thrown into our waters because people demand industry to provide jobs and to produce what we want," he asserted.

Mr. Clarke suggested that nothing less than a complete change in social attitudes was necessary to preserve the race.

"We have a chamber of commerce attitude that we must grow, that big is good, that we need more industry, more people and bigger families," he told the audience. "Baby bonuses are ridiculous — politicians will have to find it expedient to remove them.

"We will have to undergo a complete switch in mores," he continued. "We will have to come out in favor of sex, but against motherhood. This (the perfection of birth control techniques) is one place where technology can save us, instead of driving us into further trouble."

He said that a program of birth control instruction in secondary schools would meet with opposition and probably result in cancelling the gains made with the introduction of a sex education program two years ago.

He said the place for cultivating a climate of acceptance was in kindergarten and the first three grades of primary school.

"By secondary school age it is too late," he asserted.

Dr. Coleman suggested that the "greedy nations" are already feeling the squeeze of high population density in other parts of the world and low productivity in other parts of the world.

"Russian and Japanese fishing trawlers are off our coasts because their people need protein," he said. "The crunch is coming, when our fishermen tell our government to get them out. Do we fire on the trawlers or say, yes, we think you should have been there all along on moral grounds?"

Mr. Soutter was asked what role the news media are willing to play in bringing the population problem before the people.

He replied that the newspaper's primary role is to inform.

"It is not to be used as a means of propaganda to promote an idea, no matter how admirable that idea is to you or to the publisher," he said.

Dr. Coleman remarked that newspapers have an obligation to bring zero-population to public attention, "or they will have no readers left to buy them."

But Mr. Clarke answered a charge of "buck-passing" from a member of the audience by saying that "the media will report what people are interested in".

Charges from the audience that underdeveloped countries must be persuaded to cut their birth rate were put into perspective by Enos David.

"India is doing more than we are in birth control and sterilization," he said. "We have an incentive for having big families, with the fourth largest country in the world and lots of room for expansion. But every person in North America uses up 30 times as much of the world's resources as a person in an underdeveloped country."

Mr. Soutter said he was at a loss to determine the advantages of growing smaller to western civilizations. He'd say would, he remarked, have to develop a hardened military stand to protect themselves from the intrusion of people who were not practicing a rigid system of birth control.

"The problem is to persuade other civilizations to follow a population stabilization program without thinking it a communist plot," commented Dr. Corbet.

Mr. Clarke suggested that Western countries should practise population stabilization and ration relief aid and supplies unless recipient countries instituted population controls.

W. J. Mungrove raised the question of the philosophy behind population curbs, and the sacredness of human life.

"You have no compunction about eliminating a potential human being, but you maintain many who shouldn't be here," he said. "Where do we cut people off?"

"Before they are born," replied Dr. Coleman.

Developer Sits Tight

TRENTON (Staff) — Developer Wasil Sidor refuses to pay his share of the cost of a six-inch water main servicing Westmount Park, Public Utilities Commissioners were told yesterday.

The town engaged a private contractor to install a main along McGill Street from Flim Street to Parkside Drive two years ago. Under the terms of a 1961 subdivider's agreement, Sidor must pay 50 per cent of the cost.

Sidor's share of the installation bill is $1,929 but "he argues that the price is too high, that he could have done it cheaper himself," PUC manager Jim Page said.

"We spent hours with him and talked in circles," the commission's secretary-treasurer Doug Manlowe said.

Water mains throughout Westmount Park were built by Sidor himself but "he will not turn them over to the town," Mr. Page explained.

One proposal made by the developer is that he pay his share of the McGill Street main under the condition that the commission guarantee in writing there is no other developer be allowed to connect into the line.

Settling the matter was left to newly elected PUC commissioners who take over in January.

The commission has been trying to come to a solution with Mrs. Sidor . . . a fresh approach by a new commission may be the answer," commission chairman Cliff Baker said.

Changed Times

A Sunday school class of 22 teenage girls of the congregation of Trinity United Church, Napanee, is shown in the 100th anniversary edition of The Napanee Beaver and one must reflect with concern that such a class is likely rare if it exists at all, in our modern society.

The picture was taken around 1900 and it may be that some at least of those young women are among our regular church goers today. But the fact is that the congregations of 1970 do not attract large numbers of young people. Rather they consist largely of adults, the middle-aged and elderly. That is not to say there are no young people at all in our churches today, only that they are much fewer in number than in times past.

It is a very different world of course, in which we live. Nevertheless the eternal truths remain and it may be that as they mature young people who attend infrequently, if at all, will subsequently find in their religion the inspiration they may claim it lacks now.

The young of course still impress in many ways. In the same issue of The Beaver there is a lengthy and closely-researched article on how the people of Lennox and Addington managed during the depression. It was written by Mrs. Freda Crake (now a student at Queen's University) while attending Napanee district secondary school.

She tells of winters with too little fuel and farmers who gave away home produce that they could not sell and did not have room for in the cellar. Here is a citizen who worked at Strathcona for 15 cents an hour, another who paid a man 50 cents a day to plow his fields, and there was the fellow who got 30 cents an hour for himself and a team to plow the roads.

"All the time I listened," observed Mrs. Crake, "I had the feeling these men were proud of having faced the hardships and survived. One fellow said, 'I can't tell you how I felt because you had to be there to know. Times were hard, real hard.' "

And there is no doubting that. They are still hard for some today, the pensioners and the poor. And there are among the young some who either cannot find work or do not want to work; and they live on welfare or in the peculiar unemployment way that some effect today. But there are still others — and they are in the majority — young people like Mrs. Crake, in whose hands Canada will remain strong and a good place to live.

Crime in the U.S.

NBC's program on The Besieged Majority — a documentary on the rising rate of urban crime in the United States — was a frightening statement on American society today, and one which unhappily is all too true.

The scene was Philadelphia but it could have been any one of a number of major U.S. cities. These are communities of fear, where businessmen and the affluent live in an increasing protects store fronts at night, and suburban homes are veritable fortresses.

For all the padlocks, alarms and other protective devices, breaking and entering, assaults and homicides still occur. Among those interviewed was a European-born architect and his attractive wife, a singer. Their home had been burgled three times now, in addition to numerous locks and bars on doors and windows the architect has a gun. For all that, and because of the loss of freedom (many people are now afraid to leave their own homes after dark or even walk the streets by day) and because of the fear of fire, this couple are thinking of leaving the country.

And who can blame them? They could come to Canada, as more Americans are doing. Canada is not crime-free, but it does not have a population of 200 million and we are far from the frenzied atmosphere that pervades urban America today. So we have the FLQ, but for the moment at least it seems to be under control. In the States meanwhile, there is a general sense of fear. Not only do there the assaults on individuals, but buildings and plants have been bombed, the most recent an oil refinery in New Jersey. Behind it all is the growing menace of the "urban guerrilla" and the Weathermen and the like, young disadvantaged people who seem to feel they have nothing to lose by attacking the symbols of the establishment.

As the architect put it, there is violence elsewhere, Latin America for example, but at least there is some reason for it, political or personal. Some of the volatile national temperament, but in America, he said, criminals will kill for no reason at all. For some it is simply a way of life which the authorities seem powerless to stop. And it is a warning to this country to be selective in its immigration policy. We cannot afford the steady entry of undesirables which in part at least lies at the core of America's domestic problems today.

Is Canada Today A One-man Show?

Pierre Trudeau, Parliament and the Opposition

Orillia Packet and Times

"Why man, he doth bestride the narrow world like a Colossus, and we petty men

Walk under his huge legs, and peep about."

To find ourselves diabonorable graves."

Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar."

Never in history has Canada experienced anything quite like the personal dominance of Prime Minister Trudeau over both a faceless administration and a docile parliament. This singularly gifted, brilliant and autocratic man has inaugurated a degree of personal rule that has made a joke of our democratic premonitions and institutions, and he is abetted in this by a supine opposition which provides the background of drab anonymity against which this prime minister's mercurial personality shines all the brighter.

Whatever Mr. Stanfield's abilities and qualities, his personal magnetism is something less than dazzling, and bits and lack of personal presence is aggravated by an innate reasonableness and courtesy which, however attractive as individual traits, are hardly conducive to a fiery and aggressive parliamentary opposition. In a word, Mr. Stanfield as a parliamentarian is dull, and the party he heads in the house is so fractious and divided as to be a negligible force in opposition to the Trudeau steam-roller. There is in Ottawa today no credible alternative to the Trudeau government and it is this situation, rather than any arbitrary edict of the Trudeau administration, that poses the greatest threat to Canadian freedom.

For all history has shown that the best interests of a free society are incompatible with the rule of one man, be he never so brilliant and well-intentioned. Whatever its short-term advantages in efficiency, in the long run the one man system which operates so well in primitive tribal societies is incapable of retaining the liberties which free men claim as their birthright. A civilized society has a right to claim to be, in better served by a parliamentary governing process evolved through the experience of a thousand years than by any autocratic rule, however inspired. For all its seeming fun-

Status of Women Report Still Relevant

Ottawa Journal

There is much to approve in the content, in the calm, deliberate tone and lucid exposition of facts and opinion in the Report of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women. The report is a masterpiece of condensation, so crammed with information and so sweeping in scope that the length of time required to bring it forth is now almost understandable. Moreover, women's lib and all, it has not been overtaken by events; the issues it aired agonizingly relevant.

The commission's work should be approached with some humility, especially by males. The report is too complex to be either uncritically praised or dismissed. Its recommendations, after all, number 167, and Heaven is its place. It would be a weekkneed, bland Royal Commission if some of those recommendations did not cause profound disagreement. This report is so far from being bland that four of the seven commissioners found reasons to record their dissent from some majority recommendations.

The systematic and thorough searching out of inequities experienced by women in the work force, in education, under the law and, yes, in the family, is the most useful part of the commission's work. The documentation of discrimination is irrefutable, whether deliberate or an unthinking perpetuation of male prejudices in the line of Lord Chesterfield's comment: "Women are to be talked to at below men, and above children." The commission has supplied enough material for amendments to legislation to keep MPs and MLAs busy thinking about women for a dozen sessions.

We have doubts . . . about abortion on demand, about $40 a month per child in family allowances, about too extensive a development of day care centres. Essential as they are in some cases their indiscriminate use could be not only too costly, but not altogether a blessing to women, children or the fundamental concept of the place of the family in the nation.

But we may be wrong to react so quickly. The quality of research and work in this report entitle it to slow and careful judgment by public and government.

Meeting locally for the first time since requisitioning of cheese for overseas shipments was lifted, the Belleville Cheese Board Tuesday night saw a total of 811 cheese offered by local factories. All colored, the cheese sold for 29 3-16th cents per pound.

A meeting of St. Andrew's United WMS was held at the home of Mrs. F. Balcanquel on Wednesday with an attendance of 19. The president, Mrs. F. Unknown to the laymen, railroad men and officials are detecting time and efforts that are unheralded and unsung and unheard in the roar of traffic and increasing demand for their abilities. In Belleville, one of the most important divisional centres in Ontario, railway maintenance employment has nearly doubled in some departments. One hundred and five men, an increase of 100 per cent, are now employed in the rail saw department. Other branches have increased in proportion. Belleville is the service centre for large numbers of the "iron horses" and cars that roar daily across a continent.

They Got Off Lightly

Ottawa Journal

Last Christmas day a car crowded with 10 persons went out of control trying to leave a Queensway exit and crashed against a light standard. Evidence in the case showed that the car was travelling about 115 miles an hour as it approached the cutoff. A frontseat passenger leaned down and according to testimony, pushed the gas pedal to the floor with his hand.

The driver said that passenger were charged with dangerous driving.

In giving sentence recently Judge Keith Flanagan said: "On this day of joy . . . you turned an instrument of pleasure into an instrument of death. You snuffed out the lives of two parents (passengers in the car) and made orphans of their children."

He then passed these sentences: three months in jail and suspension of driving privileges for two years.

The judge said that no sentence he could have imposed would be more punishing than if he memorary the two men must live with. Yet heavier jail terms are given for theft.

With the increasing speed and number of vehicles on our streets and roads it seems the time has come to reassess the range of penalties for dangerous driving.

Cold Comfort

Heating at the Arena

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We think the Mohawk fans deserve a logical explanation of why the arena heaters are either not in operation or disgracefully misused.

Last Tuesday December 8 the heaters were on only to cool during the first period. It turned cold and uncomfortable during the last two periods in the absence of the heat. This was not the first occurrence.

The minor hockey people who benefited from the heat of four or five heaters last year are suffering in the same manner.

We suggest that the arena "heating department" regulate the heat throughout the whole of the hockey games.

Perhaps in a comfortable atmosphere more fans would then be encouraged to come and support the Belleville Mohawks and the Minor hockey teams.

Snowmobiles and the Public

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

It is with much interest that I note that city council is taking action with regard to the operation of snowmobiles within the city of Belleville. This will be a much needed bylaw and most other cities of importance already have restrictions.

The operators of these machines within the city seem to have an utter disregard for people and property. Many are using them on the city sidewalks and it is a wonder that someone has not been killed or maimed by now. Also some are using the city streets for raceways and as a playground for snowmobiling. I trust the council will consider these two aspects when drawing up their bylaw. Snowmobiles should certainly be restricted to city road use only (not the sidewalks) when going to or drive to or from the country or destination by the most running up and down the street).

It would appear that the government and private enterprise have set up many snowmobile runs and there is no excuse for drivers not using them. It is good to note also that council is considering "nuisance" bylaws for snowmobiles as these machines are here to stay and operators have no regard for those who wish to obtain a night's sleep.

Snowmobiles have their place, but not in the city. It amazes me that the Board of Education allows the operation of these machines on the school property (any school property). Children and adults alike use many of these school grounds for walking through and to include the use of these grounds for snowmobiles is inviting disaster sooner or later. But I suppose it will take a serious accident to happen before the Board of Education takes action to prohibit them. I think even any snowmobiler will admit that snowmobiles were not intended for the city.

Stanfield Plugs Single Theme

Government Seen as 'Arrogant–Uncaring About People'

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) —Conservatives in opposition have worked best toward electoral success when they accused the Liberals of "arrogance and rule by self-avowed divine right.'

This contention helped John Diefenbaker win the prime ministership in 1957 after the Liberals used parliamentary closure the previous year to drive through their pipeline plans.

It is not surprising therefore that Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield is moving into 1971, the year before election year, emphasising his assertion of Liberal arrogance.

He will likely continue to beat away at this theme even though the Liberals yanked one prop from under his argument by withdrawing under opposition and public pressure, the bill to limit the powers of the auditor-general.

Mr. Stanfield, in attempting to illustrate his argument that there is a strong authoritarian trend and "Big Brother manipulation" in the Trudeau government, is citing:

—The Oct. 16 proclamation of the War Measures Act;

—The successor Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act;

—The bill to establish national marketing boards without producer representation on them;

—The program taking prairie land out of production;

—The farm income stabilization program;

—The government's refusal to increase the salary of Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson or of his 28 senior officers;

—Information Canada.

—Private Minister Trudeau's quick rejection of some policies advocated by last month's Liberal policy convention, including an independent review board to oversee administration of the public order law.

Speaking in French at Montreal a week ago, Mr. Stanfield said the federal government by rumor arrogantly tried to destroy the reputation of leading Quebecers who disagreed with it on the handling of the terrorist situation.

He accused Jean Marchand, regional economic expansion minister, of paternalism in his dealings with Quebec.

Information Canada, he said, was created as an instrument of Liberal propaganda.

But the greatest Liberal arrogance was its economic policy: a brutal blind and inexcusable imposition of unemployment on a means to fight inflation.

At Harperville, Ont., Nov. 21, Mr. Stanfield said the main qualities of the Trudeau government are arrogance and blind complacency.

These could be seen in the government's "inactivity" on unemployment, economic growth urban affairs, farm policy and natural resources.

"This government's attitude is cold and it is arrogant," the Conservative leader said.

"It does not care about people."

Snowmobile Clinic Thursday Night

TRENTON (Staff) — A snowmobile safety program will be held at the Masonic Hall here Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Featured will be a film on the proper operation of snowmobiles and a discussion on new laws and old ones affecting operators of the machines.

Conducting the session will be Const. Roy Miller of the Trenton Police Department who points out that many individuals do not know that by improperly using a snowmobile, one may be charged under various laws, including the criminal code and the liquor control act.

"They are becoming the curse of many police departments . . . people say we are picking on them," the constable said.

There are 119,000 snowmobiles in Ontario, he explained, and there were 93 fatalities involving them last year alone.

A snowmobile operator himself, Miller deplores the fact that snowmobilers chase animals "run them over and leave them to die."

"Trees and bushes are being destroyed too," he says, adding that people should be educated on the law regarding snow vehicles.

"Impaired and reckless driving charges" may be levied against operators, he explains. Those participating in Thursday's safety session will be briefed on the law and given helpful safety tips.

The snowmobile safety program is sponsored jointly by the police department and the Trenton Rotary Club.

Rotary president Ian Darling says the program is prompted, in part, by the possibility that use of snowmobiles may be banned in Trenton, a prospect he does not like.

He says that his family cannot get to sleep until snowmobilers leave his street in the evening but still believes they are valuable features of the town recreational scene.

Mr. Darling proposes that a safety course may become a kind of credential for their use in the town and that insurance firms may give deductions to those who participate. The Trenton Rotary Club is embarking on a long term program of snowmobile safety, he says.

McFarland Stays Mum

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. J. McFarland this week continues to withhold further information concerning the reported purchase of Pinecrest Aircraft Camp Picton holdings by a Halifax Company, Lock Bay Holdings. Mr. McFarland earlier told the press that the property sale has been completed but refused to give any details concerning the transaction. He has stated that he will host a dinner meeting of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce members, town and county officials and members of the press after January 1 to reveal details of the land purchase and an outline of future development plans. Mayor McFarland has refused to comment on his relationship to Loch Bay Holdings.

Driveway Is OK — If

Shell Oil will be allowed to have a driveway connecting its proposed North Front Street gas bar and car wash with the new Quinte Mall — but only on condition.

The condition, is that the driveway be suitably signed for one way exit traffic and also with a commitment from the company that it be closed if at some time in the future it creates a traffic problem.

The above recommendation will be forwarded to city council by the traffic and light committee.

In making the request for a conceiling driveway between their gas station and the new Quinte Mall, a Shell Oil representative Monday felt no traffic problem would result.

But committee - members were not so sure.

They felt that shoppers from the Quinte Mall might use the gas bar exit as a short cut when other exits were busy.

Sidney Building Is Up for Year

Although the year has not yet ended, Reeve Jack Bush stated Tuesday night that Sidney Township has experienced an unprecedented year of building expansion.

To date, 208 permits have been issued for a total value of $2,253,032, with $4,058,500 being the value of the Bayside Secondary School permit issued in October.

For the same period last year, 261 permits with a building value of $5,796,431 were issued, including $2.7 million for the Loyalist College permit.

Township officials reported Wednesday morning that three more permits have already been issued, and year-end will find the permit values even further ahead.

Predictions for 1971 include the Zellers' shopping centre on Loyalist-Wallbridge Road.

Board's Hiring Policy Questioned

Who should appoint new principals in Hastings county schools and should the appointees be "home - grown products" or personnel recruited from outside the county.

Trustees occupied themselves with the question Monday night, now considered at present wording of the policy on principals is ambiguous and must be clarified.

The issue arose from notification of the appointment of a new principal to V. P. Carswell elementary school in Trenton to replace the former principal, now coordinator of outdoor education for the county. The new principal, who will take up his duties in January, comes from Scarborough.

"We have spent two years growing our own product," commented Mrs. Miriam Graham, in asking why someone trained in the county school system was not appointed to the position.

Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Trenton added that she would have preferred to see someone from the county system appointed.

"We can't encourage our

Proposals To Be Studied

PICTON (Staff) — A letter, signed by G. Waldrum, supervisor of the Department of Education, has informed Prince Edward School Board trustees that department members will willingly study the board's proposals (to consolidate and update elementary school facilities in the Ameliasburg area).

The letter came in reply to a complaint received by the vice - principals to move up if we don't give them appointments," she said.

Superintendent L. F. Reid told the board that to get the best man for the job "you have to advertise provincially."

"This is the desire of the vice - principals themselves," he said. "They want to pit their qualifications against those of the rest of the province to see how they stack up."

Associate superintendent Glen Watson added that administration had to go outside the county to find two principals for north Hastings schools, because no one in the system would move north.

Macdonald Smith of Belleville objected to the manner in which the new principal was appointed. He said his understanding was that the administration recommends the candidate for the job, but the board appoints.

Director of education Eric Runacres said the intent of the policy was to give academic officials the power to appoint all personnel from the level of principals down. Hiring of all personnel senior to principals is the prerogative of the board.

The board, he noted, determines the number and type of positions to be filled, but leaves it up to the superintendents and associate superintendents to recruit the personnel needed.

Ralph Weaver of Trenton supported this system, commenting that he feels trustees are not qualified to hire principals or teachers.

At the suggestion of Donald Williams of Stirling, the policy will be discussed and procedure clarified.

Succulent Roast Beef

Succulent slices of sirloin tip of beef have minimum of fat. Mary Moore roasted an eight-pounder and before it was gone had served twenty.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Preparation in Cooking Roast

By MARY MOORE

For months I have been planning to roast a sirloin tip of beef for the benefit of readers who call it their favorite cut and write for my advice on time and temperature.

By coincidence, when I arrived in Kingston, where I was minding my four grandchildren, Marianne had exactly what I had in mind — an 8-lb. sirloin tip. She had bought it to serve for a dinner for nine. I immediately took possession of that roast for it was one o'clock and dinner was arranged for 6:30.

The roast is a thing of the past for it is three days later and it served generous meals to 21. Since it cost 99 cents per pound, during the current discount war, that worked out to 37½ cents per serving.

Before I go into the time and temperature I used I must remind you that a sirloin tip, to be sure it is tender, must be from red brand beef and should be well hung — preferably 21 days. So you have to deal with a butcher who knows his business and knows that you know what you want.

SIRLOIN TIP ROAST OF BEEF

One 8-lb. sirloin tip of beef
Coating:
1 tbsp. vinegar
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. paprika
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. MSG
½ tsp. dry mustard
½ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. curry powder
½ tsp. nutmeg or allspice

In a small bowl mix together all coating ingredients and with your finger tips rub into all fat and upper surfaces of beef. Place meat on rack in roaster and roast, uncovered, without any water, at 250 deg. Fahr. for 5 hrs.

This turned out to be what the average beef eater would call "well done". I would like it to have been pinker but with sirloin tip you cannot take chances on undercooking.

To make gravy, remove roast to preheated platter and hold in warming oven. Tip off all but 6 tbsps. of fat. This is tedious to do for you must retain all of the lovely dark pan juices. Add enough water to pan juice to make it up to 3 cups.

In a small pot blend the fat with 6 tbsps. flour and ½ tsp. salt and then stir in the pan juice and water until thick. If it should, by mischance, be lumpy, give it a good twist with your rotary beater. Serve in preheated gravy boat.

Because the entertaining momentum increases as Christmas draws ever closer I think you will welcome this, for a good carver, with a razor sharp carving knife can serve 20 people from it.

A Precious Gem from A Source of Irritation

By DORIS CLARK

Today I looked at a pearl, and I thought again how the pearl is made to cover the irritation or injury of the oyster. It seemed a miracle that so fine a gem could be born of so small a thing as irritation or of so hurtful a thing as grief.

I wondered, "The grain of sand in the oyster's shell becomes a pearl rather than a grievous sore. Can it be that Thou will take the day's irritations — the grains of sand that get into my mind, even these things that hurt deeply — and make them into pearls?" — Author Unknown.

Dear Doris: There is a very nice elderly gentleman living next door to us. He is 72 and never once have I heard him speak a word out of place.

We have a new neighbor now, who has five children, but she is a malicious gossip. She is saying that the old gentleman is making passes at her when her husband is not at home.

This is hard to believe as several of us on this block have been in and out of his house for years and never once has he made a mismove. The old man is embarrassed and almost ashamed to stick his nose out the door. — Indignant.

Dear Indignant: She sounds a little unbalanced to me. If there is nothing whatever to the rumor there is no need for the old gentleman to be ashamed to face anyone. People will find her out sooner or later.

For one thing, if she likes to imagine that men are interested in her, she'll doubtless start talking about other men as well.

And she can't make accusations like this without being ready to face up to them. Your neighbor might be well advised to have a lawyer send her a warning letter. She could be sued for such talk.

Dear Doris: There's a girl I date occasionally but we have agreed not to go steady because we are both only 16. Just the same, she often gives people the idea that I am her property, simply by the way she acts when we are out together, or at school. When I try to get away from her, she chases me.

Now I like her a lot and I don't like to be rude to anybody or hurt anybody's feelings. How can I possibly get it across to her that I do not belong to her or to anybody but myself? — Besieged.

Dear Besieged: A confrontation is the thing — a quiet one. Next date you have, take her for coffee after the show or arrange to sit some place quietly where you can talk. Discuss your age, your good sense (and hers) in just going steady, and the fact that she, as well as you, is free to play the field. Point out that it gives everybody the wrong impression if she acts possessive.

Husband's Snoring Music to Her Ears

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've read several letters in your column from women who are miserable because their husbands snore. Please let me tell my story. It might help.

For years I was annoyed because my husband would snore. At times I got so mad I jabbed him with an elbow or nudged him in the back with a knee. One night I was awakened suddenly by a crash of thunder. It was so quiet in the house you could have heard a pin drop. My husband was still and silent. Not only was there no snoring — there was no breathing. I was frightened out of my wits.

ANN LANDERS: A thousand thoughts rushed through my mind. I was sure he had a heart attack and died. Just as I reached over to touch him he took a deep breath and started to snore again. Ever since that night I have ceased to be irritated by his snoring. In fact, it's music to my ears — HUNTINGDON, Pa.

DEAR HUN: What a sweet story. Thanks for sharing!

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell parents never to leave a child locked in a car because it is convenient. I would like to recite three incidents which I witnessed this past summer.

A family from out of state left a child in a locked car while they enjoyed a tourist attraction. The temperature had risen to nearly 100 degrees. Inside the car it was at least twenty degrees hotter. The child was virtually "cooked." She died a few hours later.

The following week, as I was driving home, the car ahead of me stopped suddenly to avoid hitting a youngster who was toddling across the street. (He was wearing only a diaper.) I got out of my car to help the astonished driver rescue the child from the busy traffic. His mother came running towards us, hysterical. She had left the boy in a parked car while she went to make a telephone call. He had managed to get out — somehow."

Several days later a family vacationing at a lake resort left a three-year-old boy in a station wagon. The child pulled the brake and the car rolled down the hill into the lake. The boy's father saw it just in time to grab a rock, break the rear window of the car and pull the child out — seconds before the car sank in 40 feet of water.

While two of these three incidents had happy endings, hundreds of children are killed or seriously injured because their parents were thoughtless. Do what you can to help these youngsters stay alive. Thanks. — J.W.H., RAPID CITY, S.D.

DEAR J.W.H.: I'm printing your letter and that should help. Thanks for writing. I'd like to add that even though the incidents you related were summer-type, similar hazards exist in the winter as well.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "If you children don't settle down and behave yourselves, we'll just skip the Christmas gifts this year. I won't have time to get things ready for Christmas if you keep acting up."

Mother: "If you both will pitch in and help me tidy up the house, we'll have time to sort out the ornaments for the tree before dinner, Johnnie, you put the toys away and Jimmy can dust the living room."

The holiday season can be exhausting, but don't let yourself be trapped into making threats you wouldn't possibly carry out. Instead, enlist the children's help to ease the pressure on you. They will enjoy a part in the Christmas preparations.

Study Guild Deals with 'World's Great Madonnas'

As explained a year ago at the significance of artistic interpretations of the Madonna was the gift brought to members of the Belleville Women's Study Guild by Miss Olive Elson and Mrs. H. R. Gibson in their program "Some of the World's Great Madonnas", at the December meeting.

Guild president, Mrs. J. A. Buchanan welcomed the members to the home of Mrs. E. A. Fleming on Monday evening, and hostesses were Mrs. G. E. Mayhew, Mrs. H. R. Meldrum, and Mrs. H. C. Wylie.

During the meditation, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds read the traditional Gospel account of the Nativity, followed by selections from the writings of Dr. Fred Tremmel, the Swiss physician who explores psychiatry and its relation to Christian faith. The suggestion that the "too easy gift" is demoralizing, that the products of modern science with which we have surrounded our young people are to them only colorless tinsel around life, that a sense of wonder and gratitude is being lost to an expectation of all things as a natural right" — brought members to the central theme of the story of Christ who gave and gives the gift, not of just the "good" of his own person. The only real giving is of self.

To introduce the evening's program, Miss Elson showed a picture of what is thought to be perhaps the world's oldest Madonna. It was done in a hot wax technique on wooden panels in the fourth or fifth century, and is said to have been found in a church in Rome under a cavern, or in the catacombs of Rome. The first pictures of the Madonna were by early Christian followers who had spread to different parts of the Roman Empire, and the Madonna became the favorite subject of religious art over the centuries.

At least 12 mystic symbols included in many such works of art apply to the Virgin only, while others apply to both the Mother and Child. The sun and the moon, and stars, the first of these symbols, find their inspiration in the Book of Revelations.

"A woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of 12 stars", and symbolize radiance. The star, often painted in front of the veil, or on the right shoulder, reminds one that "star of the sea." Is one interpretation of Mary's Jewish name, Miriam.

Pictures printed by Brueghel, and Mexican artists including a halo of 12 stars, and lilies make one think of purity, and remind all of the "lily of the valleys" of the Songs of Solomon. Here too one reads of the "Rose of Sharon", and roses, doves and crowns are often associated with the Madonna.

The historical Madonna was shown in a closed tunic of red, with long sleeves, covered with a blue mantle, and with veiled head. Later Mary was portrayed with long hair, and without the veil. German artists gave her luxurious blonde curled hair, and Spanish and Italian painters showed dark hair.

Devotional pictures exchanged the simple historical dress for the splendor of embroidered and jewelled garb. Many versions of the Madonna created through the centuries — some familiar such as those of Raphael, and some not so familiar, were shown to draw attention to the symbols.

Mrs. Gibson gave the definition of the word "Madonna", as "My Lady", noting that there are 362 different artistic versions, not including the unknown ones. When the church became a power in the realm, its relationship to art had to be considered. Churches as we know them were something new with Christianity. They had to be room for congregations, and the interiors of these new edifices had to be suitably decorated, but with statues, which had represented paganism.

Pope Gregory overcame what was an allied aversion to paintings by decreeing that they told the Gospel story simply for those who were unable to read. De Vinci's "Virgin of the Rocks", which hangs in the Louvre, Botticelli's "Madonna With Pomegranate", which is still in its original frame, the "Madonna of Mercy", the "Alba Madonna", and many more, were displayed in prints. And then more modern Madonnas, Chinese, Japanese, African style, Rosetsen's beautifully simple Madonna pondering the Child, "The Brown Madonna" of the Americas, Fritz Reiss, dedicating her firstborn to become a savior of his race in spite of the prejudice he will have to face. The picture of De Madonna in bone lace exquisitely worked by Greta Sandberg of Malmo, Sweden. And finally, pictures of the small, simple carvings of the Mother and Child by Oshawetsuk of Cape Dorset.

In bringing the presentation to its close, Miss Elson gave expression to the thoughts which the evening had stirred in the group when she said that the great masterpieces of Madonnas around the world bear eloquent testimony to the universal appeal of the Madonna, and Her Son to men and women of every class, race, culture and condition the world around. Without hesitation they support the doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and help to teach everyone that as men and women everywhere come increasingly to believe in their hearts and practice in their outward relationships and contacts the truth that "God hath made of one blood all the races of men that dwell upon the earth", we shall have peace.

The January Study Guild meeting will welcome Dr. Bellamy, who is scheduled to speak on a topic of current interest — "Zero Population Growth".

Manor Auxiliary Holds Yule Meet

A Christmas meeting of the Hastings Manor Auxiliary was held in the home library on Monday evening when the president Mrs. D. Maclean opened the meeting by reading a favorite poem.

During business a number of reports were given including reports from the conveners of the coffee and tuck shops. It was noted that carnations were sent to four residents in hospital. A report was also given on the Christmas bingo which was held on Dec. 8. This event was well attended and the prizes for the games were contributed by the Holloway Street UCW. In November the Auxiliary had provided a bus so that members could attend the bazaar at Centennial Manor in Bancroft.

Following the regular meeting a birthday party was held in the dining room with Mrs. Hurley and Mrs. Copeland pouring tea. At this time also a number of Christmas carols were sung. Pictures were taken of the oldest guests in attendance and these included: Mrs. B. Ross, Mrs. S. Pattison and William Vandervoort.

UK Conservatives Win Second Round But Third Upcoming

LONDON (CP) — The Conservative government has won a pair of victories over its unions-and-wage policies but is immediately confronted with more problems on Britain's troubled labor front.

Prime Minister Heath, before flying to Ottawa Tuesday night for a meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, saw his revolutionary industrial relations bill safely through second reading in the Commons with an unexpectedly high majority of 44.

Earlier this week, he and Employment Minister Robert Carr achieved a backdown from 123,000 workers of the state-owned electricity system whose slowdown had put the country under a series of blackouts for more than a week.

Trying to hold the line against "inflationary" wage demands, the ministers got the electrical men to end their work-to-rule Monday and settle for a government-appointed court of inquiry.

But as the second reading debate on industrial relations concluded Tuesday night and approval came on a vote of 334 to 290, the government was faced with new wage demands that would far outstrip the 19 per cent that it hopes to set as the approximate limit.

The National Union of Railwaymen put in a 25-per-cent claim for its 192,000 members on the state-run railways which would cost £95 million (£237.5 million) a year and make substantial fare increases inevitable.

Two smaller rail unions totalling 180,000 members also asked for "substantial" raises without naming figures.

In the electricity industry, where powerhouse workers caused the blackouts, union leaders of 20,000 white collar workers let it be known they were drawing up a claim for increases expected to run between 25 and 30 per cent. This will be submitted Jan. 13.

Tuesday the government turned down the biggest demand yet—8½ per cent—on behalf of 1,000 national health service technicians who operate delicate equipment in brain, heart and ear departments of hospitals. The low-paid technicians are considering a strike.

On still another front, 43,000 employees of the country's nationalized airports were engaged in a work-to-rule that began Monday in support of a claim for a seven-per-cent cost-of-living bonus plus a further "substantial" wage increase. They had rejected 4½ per cent.

Some flights were cancelled Tuesday and the state-owned British Overseas Airways Corp. had delays of up to 11 hours.

In the Commons the government, which has an over-all majority of 30 over the combined opposition, was jubilant at roping in the support of all six Liberals for its industrial relations bill and seeing a split in Harold Wilson's Labor party over it.

Ray Gunter, minister of labor under Wilson until he walked out of the cabinet in 1966, and former navy minister Christopher Mayhew, defied a "three-line whip" (an order to vote with the party) and abstained.

Mayhew said in the House the Labor party, which itself had tried and failed to put through a strike-curbing bill last year, did no good by "wild partisan denunciation" of the Tory measure.

Gunter, a former union official and now a member of the Labor party's national executive, in an earlier interview had called it "hypocrisy" to denounce the measure before taken.

Bed Pushers Attempt To Set New Record

HALIFAX (CP) — Sixteen Dalhousie University students left Halifax for Sydney, N.W., Tuesday, four of them pushing a hospital bed.

Working in relays of three hours each, the bed-pushers hope to cover the 265 miles to the Cape Breton Island city by Sunday noon. There will be some detours to add extra mileage to beat a 305-mile bed-pushing stunt performed by Acadia University students in the winter of 1960.

The Acadia group, from Wolfville, N.S., claimed a world record for their performance.

Basque Verdicts Due Tomorrow

MADRID (Reuter) — Verdicts on 16 Basque nationalists, six of whom face possible death sentences following their trial by a military court in Burgos, are expected to be announced Thursday, defence lawyers said.

The six men for whom the death sentence has been demanded are charged with having planned or carried out the murder of Inspector Melitor Manzanas, a secret police chief in San Sebastian, in August, 1968.

If any are sentenced to death and the sentences are confirmed by the commander of the Burgos divisional region and are not commuted by Head of State Gen. Francisco Franco, executions would be carried out by firing squad in Burgos, possibly as soon as Saturday.

The other accused, including two priests, face charges of subversion, terrorism, rebellion, illegal possession of firearms and other charges. The prosecution has asked for a total of 734 years imprisonment for the 16 accused.

A meeting of Franco's cabinet is scheduled for Friday and Franco can commute death sentences to 30-year prison terms.

Gen Sebastian, where a full-scale state of emergency was imposed 11 days ago and on its surrounding Guipuzcoa province, today was tensely waiting for the court's decision but all is reported quiet.

Meanwhile, police continued the search for the kidnapped West German honorary consul in San Sebastian, Eugen Beihl. The West German embassy in Madrid said it had no news of the consul, abducted Dec. 1 and apparently being held as hostage for the six Burgos prisoners facing possible death sentences.

Newspapers Are Divided On Council

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Do Canadian newspapers endorse the idea of a press council as suggested last week by the Senate committee on the mass media.

There is a sharp division of opinion, judging by the position taken in newspapers' editorial pages across the country.

A survey, by The Canadian Press shows that 13 of 28 papers which have taken definite editorial stands on the proposal favor such a council. The other 13 are opposed. Many others are non-committal in their references.

The survey also included editorial positions on three other major proposals.

It shows six of 22 newspapers taking a definite stand favor a federal government review board on newspaper ownership. The other 16 are opposed.

Eleven of the 21 papers commenting on the proposal agreed with the committee's view that tax write-offs for Canadian companies advertising in the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest should be discontinued.

Nine of 13 commenting papers oppose government subsidization of promising new journals.

Here is the stand of papers which have committed themselves editorially for or against the four proposals:

Falling Food Prices Help Hold Down November Living Costs

TAWA (CP) — Falling prices helped again in November to hold the cost of living in general, despite the usual advance of charges for other goods and services, ...nada.

e November consumer ...x, issued Tuesday ... the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, remained unchanged from October at 126.3 points, still lower than the 128.5 that prevailed through July and August.

The index, a rough guide to price trends based on 100 points for prices in 1961, stood only 2.3 per cent ahead of the reading of 127.4 points in November, 1969.

That was the narrowest percentage advance in consumer prices for any 12-month stretch since the year-to-May, 1965. The annual pace of inflation had been running at five per cent early this year and moderated to a 2.8-per-cent rate through August, September and October.

But the cause of the slacking pace of retail inflation has been an unusual decline in the food-price index, which constitutes more than one-quarter of the all-items consumer index. Other elements, such as housing, maintained a strong rate of increase.

The November food index, at 127.5 points, registered its third straight monthly decline and stood lower than the reading of 128.8 points in November, 1969.

The index indicates that a basketful of food that cost $73.88 in November, 1969, was up to $11.61 at the beginning of this year, $13.19 in August, then down to $12.85 in October and $12.75 last month.

The drop from October was the largest in more than 18 years. The decline since August was almost three times as steep as the average autumn dip in the previous five years.

The bureau attributes the slump in grocery prices mainly to meat, especially pork, but eggs and imported fruit also fell sharply and prices of other products fell by narrower margins.

In the consumer price index, all major components apart from food showed increases in November, although the health-and-personal-care index dipped because of lower toothpaste and tissue prices.

Syria has preached Arab unity, yet has waged a bitter feud with the rival faction of the Baath in Iraq as well as coming to the verge of open war with Jordan and embroiling itself in sporadic economic warfare with Saudi Arabia and Lebanon.

It complained that other front-line states were not playing a full part against Israel. Yet, apart from sporadic air and artillery clashes, the Golan Heights have been the quietest of Israel's battle fronts.

Assad, 42, has a reputation as a disciplinarian. Yet, his public statements since the coup seem to indicate that he will move to modify Syrian policy where he has freedom of action, but that he will act cautiously where changes in deep-rooted Syrian attitudes are called for.

He lost no time in taking his country into the planned federation. He has also been quick to encourage merchants to expand the commerce which was once Syria's lifeblood but which has been stunted by bureaucratic restrictions.

On the other hand he shows no signs of haste to patch up differences with his enemies in Jordan and Iraq. Nor has he abandoned Syrian opposition to the idea of peaceful settlement with Israel.

On this point he differs from his three allies in Africa, who have all conformed to the late President Nasser's policy of exploring the paths to peace while arming for what many Arabs still regard as an inevitable fourth round of all-out battle fighting with Israel.

Cairo, however, appears as worried about the disarray of the eastern front against Israel that Syria's attitude on the question of a peaceful settlement is not regarded as a bar to its membership of the federation and of what is now a four-power command against Israel.

Canada Plays Key Role in Setting Law-of-the-Sea Conference

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — In what some countries consider the most important action of this session of the General Assembly, agreement is expected to be reached today on an international conference of the law of the sea in 1973.

Agreement on the conference, which will deal with the vast and complex subject of the seabed and the resources of the sea, their conservation and exploitation, is expected to be reached by the assembly's main political committee.

The committee reached virtual agreement on the conference after hours of behind-the-scenes negotiations to agree to a resolution embodying all the often contradictory thoughts of many countries.

There was some debate late Tuesday on some of the subjects to be discussed by the conference. But basically it will deal with creation of an international region to govern the exploitation of the seabed, the territorial limits of coastal states, conservation of the resources of the sea and pollution.

Canada played a major part in bringing together the various countries with widely-different ideas on the almost bewildering subject. Behind-the-scenes meetings went into the late hours of Monday under the chairmanship of A. J. Bensley, head of the external affairs legal office.

The differences of opinion are vast. Canada's unilateral action in proclaiming the 12-mile territorial limit off its coast has come under indirect criticism from some of its friends. More direct criticism has been made of the hundreds-of-miles-wide territorial limits proclaimed by some Latin Americans and Africans.

At the same time the Soviet Union, while showing an easier attitude toward an international regime than in the past, is still suspicious of the idea, which it says could infringe on its sovereign rights.

But virtually everybody here agrees that after two weeks of debate that there is general agreement that a law of the sea conference must be held in the near future to regulate a situation that is virtually out of international control.

And that, say many observers, may be the most important thing to come out of the 25th anniversary celebration meeting of the General Assembly.

They say that technology is advancing at such a rate that highly developed countries can move far out to sea to develop the resources of the seabed.

Unless there is international regulation there will be a claim ing race that could lead to international conflict.

The Soviet Union's suspicion of the international regime was reflected in its abstention along with the rest of the Soviet bloc of a declaration of principles on development of the ocean floor.

This calls, among other things, for creation of such a regime.

It also gives approval to the principle of Canada's 100 mile pollution zone in the Arctic.

The Soviet Union said that it did not consider itself bound by the approval of the declaration. But Western observers were not too concerned about that, feeling that the major bargaining on matters of the seabed still is in the future.

Under the declaration, the riches of the seabed—which are considered to be vast—will be used for the benefit of all man kind.

The declaration was approved by a vote of 90 for, none against and 11 abstentions.

Licence Tester Guilty

KITCHENER (CP) — A former Ontario driving-licence examiner who demanded money from two applicants during their road tests pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of fraud.

Alden Carl Godin, 32, of Moorefield, Ont., was remanded in custody to Jan. 8 for sentence.

At the start of a jury trial Monday, Godin entered a not-guilty plea to three counts of fraud but pleaded guilty to two of the counts Tuesday after the court ruled a tape recording could be admitted as evidence. The court did not proceed with the third count.

The tape was made by a driving instructor who placed a recorder in a car to be used in one of the tests to gather information which might be useful in assisting candidates. He said he was perplexed because some were passing while others were not.

When he learned from the tape that Godin had asked for money, he notified the head of the school who in turn gave the tape to the provincial department of transport.

Godin received a total of $45 from the two applicants who had only a limited understanding of English and handed over the money without question.

30-per-Cent Wage Hike Ratified

TORONTO (CP) — A three year agreement that provides a 30-per cent boost and wage parity between male and female workers has been ratified by 2,000 employees of Swift Canadian Co. Ltd.

The agreement, effective Jan. 4, 1971, covers Swift packing house workers in Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver and Moncton, N.B.

Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union, said the contract could form the basis of a national settlement for 6,000 other employees across Canada who work for Canada Packers Ltd. of Toronto.

Average rate in the industry in January will be $3.85 an hour. Basic increases in the settlement provide for 39 to 44 cents an hour for females Jan. 1 and, on the same date, 29 cents for males.

Additional increases to skilled trades, of up to 13 cents an hour, become effective April 3, 1971. In April, 1972, all rates are increased by a further 27 cents an hour with the final increase to all employees of 28 cents taking effect in April, 1973.

Female workers will get an average 40 cents more an hour immediately, bringing their average wage into parity with male workers.

'Not Health Hazard'

Tests Show One-fifth of Canned Tuna Above Mercury Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration says Americans can keep on eating canned tuna although excess mercury has been found in more than one out of every five cans tested.

Mercury taken into the body can cause brain damage, leading to blindness, insanity and death.

Should U.S. consumers continue to buy all the canned tuna they want and feed it to their families?

"Absolutely," said FDA Commissioner Charles Edwards. "This is not a health hazard."

Edwards's advice to consumers came as he disclosed government test results showing 19 per cent of canned tuna tested so far contained poisonous mercury higher than the FDA limit of 0.5 parts a million. The most found was 1.12, or twice the government limit.

Industry now is recalling 811,000 cans with excess mercury after a check of 132 tuna lots.

FDA officials believe virtually every major tuna brand will be involved in recalls as soon as sampling is expanded during the next 30 days to include all 30,000 lots packed in 1970 for U.S. consumption.

Edwards said the 0.5 guideline is extremely cautious and "offers a substantial margin for safety."

"I want to re-emphasize the point that given present levels of tuna consumption in this country, the relatively low levels of excess mercury content found-to date, and the fact that even this excess is being removed, we are confident that the American consumer is now and will remain safe from risks of mercury poisoning," he said.

Dr. Albert Kolbye, deputy director of the FDA's bureau of foods, said a person would have to eat two cans of tuna containing mercury a day for a year before he would be poisoned.

Japan is the only country where mercury poisoning from fish consumption has been reported. The Japanese eat more fish than North Americans and the mercury level causing harm was 15 to 30 times the U.S. limit, Edwards said.

The tuna findings are the first major confirmed ones in the United States involving mercury contamination of ocean fish. High mercury levels have been reported previously in fresh water fish exposed to industrial mercury discharges.

In another mercury development, federal and state investigators said Tuesday that mercury levels in fish taken from four specific water areas in Minnesota are high enough to pose potential danger to humans.

The investigators said fish taken from the waters should be eaten no more than once a week.

The four areas are the St. Louis River from Cloquet to Lake Superior, the Mississippi River from Grand Rapids to Anoka, the Red River from Moorhead to the Canadian border and Lake Minnewaska near Glenwood.

Fish taken from 13 other lakes and rivers showed no high mercury concentrations.

College Shortage Is Seen

TORONTO (CP) — The Committee of Presidents of Universities of Ontario says that in five years the provincial university system will be short 30,000 places.

But one of the men on whose figures the presidents base their estimate says he now thinks his projection of enrolment is high.

The presidents, in a brief Tuesday to the province's advisory committee on university affairs, say projections made in 1968 for the Economic Council of Canada forsee 202,700 students in Ontario universities and teachers' colleges by the end of 1975.

Dr. D. C. Williams, president of the University of Western Ontario and chairman of the presidents' committee, said at a news conference Tuesday the universities' estimates of their capacity in 1975 fall 30,000 short of that figure.

But Z. E. Zeigmond, chief of the projection section of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' education division, said in an interview later the projection of 202,700 students was based on assumptions that the 1968 economic boom would continue and that the number of jobs for persons with MA and PhD degrees would expand.

5,000 Men Will Stay In Europe

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Donald S. Macdonald told the Commons Tuesday that the strength of Canada's forces in Europe would remain at 5,000 men during 1971.

He denied a suggestion from former prime minister John Diefenbaker that the government had decided to reduce the force to 2,500, but had been dissuaded at the recent meeting in Brussels of the 15-member North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The government completed its troop reduction in Europe from 10,000 to 5,000 men this fall.

He was answering George Hees (PCPrince Edward Hastings), who asked what the reaction had been to the "gratuitous advice from the new boy."

Mr. Macdonald assumed the defence portfolio in September, replacing Leo Cadieux, now ambassador to France.

Yukons Sold

OTTAWA (CP) — Crown Assets Disposal Corp. has sold two Canadian military Yukon transport planes for between $250,000 and $400,000 each, officials said Tuesday. One was sold to International Aerodyne of Miami, Fla., and the other to Trans-American Airways of Montevideo, Uruguay.

Polluters Said Robbing Children

TORONTO (CP) — A carwash firm and a metal plant, fined a maximum $200 Tuesday for discharging unlawful waste which ended up in Lake Ontario, were accused by a judge of robbing children of their right to clean water.

The operators of the carwash, Garrison Age Holding Co. Ltd., of 4 m 1 1 1 1 1 1 discharging waste containing 16 times the amount of suspended solids allowed by a city bylaw.

Magna Electronics Corp. Ltd. also pleaded guilty to breaching the bylaw.

Prosecutor Martin Keiso said rinse water from the company's anodizers containing acids and alkalies were discharged into a storm-sewer system emptying into the lake.

Judge Robert Dolepen, recalling that as a child he could swim in the Don River and Lake Ontario, said he regarded polluters as "stealing our children's birthright."

Whole World Celebrates Beethoven's Birthday

(A Tribunary Comment on the 200th Anniversary of the Birth of the World's Greatest Composer)

By EUGENE LANG

Dateline: Bonn, Germany, December 16th, 1770 — Herr Johann and Frau Maria Magdalena Beethoven (nee Keverich) are happy to announce the birth of their son Ludwig at No. 36 Bonngasse.

Dateline: The World, December 16th, 1970 — People of all creeds, colors and nations join in celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Ludwig van Beethoven universally acknowledged as perhaps the greatest composer of all time.

To the musical world this has been the Beethoven Year. 12 months of honoring the man who has been so aptly called the Colossus of Composers and who has been worshipped as the "saviour of music".

Major symphony orchestras around the globe have been giving special Beethoven series of concerts; leading musical soloists have been devoting whole recitals to his works; record companies have vied with one another in launching scores of new discs featuring his vast output, known and unknown; orchestras in radio stations far and wide have incorporated his works in programming; many Beethoven special broadcasts; book publishers have issued new biographies and colorful pictorial extravaganzas dealing with his life and times; conductors, both musical and nonmusical have brought out numerous articles and essays on this master composer; and the weekend inserts in newspapers have jumped on the bandwagon in their coverage of this bicentennial of his birth. And, to top it all, certain that you'll be inside the Top Thirty on radio and TV, Yes, Mimol Rice was listed on the charts in his next version of the Ode to Joy from the Ninth Symphony in a hit tune called A Song of Joy.

Writers' Favorite

In a recent edition of the Schwann Long Playing Record Catalogue, the number of listings of Beethoven recordings fils 14 tightly cramped columns. If you were to check in the British Museum for a book on Beethoven, his thirty catalogue shows no less than 36 columns simply listing the books on and about him. In biographical material on this man only Shakespeare and Napoleon outdo him.

Other composers have had their ups and downs in regard to popularity of their music.

Wagner was taboo in both world wars. Mozart was only a textbook entry until recently. Berlioz on the musical scene was a rarity. Practically dormant until the last decade, but Beethoven has reigned supreme without any faltering from his time to the present. Why? This we shall look into later and attempt to assess as best we can.

How can we briefly describe this man, place him in his rightful niche in the evolution of Western Music, list the high lights of his achievements in the realm of music, talk about his private life rightly in this seventieth decade of the 20th century? Two famous phrases from other tongues might best be applied in his case: from the Latin "He came, he saw, he suffered, he died" and from the Latin "He came, he saw, he conquered".

First phrase first. He was born in the typical small German city of Bonn upon whose banks the storied River Rhine has lapped those times immemorial. It was his fate to have the twin borders of poverty and misery enmesh his childhood years, his father being addicted to drink and his mother subjected to continual fits of melancholia. For all mankind though, it might have been a stroke of luck that he was the "offspring of a drunkard's widow" (his mother having been married before) and a poor drunken singer whose forbears had Flemish liberty coursing through their veins. He had a conventional musical training in his home town, playing the piano in public as early as seven and at 11 was appointed to the post of Assistant Court Organist. He visited Vienna when 17 and played before Mozart (who said "one day he will give the world something to talk about"). He went back to Bonn, stayed there till he was 22 and then moved to Vienna, this time permanently.

Vienna at this time (1792) could be considered the musical capital of Europe. Paris sharing those honors. His previous as a pianist gained him instruction from none less than a group of aristocratic music lovers, whom he objectively referred to as "Vienna princely rabble"—to more or less subsidize him and to act as his patrons. Although class distinction was rigorously adhered to, Beethoven was accepted in these princely palaces because he was recognized by the Austrian nobility for his keyboard wizardry and his very evident compositional genius.

Let us take a look at him as the Viennese saw him at this time. The most unprepossessing of men; he was short in stature, with a pockmarked, ugly, rugged face, topped by a mane of unmanageable black hair. His eyes were particularly cold, looking down over a stubby nose that formed a pable over his protruding front teeth. This ungainly face of a blacksmith's journeyman-collection was held up by a short thick neck. He walked with a coarse gait and exhibited an overall morose countenance. The grotesqueness of face was a gargoyle for the genius developed one of the great minds of history, and contained within the cranial contours a brain from which poured forth music the like of which the world had never heard before nor since.

His manners were unpolished and vulgar, his sense of humor brusque and rude. He used others as jesters for further his own gains and ambitions, not caring whom he treed upon, as long as his own aims were met. The least impinged affront would bring forth invective of the most vituperation to the suspected culprit. Seldom did he admit error — except where usually to blame. Add to this, especially in his later years, mercenary greed and a complete lack of trust in his business dealings. He was an unscrupulous bargainer in transactions with his publishers, verging on fraud in today's terminology.

On the opposite side of the coin he was a kind and generous man, always helping others. After one of his periodic outbursts, remorse set in (another inspiration gave way to contrition. He was, of necessity a lonely man, the reasons for which we shall see presently. This loneliness engulfed him for the last twenty-five years of his life — a life of deafness.

Deafness Strikes

The first signs of it loss of hearing developed during his late twenties, which perhaps sealed him into his confining cocoon of a sense of complete isolation from the human man and thus aggravated his unwholesome traits more manifestly. But this was a tragic enough for any mortal, but disastrously so for one whose whole life was oriented in the realm of tones. And of all people, the greatest composer of his age — and any age.

But this loss of hearing proved a blessing because he now left the world of the visual virtuoso (remember he was the finest pianist of his age) and delved ever deeper into the sanctuary of the probing prophet that this great virgin darkness forced upon him. The music of outer compulsion that characterized his earlier works now succumbed to that feeling of inner compulsion that crept inexorably into his writings from his early thirties on. Formerly, music of the past now metamorphosed into the avocular music of the future — as Wagner said "it will please — for a later age."

He suffered: besides the dreaded deafness he was prey to untold physical pain and discomfort. Primary afflictions were indigestion, ulcers, bouts of rheumatism, diarrhea, skin troubles, probably gonorrhea and finally jaundice and liver disorders that hastened his death. Is it any wonder he had no time to be pleasant and genial?

Now to the Latin phrase of earthier paragraph: All musicians of the day, especially pianists carried their bag of magical tricks, consisting of digital dazzling with acrobatics on the keys instead of the light wire. Any pianist worth his salt displayed his notoriety with his exploitation of his specialty with the result that concerts carpetbaggers were variation virtuosos were a dime a dozen. Their servetypes "academicists" (recitals) were more for the eye than the ear. Beethoven changed all this in that he was one of the first masters of the art of improvisation, (that is to make music extemporaneously), his fecundity of imagination reaching new heights in an unsuspected facility of creation. In this dwindling skill he found new meaning and reached out to pathfind fresh horizons. When this "raptus" overtook him he was like one not of this world, as his hearers in dumbfounded bewilderment admitted. Here he came and he conquered.

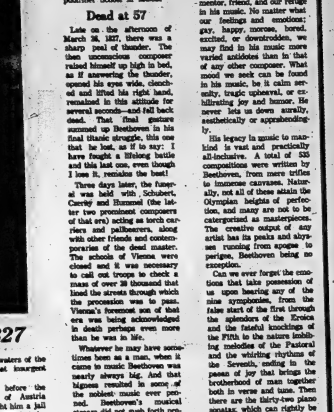
And in one context of that word "conquered" he also comes on stage but man's ever present protagonist. Woman. In this aspect of the human drama he was like all men. During his adult years Beethoven was continually falling in and out of love, usually with unsuitable women or than he. His conquests were legion, but they yielded him less satisfaction than bitterness. He was so conspicuous of his freakish appearance that unrequitedness simply did not have the stamina to be seen publicly with him. He was in need of female ardor, but this was denied him so that his sporadic cravings of marriage were beyond his grasp. In his later years his amorous relations became more painful and he finally retraced his steps into the world of his youth, a lonely bachelor plagued by ill health, eccentricities and dejection through advancing age. His loss in this respect is our gain, as his greatest music was written in the final years of alien insularity.



His one great true love that enveloped his whole life was the love of nature. He spent many a summer strolling through the wooded groves and hillocks that surround Vienna, often receiving profound inspiration from his silent communication with boar, claw, fin and foliage. The Pastoral Symphony was a direct outcome of such meanderings with nature. Two of his quotes will satisfy all doubters on this point: "I love a tree more than a man" ber morels of a low degree, than he applied to the courts for full guardianship over the nine-year-old boy. The legal wrangles over who was to look after the young lad kept Beethoven in and out of the courts for five years, this added burden occupying the composer to such a degree that composition during these years was sparse as compared to earlier periods.

During these years Beethoven was in continual conflict with landlords and servants, all these which he collectively called "liars", and "rascals" and "swindlers", as he distrusted these types so vehemently that he would, in a rage, throw dishes, crockery at them, whether it be in his own apartment or in a restaurant. By the way, Beethoven could not have been the easiest tenant to get along with as he moved, or was forced to move no less than 34 times in the last dozen years of his life — an average of once a year.

A Con Man

Endless correspondence with various publishers kept him alive in a state of petulance and anger. His pleading for more money was constant as were his heretical harangues against for wrong doings that were foisted upon him by these so-called "scoundrels". But the truth of the matter was that Beethoven himself was not above a bit of business wheeling-dealing. He would promise new compositions to three or four publishers, receiving an advance from each one, and then when the composition was finished it would be handed over to another publishing house, which also would have lined the composer's pockets. Thus, he would receive fees from publishers who never were recipients of his scores and to whom Beethoven had no intention of refunding their retainers. In three respects he was at times just one step ahead of the bailiff or process' servit, but if they did catch up with him he had this dirty trick (unconsciously) he was the wronged one, the unsuspecting composer who had been duped. History knows that Beethoven himself was a first class con man.

Eccentricities abound throughout his life. An example: He was with the celebrated German poet Johann von Goethe one day when the Imperial Carriage came along containing the Emperor and Empress of Austria. Goethe, like everyone else, bowed as the royal couple passed. Beethoven refused to do so, saying to Goethe, "They must give way to us, not we to them." He then rammed his hat lower down on his head and went his surly way. But strange to say, the Imperial Party courteously, divided his skeleton fixation on his work table. He spent his last days reading scores of music by Handel, who he admired over any other composer.

Franz Schubert, who was to be dead within a year, visited the dying man in the last week of Beethoven's life. He signed the coffin lid in his will in a faltering hand four days before his death. The long death struggle set in on March 24th and lasted two days. The powerful frame and still undamaged lungs fought in the last, but it was to no avail. Almost uninterrupted delirium filled his last day. His last words were "pity, pity — too late!", referring to some bottles of wine that arrived from his publisher Schott in Mainz.

Dead at 57

Late on the afternoon of March 26, 1827, there was a sharp peal of thunder. The then unconscious composer raised himself up high in bed, as if answering the thunder, opened his eyes wide, clenched and lifted his right hand, remained in this attitude for several seconds—and fell back dead. This final gesture summed up Beethoven in his final titanic struggle, this one that he lost, as if to say: I have fought a lifelong battle and this last one, even though I lose it, remains the best!

Three days later, the funeral was held with, Schubert, Czerky and Hummel (the latter two prominent composers of that era) acting as torch-bearers and pallbearers, along with other friends and contemporaries of the dead master. The schools of Vienna were closed and it was necessary to call out troops to check a mass of over 20 thousand that lined the streets through which the procession was to pass. Vienna's foremost son of that era was being acknowledged in death perhaps even more than he was in life.

Whatever he may have sometimes been as a man, when it came to music Beethoven was nearly always kind. And that leonine resulted in some of the noblest music ever penned. Beethoven's musical stream did not gush forth profusely as did Mozart's. At times his manuscripts were born with severe labor pains. His sketch books (of which about 50 exist) show that he wrote, rejected, struggled, revised, scratched out, recast, deliberated, and exhausted his themes and material in a superhuman effort to get the finished product was as good as the human spirit backed by unbounded genius could make it. From his creative crucible there poured forth those mighty scions of music that created in his thought process the music of dramatic contrasts, the music of the overwhelming struggle, the dramatic delvings of the sporadic magnum opus Fidelio and least of all, the Master's favorite — The Missa Solemnis in D Major with its celestial sublimities and musical grandeur. Scores of minor pieces also have not dimmed in our memories — the songs, smaller pieces, concertos, chamber declations, incidental music, Viennese dances of Prussian Landler (robust country dances) of peasant's earthiness. We could go on, and on, and on.

Let this irascible, vain, greedy, ugly, and cantankerous egotistical, suspicious, litigeramental genius sum up for us his realization of his music: — "I have no fear for my music: — it can meet no evil fate. He who fully understands my music must thereby go free of all the misery which others bear about with them." As to its place in history again we quote the same whose deafness forbade him to hear what we can enjoy so fully today. "I will please some day." In either assessment we can do no better — as indeed Beethoven has said the last word.

Such a man is not for one creed, one color, one nation, one era, but for all men for all time. His musical bequests are his testament to his immortality and universality. Well might he be described as a "gift from nature to the whole world."

HAPPY TWO HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY. — LUDWIG!

Not A Split Decision

Quebec City boxer Fernand Marcotte's determination to come out on top against his opponent Jack Clements (left) in Quebec City Monday night showed not only in the outcome but also the state of Marcotte's trunks. Marcotte won the 10-round bout by unanimous decision giving him eight straight victories since the begining of his professional career.

Kurtenback Leads Canucks to Win

Hot Hall Stymies North Stars

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A change of scenery appears to have restored new bloom to the careers of at least two National Hockey League players.

Bill Sutherland, who started the week with Philadelphia Flyers, was traded to St. Louis and his batsman a power-play specialist with the Blues.

He scored twice while the Blues held a man advantage Tuesday night in a 2-1 victory over Minnesota North Stars.

Orland Kurtenbach was used primarily as a defensive forward with New York Rangers and Boston Bruins.

With Vancouver Canucks, however, he's their leader and scoring sparkplug. Tuesday night his 13th goal of the season gave the Canucks a 3-2 win over Philadelphia.

They were the only two games scheduled but allowed both winners to improve their positions in the standings.

The Blues, with 26 points, are within five of West Division—leading Chicago Black Hawks and 10 points ahead of the Flyers and Minnesota.

The surprising Canucks, in their first season in the NHL, have 23 points and are in fourth place in the East, five points ahead of Detroit Red Wings and only three behind Montreal Canadiens.

Tonight, the Canadiens will have captain Jean Beliveau back in the lineup for their game with the North Stars in Minnesota. Toronto Maple Leafs play the Penguins in Pittsburgh, New York entertains Buffalo Sabres, Los Angeles Kings are at Boston Bruins, Detroit goes against California Golden Seals at Oakland and St. Louis visits Chicago.

St. Louis goaltender Glenn Hall sparkled in victory, turning aside 38 shots while his teammates tested Cesar Maniago just 21 times.

Sutherland, a 26-year-old from Regina who spent most of his pro career in the minor leagues, didn't notch his first goal of the season until mid-November.

His two goals against the North Stars, both from directly in front of Maniago, were his fifth and sixth of the campaign and gave the Blues a 2-0 lead in front of 17,302 St. Louis fans.

Defenceman Tim Reid was serving a minor for hooking when Sutherland deflected Tim Ecclestone's passout home at 2:08 of the first period. Buster Harvey was serving a carry-over minor sentence when Sutherland fought off Minnesota defenceman Fred Barrett to bat the puck in at the 38-second mark of the second period.

Kurtenbach was drafted from New York last June specifically for his leadership qualities on the ice.

Whatever scoring they realized from the former policeman with New York and Boston clubs would reflect even more on Vancouver management's decision to pick up the veteran whose NHL future was questionable after a spinal fusion had limited his career during the two previous seasons.

The Cudworth, Sask.-born centre also assisted on Vancouver's second goal and moved into fifth place in the individual scoring race with 34 points in 32 games.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It looked like a shooting gallery out there," St. Louis Blues coach Al Arbour said after his team nicked Minnesota North Stars 2-1 in Tuesday night's National Hockey League action.

Arbour saw the volleys as those being fired by Minnesota and lodged loud complaints despite the Blues' triumph.

"It's nice to get the two points, and that's about the only thing good about it," Arbour said.

"When they controlled the puck, we were skating around out there all over the ice. I was very disappointed, because it was a game we knew we wanted to win bad and we didn't play well."

Despite an early Blues pace exceeding that of their 1969-70 Western Division NHL championship season, the 33-year-old Arbour saw little to cheer.

"I figure that the last three games we've played have been real bad," he said. "We've got to be more consistent. We've got to play position hockey."

Upsetting to Arbour were the 38 shots with which the North Stars peppered veteran goaltender Glenn Hall to 26 fired by the Blues.

All eyes are on the puck during first period senior hockey action in Kingston Tuesday night. Aces' defenceman Pete Ford keeps a close rein on Belleville Mo-Hawk centre George Godson while goalkeeper Mike Lovett looks on. Godson assisted on three Belleville goals as the Mo-Hawks handed their hosts a 5-0 setback before a Kingston crowd of 1,750.

Mo-Hawks Held All the Aces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

KINGSTON — They knew they couldn't play much worse than they have in the past few weeks. But, for Belleville's senior hockey Mo-Hawks, the question now is can they play any better than they did in whitewashing Kingston Aces 5-0 in their own rink Tuesday night?

"No doubt about it, the best game we've played all year," beamed coach Dave Jones. "We had the dedication tonight. They can't say we stole that win."

Jones, one of two McFarlands (the other is Lionel Bolly) still playing senior hockey for Belleville, was the outstanding Mo-Hawk on the ice, playing a good 40 minutes of the game.

"I'm past the stage where I can play that much," he sighed in the dressing room. "Wonder what it feels like to be in shape."

Jones spearheaded a defensive - minded Mo-Hawk strategy, helping kill off a critical double penalty in the game's early minutes, and opening the scoring with a blistering power - play slapshot from the point at 12.22.

The Mo-Hawks didn't get their first shot at Kingston's Mike Lovett until the 10.38 mark of the opening period, but near - perfect defensive coverage by three makeshift lines and blueliners Bob Wilson, Lou Kanowski, Lionel Bolly and Mike Rexe enabled the visitors to take a 3-0 lead into the dressing room despite being outshot 7-3.

Their usual fast-paced passing game frustrated by tight Mo-Hawk back-checking, the Aces tried to rough up their guests Charlie Convery started a scrap with Lou Kanowski after he knew he had been fingered for high sticking. Convery got seven minutes from referee Blair Graham, Kanowski got five.

Bob Clayton didn't appear too anxious to start scrapping against Les Colligan when the two squared off, and each drew a roughing minor.

Some stand-up blueline hitting by Bob Wilson and Greg Marchen let the Aces know the Mo-Hawks were not about to be intimidated.

The absences of Lorne O'Donnell and Bill Armour forced shuffles which produced such pleasant results Jones said he was considering making them permanent.

He was particularly happy with the performance of a line of centre Gordie Godson and wingers McConnell and Ray Johnston.

Godson, who picked up three assists and skated miles, set up McConnell perfectly on a two-on-one break to give the Mo-Hawks a 2-0 lead in the first period.

McConnell's second goal, the only scoring play of the middle period, came after he beat a Kingston defenceman into the corner for the puck, then bulled his way in front to jam it past Lovett.

The other two forward combinations had Jones between Ralph Plaus and Les Colligan, with Doug Senior centre for Al Ferguson and regular defenceman Greg Marchen. Marchen also saw a lot of ice time, moving back to his regular spot later in the game as well as taking his forward shift.

Although he had only 24 shots to handle — a rarity in a Kingston game—Steve Rexe richly deserved his fourth shutout in three senior hockey seasons.

"Actually, my toughest chance came right off the bat when Graham (Rod) broke right through," the redhead said afterward. Rexe stopped three consecutive shots by Bon Clayton at one juncture in the third period when the Aces were outshooting Belleville 12-7.

Former Aces Les Colligan and Doug Senior rubbed salt in Danny McLeod's wounds with their third-period goals. Senior's finished off a pretty two-man effort he started with Al Ferguson, while Colligan's was a typical effort, banging in Ray Johnston's rebound on a Belleville power-play after picking himself up off the ice from a check.

The Mo-Hawk win was their second in as many games on Kingston ice this season, and their third in four meetings with the Aces who are only one point ahead of Belleville in fourth spot in the OHA Senior A standings.

Betsy Wins Major Title

VAL D'ISERE, France (Reuter) — Betsy Clifford of Ottawa scored her second major international victory when she won the women's special slalom at the Critherium de la Premiere Neige World Cup ski competition here today.

Miss Clifford completed the two legs in 71.83 seconds to beat Florence Steurer of France by 25-100ths of a second.

Miss Clifford, who turned 17 last Oct. 13, was placed fourth after the first leg, more than a full second behind Miss Steurer.

But in a superb second leg the young Canadian clocked almost two seconds faster than the French girl to snatch first place.

Third was Wilfried Drexel of Austria, with Britt Lafforgue of France fourth and Barbara Cochran of the United States fifth.

Miss Clifford was only 14 when she was picked for the Canadian national ski team, the youngest member ever. Strong and determined she has been improving right along and some say this might be her year in the World Cup, an honor that last went to a Canadian when Nancy Greene Raine of Rossland, B.C., won it after the 1968 Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France.

BETSY CLIFFORD

Miss Clifford picked up 25 first-place points today to move right up with the leaders after two World Cup races. Miss Steurer is the leader with 28 points.

Betsy started the season Saturday in the downhill at Bardonecchia, Italy, in the first Cup test but she could do no better than 18th. That race was won by Francoise Macchi of France.

Her victory today was her first big one of the young season, but she is not exactly new to the winner's circle in top-flight competition.

Miss Clifford is a world champion in her own right, having taken the gold medal in the giant slalom last Feb. 14 at Val Gardena, Italy, where the world championships were held. In fact, she was the only Canadian to take home a gold medal.

Argos Join Jackson Quest

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto Argonauts joined British Columbia Lions Tuesday in expressing interest in luring Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson out of retirement.

"I would be in favor of paying whatever would be necessary to get him," said Argo owner John Bassett.

The Lions let it be known last week they would pay $100,000 a season to the former Ottawa Rough Rider is interested in a comeback.

Jackson, 34, played 13 seasons with Ottawa before retiring in 1969. He capped a brilliant career by leading the Riders to Grey Cup wins in his final two seasons.

The Riders have confirmed Jackson's playing rights are up for grabs after learning from Jackson that he will not rejoin Ottawa.

And going to Vancouver fits in with Jackson's plans to attend the University of British Columbia for his master's degree in education.

Jackson himself has said he would be silly not to listen to Vancouver's offer if they get the right to talk to him.

Ottawa general manager Frank Clair, told of Toronto's interest, said he would not rule the Argos out of the picture.

Much depended on coach Jack Gotta, who would have final say on the players the Riders would want in return for Jackson's rights.

Gotta's comment:

"I'm not going to play Santa Claus. If I want a premium player or players in return."

The Riders are faced with a number of retirements from their 1970 team. A deal with Vancouver or Toronto could save some of Gotta's recruiting problems.

For example, he believes he can get halback Jim Young to take over Ronnie Stewart's position in a Vancouver deal.

"Sure we'll have Young as one of the players," said Gotta. "I heard that he was looking to return east."

CSS On Top

Centennial Secondary School wrestlers won decisions over their Quinte and Picton counterparts in a Bay of Quinte contest at Picton last night.

The winners took a 45-13 decision over Quinte and added a 43-18 win over Prince Edward. Quinte took second spot dropping Picton 32-30.

Outstanding wrestlers for the winners were Vic Rabet and Steve Plevak. Dave Penney, Vic Power and Bruce Cairns won both their matches for Quinte, while Pat Forbes was Picton's only double winner.

Hockey's Oldest Amateur

WINNIPEG (CP) — John Jackson finally got his reinstatement from professional to amateur hockey—38 years after he was barred from playing in an amateur league.

Jackson, now 83, played three seasons—1907-1908—with Brandon Maple Leafs of the now-defunct Manitoba Professional League. When the league folded in 1910 he returned home to Winnipeg but was refused entry into an amateur league on the grounds he was a professional.

Many a hot-stove session was spent discussing the subject, but Jackson remained listed as a professional.

Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Tuesday Jackson has been notified of his reinstatement by the CAHA and professional hockey, effective Dec. 15.

He went through all the proper channels," Dawson said. The application for reinstatement went from the CAHA to the National Hockey League and waivers were sent out to all professional teams.

When no team claimed the 83-year-old Jackson, the central hockey region notified the CAHA, adding that the usual reinstatement fee was being waived in this case.

Why did it take 68 years for Jackson to get reinstated?

Simple, says Dawson. He never filed an application. The recent application came from his son-in-law, Graham Helg, a Winnipeg lawyer. In his letter, Helg said he was confident that Jackson, now wintering in Florida, "didn't pose any threat of returning to hockey."

Sports On All Fronts

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A 19-year-old Tennessee freshman football player, Jack Stroud Jr., died Tuesday night after he underwent surgery on his shoulder and encountered post-operative complications.

University Hospital officials said Stroud's death followed "an unusual post-operative reaction" and did not elaborate.

Stroud, son of Jack Stroud Sr., a standout lineman 11 years with New York Giants of the National Football League, was a fullback and defensive back for the Baby Vols this fall.

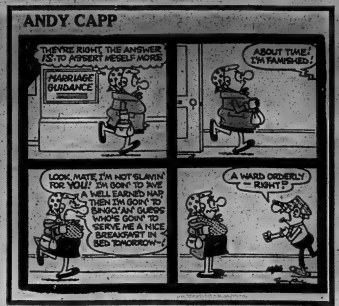
IOWA CITY, Iowa (CP-AP) — Ray Jauch, coach of Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League and Canadian Coach of the Year, is among eight candidates being considered as head football coach for the University of Iowa.

Athletic director Bump Elliott said Tuesday the list of names is being considered by a staff committee of the university's board in control of athletics.



Ray Nagel resigned as coach after his team had a 3-6-1 season this year.

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Nancy Richey, No. 1 ranked women's amateur tennis player, and Kenneth S. Carter, a San Angelo television executive, were married Tuesday. Miss Richey has won two of the world's major women's tennis championships—the Australian singles and the French Open singles.

Eagle Owner Angry

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Leonard Tose, owner of Philadelphia Eagles says he will re-evaluate the status of his general manager and coach after Sunday's season-ending game against Pittsburgh Sunday.

"I hold myself responsible for selecting the personnel and I plan to re-evaluate everything here to see whether we stay pat or make some moves," said Tose, who bought the National Football League Eagles two years ago for $16,650,000.

Tose hired Pete Retzlaff, a former Eagles' star end, as general manager. Retzlaff named as coach Jerry Williams, who had guided Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League. Both are under three year contracts.

The Retzlaff - Williams directed Eagles were 4-9-1 the first season and are 3-10-1 this year.

"There has to be a stronger word than disappointment to describe my feelings about this season," Tose said Tuesday.

Lethargic Knicks Still Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There's a world of difference between the champion New York Knicks and the hapless Cleveland Cavaliers, but coach Bill Fitch complains that other National Basketball Association teams "get up for the just they do for the Knicks."

After all, he says, "Who wants to be the first established club to lose to us?"

The Knicks don't, although it was hard to tell during Tuesday nights lethargic first period, which ended with Cleveland on top 23-22. Then, Walt Frazier, Dave Stallworth and Mike Riordan combined for a 15-2 burst to start the second period and the Knicks were off and running to a 110-83 triumph.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Buffalo Braves nipped Los Angeles Lakers 113-111 in overtime, Chicago Bulls trimmed Baltimore Bullets 115-97, Philadelphia 76ers downed Seattle Supersonics 122-98, San Francisco Warriors defeated Phoenix Suns 139-123 and Detroit Pistons beat Portland Trailblazers 111-103.

Cleveland's loss to the Knicks was the fifth in a row and 22nd in 24 starts for the first-year expansion team.

Despite New York's 15-2 spurt, the Cavaliers stayed within range until the Knicks ran off 15 consecutive points late in the third period for an 81-57 bulge.

George Wilson's basket with one second left in overtime enabled Buffalo to nip Los Angeles.

Kinsmen Caught

Kingston bantams came up with three unanswered goals in the final period to take a 6-3 OMHA decision from the Belleville Kinsmen, Tuesday night.

Bruce Sutherland opened the scoring for Belleville in the first period and Rick Barbeau upped the count to 2-0.

Kingston came back with three tallies in the middle frame before Sutherland counted his second goal to even the match at 3-3. The home team then added three more scores to record the win.

Ramsey Will Live

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police charged Jimmie Louis Harrison Tuesday with the wounding of Philadelphia Eagles football player Nate Ramsey.

The 28-year-old defensive back was out of danger but still in serious condition at Misericordia Hospital with a bullet wound in the chest.

Police said Harrison, known to Ramsey as Tyree, had been charged with two counts of assault with intent to kill, aggravated assault and battery, wantonly pointing firearms and making threats to kill.

Basque Crisis Most Serious in Franco's Career

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The trial of 16 Basque nationalists in Spain has produced the most serious crisis Gen. Francisco Franco has had to face since he took power more than three decades ago.

The emergency measures instituted by the tough, 78-year-old head of state are themselves an indication of how grimly he evaluates the present situation.

The eruption of protest by Catholicism and even among the Roman Catholic clergy are virtually without precedent in Spanish history as it has unfolded since the end of the bitter civil war of 1936-39.

The trial also caused extra problems in Spain's foreign relations, especially those with West Germany and France.

Relations with the Vatican, which Franco considered his staunch ally in the civil war, have been gravely complicated, too, in view of the inclusion of two priests among the nationalists accused in the trial.

The Basque region has long managed to combine a deep devotion to the Catholic faith with pride in its relatively high standard of living.

The Vatican's request for clemency in the trial was an example of the interest taken by the Pope in this latest example of conflict between the central government in Madrid and the traditionally-independent minded Basques of Spain's northland.

However, interest in the trial was evident far beyond Rome. In fact, not since Franco's victorious struggle against the old republic in the civil war has Spain loomed as large as an issue for protesters in the outside world.

West German concern over the courtroom proceedings was bound to be great following the abduction of Bonn diplomat Eugen Beihl by Basque militants who threatened to kill him if any of the accused nationalists were executed.

This in itself was a source of major embarrassment for Franco. Compounding it was the revival of hostility towards him in such countries as France, Britain and Denmark.

The anti-Franco criticism voiced in France was sufficiently intense to anger government supporters in Madrid.

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson Tuesday been given a document by its described as "all a dream of top economists showing that Stephen Lewis's" a report that layoffs had been made necessary by the situation in the U.S. corporations in Canada are designed to protect jobs in the rather than the situation in Canada. Prime Minister Trudeau said he knows of no such document.

Unemployment Of the Young MPs' Target

OTTAWA (CP) — The empty chair of Manpower Minister Otto Lang was the target in the Commons Tuesday for opposition speakers hammering at the fact that 11.3 per cent of young people in the work force are jobless.

Mr. Lang stayed long enough before departing on other business to launch a counterattack on three motions calling on MPs to condemn the government's manpower and economic policies.

Had he remained, he might have heard his speech dismissed as devoid of ideas and himself as pious, pompous, someone who appeared "to have fallen in love with himself at an early age."

Despite the abuse, the government had little difficulty dispatching the three motions. The Creditistes voted alone in a 188-10-11 defeat of their motion, which started the debate.

The vote was 116 to 69 against a New Democrat motion that drew Conservative support while the Creditistes abstained. Three Liberals came in late to assist in a 119-to-69 defeat of a Conservative amendment.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 153, Conservative 72, NDP 29, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Following the votes, the Commons approved supplementary government spending of $881,130,750, bringing total approved government expenditures for the 1970-71 fiscal year to $14,413,415,194.

The estimates, studied in detail in committee, now go for Senate consideration.

The House was scheduled to continue study today of a government bill freezing the basic old-age pension rate at $80 a month and raising the monthly supplement to needy pensioners to a maximum of $55.

The attack on the government's response to the problem of unemployed youth was led by the Creditistes.

House Leader Andre Fortin (Lotbiniere) moved to condemn the government "for having inspired false hopes among young people between the ages of 18 and 24 by assuring them that education pays."

"Young people coming out of schools and universities," the motion continued, "find no outlet for their energies and no means of placing the knowledge they have acquired at the service of the people."

Among the remedies proposed by Mr. Fortin was introduction of a Social Credit concept of "compensated discounts," which would increase consumer purchasing power by creating new credit.

For the Conservatives, Don Mazankowski (Vegreville) offered an amendment directly condemning the government for failing to stimulate the economy and provide new opportunities for young people.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) moved condemnation of the government for failing to pursue full employment.

In response, Mr. Lang suggested the Creditistes appeared to be opposed to existing manpower retraining programs and he urged them to think again.

"It is extremely important to have the faith which I and so many other people in this country have that education, training and upgrading are important and valuable and that they will lead to better jobs, better conditions and higher productivity."

He argued that "in the booming economy which we shall see again there will be a shortage as opposed to a surplus of those with education and with skills and training."

Government policies were designed to bring growth without inflation, he said, suggesting they have resulted in "some pressures on the side of unemployment," as spiralling wages were distorting the facts by saying it was deliberately created.

Hecklers accused the minister of distorting opposition arguments.

After he departed, John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said the government would be a "grave disappointment to tens of thousands of young people across this nation."

"The minister spoke as a person who . . . must have fallen in love with himself at a very early age."

Earlier, Mr. Fortin said the government had crushed the hopes of the young leaving them in a morass of joblessness and despair. It had done so by propagating a myth that more and more people should be educated without taking steps to assure jobs for graduates.

Mr. Mazankowski suggested that unless opportunities are opened for young people, Canada will end with technological colonialism.

Mr. Nystrom said young people are bearing the brunt of the government's anti-inflation policies and would not tolerate their disappointment with the system much longer.

On the government side, Steve Otto (York East) proposed that Canada's armed forces be adapted to deal with such problems as pollution rather than defence. The approach would enable the young to serve the country, he said, although he did not expect the government would show much enthusiasm for the idea.

Paul Newchuk (PC—Athabasca) agreed with much of the Creditiste motion except its suggestion that the government had inspired false hopes. "I don't think this government has produced anything with its policies."

Airport Site Delay Due to Alternatives

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Don Jamieson told the Commons Tuesday he will announce the location of a new airport to serve Toronto "early in the new year."

The minister said repeated postponements of the announcement have been required to permit m a l i n g co-operation among officials of the federal, provincial and Metropolitan Toronto governments.

Mr. Jamieson said the consultation process has required the federal government to put f o r w a r d several alternative sites for the airport to give the other governments an opportunity to meet their own priorities."

Complicating the process has been the need for some mechanism to prevent land speculation once such a choice has been made.

The minister's defence of the year-long delay in the announcement was prompted by question by Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington).

He suggested that the concept of "participatory democracy" required the government to announce a choice so that people might then be in a position to offer their own reactions.

Mr. Hales accused Mr. Jamieson of keeping people in suspense for a year.

Mr. Jamieson replied that department officials had full agreement from Ontario, Perhaps Mr. Hales would be happier if Ottawa went ahead and announced a site on its own. "We can do that," he volunteered.

Business Leaders Add Culture to Firms' Image

TORONTO (CP) — Does culture have a place in a company's business, along with profits and sales?

Some firms believe it does as part of a growing feeling that business should move out into the community and become part of its life.

Lanfranco Amato, president of Olivetti Canada Ltd., takes this view.

"The yardstick on how a company is evaluated is no longer judged just on its profitability," he says. "but rather on how the company operates in a total community environment as a social citizen."

"Today as never before, people living in a community expect large corporations to be more than just business-making propositions. They expect them to do things for the society in which they live."

Mr. Amato recently was host to 300 guests at the Royal Ontario Museum and donated $5,000 to the museum on behalf of the company.

Mr. Amato says Adriano Olivetti, founder of the Italian-based business machine firm, fostered in his family a love of culture. His family in turn, nurtured the belief in company shareholders.

Another company which encourages development in the arts is Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada.

Peter Bone, vice-president in charge of public relations, says "the more astute leaders in business are realizing that showing a healthy profit for companies is not their only role."

He says royalty were once patrons to some of the greatest artists and artisans whose heritage we enjoy today.

"Business is the natural successor to the wealthy patrons of the past."

Rothmans sent three travelling exhibitions of paintings and sculpture across Canada this year.

Mr. Bone says he has never heard a shareholder complain of the company's art spending.

"Indeed," he says, "if private enterprise is to continue to be a major force in the society in which we live, it has a responsibility to improve the quality of life in this society."

Farmers Object To Airport Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 600 farmers, whose lands are being expropriated for the new Montreal international airport in Ste. Scholastique, Que., complained Tuesday of government mismanagement in handling the perfect and of being faced with a future they fear is all too uncertain.

The Union Catholique des Cultivateurs—Catholic Farmers Union—said in a statement delivered at a news conference that about 90 per cent of the 650 farm families uprooted by the project have yet to reach a settlement with the government.

The discontented farmers want the government to answer three questions: When do they have to leave? How will they be compensated? What does the future hold in store now that they are losing their livelihood?

"We are ready to accept the expropriation order on the condition that we are humanly treated," the statement said. "But we will not admit to a second expulsion of the Acadians."

About 12,000 people live in the area, 35 miles northwest of Montreal, and eventually all will have to move. So far, only a few farms are being vacated to make way for construction of the main airport runway.

Chemical Spill Requires Closer Look at Safety

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario Water Resources Commission said Tuesday many transporters of chemicals are ignorant of the hazards caused by accidental chemical spills.

Dennis Caplice, the commission's director of industrial wastes, in discussing a CPR derailment at Pickerel River north of Parry Sound, Ont., and the subsequent spilling of sulphuric acid, said government and industries must take a closer look at safety precautions.

Thirteen tank cars of a southbound freight en route from the Canadian Industries Ltd. plant at Copper Cliff to Hamilton rolled down a 58-foot embankment Dec. 10, spilling the highly-corrosive liquid into the river.

Colin Hackville, fisheries officer for the department of lands and forests at Parry Sound, said the only visible ill effect has been the death of about 100 small fish, mainly perch and sunfish.

"However, we can not be certain that the sulphuric acid was the direct cause of the kill," he said. "We're checking."

Mr. Caplice said four OWRC workers are still at the site about 94 miles north of Parry Sound.

He said all but one of the 13 cars was damaged and the maximum spill (1W tons per car) would have been 1,300 tons.

Because the acid is heavier than water it sank to the bottom," said Mr. Caplice, "and we have most of it trapped in two swampy bays of the river where the water is from eight to 10 feet deep."

He said a biological test of the river bottom will be taken this week to see whether small marine life was damaged.

Chemicals have been brought in to neutralize the acid and lime banks are being built to seal off the two small bays.

A CPR official said the cause of the derailment of the 13 cars of a 46-car train has not been determined. More than one quarter mile of track was ripped up but there were no injuries.

The acid is used in the manufacture of fertilizers and in uranium refining. When diluted, it is not especially damaging.

Female Officer Packs Big Gun

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The first black woman on the Oakland police force packs a .38-caliber revolver and can throw a 200-pound man—but she's more interested in helping youths than shooting criminals.

Attractive 25-year-old Saundra Brown graduates Friday near the top of her class in the Police Academy after 12 weeks of criminal law, report writing, first aid, firearms training and defensive tactics.

Miss Brown, who alternates black and red wigs with her neat natural hairdo, was born and raised in this city of 358,000 across the bay from San Francisco.

A graduate of Fresno State College with a degree in sociology, Miss Brown was working as an insurance claims representative in San Francisco when she heard that Oakland was looking for a black police woman.

One reason she tried for the job, she said, was the need for more minority policemen in this city where the Black Panther party was founded and the population is more than one-third Negro.

The force of 710 now has 36 black policemen and seven policewomen, all white.

Miss Brown will start her police career in the youth division at a salary of $11,112 a year.

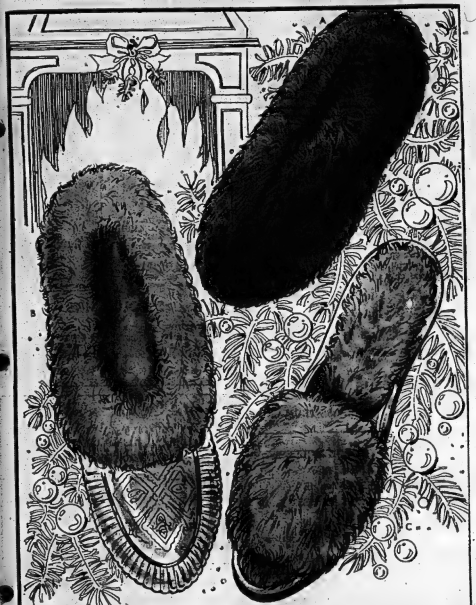
U.S. Hermit Gave Away $1 Million of Land

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An 89-year-old hermit who gave away $1 million worth of land for the world to enjoy will be buried today in the wildlife preserve where he lived alone.

William H. Browne III, known as Mr. Willie to the neighbors who brought him his groceries, was found dead Monday. He was sitting in his favorite rock-[illegible] a book in his lap.



When Browne was young his father gave him nearly 400 acres of wilderness along the south bank of the St. Johns River and told him, "Don't let the hunters in here."

Last year he donated the remaining 361 acres to the Nature Conservancy, a non-profit organization, on condition it remain in its wild state and that he live there until his death.

Pope Paul Has the Flu

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul cancelled his scheduled weekly public audience today because of an attack of influenza accompanied by a slight fever. The pontiff is 73.

His personal doctor, Prof. Mario Fontana, said "the fever is so light that His Holiness can take care of normal church affairs with his aides."

Lawrence Welk Just Rolls Along

NEW YORK (AP) — To the casual viewer, The Lawrence Welk Show Saturday nights is just another variety hour and one, to be sure, that keeps away from that freaky modern music you can't possibly dance to.

But to the initiated—the hardcore Welk fans—the ABC hour is a combination of pleasant music, smiling faces and Welk's secret of television longevity, family feeling. The boys are barbered, the girls sweet-faced and the audience knows exactly how many children each musician has.

The most recent program seemed like typical Welk: a bit of songs with seasonal themes like snow and Christmas, some dancing that included a spin around the stage by the maestro himself.

But it was pretty heady stuff for the viewers who tune each week. Bobby Burgess, one of the dancers on the show, is engaged to a daughter of Myron Floren, one of Welk's soloists.

At another point, there was considerable comment about the need of a haircut for Lawrence Welk III, infant grandson of the star whose mother is a singer on the show.

Welk addresses himself informally to his regular listeners. Sometimes he reads bit from fan mail. Last Saturday he showed a special baton made for him by a fan from a small tree.

The hour is frankly fashioned for middle-aged, middle-class America in its mood, musical selection and sponsors. Welk himself has often admitted that the younger crowd is likely to avoid the show, but he obviously doesn't care.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Guilt Feeling Not Warranted

Although the column appeared months ago about Mrs. G., who was upset about sending her mother to a nursing home, letters continue to come that may be helpful to readers in resolving similar problems. One follows:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This letter is intended for Mrs. G., the lady who was so guilt-ridden because she was forced to place her mother in a nursing home. If I grieved, I do hope that she will find a measure of consolation in these words.

Twenty-one years ago I was forced to commit my mother to a mental institution, for a longer period of time than I like to recall. I suffered from an extreme guilt complex. I cried and I prayed for peace of mind.

Then came the realization that this was God's will. It was His plan for both my mother and me. Try as I might to change things, this I could not be done. I realized that I had not deserted my mother, I would have to accept the will of God and resolve to be as good to my mother as I possibly could.

I visited her often, always taking material things that she needed as well as extra treats to make life as pleasant as possible for her. I brought her home for a week or two many times over the years.

I took her on trips back to childhood places, back to her mother's grave, always trying to do little things that made her happy. I shall always treasure a remark that she made to me not too long ago, after five and a half months of untold suffering. During this time I went to see her each weekend and although I was not with her at the very end I know that she took her love for me with her to the grave. Not once did she ever feel neglected or deserted.

Mrs. G., we must always accept God's will and only in doing this can we find peace of mind. — Mrs. B.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: The important thing in considering your young son's leg cramps is to determine the real reason. Sometimes what parents believe are muscle cramps are really joint pains. When indefinite, they are called growing pains.

Although massage seems to help temporarily, I suggest that you take him to your doctor. What's important to know is whether or not these growing pains are due to unrecognized rheumatic fever.

* * *

For Mrs. Y.: There is no definite rule, but it is often accepted by obstetricians that a woman should wait about six weeks after having a baby before resuming sexual relations. It takes that long for the uterus and other organs to return to the pre-pregnancy state.

* * *

For Mrs. O.: A safe rule is not to take any kind of medicine (even aspirin for a headache) especially during the first three months of pregnancy unless you receive your doctor's OK. Some ask, "When I am nervous, what harm is there in taking a tranquilizer, or a sleeping pill for insomnia?" Let your doctor be the judge.

* * *

For Mr. O.: The tuberculin test is important as a screening test for tuberculosis. It shows only that you have come in contact with the TB germs. The positive skin-wheal does not mean you have active tuberculosis.

Society Can Pay Price: Colleges

TORONTO (CP) — The Committee of Presidents of Universities of Ontario says society should be able to afford growing education costs in the future.

In a brief Tuesday to the province's advisory committee on university affairs, the presidents said the economy should continue to grow and be able to provide sufficient increases in provincial revenues to support higher education costs.

"Our general conclusion is that the outlook is not as gloomy as many have believed," the brief said.

The brief expressed concern about some possible government solutions to "a financial ailment which is more imagined than real."

The presidents cited as examples provincial contemplation "of restrictions on foreign enrolments or the size of graduate programs" which appear "to have underlying financial motivation."

In another brief, the Ontario Confederation of University Faculty Associations suggested university enrolment should be reduced if the province finds costs too high.

The confederation represents about 7,000 teachers at 13 universities.

Charles Hanly, executive vice-chairman of the confederation, said further suggestion was not meant as an endorsement of the policy of limiting enrolment.

"But if the government must put a ceiling on its costs," he said in an interview, "then we are saying the most sensible way to hold costs down is to limit enrolment."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 17

Your birthday today: A growth cycle begins in all your personal psychological limitations. A challenge from outside stimulates you to get out of ruts, and a fresh start in a more open field. Little comes easily now, but once gained, it stays with you. Emotional needs find many erratic episodes of fulfillment. Double-faced friends present perennial puzzles. Today natives have a strong streak of personal independence.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your money flies, especially around young people. Work at serious matters; pay no attention to scandalous stories. Family squabbles fade out if you just leave off.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Check your shopping list, making sure it has only what you really want to buy. Be prepared to mediate between factions in your group; avoid involvement in new issues.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Personal arrangements should be let alone. Check facts and be stubborn on the job (for good reason), rather than let bosses push you into skepticism.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Frittering away time at hobbies is merely an avoidance of expressing yourself. Speak up, ask reasonably for what you want, arrange appointments.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Follow your own ideas, particularly where there's any element of chance. Choose work which doesn't involve close collaboration. Others don't share your enthusiasm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Discard rumors: much is left out. Wait to see where changes are going before disarraying. Your example makes a big impact on some who say little.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your sympathy makes all the difference in your family and community. Care in handling work is essential. You have competition, newly arrived, of a quite personal nature.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Expect to work in unsatisfactory conditions. There are no shortcuts, either in your career or in your homelife. Simple care doe in both areas helps.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This is a day of sudden confrontation...an event where you run into a blank wall. If you have been unfaithful. Get expert advice and play for time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Be an opportunist today: for once it's quite all right to take the easiest way out. You might even get a pleasant journey at little or no expense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your life and work swings along briskly. Take nothing too seriously for the moment: get some fun out of everything. Repay a favor. Add a little to your savings account.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The simpler the plan the better it works. Do only what is essential to your well-being. Take a vacation from every burden you can lay down. Lend nothing now.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Open Market Essential

International trade is one of the dullest subjects it is possible to write about — unless the reader happens to make his living in an industry that is threatened by foreign competition.

The question of "free trade" versus "protectionism" is an old and badly-scarred debate in the U.S. Theoretically, the "free traders" have the best of it; but practically, the "protectionists" have usually won.

If we felt genuinely a capitalistic country, and believe in free competition, then we must admit that other countries have the right to import goods here and sell it at the lowest possible price. We can't be in favor of competition just for our own country.

Where the rub comes is that the cost of labor in many other nations is far lower than in ours. A textile worker in Japan, for instance, gets less than $100 a month, and an American producer can't compete with these low labor costs when his own employees make many times more.

This is the argument of "protectionism." We have to keep the countries that pay "coolie wages" from undercutting our own high standard of living. It makes sense, as far as it goes, but this argument does not go far enough. Almost all economists agree.

The fact of the matter is that a nation like the U.S. should not be wasting its energy and manpower in the production of low-efficiency goods, like textiles, or shoes, or such commodities. We are a high-efficiency society, and should devote our industrial efforts to producing the goods we can best produce at the fastest rate for the lowest cost.

Low - efficiency societies should be left free to make over the production of goods that best suits their economy and fits their wage - scale. If we want to see capitalism and free competition spread over the world, we cannot insist that other countries be penalized for sending their goods here and selling it at the cheapest price they can.

To "protect" certain industries against foreign competition is a form of state socialism, no matter how it may be called. It is a subsidy to inefficiency, because we should not be wasting our resources in turning out goods that we can buy cheaper elsewhere. Both politically and economically, "protectionism" is a slap in the face to the world unity on our professed creed of free competition.

It does not even make good sense to our short-term self-interest, for if other countries are limited in selling their goods here, they will not have the funds to buy our commodities, and world trade will shrink perilously. Our rejection of an open market would only confirm the Communists' accusation that we manipulate capitalism for our own ends.

Police Association 'Publicity Seekers'

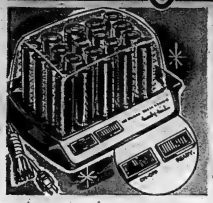
ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart has charged the Ontario Police Association with "engaging in a publicity gimmick in setting up a fund to build a new police college."

The charge was made in a letter to Robert Johnston, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for St. Catharines, in reference to attempts by a local group to have the college built here.

The letter was read to the directors of the group at a meeting Monday.

In it, the attorney-general said:

"You will remember that the executive committee of the OPA started a fund that was ostensibly going to be used to finance the police college through public solicitations.



"This I believe was just a publicity device and it is fairly obvious that funds cannot be obtained in this way and indeed this was not any proposal of the government.

"The police association has criticized the present college, located at Aylmer, as being antiquated and inadequate. At its annual meeting earlier this year, the association decided to appeal for public funds because the province said it had no plans for a new college.

British Oxygen Co. Ltd. Buys Deloro Stellite

$14 Million Was the Price

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Deloro Stellite, with headquarters at 471 Dundas Street East in Belleville, has been sold to a well known British firm, it was announced today from London, England.

The announcement said that British Oxygen Company Ltd. was acquiring the Canadian-based Deloro Stellite, manufacturer of special metals and alloys.

British Oxygen is paying $14 million for all the issued share capital of Deloro Stellite and a British subsidiary of the Canadian company.

Deloro was founded in 1916 to smelt and refine Canadian cobalt ores and during its heyday at the company town site outside of Marmora, employed up to 600 persons.

It closed out its Deloro operation 15 years ago when it moved to Belleville after constructing a new plant on Dundas Street.

The company now employs about 300 persons of which about 60 are salaried. Plant manager is William Warren.

At the time Deloro moved to Belleville it also extended its operations into Britain with the establishment at Swindon of Deloro Stellite, U.K.

The British subsidiary of Deloro manufactures alloy artificial hip implants used to give mobility to persons with severe arthritic conditions.

Two of the British-made hip sockets were implanted in Belleville area patients in operations done at Belleville General Hospital as part of Belleville centennial celebrations.

British Oxygen, through its new purchase plans to increase its special metals business in Britain.

Three years ago — in 1967 — the firm increased the size of the Belleville operation from 80,000 square feet to 100,000 feet, the addition with new equipment, representing an expenditure of close to $1 million.

The president of the firm, Brian O'Brien, visited the city for the official opening of the plant addition two years ago.

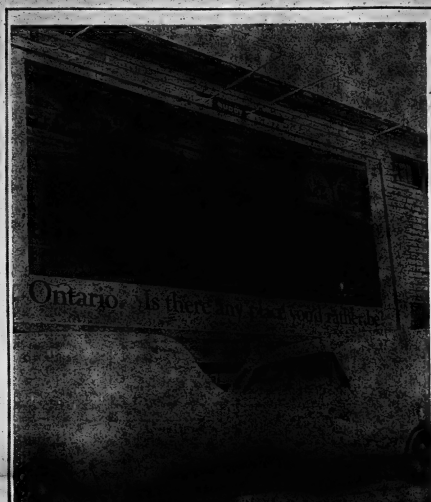
When the firm located in Belleville, one phase of its operation was the manufacture of heat resistant turbine blades for the Orenda jet aircraft engine. Now the major production of the firm is in other fields with engineered manufacturers here finding a market in many countries around the world.

The Canadian subsidiary of the big British oxygen company is Canox, which has a local office and distributing centre on Sidney Street in Belleville.

The Canadian representative of the British firm is J. A. Perham of Toronto, who is in Belleville today, presumably in connection with the purchase of Deloro Stellite.

Neither Mr. Perham nor William Warren, Belleville manager for Deloro Stellite, were available today for comment.

Search Fizzles



MONTREAL (CP) — Troops today began pulling away from the suburban Longueuil area where police and soldiers had conducted an apparently unsuccessful house-to-house search for the kidnap-killers of Pierre Laporte.

Soldiers began piling into buses that had been used as roadblocks about 24½ hours after the search began in the south shore community across the St. Lawrence river from Montreal.

Though there was no immediate official confirmation, the word at the scene was that the operation—conducted just two months after Mr. Laporte was strangled—had been unsuccessful.

"It's finished," an RCMP officer told reporters.

Well... Now That You Ask—

To Work, to Work!

Snowmobiles came to the rescue of many snowbound Bellevillians in the wake of 10-inch snowfall. With cars plugged in driveways, sportsmen pressed the snow vehicles into service to get to work on time.

White Christmas Now A Good Bet

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Quinte district was plowing back to normal routine today after a White Christmas guarantee stormed through the region in what is believed the worst mid-December squall in 30 years.

The storm left the district up to its Christmas stockings in snow — a 10-14-inch fallout that plugged transport, shut schools and caused job absenteeism.

Quinte country — particularly the Prince Edward County peninsula — was one of the hardest hit by an overnight weather belt which tightened across all southern Ontario.

The storm viciously sideswiped the Belleville - Trenton area as it crunched down further east to cause havoc around Kingston.

The Macdonald-Cartier Freeway in the Kingston area and all access roads were blocked by 18 inches of snow. Cars were reported abandoned by drivers who could not get off the impassable freeway.

The storm passed without serious incident in the Quinte region, although it could have posed serious problems for some residents.

In Prince Edward County there were two incidents in which parents, in communities isolated by the squall, were unable to get sick children to hospital at Picton.

In the Picton area 14 inches of snow was reported. On Big Island, in the Bay of Quinte, there was 13 inches and residents this morning were awaiting snowplows to open the road with the Prince Edward mainland. At Point Petre on Lake Ontario, huge drifts were reported.

Classes in all Prince Edward County schools were cancelled.

The school system was the hardest hit by the storm.

Loyalist College at Belleville was closed — although night extension classes were announced to continue as usual.

Separate schools were closed — although three grades at Belleville's Nicholson Catholic College remained open, fewer than 100 of the college's 300 students showed up.

In Hastings County, the public school scene was less clear this morning — the school board's transportation officer could not make it to work earlier. At one school — Marsh Hill in Sidney township — the day started with two students and three teachers. Officially no schools were closed while the plowing

Arms Sale Rift May Not Arise

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath left little room for doubt Wednesday that Britain is disposed to honor its "obligation" to supply arms to South Africa.

But two points mentioned by Mr. Heath at a crowded news conference winding up his quickie visit here for talks with Prime Minister Trudeau suggested that the fateful decision —for the Commonwealth—will not necessarily have to be taken.

One was that South Africa has not yet applied to buy arms from Britain, though it has been several months since Mr. Heath's newly-elected government announced it was willing to consider applications.

The other was that Britain's commitment to South Africa under the Simonstown agreement could be dissolved only by mutual consent.

On both points, Mr. Heath appeared to leave open the possibility that South Africa itself will provide an out for Britain by not embarrassing it with a request for arms.

Mr. Heath visited Ottawa for part of a day on his way to Washington for talks with President Nixon today and Friday.

He and Mr. Trudeau, in a 1¼-hour, private talk, failed to resolve their differences over the arms-to-South Africa issue, according to authoritative sources.

Mr. Trudeau was reported to have reiterated his earlier warnings to Mr. Heath about the danger to Commonwealth unity a British decision to lift the arms embargo imposed by former prime minister Harold Wilson six years ago would pose.

Sawmill-Chipmill Operation Announced for Bird's Creek

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A sawmill and chipmill operation for the Bird's Creek - Bancroft area which ultimately could provide jobs for up to 200 men has been announced by Sawyer Stoll Lumber Company of Tweed.

Mel Ostman, manager of the Tweed - based lumber company said today that construction of the sawmill at Bird's Creek would be commenced immediately and would be in operation in about two months.

The companion chipmill operation will take a little longer to complete but is expected to be operating within four months.

Mr. Ostman said the sawmill and chipmill at Bird's Creek would employ 70 to 80 men on the mill site with the entire work force, including woods operations and trucking expected to total up to 200 within a year.

Timber for the Bird's Creek operation will be cut from Crown lands in the area and will also be purchased from private operators in the area.

Mr. Ostman said the Bancroft area mill would utilize wood not normally suitable for the manufacture of lumber.

MORE

Production of pallets at the company's Tweed mill is expected to be increased as a result of the Bancroft operation and Mr. Ostman said the number of workers would in all probability be increased from the present 30.

Sawyer-Stoll Lumber Company has operated for many years in the Tweed area with sawmills near Kaladar and in the area north of Madawaska Lake.

Clerks T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings, sees the new Sawyer-Stoll operation at Bancroft as providing a big economic boost for North Hastings.

"It will provide an outlet for timber not previously saleable," he said.

In addition to providing more than 100 jobs, Mr. Rollins said the mill operation would provide income for many farmers and owners of private woodlots in the area.

The new Sawyer-Stoll mill operation at Bird's Creek has no connection with John chipmill operation proposed by Canadian International Paper for the North Hastings area.

The proposal of CIP was to construct a chipmill in North Hastings with wood chips to be shipped to a kraft paper mill intended for construction on the lakefront in Prince Edward County.

Construction of the proposed kraft mill by CIP has run into opposition from many Prince Edward county residents who fear a pollution problem and the company at last word said no final decision would be made for some months.

It is understood that the wood chips from the new Sawyer Stoll mill at Bancroft would be shipped by rail to Cornwall.

Too Much Of A Good Thing

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton residents dreaming of a white Christmas hastily crawled from beneath a 16-inch blanket of snow this morning to greet what many called "too much of a good thing."

A spokesman for the weather station at the Picton Pumpfiction Plant said, at 8 a.m. today, that more than two feet of snow had fallen since the storm began last evening.

The temperature reached an evening low of 29 degrees, later climbing to 32 degrees.

All classes in all Prince Edward County Schools were cancelled before 8:30 a.m. because of snow-clogged roads that forced bus operators to abandon their routes.

The Quinte Nursery School, Picton, was also closed.

County road superintendent Ian Begbie reported at 8:30 a.m. that county roads were passable but driving conditions were not considered good.

A total of 71 plows, including eight trucks and three graders began to clear county roads early last evening, remarking active until about 11 p.m. Work resumed at 5 a.m. today, but Mr. Begbie observed that plow operators could make little headway until daylight.

Poor visibility hampered their efforts but improved shortly after 8:30 a.m.

Only one county plow, clearing roads in the Consecon district, had completed its run by 8.30 this morning. The driver noted a much lighter snowfall of approximately eight inches in that area.

Mr. Begbie added that "quite a lot of drifting was reported in other areas of the county."

He observed that road conditions could rapidly worsen if winds sprang up to cause drifting and impaired visibility.

A spokesman for the Picton public works department said today that employees, operating three plows, had worked throughout the night to keep town streets passable.

He remarked that yesterday's storm seemed heavier than any single snowfall dumped on Picton streets last year. By continuous effort, town workers have managed to clear Main Street and almost all side streets by 8 a.m. today.

The public works spokesman observed that plow operators could only get through in areas in a one direction to get traffic moving.

The snow winged aside must be removed to allow further plowing. He said that substantial drifting had occurred in Picton during the storm.

Motorists throughout Prince Edward County apparently drove cautiously through the heavy snows. No accidents were reported by either the Picton Police Department or the Picton Detachment of the OPP despite bad road conditions and limited visibility.

Many local residents, unable to drive their cars to work today, flooded Picton cab companies with telephone calls. One employee for an answering service, used by most Picton cabs, reported that calls were received constantly this morning.

A Real Snow Job

Queen Alexandra public school on Ann Street had a blocked entrance this morning. Student power was employed with Ronnie Bell, Alex Armitage, Guy Jones, and Willie Snow tossing off the white stuff. Since last evening 10 inches of winter wonderland has been added to city streets.

Street Plowing Was Easy But Now It's Removal Time

All available city public works department snow removal equipment worked throughout the night in an attempt to keep up with last night's storm which dumped more than 10 inches of new snow over the Quinte district.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the city's entire complement of trucks and snowplows went into operation shortly after midnight.

As a result most of the city's main arteries and bus routes were passable in time for this morning's rush hour traffic.

Also many of the city's miles of sidewalks were cleared although works officials expected it would take most of the day before all walks and roadways were plowed.

Since the early morning the works department has had 10 snowplows, three roadscrapers and seven truck mounted plows — in operation.

Also five jeep mounted sidewalk plows have been on the job in an attempt to clear the walks for pedestrian traffic.

But the big clearup job will start tonight when snow clearing operations in the city's downtown area get under way.

Snowplow equipment will be kept on the job clearing streets and rental trucks will be called in to haul away the snow.

Mr. Purcell said the customary practise is to keep city owned equipment busy clearing streets and sidewalks and to hire tandem truck equipment for snow removal.

The big trucks handle a much greater load and less time is taken up in manoeuvring equipment into loading position.

Mechanical snowloaders and front end lift equipment has taken over the bulk of the snow clearing job but there is still a place for the man with the snow shovel.

Works department officials said extra manpower would be hired to clear out access parking meters and to shovel pedestrian walks along bridges or in other areas where a snowplow equipment could not be operated.

But it will take more than tonight to clear the downtown area of snow.

Snow removal equipment will not go into full operation until parked cars and traffic has thined out.

"It will likely take two or three days to get rid of the snow," commented a works department employee.

Don't Block Snow Plows Says Chief

Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie has warned motorists to park their cars well off city streets or they will be tickeled.

Chief Crosbie told The Intelligencer that cars impeding the progress of snow plows and other snow-removal vehicles would be tagged.

He also cautioned motorists about the hazardous driving conditions suggesting that they use drive wheel R. was absolutely necessary.

"Those that have to drive, should drive with caution," he said.

Snowmobilers Plan Brief

Representation will be made to city council on Monday by members of a steering committee presently encouraging the formation of a district snowmobile association.

Ray Worrell, past president of the Quinte Snowmobile Club and chairman of the steering committee, Tuesday said the purpose of the club was to "protect the recreation sport of snowmobiling," and this was one of the purposes of visiting council.

Blizzard

of rural roads was availed.

Plagued rural roads also prevented workers from reporting for work in the city.

Belleville General Hospital called in relief nurses in the city to replace those unable to report for duty this morning.

Cab companies were flooded with calls.

"I think everybody in Belleville's been phoning us," said one despatcher as his phones rang incessantly.

Tow trucks were at a premium, removing vehicles from ditches and driveways.

Even tow trucks got stuck and, at one point, one operator said he would despatch trucks only in an emergency.

"We need 15 trucks to keep up (with the demand)," said another garage operator. "Wherever vehicles are moving there's a problem."

The city's post office — already struggling with the Christmas mail rush — also was hit by the storm. One mail truck from Toronto arrived four hours late. Bundle trucks — which deposit mail at street corner boxes for mail carriers — also were running late.

Delivery of Christmas mail-order goods from Toronto was delayed. The truck driver for the Toronto mail-order house left for Belleville at 7 p.m. last night — and didn't arrive until 9 a.m. today.

A CN spokesman in Belleville reported frozen switches were delaying freight train movements. The Brockville-Toronto Dayliner arrived more than an hour late in the city — after being halted by a stalled truck on the tracks near Collins Bay.

The storm blew itself out about 9.30 a.m. with forecasts predicting only some flurries and scatter skies tomorrow.

The city's public works department — which fought the worst of the storm with ten snow plows — today expected to recruit additional manpower for a big cleanup push tonight.

At Tweed, a department of lands and forests official said the storm was the worst in 20 years for this time of year.

It almost doubled the normal rate of snowfall from 17.91 inches to 32.3 inches.

Ice Dam Model Ready for Tests

Engineering consultants Crysler, Davis and Jorgensen, who favor a new downstream location for the long proposed College Street ice control dam will soon know how effective their proposal is.

Keith Lathem, engineer with the consulting firm which last year did a new study of the Moira with the view of future control of spring flood threats, yesterday told a meeting of the Moira River Conservation Authority that a scale model of the proposed dam has been built at Queen's University and would shortly be tested.

With tests of the 50 - foot - long scale model it was hoped to determine just how effective such a dam would be in controlling ice at the proposed location downstream from the College Street bridge.

The location would also eliminate formation of much of the "frazil" ice which contributes to flood threats.

If the scale model showed the actual dam would not effectively control ice during the river breakup period, the dam would have to be constructed at the formerly proposed College Street "quarry" site.

An ice control dam to help alleviate spring floods in downtown Belleville has been in the talk stage for more than 20 years.

Mr. Lathem said that tests had shown that the formation of "frazil" ice in the rapids section of the river, along with sheet ice floated down during the spring breakup period was mainly responsible for flooding.

The sheet ice jammed in the downtown area and the "frazil" ice, forced under the ice jam, backed up the river with the result that it overflowed its banks.

The last serious flood in downtown Belleville was in the spring of 1936, but history has recorded a dozen or more floods which caused extensive property damage.

The city this year gave the go-ahead word for construction of the ice control dam and it was expected that construction might get under way next year.

Now it is expected that detailed engineering plans will not be ready in time for next year and construction is not expected to start until 1972.

Allore Hearing to Open Monday

The hearing into the suspension of separate school superintendent F. R. Allore will begin Dec. 21 in Kingston.

Frontenac county Judge A. R. Campbell said today that the first sessions of the hearing will take place in his chambers at the Court House, begining at 10 a.m.

It is expected that the hearing will continue on Tuesday before being adjourned until after the new year.

"My reaction is that the hearing will be open until such time as I decide it will be declared in camera", said Judge Campbell.

The hearing was called in mid-November by Education Minister William Davis to inquire into and make recommendations on the suspension of the superintendent last May 8. Mrs. Ethel Hinse, "The Aller hearing into the subject of several public meetings and became an election issue after a Belleville ratepayers group fielded candidates supporting the superintendent's reinstatement.

Judge Campbell said the Dec. 21 session of the hearing would be "a kick-off" submission to me by both counsels regarding whether the hearings should be public or in camera, the positions the two counsels will take and the rules of procedure.

He said he had no idea as yet whether all or some, or none of the hearing would be public.

"A teachers' board is reference by statute is held in camera," he said. "This is a similar case, but not covered in any way by the same statute."

A teachers' board of reference is set up to arbitrate cases of teachers' dismissals.

Asked if the hearing into the suspension of a superintendent was precedent-setting, Judge Campbell said "I haven't been able to find anyone who has had to do it before."

He said he had no idea whether the site of the hearing might be moved to Belleville after the first two-day sessions in Kingston.

"I have no idea of the nature of the evidence, or if argument will be introduced in lieu of evidence", he said. "If witnesses are to be called, we will have to consider going to a place convenient to them."

Counsel for the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board is John Murphy of Toronto. Mr. Allore has been represented by John Watermeyer of Kitchener, former Ontario Liberal leader.

Moira Conservation Retains Fee Scale

Despite the fact that a sharp increase this year in the cost of season tickets to authority parks was apparently not acceptable to the general public, admission prices to Moira River Conservation Authority areas, will remain the same for next year.

A report on public use of authority conservation areas for 1970 given at this week's full authority meeting showed that the sale of season tickets dropped from 109 last year to but 39 for this year.

The price of season tickets to the Colonel Vanderwater Park and to O'Hara's Mill was increased this year from $5 to $5.

"It is evident that the $50 per cent increase from $2 to $5 was not acceptable," said the report.

Camp sites at Vanderwater Park were increased this year from $1.50 to $2 per day and the number of "camp days" dropped from 677 to 538.

In view of decreased attendance at the Vanderwater Park both on season tickets and at overnight campsites, several Authority members felt fees should revert to the former level with Madoc representative William Armstrong bringing in a motion to this effect.

Others felt that the cost of season tickets only should be lowered.

But Belleville Alderman Rob Jeffrey said the increased rates had not received a fair test in only one year. She felt the answer was to improve riverside campsites at the Vanderwater Park.

The year's record showed that camping permits were issued to 25 Belleville residents with another 76 to other local residents within 25 miles of the Vanderwater Park.

Other Belleville residents took out 57 camp permits and United States residents 14 camp permits.

Family Y Has Holiday Program

The Belleville Family YMCA has reserved four days at the end of the month for a new "water fun and learn to swim" program.

The program, for eight, nine, 10 and 11-year olds, commences on Dec. 28 and will run until Dec. 31. The pool will be open for the program from nine a.m. until 10.30 a.m. and from one p.m. until 3.30 p.m.

YMCA program director, Dave Hahn, explained that the class was designed to get youngsters to be comfortable in water.

The Y also cancelled a family swim program which will re-open in the spring. Mr. Hahn explained that skiing and other winter activities were taking their tolls of interested swimmers.

Several YMCA events are in the spotlight over the Christmas season for children and adults alike.

Tomorrow, activity begins with "hanging at the green" to be followed by a penny carnival Saturday for children eight to 12 years of age.

On the morning of Christmas Eve, eight to 11-year-olds will be on hand to watch some movies. Dec. 28 will see 11-14 year olds taking part in a youth dance. The adults will take over Dec. 29 with a bridge and euchre party. Finally, Dec. 30, the Y will sponsor a bus trip to the Ontario Science Center.

No Trouble At Ferries

PICTON (Staff) — A crew member of the Glenora ferry said this morning that the Quinte Loyalist ran on schedule last night despite the storm.

He explained, at 10 a.m. today, that the 18-car ferry, providing half-hour service to the Adolphustown shore, had little difficulty in keeping on schedule today since she had carried fewer than five cars since 8 a.m.

Usually the ferry has a capacity load for each trip during its early morning runs.

Parts of Prince Edward Isolated After Storm

PICTON (Staff) — Heavy snowfall in most areas of Prince Edward County, coupled with bad visibility, virtually isolated several communities last night.

One Northport couple, attempting to reach Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital with a sick child, was forced to turn back because of road conditions.

Early this morning, a second successful attempt to reach Picton was made.

Big Island residents reported approximately 12 inches of snow this morning as they waited for a snowplow to clear their roads.

Residents of Point Petre this morning remained snowed in as they waited for a township plow to end their predicament.

Charles Newman, lighthouse keeper at Point Petre, said this morning that snow was "windrowed" in huge drifts, broken by hundred-foot patches of bare ground. Traffic from this vicinity was at a standstill.

Another lighthouse keeper who attempted to reach Prince Edward County Hospital with a sick child, was unable to break a path through the snow filled roads. A second try, to be made later today is expected to be successful because of improved visibility and plowing.

Many Prince Edward County residents working in Picton were forced to stay at home from their jobs today because of driving conditions.

Store Hours

What would become of the statutory holidays for example? Monday closing might be a further tilt toward the age of increased leisure we hear so much about, and which for most of us is largely myth, but is it really a satisfactory concept for a public geared to doing its shopping Monday through Saturday. Thursday and Friday evenings as well, and with early closing on Wednesday afternoons only? And not forgetting the fact that one establishment just outside the city limits remains open every day except Sunday until 10 p.m.

We have heard it suggested that store employees might be given Monday or any day of the week off on a rotation basis, thus enabling stores to remain open for business.

Then there is the psychological factor. Would a Monday off be such a great thing when it is work as usual in banks and other places of business? Monday blues dissipate quickly enough once one gets down to work, but hanging around home, feeling strange and at a loose end, would defeat the whole purpose of such an edict.

In any event we shall see. The downtown merchants' survey is under way, and it will serve as a further guide to how those directly concerned feel about this matter.

Increases for MPs?

Members of Parliament have been knocking at the door for some time now for a raise in pay, and just as often their cause has been relegated to a low priority. Now an independent committee has come up with recommendations for very substantial increases.

Predictably, reaction has been mixed. It is generally agreed that for the responsibilities they have, and the work they perform, members should be rewarded more adequately than they are now; but doubling their pay (this as suggested, in two stages, from the present basic $12,000 to $25,000, with commensurate increases for cabinet ministers and a whopping $70,000 (including the $25,000 MP's salary) for the Prime Minister, is what staggers the already overburdened taxpayer.

All this would be diluted substantially by elimination of the current tax-free allowance. But that is the only aspect of the recommendations which will give any comfort to people like pensioners and the public at large who for years now have been regaled with the need to curb wage demands.

All eyes will be on Ottawa now to see how much of these recommended increases Parliament will permit itself. If it has any consideration for its own advice in these days of rising inflation it will have to be on the conservative side.

Oil Deal

That governments are willing to submerge ideology for commercial advantage has been proved once again by the news that Israel is transporting Arab oil to Eastern Europe via the 160-mile pipeline across the Negev Desert from the port of Elath to Ashkelon.

The advantages to both Jews and Arabs are obvious. Because of its defence commitments, Israel has one of the most heavily taxed peoples in the world, while their arch rivals, the Arab nations, have so many sociological and economic problems that the currency earned from this deal will also be of immediate value.

The Soviet Union, which presumably is benefiting from the deal, has given its blessing, according to the Sunday Times of London. And this, despite the fact it supports the Arabs in the confrontation (now happily dormant) with Israel.

The same economic motivation is behind other trade agreements — between Canada and China for example. For the same reason we trade with Russia and China, just as we trade with countries of the west, and France sells military aircraft to South Africa.

The moral of course is that if we were to cut off trade with nations whose ideologies differ from our own, we would simply be cutting off our nose to spite our face. International trade would grind to a halt and the resulting added hardship and suffering would be to the loss of all mankind.

But What About Subversives Elsewhere?

Quebec's Move to Curb Radicalism in Universities

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The university and college communities are not going to like it a bit, but they may be surprised to know just how many taxpayers all across the country will be standing up to cheer the decision of the Quebec Education Department to investigate chaos on the campus.

The post-FLQ judgment to assign a Royal Commission to look into the universities as a potential political propaganda machines for revolution has been made by Quebec Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre.

He made up his mind, he has disclosed, not merely on the very live suspicion of the potential for revolution of the university, but on evidence of actuality.

Some professors and teachers, charges Mr. Saint-Pierre, have been using the political manifesto of the terrorist kidnap - murder Front de Libération du Québec as a working paper in their classes.

But that is not all the evidence, readily at hand, to support his indictment that some professors in some disciplines in some universities are preaching the gospel of dissent - by violence.

Hugh MacLennan, one of Canada's foremost novelists and himself a professor of English at Montreal's McGill University, has given written testimony of it.

Author of the celebrated "Two Solitudes," which so deeply probed the centuries old division between the French and English in Quebec — and to some extent in the rest of Canada, too — has taken a look at the FLQ terror, and, in part, written:

"If the Quebec crisis did nothing else, it exploded before our eyes two great myths of the post-war world — that in the modern Village, the media link us with instant reality and that the hope of civilization lies in universal education.

"He then accuses television of "a decade of inflammatory irresponsibility," and goes on:

"No student riot or strike was real unless the TV cameras were there. The egos of the adolescents were fed and fattened until they believed the whole world stood in awe of them just because some professors courted their goodwill with slavish flattery.

"In the name of an unidentified freedom, some professors — most of them foreigners — delivered themselves of a casuistry that made it legitimate to believe that they considered anyone who was willing to admit a difference between right and wrong, between truth and falsehood, was in reactionary that he had been by-passed by evolution. Student power became another word for student blackmail."

Then, just the other day, at a teach-in organized jointly by the New Democratic Youth and the University of Toronto Student Council, 500 academic activists stood and cheered when Gaston Therrien, who said he was a friend of Marc Carbonneau and Francis Lanctot — two of the exiled kidnappers of the now - freed British diplomat James Cross, raised his arm in a clenched fist salute and screamed "Vive le Quebec Libre."

And when another member of the audience — one of about 15 of a dissenting minority — asked "What about Pierre Laporte and his right to live?" the youth was beaten by the student mob and tossed into the street.

So perhaps Quebec Education Minister Saint -Pierre, already facing charges by some in the academic community that he is trying to "muzzle" them, as they protest it, has some pretty good grounds on which to base his Royal Commission investigation of the universities.

But let him outline them.

He has called the probe, explains Mr. Saint-Pierre, "to find some way of protecting professors from using the classroom as a forum for political propaganda and the indoctrination of violence."

Having said that much, he means right out with the objective: "I think society has shown in recent weeks that it wants this preaching of revolution stopped."

He promises no interference with the academic community's right to "differ in matters of religion, politics and ideology this side of open revolt.

"But this academic freedom must no longer be used as an umbrella to hide incompetence, intellectual dishonesty and provocation of a nuisance in the equilibrium both of our education system and society itself."

In letters to all university presidents and rectors, junior college principals and school board chairmen, the Quebec Education Minister concedes that nothing should "interfere with their concern for legitimate social change." but warns that if the classroom no longer can be permitted to operate as a pressure - cooker of provocation to violence and revolution.

He is inviting complaints about the abuses that grow in the campus community of academic freedom from parents, taxpayers and educational administrators.

That threat of "approached insurrection" during the FLQ crisis which persuaded Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau to ask Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to proclaim the War Measures Act clearly came from the campus.

The Quebec Government feared that the FLQ terrorists, with sympathy and even support in the universities, would succeed in their open attempts to get the students to pour off their campuses and, having got them into the streets, then bring them into conflict with the police, or even worse, the troops.

The university and college atmosphere was charged.

Now, Quebec Education Minister Saint-Pierre is defusing it.

But how about some other education ministers in other parts of Canada?

"Isn't it wonderful how the power strike has reduced everyone to a common denominator, 'aroid?"

Educational Evolution

Change—and New Methods—Are Inevitable

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to comment, as a parent, on education in general on the attitudes of parents regarding education, and also offer an answer to Lenny William son's recent articles. This was a most commendable series of articles in a paper which serves its community well. Mrs. Williamson's reporting was factual, her writing was skilful, and there was no prepossession toward bias of any sort. She is a fine objective writer.

There has been so much written and said about education lately that one conclusion which is obvious must be drawn, and that is that intelligent parents of today are not apathetic about the quality of education their young people are receiving. Having parents remain the same, always wanting the best for their children. May I respectfully submit to other parents two questions I feel we as parents should be asking ourselves today? 1. What is the best kind of education for my child? and 2. What kind of person do I hope he will turn out to be?

We have all heard many times, and have undoubtedly said, "I want my children to have the advantages I never had." Parents who can honestly remember saying this, full of genuine love and generosity usually proceed to give their youngsters the latest, the coolest and the most they can afford. "Advantages" cannot just be measured in terms of money. Advantages are things, and the conversion to having more and more is gradual and most culpable. (This writer's happiness is being a two or three snowmobile family.)

It is not lamenting that people who welcome changes in every other field, who reject the old and buy the new, completely reverse their thinking when it comes to education, and will say, and I've heard it several times, "I don't like these new ideas. This is not the way we were taught. We had to danced well sit still and listen."? So, while they eagerly accept technological advances, updated teaching methods are suspect. "Advantages" cannot just be material things. Every aspect of living must be considered, and educational methods should be at the top of the list. Ways of teaching which were impossible and stultifying to previous children in the 30's, 40's, and 50's are not good enough for the children of the 70's.

We might wish we could do something to slow down the advancing years, but they are inevitable. So is change. There can be no turning back the change. And we can exercise no effect on the pace of change. A child who is in grade one or five this year, time will be at his peak learning period his assumption; it would be a few years (either way) in the year 2000, A.D. The lesson children of today must learn is how to deal with the world of that time, the world they have to inherit. They must be able to assess this bombardment of change, to evaluate, accept or reject. The high school student of the future must be accustomed to "shaping" his own future, and not be overwhelmed by the diversity of choice. By the time little people of this day arrive at the time of life when they are observing their own children, it is to be hoped they will be able to look with interest, and take in their stride the pile-up of information, new things, taking or rejecting what best suits their own interests.

In the schools around here, one that I know of in particular, and I have no reason to think the one I am familiar with would be an exception, principal and teachers are working at teaching their pupils to learn. The liberal structure of thinking is being established, and the avenues of wonder in directions the parents never travelled. It is the beginning of tomorrow and should be welcomed with a cheer.

The three R's are basic and important. Your child can not be led in the shuffle, because he is working at his own rate of development, and is happy doing so, unless he thinks Mom and Dad are worried. This new approach to teaching makes a great deal more work for each teacher and principal because they have to have at their fingertips the knowledge of the level at which each child is working in each subject.

This is my answer to what I think is "the best for my child," be any child.

"What do you hope your child will be?" Every parent has a dreams, aspirations, hopes for each child they have, and a picture in their mind of that child at maturity. Children, however, do what they can within the framework of their own ability. With guidance, in a kind and interested family, much can be accomplished. They deserve the very best.

H. CALDWELL

A Downtown Store Employee's View Of City's Shopping Hours

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I should like to add a few comments to those of Mr. Jim Hitchon and Mr. Stanley Davidson, regarding store hours in Belleville.

As an employee who has worked in a downtown store for almost 11 years, I would like to put on record how bitterly I would regret losing my Wednesday assist, which not only enables me to enjoy a change of pace, if not a rest, but also makes it possible to organize my household chores in such a manner that order is restored twice a week instead of once.

I would like to remind Mr. Hitchen that the same bylaw which says that stores may open on Thursday evening, also sanctions their opening at the crack of dawn! The exact hour escapes me, but I trust that he will investigate, so that he will not disappoint prospective customers who go early to work.

Regarding the new hours themselves, I sincerely trust that the idea is not that Belleville should conform to the hours set by the small communities which surround it.

Monday closing also raises the question of many industry days. Are unprotected workers to be deprived of their rights in this respect?

Such changes could create difficulties for the owners of small stores with few employees particularly those which also have service departments.

Another point — has it occurred to anyone that the only people who need more shopping hours are those who work in stores?

As an example of the pace it is necessary to maintain I will lift the veil of privacy on halfan-hour of my lunch time today. At high noon I left my office on the upper part of Front Street, deposited a pair of shoes for repair at a shop on the Post Bridge, walked in Victoria and Grey Trust, made out a deposit slip and concluded my business there. I then visited a book store where I purchased two books and a special greeting card, besides taking a furtive and mouthwatering look at The Group of Seven. I then bought two presents at two separate department stores, after which I purchased a loaf of bread, returning to my desk on time, ready to greet our first customer with a smile.

Perhaps you will understand why I shrink from the idea of any change in the present sense of existence, especially staggering under those extra Christmas hours.

These opinions are not necessarily those of my employer, Hitchon Radio and Television.

BETTY SADLER,
Ameliasburg.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 17, 1970 . . .

The first legislative assembly of Lower Canada met at Quebec 178 years ago today—in 1972—when there were 130,000 settlers in the province and only 10,000 in Upper Canada, which was ruled from Newport now Niagara by Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe and a small legislature. There was early resistance to aristocratism rule and "governorest interference" — both Canadas, checked only by the War of 1812, until the rebellions of 1837 and Lord Durham's appointment as Governor-General.

1814—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization advised its military commanders to plan on using atomic weapons in the event of Soviet aggression.

1535—The first contingent of the 1st Canadian Infantry Division arrived in the United Kingdom during the Second World War.

1941—The British government proclaimed Egypt a protectorate.

1825—William Lyon Mackenzie was expelled from the Upper Canada legislature for the third time.

1836—Simon Bolivar, liberator of South America, died.

1917—Napoleon issued the Milan decree to bar British trade with the Continent.

In October, council learned of a proposed road-naming petition to be submitted by D. J. Hornik of RR 5, Belleville. This petition was submitted and accepted; council approved the name of Hunt-ingwood Drive for the unnamed road running through lots 25 and 26 of concession four and lots 33 and 33 of concession three, south to Highway 401.

Council last night authorized a grant of $1,500 to the RCAF Memorial Fund, for the planned Trenton memorial.

An Animal Patrol Officer for Don Tuckey of 343 Front St., Stirling, unwrapped 1,100 new 1971 dog tags for immediate distribution, council jokingly requested a roundup of 3 particular mouse once again interrupting council. No solution as yet has been taken.

The tags will sell for regular fees of $2 male and spayed female, and $6 for female dogs until S.pt. 1, 1971, at that time a $1 tardy fee will be applied.

Anti-Littering Law Sought

The Moira River Conservation Authority will ask Ontario Attorney General Arthur Wishart to enact legislation allowing for conviction and penalties for littering of private property.

Former Rangeford township reeve Harold Varty told Authority members yesterday that there was no law against littering of farm property.

The only recourse a farmer had against littering was to sue in case of damage to property or injury to animals..

Farm livestock could be injured by broken bottles or other refuse, he said.

Mr. Verty noted that the province provided penalties for littering of highway property, but this legislation did not extend to private property.

The former township reeve read a newspaper report of one farmer who had chased a motorist to protest against him throwing litter on his property.

The farmer learned that he could legally take no action and all that happened was that the provincial police charged him with careless driving for cutting in front of the motorist.

Ann Landers

Drug Store Display Offensive to Many

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Am I square? Am I hopelessly out of date? Am I an unbelievable creep? If I am, please tell me. Here's the situation: I walked into a drug store with my 14-year-old daughter and there on the counter, plain as day, was a display of birth control devices. I pretended not to see it, but my daughter went red and looking me off so nastily. She fairly shrieked, "Look at that wild advertisement. . . ." and pointed to a pasteboard replica of a magazine ad which I had seen before. It read, "ninety per cent of all people are caused by accidents."

Please help me, Ann Landers, what do you think of that ad? What do you think of a drug store that would feature such a display? What do you think of this degree of frankness? Sign me — FUDDY DUDDY DAD IN OAKLAND.

DEAR FUD: (1) The ad, I believe is overstating the case, but there is more than a germ of truth in the allegation. (2) In my opinion such a display is offensive to a large number of people and it is extremely poor taste. (3) The trend is toward frankness, and may be healthy according to some behavioral experts, but this is too frank for me. If this labels me a nobita who is hopelessly out of date, move over and make room for one more.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the letter from the woman who disliked having guests come into her kitchen and "help" her. Several years ago I clipped a wonderful little poem out of the paper, and this poem should be on the wall in the kitchen cupboard of every woman who has the problem. When the unwanted guest barges in, the brain business need not say a word — If she just points to the poem she will get the idea. Here is the poem but I can't tell you where it came from.

Please stay away from my kitchen,
From my dishwashing, cooking and such.
You need to have others to help me
And I do want to thank you so much.
I hope you won't think me ungracious
When I ask that you leave me alone.
For my kitchen is not very spacious
And my system is strictly my own.
So please stay out of my kitchen,
It may well prevent a few wars,
And when I am invited to your house.
I promise to stay out of yours.

A Friend

DEAR FRIEND: Thanks for writing. I can tell you where the poem came from . . . my column. It's worth repeating, however, and I'm glad you sent it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's the letter I've been meaning to write for ages. It is for the 16-year-old who bought two blouses and a sweater and wasn't charged for the sweater. She thought she saved $11.

When I was 18 (I'm 39 now) I worked as a cashier in a supermarket. At the end of the day I had to tally my slips against the cash. If I was short, the difference came out of my pocket. Some of the girls I worked with got stuck for huge amounts. (One woman had to come up with $66.) I was never that shakcky, but one evening I was short $15. My heart sank. Just as we were about to lock up, a rather shabbily dressed lady appeared. She said she had just counted her change and discovered I had given her $15 too much. I could have kissed her. . . .

Ask your readers how they would like to stand on their feet all day and then have to pay out $117 — FAITH IN HUMANITY.

DEAR FRIEND: Keep the faith, Baby — and thanks for a heart-warming letter.

You can have fun doing exercises. Take the work out of them by shaping a sweater. 10 stitches each way.

Various Thoughts on Opening One's Mouth

By DORIS CLARK

Talking about communicating. I am reminded of a picture of Lauren Pearson with one hand around a post supporting an elongated woodsy effigy of the Easter (Island pole type). A blurb suggests that he is saying, "There are times when I just have to talk to someone."

The photograph on the page opposite is of John Diefenbaker with eyebrows raised and pointing his finger at someone. And what is he supposed to be saying? "Open your mouth once more, and I'm going my finger."

Lovely samples of Canadian humor! To be found in a book of such pictures turned out for our Centennial but now in a second paperback edition. The book? "How Show Ma You Belly-Button!" — a provocative title only vaguely related to the subjects covered.

Dear Doris: We took on a job as a couple, taking care of a motel, and getting a good wage between us, and living quarters. I did the units, answered phone and did washing and so on. My husband did the firing, painting, general maintenance.

Then I had to go into hospital for a hernia operation and my husband told the boss he wanted me taken off the payroll. I came out of hospital this morning ready for work and my husband would no longer let me have any part in the business. . . .

My husband spends all his time in the office with the boss, never in our part. The boss even told me, "You make me feel as if I shouldn't be here." I'm slowly going up the walls. — Pushed Out.

Dear Pushed Out: Could it be that your husband wants to be the breadwinner in your family? Have you been accustomed to taking over the reins?

In many cases it is far better for two people who live together to spend their daytimes at jobs completely removed from each other. This way each asserts his own personality in his work; and each has something different and stimulating to bring home.

Put some confidence in your husband. Divert yourself from worry about the business by taking up a new hobby or community service. This will change the water on the beans.

Dear Doris: It has been eight months since I, went steady with this boy, but during that time he asked me out several times and we always had a good time. I think of him constantly even if I am out with another boy.

Whenever he meets any of my friends he wants to know how I am and what I am doing. Please don't tell me to put him out of my mind because I am sure I am in love with him. I've tried to forget him and I can't. We're both 19 and in school. — Can't Live Without Him.

Dear Can't: Give him time. In fairness to the other boys, deliberately put him out of your mind when you are with them. It might surprise you to find that some of the others would bear a little more serious consideration.

Then when you are with him, go right ahead and think about him all you like. Want my leaflet, "What Is Love?", to help you with your thinking?

Gram 'Okays' Special Cookies

By MARY MOORE

Extravagance is not one of my weaknesses and as you know I discourage it by helping you to cook inexpensive or moderately priced foods so that they have a luxurious flavor and an expensive appearance.

But I have an Achilles' heel in the shape of my grandchildren. "Gram, can we make them chocolate chip cookies that have both kinds in — chocolate and butterscotch!" Because I was a treat from my files I had to guess at what they were referring to, so I paid 39 cents for each 6-oz. pkge. of chips which is a rank extravagance. So if you want 6 doz. 2" cookies that the children can make all by themselves (and eat!) here goes:

CHIP CHIP COOKIES
(6 doz. — 2")
1 cup soft shortening (part butter)
¾ cup white sugar
¾ cup light brown sugar
2 eggs
2 tsps. vanilla
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
½ cup chocolate chips
½ cup butterscotch chips
1 cup chopped walnuts or desiccated coconut

Into beater bowl measure the soft shortening, sugars, eggs and vanilla. Beat until creamy and light. Sift sifted flour with soda and salt and beat in until blended. Remove beaters and stir in chips and nuts or coconut.

Butter cookie sheets and shape cookie dough into 1" balls between your moistened palms, placing them 2" apart on cookie sheets.

Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 8 min., turning pans around at halftime. Use metal spatula to lift from pans and transfer to cake racks to cool. You will have four parcels! In all.

All I did was hover in or near the kitchen to make sure that nobody and no cookies were burned.

These were stored in a cookie crock but I need not have worried about storage. They disappeared so fast keeping them was never a problem.

WEDDING

GRANT — LOWDEN

St. Ann's Catholic Church, Quesnel, B.C. was the scene of the recent wedding which united in marriage Elizabeth Hughes, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Lowden of Quesnel and Mark Lane, son of Mrs. Daniel Cassidy of Belleville and Mr. D. Grant of Maynooth. Rev. Father John Shatfield officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Miss Silvia Colli was soloist and was accompanied by Mrs. James Girvin at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie designed on empire lines. Rich lace over sheer formed the bodice which featured a scoop neckline. The bishop sleeves which were gathered into elbow length cuffs of peau de soie were fastened with a row of tiny self-covered buttons. A dainty band of orange blossoms held her chapel veil in place. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Holly Ernst was maid of honor and the bride's sisters Leslea and Teri were bridesmaids wearing identically styled floor length gowns of deep pink nylon crepe designed on empire lines with gently rounded necklines. The long full sheer sleeves were gathered at the wrists. All carried bouquets of pink and white 'mums.

Robbie Lastman of Quesnel was best man, while the ushers were Jack Collins and Donald Cook.

A reception was held for 100 guests at the Masonic Hall in Quesnel, where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a dress of deep turquoise sculptured forrel with matching shoes and a corsage of white carnations sprayed with silver and turquoise. The bridegroom's mother who travelled from Belleville wore a rose lace ensemble with a corsage of white carnations. W. J. Ernst was master of ceremonies at the reception and proposed the toast to the bride. Following, music for dancing was provided.

For her going-away outfit the bride chose a pantsuit in shades of brown with a corsage of yellow Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Grant will make their home in Quesnel.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

AQUARIUM CLUB

A fish competition was held and award ribbons were presented to the following at the December meeting of the Belleville and District Aquarium club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Thain — Vincent Sinclair, Marguerite Wessels, Calvin Sinclair, Velma Sinclair, Terry Rollinc, Brenda Nickle, Richard Nickle and Victor Adams.

The guest room was decorated in a Christmas theme. The program consisted of a pantomime contest conducted by Margaret Wessels, a record played by Richard Nickle, a reading by Dawn Nickle, a talk on the tetra species of fish by Alma Adam and two colored slides shown by the program convener Dave Jones. Mrs. Jody La Rue won the raffle prize of a cake yule log donated by Shirley Robinson. Those who got door prizes were Barbara Wylie, Randy Murray, Richard Nickle, Wallace Cassick, Douglas Sinclair and Dene Wilson.

Santa Claus arrived in the traditional manner with one of his little elves. Everyone received presents and a jolly half-hour was enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Thain were presented with a gift from the club by Effie Caslick for opening their home to the club.

All in the Family

When Sherril Brennan, 14, of Girl Guide Company 12, received her gold cord last night at Harry J. Clarke Public School, her own mother presented it. Mrs. Gerry Brennan is the company leader. Attaching a Christmas token to Miss Brennan's tunic is Mrs. Dan Stewart, affectionately known as "Grandma". A retired district commissioner, "Grandma" helped Guide Sherril and her friends towards the gold cord award, back when the girls were leaving Brownies.

Church Groups Hold Meetings

MARYSVILLE CWL

The December meeting of Marysville CWL was held in the school auditorium and director Father W. Doyre opened with prayer.

The president Mrs. D. McLaren welcomed Father J. Farrell of the Scarboro Missions. He was presented with a cheque to assist in the building of a school in India for which the Jesuits are working.

Father Farrell expressed his gratitude to the League members. He told how last year's donation had dug a well with the result that the people of that area had pure water to drink, plus the fact that it had provided work for many.

Mrs. J. Walsh gave a report of her trip to Toronto with the 4-H girls.

Mrs. Crawford offered to donate material toward a quilt and Mrs. J. Murphy has again agreed to help in the making of it.

A donation will be made toward the Tyendinaga Recreation Committee fund which the children derive much enjoyment.

The sick and shut-ins will be remembered at Christmas.

A short program followed with Mrs. P. Whalen, Mrs. H. Callaghan and Mrs. F. Mahoney as conveners.

A Christmas tree and gaily wrapped gifts to be exchanged by the members provided a seasonal atmosphere.

A reading: Thinking About Christmas, a contest and carols formed the program. A tasty lunch was served.

MOUNT PLEASANT - RAWDON MESSENGER GROUP

The Mount Pleasant - Rawdon messenger group held its December meeting at the church hall with 75 adults and children in attendance.

The leaders Mrs. Raymond McConnell and Mrs. Stanley Williams had decorated the hall with a lighted evergreen tree, red candles and poinsettia. Gill McAdam presided over the program. Miss Brenda Williams and Mrs. Garth Joslin conducted the sing-song.

Selections were read by Debbie David, Dean Graff, Brian Hubel, Kathy Sharpe and Terry Bailey. Piano music was played by Sunette Morgan, Gill McAdam, Lynn Joslin and Jo Anne Campbell. A duet was rendered by Linda Heard and Isobel Heard with Gary Couch playing accordion music. Recitations were given by Donnie Hubel and Kenneth Heard. Others assisting with the program were Janey Talsma, Kathy Sharpe, Jennifer Joslin, Gail Merrick, Kim Graff and Brian Hubel. The children decided to donate proceeds from their card money to "CARE" and to the retarded children's home at Plainfield.

At the close all the children were presented with gifts and treats. Refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed by all.

On Buying, Storing, Christmas Trees

TORONTO (CP) — A Christmas tree should have at least two good bushy faces, even if you are going to stand it in a corner. It must have a straight trunk or you won't be able to stand it anywhere.

Jack McInally says Christmas trees have four faces, and on the best trees all four are full and whatever with no "holes" where branches are sparse.

When you buy your tree, he says, you should insist on having a look at it so that you can judge its faces and see how straight the stem is.

"There is nothing more aggravating than getting a tree that won't stand up. People should be selective when they buy trees—too many of them will buy it as long as it looks like a Christmas tree."

Mr. McInally is associate director of the inspection branch of the Ontario department of agriculture. One of his branch's jobs is to inspect tree plantations when the growers ask them to. Ontario has five grades, though Mr. McInally says they are not in general use. A grower that does want to use them to market his trees asks for a provincial inspector to have his grading verified.

The check sheet the inspector uses makes a good guide for anyone who wants to buy an attractive Christmas tree.

Premium trees must be fresh and have the characteristics of their type. They must be clean and free of foreign material such as vines.

They must have a that (from cut to lowest branches) about six inches long to fit easily into most Christmas tree holders and stand steadily. Mr. McInally says you should cut off about half an inch of the butt when you get the tree home so it can absorb water more easily.

You should store and stand a Christmas tree in water.

Inspectors look at the density of a tree's branches. You should not be able to see straight through a tree, Nowadays, Mr. McInally says, most tree growers prune their trees as they grow to encourage them to thicken, as well as to shape them.

A grower who wants to grade his trees marks the ones he intends to market, and the inspectors try to look at at least 10 per cent of the trees.

They look for gaps between branches, unduly long branches, uneven density in any face, weak or broken branches.

They look for a curved stem and for multiple stems above the top whorl or layer of branches. They look for a crow's nest, a little cluster at the top of the tree, and for a gooseneck, or extra-long leader or stem at the top without needles on it.

Most Christmas trees are picked out and tagged during August and September and cut in October. As the demand builds in the last few days before Christmas, an increasing number of cuts find their way to the Christmas tree lots, Mr. McInally says.

His advice: buying your tree as late as possible to ensure its freshness, but early enough to get a well-shaped tree. Feel it to be sure it is fresh.

Store it outdoors if you can, in water, and when you take it indoors, use a stand that holds water.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Now that Terry is in high school, I worry so about the drug problem and juvenile delinquency. I have no reason to suspect that he is using drugs, but I certainly feel it is my duty to check on him constantly. I look in his bureau drawer everyday, in case he has some drugs hidden."

Proper supervision of a teen-ager demands an alert, open mind, but not an anxious and suspicious one.

Enjoy your youngster's teen years and don't anticipate all the problems of adolescence that you read about. Be aware of your child's problems, activities and friends, but if he always has been trustworthy, don't check on him constantly or you may undermine his trust in you.

Medical Secretaries Hold Yule Party

The Quinte Medical Secretaries were feted by many doctor/employers from Belleville, Trenton and Frankford, at a most delightful Christmas dinner and evening at Sun Luck Gardens. Seated at the head table were the president, Mrs. Diana Maxwell and honorary president, Dr. F. H. Swaine, past-president, Mrs. Doreen Ware and past honorary president, Dr. B. P. Miranda, vice-president, Mrs. Eileen Conley and Dr. R. A. Albert; Goldie's representative to OMSA, Mrs. Beth Cunningham, president of Ont. Med. Sec. Assn., Mrs. Doris Crawford; honored guests, Miss Hilda Murray and Dr. J. Russell Scott; and president of Kingston Med. Sec. Assn., Miss Rose Mary Murphy.

Corsages were presented to Miss Murray by Mrs. Diana Maxwell and to Mrs. Crawford by Mrs. Beth Cunningham.

After extending a cordial welcome, Mrs. Maxwell introduced Mrs. Crawford who brought greetings from OMSA.

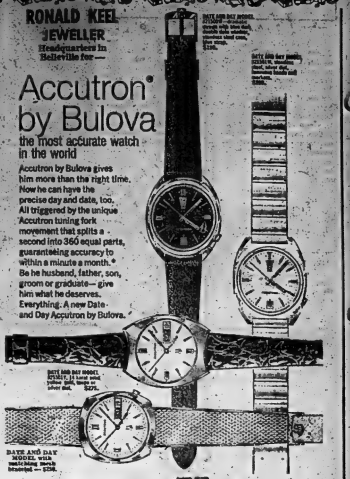
While introducing the guest speaker Dr. Russell Scott, mayor of Belleville, Mrs. Mae Caldbeck gave a brief history from DOB to present and a lengthy list which had the comical tone, of all the organizations and committees to which the mayor belongs or on which he serves.

Dr. Scott reminiscingly described "how it was" in those first years of medical practice. He was the first doctor in Belleville to have an office in a building other than his home, and it was thought then that this arrangement would never work out. His present secretary, Miss Hilda Murray also started to work for him in those early days, some 25 years ago. Dr. Scott described many changes during those years, both in the hospital and in the doctor's office, concluding that a computer will never replace the medical secretary.

Dr. Scott was thanked by Mrs. Caldbeck.

Miss Hilda Murray was honored for her support to Quinte Medical Secretaries since its inception. She was presented with a gift from the association which she very graciously accepted.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Carol Wilkinson and Dr. L. G. Dockrill.



Special thanks were accorded to Mrs. Lena Anderson and her committee whose efforts made this a most successful evening, to Mrs. Marion McFaul for the Christmas table centres and place settings, and to Mrs. Jackie Vivian for being photographer.

Each medical secretary brought with her a gift to be given to an adult. These gifts are presented to the Canadian Mental Health Association who in turn wrap them and distribute them to patients under their care.

At the next meeting on January 13, 1971, in Education Hall, BGH, Harold Seldon, pharmacist, will show slides taken on his recent visit to Japan and the Far East. The meeting will start at 7.30 p.m. sharp.

Cards Replaced by Ads, —Humorous and Stuffy

LONDON (AP) — The Christmas season is in full swing in London with shoppers jamming the stores, carols in the streets and many Merry Christmas greetings in the want-ad section of The Times.

A greetings ad in the small black type of the Times' classified columns amounts to a status symbol in Britain, where people who don't want to mail Christmas cards can pay the equivalent of $2.36 a line to say they won't be sending any.

"Sir Earl and Lady Parker wish all their relations and friends best wishes for Christmas and 1971," said one ad.

"They are not sending Christmas cards this year."

"DR. Leslie D. Weatherhead is not sending Christmas cards this year, but hopes his friends will accept this expression of his best wishes for Christmas and the New Year," said another.

Some of the ads are funny, but most are dignified, saying the greetings intend to donate to charity the money they would have spent on cards, or apologizing that illness or trips kept them from sending personal messages.

One frivolous ad read: "Wombles and friends. Christmas greetings from Wimbledon. Great Uncle Bulgaria." Last year there was one with a vengeance: "Annie Merrill will not be sending Alan Herbert a Christmas card this year as he has not sent her one."

Someone named Peter Jolley reversed the pictures and placed an ad saying he was "not placing an ad in the Times this year."

"He is sending Christmas cards instead."

The greetings appear in the widely read columns among notices of used Bentley limousines for sale, chauffeurs-cum-valets or customers wanted for a package tour to Mount Everest.

An even more striking status symbol is to pay an extra $1.44 a line and put the ad on the court circular page, where the doings of Britain's Royal Family are announced.

This way the Christmas greetings, with luck, may appear under a Buckingham Palace announcement about the Queen's latest social function.

But many of the advertisers who use the court page are lords, ladies or other title holders, and they get priority. That means a commoner's Christmas wishes are printed farther down the page.

Publisher Says Ryerson Sale Was Inevitable

TORONTO (CP) — The president of McClelland and Stewart Ltd. publishing company says the provincial and federal governments would have had no right to intervene in the recent sale of Ryerson Press to United States interests.

Jack McClelland made the comment during taping of the Pierre Berton television show which will be seen today on stations in 12 Canadian cities.

Mr. McClelland said Ryerson, sold this month by the United Church of Canada to American-owned McGraw-Hill of Canada Ltd. was "a very sick company."

"It had done little . . . important publishing in the last 20 years. They were bereft of authors . . . and I think maybe the Canadian industry was benefited by the sale . . . "

Mr. McClelland said the church has no business in the publishing industry and government has no right to intervene in sales of publishing companies.

"I simply don't think it (the publishing industry) needs this type of government intervention," he said.

Mr. McClelland said the Canadian publishing industry is not in trouble and has never been more competitive.

Tim Reid, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough East who also is to appear on the show, expressed concern that multi-national corporations are "penetrating our schools and pushing out Canadian (publishing) material."

"I have no objection to our schools using better books from the United States if they can get better books from the United States provided our department of education insists on sufficient Canadian content," said Mr. Reid.

Eagleson Says No Back Room Deals In Running Feb 10-12 PC Convention

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative leadership convention, to be held in Toronto Feb. 10-12, "is going to be handled honestly, properly and completely above board," convention chairman Alan Eagleson said Wednesday.

Mr. Eagleson, president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, said at a news conference there will be "no backroom politics" in selecting a successor to Premier John Robarts, who announced his retirement last week.

Reports that a committee, set up at the request of Mr. Robarts, was attempting to structure the convention to favor the yet-to-be-announced candidacy of Education Minister William Davis were erroneous, Mr. Eagleson said.

He said the committee, which included himself, was only a formative one necessary to initiate convention plans.

The party president identified the members of Mr. Robarts' "preliminary committee" besides himself as: Edwin Goodman, a Toronto lawyer; G. Ernest Jackson, London, Ont.; Joe Baruicke, Toronto; Hugh Latimer, Toronto; Arthur Harnett, executive director of the provincial PC association, and Peter Herder, president of a Toronto advertising company.

Mr. Eagleson said only Mr. Jackson, Mr. Latimer, Mr. Harnett and Mr. Hunter attended a meeting at which names were suggested for filling the posts of chairmen of the convention sub-committees.

Mr. Eagleson stressed that the names suggested by the four men were only "recommendations" to be acted on by the party's executive council.

The reports suggested that the party establishment, represented by Mr. Goodman and Mr. Jackson, was attempting to take over the convention.

Mr. Eagleson said Wednesday the only group "in charge of this convention will be the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association," and that nothing had been "purposely done to gather a group of Davis people behind the scenes."

"The convention will be held in a totally democratic manner that is completely fair for all candidates."

He said the convention organization, as set up by the executive council Wednesday morning, assures that "every group in our party is guaranteed representation on every committee."

Heading the convention organization, as outlined at the news conference by Mr. Eagleson, will be a general convention committee comprising:

Mr. Eagleson, chairman; Mr. Harnett; Alene Holt, president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Women's Association; Sean O'Sullivan, president of the Ontario Young Progressive Conservative Association; Douglas Jure, president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Students' Association; Mr. Goodman; Mr. Jackson, and the chairmen and co-chairmen of the 10 standing committees.

Chief among the standing committees is the arrangements committee, with Mr. Jackson as chairman and consisting of Mr. Eagleson, Mr. Harnett, Mrs. Holt, Mr. O'Sullivan, Mr. Jure, Mr. Goodman, "and such chairmen and co-chairmen of committees as appears necessary in the circumstances."

Other committees and their chairmen and co-chairmen are:

Registration: Mr. Latimer, chairman; Ann Rowan of Toronto, co-chairman.

Policy: Prof. Ron Alley of London, Ont., chairman; Wally Baker of Ottawa, co-chairman.

Public Relations: Mr. Hunter, chairman; Perrin Beatty of Fergus, Ont., co-chairman.

Accommodations: Mr. Barnicke, chairman; Mrs. Edward Dunlop of Toronto, co-chairman.

Stunt Man Murder

Manson 'Family' Indicted

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A Los Angeles County grand jury indicted three members of the Manson "family" Wednesday on charges of murdering film stuntman Donald Shea, 40, in August last year but ordered the names of the charged trio kept secret.

The identity of two of them will be revealed today when they are arraigned in Los Angeles Superior Court.

District Attorney Joe Busch said that the three charged with the Shea murder are already in custody.

Sources in Busch's office said the three indicted were hippie leader Charles Manson, eight women and two of his male lieutenants, Steve Grogan, 19, and Bruce Davis, 27.

Shea, a horse wrangler and part-time actor who lived on the Manson "family" ranch, disappeared in August, 1969.

Davis has been charged with Manson with the torture murder of Los Angeles musician Gary Hinman in July last year.

He gave himself up two weeks ago after being a fugitive for eight months on the Hinman charges.

23,500 GM Workers Vote on Company Offer

TORONTO (CP) — A three-year agreement, with an immediate pay increase of almost 15 per cent, seemed likely to end the General Motors of Canada Ltd. strike today.

Ratification votes were to be held this morning in Ontario and at St. Therese, Que. The decision of the 23,500 striking members of the United Auto Workers union is expected to be available tonight.

The new agreement, announced Wednesday afternoon by UAW and GM officials, was almost assured of approval by union officials.

Otherwise, workers who have lost an average $2,000 in wages during the strike that began three months ago face a bleak Christmas.

If the new contract is approved GM will be back in production Monday.

Company and union spokesman refused to give details on the proposal until the ratification meetings start, but sources say the agreement calls for a base rate in Canada of $4.12 an hour for assemblers in the top category of workers.

Before the strike started Sept. 15, GM workers in Canada and the United States were earning $3.38 an hour.

The Canadian proposal does not call for a five-cent cost-of-living float on top of the base rate and for therefore if up in cents below parity with American workers. They settled last month for $4.03 an hour plus a five-cent float.

Canadian workers are to receive base-rate hikes of 12 cents December next year through increases to $4.15 an hour in Sept-ember and $4.25 an hour in December.

Rates in Canada and the United States would then be increased by three per cent in each of the second and third years of the contract.

The Canadian union also got an agreement from the company to pay cost-of-living increases at the rate of one cent an hour for every 0.4 increase in the Canadian cost-of-living index based on the value of a dollar in 1961.

General Motors wanted the cost-of-living clause based on 0.6 increases in the old index, based on 1949 prices.

But to get the 18 cents needed to reach parity by the end of 1971, the union had to give GM a concession which allows the company to recover up to 13 cents from cost-of-living increases in the final two years.

By the end of the new contract, the rate at assemblers would be making $4.51 an hour plus any cost-of-living increase above 13 cents.

The union also got increases in the company pension plan and established a supplemental unemployment benefits agreement which one union official described as "a victory in itself."

The language-rights issue at St. Therese, Que., developed into an impasse and the union agreed to take it off the table. Officials of the St. Therese local concurred when they were assured discussions on the subject would continue at the plant when workers are back on the job.

Eighty per cent of the workers at St. Therese speak French. They wanted French as the working language and they requested an end to English domination of the plant administration.

The union rejected a number of company proposals before the drawn

The over-all agreement applies to the St. Therese and Oshawa assembly plants, the GM engine plant and foundry in St. Catharines, Frigidaire plant at Toronto, diesel plant at London and trim plant at Windsor.

If the rank and file endorses it today some employees will get a paycheque before Christmas. A company spokesman conceded that "unfortunately" most will not.

GM public relations officer Larry Gough said the company would start calling in Maintenance workers tonight if the contract is approved.

Anybody who starts work before Monday will be paid Wednesday for the hours he puts in this week but the bulk of the workers will not get back to their jobs until the assembly lines start up on Monday and will not be paid until Dec. 30.

The prospect of a settlement also pleased GM suppliers although the hard-hit manufacturers of rubber, paint, upholstery and glass used by GM expected some lag before they have work available for employees they have laid off. Much material was stockpiled shortly after the strike started.

Steel producers estimated they lost between $35 million and $40 million in sales because of the strike. No estimate of the amount lost by parts suppliers was available but most expected they will not be back in production until early 1971.

A Toronto car dealer estimated the strike cost his firm $1.5 million in lost sales.

"We've had a poor selection of new cars since Oct. 26," said Ralph Phillips, general manager of Hogan Pontiac and Buick. "The public knew GM was struck and so they lost interest in buying."

General Motors itself expects to end the year with assembly totals 45 per cent below 1969 totals.

At full production for six or seven working days until the end of the year, the company will be able to raise its car and truck assembly total only to 285,000 units for 1970—compared to 498,022 last year.

Ratification of an agreement today would benefit other stalled auto talks in both Canada and the United States.

The Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. talks at Windsor have continued at sub-committee level but master bargaining has been held off until the GM pact, which provides industry-wide guidelines, is signed.

Chrysler Corp. has an over-all agreement with its workers that covers both Canada and the U.S. so talks in Detroit have been slowed by the lack of a Canadian GM settlement.

Both sides took pains Wednesday to emphasize that the GM settlement was achieved by Canadians, rather than the main international figures at the talks —GM Corp.'s director of labor relations, George B. Morris Jr., and the UAW international president, Leonard Woodcock.

Mr. Woodcock said reports that no brought back acceptable proposals from a meeting in Detroit last weekend with GM Corp. President James Roche were "not well-received."

Gordon Lambert of Oshawa, head of the Canadian negotiating team, said he is satisfied with the wage parity proposals and particularly pleased by the supplementary unemployment benefits proposal.

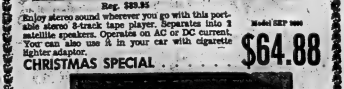
Earlier, GM offered to halve the union's hookup fund—which it supposed to pay laid-off workers up to $9 per cent of their take home pay—if government insurance benefits included—with a payment of 10 cents an hour per employee.

The new agreement increases the offer by four cents an hour and includes money by GM of $1 million in each of the next two years, to be repaid out of the extra four cents.

The pension plan allows an assembler with 30 years of service to retire at age 58 on a monthly pension of $442.50. The amount drops yearly until age 65 when the worker will get $325 a month, including government pension benefits.

The company added two new categories to the pension proposal. Employees raised higher than assemblers would get $420 a month at 58 and skilled tradesmen would get $457.50.

The one really bright immediate prospect for workers is holiday pay if they ratify the agreement today they become eligible for Christmas and New Year's holidays by working the day before and the day after the holiday.



Mr. Gough said the company finds it impossible "in terms of traditional agreements" to ensure that workers are financially set for Christmas.

But union spokesman Jerry Hartford said strike benefits of up to $60 a week will continue and another union official said the union is considering a $20 Christmas bonus for each worker.
